

Joseph Reardon President Manet Health Board Of Directors

The Manet Community Health Center Board of Directors recently elected officers at its recent annual meeting, once again tapping Joseph M. Reardon to serve as President.

Reardon, Vice President of Community Development and Advance Planning at Keohane Funeral Home, has been a member of the health center's community-based board since 2007. A resident of Milton, Reardon brings extensive experience in strategic planning, philanthropy, advocacy, and communications to the role of President.

"I am honored to serve as president of the Manet Board at this moment in our history," Reardon said. "Manet has come a long way since its founding 37 years ago yet we are poised to carry our mission further through the execution of a new strategic plan. My colleagues and I look forward to working together toward ensuring that Manet continues to provide exceptional primary care and services to the communities we serve."

Reardon will work with a newly elected Vice President Eva Greenwood, also of Milton. She brings more than 20 years as a senior health care executive in hospital and managed care settings to her position on the board, where she has served for two years. Currently, she is vice chairwoman of Finance and Administration at Department of Medicine, Boston University.

The other returning officers are Secretary John Galluzzo and Treasurer Robert

EVA GREENWOOD

ROBERT GRIFFIN

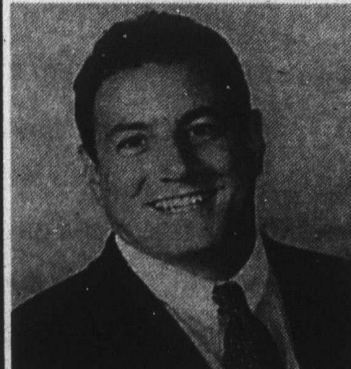

J. Griffin. Galluzzo, a Manet patient from Hanover, is senior grant writer with the South Shore YMCA and author of several local histories. Griffin, a Quincy resident, is a partner in the law firm of Krokidas & Bluestein. All officers will serve until 2017.

Remaining members of the board include Christopher Cogdill, Henry L. Rital, Linda Kelly, Ivan Wong, Barbara Morris, Jedehiah "JD" Brenke, and Zachary Eaton, all of Quincy; John Brothers of Braintree; Carol V. Garner, MD, of West Roxbury; and Vinicius Trivelli of Weymouth.

"It is truly an honor to work with this strong and dedicated table of board members who individually and collectively demonstrate sound and steady leadership during times of transition and accomplishment at Manet," said Manet CEO Cynthia H. Sierra. "It is especially gratifying knowing that, with almost 60% of board membership composed of Manet patients, their work is truly about ensuring the best possible care for our patients."

Coddington Hall, Crane Library Tour

The Park Dept.'s Environmental Treasures Program and the Thomas Crane Public Library will host a free tour of Coddington Hall and the Thomas Crane Public Library on Saturday, March 5.

Led by Stephen Wessling and Bob Cala, two of the architects responsible for the Coddington renovation, Mary Clark, former Crane Library reference librarian, and Tony Ricci, chairman of the Quincy Historical Commission, the tour will feature LaFarge windows, an H.H. Richardson Romanesque masterpiece, an Olmsted designed landscape and a charming bird's eye view of downtown.

The tour will end at the Library bookstore which features great deals on used books. There will be an optional lunch at a local restaurant after the tour.

The tour will begin at 10:30 a.m. in the parking lot in front of Coddington Hall, 34 Coddington St. For more information, call 617-472-0799.

Folk Concert At United First Parish Church

The Stone Temple Coffee House, Quincy's own official Boston Area Coffee House, will present a unique local folk concert with nationally known and recognized singer-songwriters, David Roth, and Johnsmith on Saturday, March 5.

Doors open at 7:30 p.m. and the concert starts at 8 p.m. at the "Church of the Presidents," United First Parish Church, Social Hall, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Roth has been described as a pure, smooth voice with unsurpassed instrumental ability, incredible humor, and heart-piercing, intelligent lyrics. Johnsmith's been called a talented singer songwriter who has a gift for writing deceptively simple songs, with his heart on his sleeve and his voice in control, that spring from a deep place in the soul.

Refreshments will be available. Admission is $20. For reserved tickets and more information call Eileen Baker at 617-821-4073.

Volunteers Sought For Great Massachusetts Cleanup

This spring, hundreds of volunteers will fan out across the Commonwealth to give Massachusetts a thorough spring cleaning.

Keep Massachusetts Beautiful will host the Great Massachusetts Cleanup, a statewide effort that encourages volunteers to organize or participate in local litter cleanups.

Keep Massachusetts Beautiful will help community volunteer groups that sign up to host a Great Massachusetts Cleanup event with logistical planning and volunteer recruitment support. The organization will also work with local communities to provide donations of litter cleanup supplies, such as volunteer T-shirts, trash bags, and gloves. According to Scott Wilson, Director of Roadway Operations at MassDOT, the state has collected an average of 90,000 bags of trash, some 360 tons, along the state's major highways annually over the past three years. These efforts cost MassDOT $1.3 million in 2015 alone, and that figure does not include salaries for MassDOT employees. Nor does it include the cost of cleaning up litter on the Mass Pike or the thousands of miles of secondary highways and smaller roads across the state.

Massachusetts volunteers will be joining millions of participants from across the U.S. by participating in Keep America Beautiful's Great American Cleanup. Last year, more than four million Great American Cleanup volunteers across 20,000 communities collected 37 million pounds of litter and debris.

To register as a Cleanup Coordinator in your community, to volunteer, or to become a corporate sponsor, visit www.keepmass-beautiful.org, email info@keepmassbeautiful.org, or call executive director Neil Rhein at 508-320-8621.

ing into the Massachusetts GOP primary.

The Republican ballot lists 13 candidates – but more than half have already suspended their White House bids. Those ending their campaigns but who appear on the ballot are:

Former Virginia Gov. Jim Gilmore, former New York Gov. George Pataki, former Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee, Kentucky Sen. Rand Paul, former Hewlett-Packard executive Carly Fiorina, former Pennsylvania Sen. Rick Santorum, New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie and former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush.

As of press time, two other Republicans remained in the race heading into Tuesday's caucus in Nevada: Ohio Gov. John Kasich and neurosurgeon Ben Carson.

The Democratic ballot lists four candidates. Besides Sanders and Clinton the other names are fringe candidate Roque "Rocky" De La Feunte and former Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley. O'Malley ended his presidential bid earlier this month after the Iowa Caucus.

Beside the Presidential nomination races, voters will also elect a state committeeman and state committeewoman for the Norfolk-Plymouth District, as well as members of city ward committees next Tuesday. On the Democratic ballot, current state committeeman Patrick McDermott of Quincy and state committeewoman Alicia Gardner also of Quincy are seeking re-election.

On the GOP ballot, there are three candidates running for Republican state committeeman in the Norfolk-Plymouth District: incumbent Matthew Sisk of Braintree, Stephen Tougas of Quincy and Patrick Verhault, also of Quincy.

As for ward committee members, the Democratic ballots in all six Quincy wards have full slates of names. On the GOP ballot, only Wards 1, 5 and 6 have any candidates on those ballots.

Since the Presidential Primaries are partisan elections, not all Quincy voters are eligible to vote in either primary. Registered Democrats can only vote in the Democratic primary and registered Republicans can only vote in the Republican primary. Unenrolled voters can take either a Democratic ballot or a Republican ballot and revert back to unenrolled status after voting at the polls.

There are also two other ballots in the Presidential Primary: the Green-Rainbow Party that lists five candidates and the United Independent Party that lists no candidates on the ballot. Voters who are registered in these two parties who go to the polls next Tuesday can only vote in those primaries. They cannot cross over and request a Republican or a Democratic ballot.

Presidential candidates on the Green-Rainbow ballot include Jill Stein, the party's presidential nominee in 2012. She also ran for Massachusetts governor in 2002 and 2010.

In Quincy, there are 339 voters registered in the United Independent Party and 76 voters registered in the Green-Rainbow Party.

There are also 220 registered voters in Quincy who have declared a particular political affiliation – they do not belong to any of the four aforementioned political parties. As such, these voters cannot vote in next week's Presidential Primaries but are eligible to vote in the Presidential Election in November.

Polls in Quincy will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. next Tuesday.

Former Woolworth's Building Going, Going, Gone

AFTER SEVERAL WEEKS of demolition work, most of the building that was once home to the old Woolworth's Department Store in Quincy Center was reduced to rubble by Tuesday. The top photo was taken on Friday, Feb. 19. Most of the building here is demolished except for the brick wall along Cliveden Street and the familiar front façade. According to the City of Quincy online assessor's database, the building was constructed in 1935. Woolworth's - a landmark store in Quincy Center for generations - moved into the space in 1949 and remained a downtown fixture until closing its doors in 1997. Middle photo: excavator and worker from Quincy-based Jamie McGuinness & Sons demolition contractors knocks down the front of the building at around 9:25 a.m. Monday. A handful of spectators watched the masonry front fall to the ground from the other side of Hancock Street. Bottom photo: most of the building is gone Tuesday morning. Site work continues with the demolition of the building's basement. Property owner Galvcon Development - also based in Quincy - will construct two six-story buildings on this site beginning in April. The new buildings will contain 56 condominium units along with 8,000 square-feet of street-level retail space.

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-PS

Cardiac arrhythmia, also known as cardiac dysrhythmia or irregular heartbeat, is a group of conditions in which the heartbeat is irregular, too fast, or too slow.

The average heart is a strong, muscular pump a little larger than a fist. It pumps blood continuously through the circulatory system. Each day the heart typically beats (expands and contracts) 100,000 times and pumps about 2,000 gallons of blood. In a 70-year lifetime, the normal human heart beats more than 2.5 billion times.

The heart's function is to pump blood to the lungs and to all the body's tissues by a sequence of highly organized contractions of the four chambers. For the heart to perform properly, the four chambers must beat in a systematic way.

Getting Go The Heart of Arrhythmias

Arrhythmias are abnormal beats. The term "arrhythmia" refers to any change from the normal sequence of electrical impulses, causing abnormal heart rhythms. Arrhythmias may be completely innocuous or can prove to be life-threatening. The electrical impulses may happen too fast, too slowly, or erratically – causing the heart to beat too fast, too slowly, or unpredictably. When the heart doesn't beat properly, it can't pump blood effectively. In turn, when the heart doesn't pump blood effectively, the lungs, brain and all other organs can't work properly and may shut down or be impaired.

Some arrhythmias are so brief (a temporary pause or premature beat) that the overall heart rate or rhythm isn't greatly affected. But if arrhythmias last longer, they may cause the heart rate to be too slow or too fast or the heart rhythm to be erratic – so the heart pumps less effectively. An arrhythmia occurs when either, the heart's natural pacemaker develops an abnormal rate or rhythm, the normal conduction pathway is interrupted, or another part of the heart takes over as pacemaker.

There are many different types of arrhythmias:

- Atrial Fibrillation = upper heart chambers contract irregularly
- Bradycardia = slow heart rate - below 60 beats per minute
- Conduction Disorders = heart does not beat normally
- Premature contraction = early heart beat
- Tachycardia = very fast heart rate - above 100 beats per minute in adults
- Ventricular Fibrillation = disorganized contraction of the lower chambers of the heart
- Other Rhythm Disorders - (Adams-Stokes Disease, Atrial Flutter, Sick Sinus Syndrome, Sinus Arrhythmia, Wolff-Parkinson-White (WPW) Syndrome).

Most arrhythmias are considered harmless and are left untreated. The most common symptom of arrhythmia is an abnormal awareness of heartbeat, called palpitations. These may be infrequent, frequent, or continuous. Some of these arrhythmias are harmless, though distracting for patients, but many of them predispose the person to unfavorable outcomes.

Some arrhythmias do not cause any symptoms at all, and are not associated with increased mortality. However, some asymptomatic arrhythmias can also be associated with adverse events. Examples include a higher risk of blood clotting within the heart and a higher risk of insufficient blood being transported to the heart because of a weak heartbeat. Other increased risks are of embolization and stroke, heart failure and sudden cardiac death.

Once your doctor has determined that you have an arrhythmia, he or she will need to find out whether it's abnormal or simply reflects the heart's normal processes. Your healthcare provider will also determine whether your arrhythmia is clinically significant, that is, whether it causes symptoms or puts you at risk for more serious arrhythmias or complications of arrhythmias in the future.

If your arrhythmia is abnormal and clinically significant, your doctor will establish a treatment plan specifically designed for your needs. Goals of any treatment plan for arrhythmias may include: prevention of blood clots from forming to reduce stroke risk, controlling your heart cil's vote; $715,000 from free cash in the sewer enterprise fund, which had more $2 million in free cash on hand prior to the vote; and $1.72 million from the sewer rehabilitation fund, which has $1.8 million remaining in it and is funded by a fee charged to developers who build in the city.

Because free cash and sewer rehabilitation money are funding the projects, Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi said they would have no impact on water or sewer rates.

The $436,000 drawn from the water enterprise account will go towards the installation of a new water main on Hunt Street in North Quincy. Raymondi said National Grid needed to excavate the street for a work the utility company is undertaking, which presented the DPW an opportunity to replace the aging water line under the street at the same time.

The sewer and drain lines on nearby Newbury Avenue between Hunt Street and Kendall Avenue will also be replaced. Raymondi said inspections of the sewer line under Newbury Avenue have shown the pipe has sagged and partially collapsed. The sewer work on the street will cost $715,000, which is being paid with the money allocated from the sewer enterprise fund free cash, and the drain line work will cost $500,000, which was included in the money appropriated from the sewer rehabilitation fund.

The work in Quincy Center includes $889,000 to reconstruct and rehabilitate the placed stonewall in the section of the Town Brook between Elm Street and Washington Street and $330,000 for a permanent stormwater pumping system at Broad Street on the Town River, where the city currently uses a moveable pump during storm events that can be utilized elsewhere once the permanent system is in place.

Both projects will be paid for with money drawn from the sewer rehabilitation fund.

Changes Coming To Police Details

defended the discipline handed down. The chief said he spoke with other police officials about what the typical penalty is for officers found to be have committed similar offenses and wanted to avoid a protracted legal dispute that would have followed a stiffer punishment such as termination; the discipline, he stated, would dissuade other officers from trying to double-dip in the future.

"It's a serious penalty," Keenan said. "It was a decision I made. I stand by the decision."

In addition to the suspension, Corliss was removed from his position as the commander of the Special Operations Unit, will forfeit 20 vacation days and will be barred from working any detail for a year. The lieutenant also signed a "last chance agreement," meaning any further infractions could result in termination.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked the chief if the department would be able to use the software to retroactively look for any potential abuse in past payroll records. Keenan said he was unsure the software would be able to do so, and even if it were the process of adding the necessary information would be too involved.

"It would be incredibly cumbersome to do it; I wouldn't do it," Keenan said. "It would take forever to do that, to go backwards in time."

Palmucci also questioned how Corliss had been able to take the nine days off without having them recorded as vacation days. Keenan said Corliss, as the head of the Special Operations Unit, was responsible for controlling time off in that unit.

"This officer was in a unique position to take advantage of that," the chief stated.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall asked Keenan if the changes to detail operations being undertaken now were contemplated before the investigation into Corliss' records began. Keenan said the prior system was effective but not designed to catch abuse.

"It's been an effective payroll system for all these years, really. If it wasn't broken, there was no real need to fix it," Keenan said. "We've had this situation, so now we look forward to improving upon the system and fixing the system going forward."

The chief later added that both police unions, representing patrolmen and superior officers, are willing to work with the department to fix the problem.

Off-duty officers can work details on public projects, such as those involving roads and city-owned underground utilities, or for private work including construction sites or bars. The Police Department is responsible for assigning officers to the details and issues paychecks to the officers who work private details, which are paid for by the company who hired the officers.

Keenan said Quincy police officers were paid more than $3 million for private detail work in the previous fiscal year and are on pace to receive $4 million in the current fiscal year that ends June 30. The department receives a 10 percent fee for each private detail.

registered Republicans third with 4,905.

The 56,007 voters represents an increase of 1,339 since Oct. 14 - the last day for registration before the city election last November. The previous number was 54,668 voters.

In terms of increases since Oct. 14, the number of unenrolled voters grew by 834; Democrats 297 and Republicans 161.

St. Patrick's Day Luncheon March 18

The 20th anniversary celebration of the City's riotous St. Patrick's Day Lunch is scheduled for 1 p.m. on Friday, March 18 in the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Elks.

Hosted by Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti and Mayor Thomas P. Koch, the festivities will feature music, a full Irish lunch, and of course, the comedic stylings - both good and some not so good - of a number of local leaders.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the Quincy Park Conservancy.

Elected officials, community leaders, and business owners are asked to leave their egos at the door - as just about everyone - and everything - is fair game for the roast-style affair. Space is limited. Anyone interested in attending is asked to RSVP to stpatquincy@comcast.net. Tickets are $20.

"I can't believe we've been doing this for 20 years. I guess what I really can't believe is that anyone still talks to me after making fun of everyone all these years," Bellotti said.

This year, the event will honor Quincy Center restaurateur Leo Keka, owner of Alba, as its Irishman of The Year.

"Keka is a wonderful symbol of the great American tradition of the immigrant success story at the heart of our local celebrations of St. Patrick's Day - whether you're Irish, Italian, German, Chinese or yes, Albanian," Koch and Bellotti said.

rate within a relatively normal range, restoring a normal heart rhythm, if possible, treating heart disease/condition that may be causing the arrhythmia, reduction of other risk factors for heart disease and stroke, medications for arrhythmia, ablation, defibrillation, and devices to help treat arrhythmias.

Living with arrhythmias encompasses a multitude of things, first take all medications exactly as prescribed and never stop taking any prescription medication without first consulting your healthcare provider. Monitor your pulse. It is vital to know what your pulse rate is, especially if you have an artificial pacemaker.

Certain substances can aggravate arrhythmias or contribute to an irregular heartbeat and should be avoided. These may include: caffeine, tobacco, alcohol, cold and cough medications, appetite suppressants, psychotropic drugs (used to treat certain mental illnesses), antiarrhythmics (the same drugs used to treat arrhythmia can also cause arrhythmia, beta-blockers for high blood pressure and street drugs such as cocaine, marijuana and "speed" or methamphetamine. Your healthcare team will monitor you carefully if you're taking these medications.

Work with your healthcare team and follow their instructions to control other risk factors. Just having an arrhythmia increases your risk of heart attack, cardiac arrest and stroke. If you suffer from high blood pressure, work with your doctor to reduce it.

Eat a heart-healthy diet, low in saturated and trans fats and high in fruits, vegetables and whole grains. This will help you to make a conscious effort to control your cholesterol levels.

Strive to keep yourself at a healthy weight, and if you are obese or overweight concentrate on losing those excess pounds. Avoid tobacco smoke, if you do smoke, quit. Engage in some regular physical activity, at minimum 150 minutes per week.

Researchers continue to investigate arrhythmias, and they're making progress. The soundest thing you can do is to follow your treatment plan and take things one day at a time.

Sometimes you may feel that you don't get the support you need and that the people around you aren't very understanding. That's common, because others don't easily see your symptoms. It's hard for them to understand that you might be struggling sometimes to function normally.

Help others to understand by educating them about your condition and by asking for support to help follow your treatment program.

First West Of Chestnut Building Nears Completion

MODEL UNIT prospective tenants considering a move into the nearly completed 65-apartment building at West of Chestnut is now open. Leasing for the project began last week and residential tenants have begun signing new leases. The model unit on the second floor includes 680 square feet of space; the one-bedroom apartment has a monthly rent of $1,900. Each apartment will feature hardwood floors, floor-to-ceiling windows, nine-foot ceilings, Nest thermostats and an in-unit laundry machine.

New Tenants - Both Residents And Retailers - Committing To Move In As Soon As May 1

By SCOTT JACKSON

Work on the first new building constructed in Quincy Center as part of the plan to redevelop the area is nearing the finish line with new tenants - both residents and retailers - committing to move in.

The six-story building in the 1400 block of Hancock Street, which includes ground floor retail space and 65 apartments, is set for completion in April with new tenants moving in as soon as May 1. The project is part of the larger West of Chestnut development that also features a second six-story building with 104 units and additional first floor retail space; that building, on the corner of Chestnut Street and Cottage Avenue, will be ready to open in August.

Construction of West of Chestnut, a joint venture between the Quincy Mutual Group and Gate Residential, began in April 2015. Some 150 workers worked on the project to bring the first building to completion in 12 months.

"We're happy with it," Gate Residential Principal Kyle Warwick said during a recent tour of the property. "On each project, we want to try to do better than the last and we felt like we did that here."

Workers are in the process of finishing apartments in the Hancock Street building floor-by-floor. A one-bedroom apartment on the second floor has been completed and is being used as a model unit for prospective tenants. Leasing for the apartments began last week and the first two apartments had been leased by Feb. 18; both those tenants, Warwick said, will be commuting to jobs in Boston.

The developers are aiming to have 15 leases signed each month and Warwick anticipates that number to pick up as the May 1 move in date gets closer; he said interest in West of Chestnut is high.

Three-quarters of all the apartments in West of Chestnut are studios or one-bedrooms. The remaining units have two bedrooms and two bathrooms; the larger two-bedroom apartments also include a den. The development, Warwick explained, is targeted towards millennials who want the quality of a Downtown Boston residence but not the price tag that comes with it.

FAÇADE of the six-story, 65-apartment building located on Hancock Street is nearly complete. The building's exterior includes Vermont granite, iron-spotted brick and two tones of metal panels; the building is designed to have a contemporary look. The second building on site, with 105 units, is set for completion in August.

"They can pay half of the price they would pay in Boston but have 100 percent of the amenities and finishes," Warwick said.

Monthly rents start at $1,825 for studio units, $1,942 for those with one bedroom and $2,495 for the two bedroom units, according to the West of Chestnut website, wocquincy.com. The monthly rent for the largest units, with two bedrooms and a den, is $2,850.

Each apartment features wide-plank hardwood floors, quartz countertops, cabinets imported from Italy, a washer and dryer, and stainless steel GE kitchen appliances, including a dishwasher. Each apartment has its own air conditioning system and tankless gas heating system. The apartments have nine-foot high ceilings and floor-to-ceiling windows, which, coupled with their open floor plans, makes them appear larger than they are. New tenants will have a choice of color for the accent wall in their bedrooms, with the ability to pick between plum, green and blue.

Warwick said the apartments are designed to have a "contemporary urban, but comfortable feeling." Dennis Duffy, an interior designer based out of South Boston, designed the apartments inside West of Chestnut and also consulted on the exterior of the buildings.

The buildings' façades include Vermont granite at ground level with iron-spotted brick above and then two types of metal panels on top. Warwick said the buildings' darker façades are intended to have a more contemporary look.

Some rooms on the top floor of the buildings will come with views of Boston Harbor. Others in the building on Hancock Street will be able to look out on the Adams Hancock Green, the KITCHENS in the new apartments at West of Chestnut include quartz countertops, imported Italian cabinets and stainless steel GE refrigerator, electric range, dishwasher and microwave as seen in the model unit located on the second floor of the Hancock Street building. The new development in Quincy Center will also be home to two restaurants, which have signed letters of intent to lease ground floor retail space. The other two commercial tenants include a lifestyle retailer focused on health and fitness and likely a café.

new public park planned between City Hall and the United First Church, and even Downtown Boston including the Hancock Tower, which the developers didn't expect.

"It was a little bit of a surprise quite honestly," Warwick said.

The 12,000 square feet of combined ground level retail space is being split between four tenants. Warwick said three retailers have signed letters of intent — a lifestyle retailer focused on health and fitness and two restaurants, including one that will move into the 5,000 square foot retail space adjacent to the Granite Trust Building, the largest retail space in the development. Warwick said it was too early to announce the names of those tenants, but an announcement is expected in the coming weeks.

The fourth retail space is likely to be used as a café. Warwick said an agreement for that space is close.

Aside from the two buildings, West of Chestnut also includes a new street, Chestnut Way, which will bisect the property. Traffic will flow in one direction on the new thoroughfare, from Chestnut Street to Hancock Street; vehicles exiting on Hancock will only be allowed to take a right-hand turn.

"It's a real active space; the public will be mixing with residents," Warwick said of Chestnut Way. "It's city building within a small piece of a bigger city."

Residents living in either of the buildings will have access to a health suite and a club suite on either side of the new Chestnut Way.

The health suite includes a cross-training room and cardio and strength space and will open in May when the Hancock Street building does. The club suite features flat screen televisions, networking space with computers and a copy center, and a game room with foosball and pool tables. Also planned is a chef's kitchen, which residents could reserve for a fee to entertain guests.

West of Chestnut tenants also have access to a 3,500 square foot courtyard with a dog washing station, play lawn, fire pit, and outdoor kitchen.

The project includes a 75-car garage under the Chestnut Street building, which tenants of the Hancock Street building will be able to utilize beginning in May. Thirty more spaces will be available at the surface level, 16 of which will be for tenants and the remainder shared by tenants and the public.

West of Chestnut is one of two mixed-use developments Quincy Mutual and Gate Residential unveiled plans for November 2014. The second project, known as East of Chestnut, will be built on Quincy Mutual's parking lot on Chestnut Street and could include up to 220 residential units and ground floor retail space. Warwick said that project is in the conceptual stage presently.

CONDENSORS for the apartments of the Hancock Street building have been installed on its roof; each of the building's 65 apartments has its own air conditioning system and in-unit gas-powered tankless heating system. The Granite Trust Building at 1400 Hancock St. is in the background.

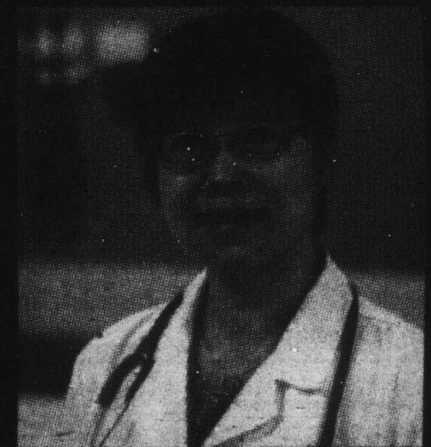

VIEW from the sixth floor corner apartment inside West of Chestnut's Hancock Street building includes the Granite Trust Building (right); the location of a planned public park between the United First Parish Church and City Hall (center); and Downtown Boston (background). Several of the other apartments in this building and the second building on Chestnut Street will have views of Boston Harbor.

Broad Meadows Girls, Atlantic Boys Volleyball Champs

Middle School Tournament

By CHRIS PRENDIVILLE

In the recent middle school volleyball championships held at Quincy High School, the Atlantic Boys' team and the Broad Meadows girls' team finished the day as the City Champions.

The day started off with Point girls playing the Sterling girls for the Wild Card spot on court one. In a great 3-game match, the Sterling Eagles pulled out the victory to advance to the semi finals.

Point served well in game one led by Kelsy Duong and Emily Pham-Nguyen. Sterling kept up the intensity in game 2 to force the deciding 3rd game with great play by Victoria Primo and Hanna Valenzuela. In the 3rd game, Point never gave up and had great performances by Rachel McKenna, Lorena Martinez and Kayleigh Donofrio who hustled and dove all over the court. Sterling prevailed thanks to scrappy defense by Sherissa Alexis and Kaila Jacques.

In the girls' Semifinals, Broad Meadows faced off against Atlantic. In a great match, Broad Meadows emerged the victor to advance to the finals. Atlantic had great serving from Mariah Everett-Otíz as well as Kathryn Moriarty who also had a good day passing. Luna Wan played well all around for Atlantic. Broad Meadows had solid performances from Juliana Tracey, Priscilla Bonica and Emily Kraunelis which helped the team defeat Atlantic.

In the second semi-final, Central girls faced Sterling. Great play by Central's Vic-pions. Broad Meadows emerged the victor after a hard fought match. Great rallies and plays worthy of many high school teams should make the future of volleyball in Quincy assured for the foreseeable future. Central's Capt. Ashley Caldwell, Capt. Allison McMorrow and Lydia Chan had outstanding games for the Rams who finished at 6-2. Broad Meadows had great all around play from Shelagh Holler and Abby Hanly which helped the team take home the trophy.

The boys' matches also had some spectacular play. In the Wild Card match Sterling played Broad Meadows. Broad Meadows squeezed out a win in the 3rd game defeating the Eagles 16-14 to advance to the semi finals. Richard and Raymond Chen both had great games serving helping the team into the next round. Sterling saw outstanding net play from Amari Robinson and Pat DeVoy as well as outstanding hustle and defense by Stuart Dozier. Mahir Patel led the offense setting for the Eagles.

The semi finals saw Point challenge Central in its best game of the season. Point's Tom Harnedy who hustled all over the court helped the Point team get to a 3rd game. Great serving by Joe Ban and Abdul Alnasiri kept the Central's team challenged. Point captains Tommy MacPherson and Joe Osgood were constant leaders on and off the court and motivated the team with their hard play and hustle. Central's boys took the match thanks to great play by Zach Hatfield, Thomas Ly and Michael Levine to advance to the finals.

In the second semi, Broad Meadows faced a tough Atlantic squad. Both teams are coached by former North Quincy Volleyball players Tricia Wong and Holly Rendle. Jack O'Brien had great all around play for Broad Meadows who lost to the Atlantic boys. Atlantic's win was led by Michael Mei who had great setting in leading his offense which was dominated by Tony Nguyen and Tyler Li. The win put Atlantic into the showdown final against Central.

The final was a match worthy of the sport with great serving, hitting, blocking and defensive hustle. Atlantic emerged the City Champion thanks to great all around play by Peyton McGaffigan, and defensive saves by Jacky Lam.

Central had solid games from Captains Ethan Lunny, David Ryan and Brendan Bailey.

Carey, Tran Shine At State Swim/Dive Championships

This past weekend marked the end of 2015-16 Winter Swimming and Diving with State Championships at Boston University.

On Friday night, Quincy High Junior Captain Bailee Carey took to the 1-meter diving board for the last time this season. Carey dove for an impressive 373.65 points putting her in first place through semifinals. In the final round, Carey ended with a career high of 505.10 points placing her third overall in the state for Division 1 - a huge accomplishment.

On Saturday night, the boys took to the pool. Junior Captain Thomas Tran clocked 1:04.20 placing him 24th overall in the state for division 1. Quincy High School Girls finished 26th overall in the State Championship.

ATLANTIC BOYS VOLLEYBALL team recently won the city middle school tournament held at Quincy High School. Another Working Vacation For Presidents Hoop

Quincy Wins Three Games In Five Nights • Awaits Tournament Seed Friday

By BILL GRIFFIN

There is only one problem about February vacation for Quincy's basketball team. There is no vacation.

Last year, the Presidents played five games in five nights during "vacation." The goals were to win the Moscardelli Tournament and clinch the Keenan Division Patriot League championship. Mission was accomplished.

This year, Quincy just sat back and relaxed. They took it slow and easy, hung out, chilled out and merely played four games in five nights. Slackers.

The goals were to win the Moscardelli again and move towards clinching a home game in the tournament. Once again, mission accomplished. The Presidents swept to their fourth straight Moscardelli title with impressive wins over Southeastern (82-41) and Milton (77-54) behind tourney MVP Mark Munroe who combined for 42 points and 28 rebounds in the two games.

There was more. Quincy then played its best game of the season, showcasing a pluperfect first half of basketball and cruising past a good Hingham club, 72-52 in a Patriot League contest.

Junior center Ugo Kamalu had a career-high 26 points and senior Dyreke Johnson added 18 points and 10 assists. More than mere numbers, the two offered a showcase of how big men should move, get open and pass the basketball. Toss in a zone which choked off Hingham's powerful big men and another steadiest of efforts from Quinlan Evans (15 against Hingham, 27 in the Moscardelli tourney), and the result was a gem of a basketball game.

Catholic Conference power Malden Catholic defeated Quincy, 57-47 Friday night, but the loss didn't hurt the Presidents in their chase for a home game. It was an exclusionary game and did not count towards tournament seeding. Quincy finished the week at 14-5. The Presidents played Middleboro Tuesday night. If they won, they are almost certain to play a first-round game in their gym.

"Right now, we are playing very well. We are moving the ball on offense, and the defense is finally starting to clamp down the way we want it to," said coach Dave Parry.

How good are the Presidents right now? Very good. In their first game against Hingham, they won by two. Last week they won by 20. In the first game against Malden Catholic, they lost by 15. Friday night, they were tied in the fourth period.

The Presidents are a dangerous tournament team. They are big, fast and athletic. They can defend out of a man-to-man, a zone or a trap. Offensively, Johnson, Kamalu and Darius Setal Singh can slice up a man-to-man. Evans, Johnson, Scott Mele and Jeff Petithomme can shoot down a zone. They have been hardened by playing three overtime contests and seven games that were decided by six points or less. They have weapons. They are playing their best at the best possible time.

"We're peaking right now, which is the way we want it," said Parry. "We didn't have a lot of varsity experience when the season started, but the kids have developed a chemistry playing together. They've worked hard and it shows."

Kamalu and Johnson were the main players in a 24-8 run in the second period against Hingham which produced a 43-24 halftime lead. Kamalu entered when Quincy got in foul trouble less than two minutes into the game. He scored 14 of Quincy's 19 points in the first quarter, and then partnered with Johnson in the second to take control of the game.

Kamalu moved beautifully without the ball and finished with a softest of touches off a quick release despite being bumped close to the bucket. When Kamalu found an open spot, Johnson found Kamalu. When Johnson cut to clear space, Kamalu made the extra pass for a Johnson layup. These are not guards. These are big men. These are big men who

PREVENTING PELVIC GIRDLE PAIN

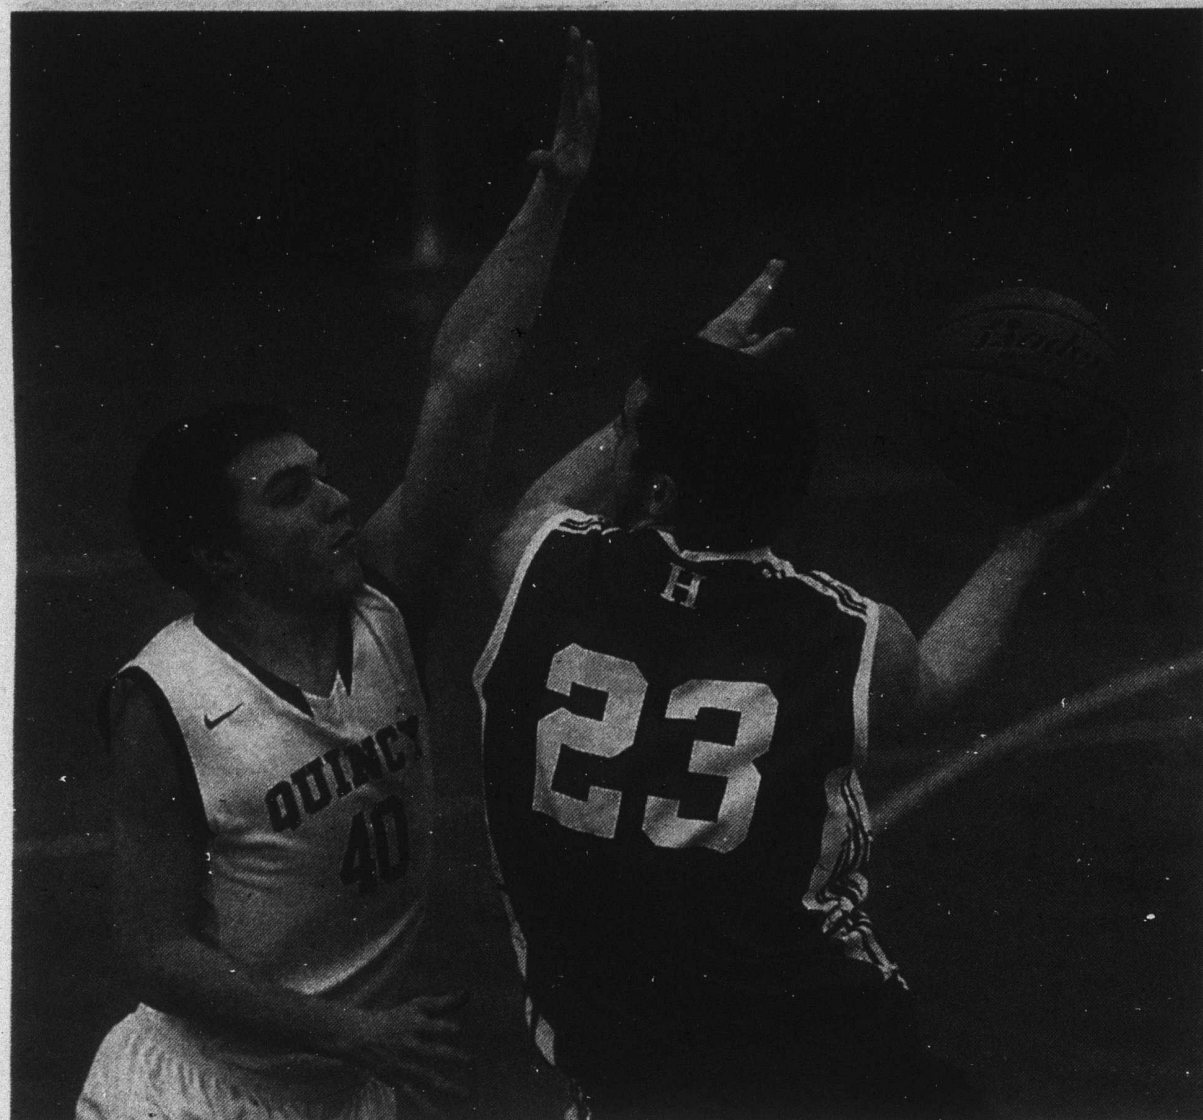

One common condition encountered among pregnant patients is "pelvic girdle pain," which causes pain, instability, and limited mobility in any of the three pelvic joints. As the hormone relaxin produced by the ovaries and placenta loosens the ligaments in the pelvic girdle in preparation for delivering the baby, the joints become less stable. As a result, pregnant women often experience pain across the pubic bone in the front, below the stomach, or across one or both sides of the lower back. Pelvic girdle pain is relatively common during pregnancy, and 2%-3% of women may continue to experience it up to a year after the birth. Chiropractic treatment during and after pregnancy may help stabilize the pelvic joints and reduce pain.

Many pregnant women have found that chiropractic adjustments provide relief from the increased low-back pain brought on by pregnancy. Wherever you hurt, at FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we're here to help. Please call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Recent research indicates that weight-bearing exercises before pregnancy may help reduce the risk of developing pelvic girdle pain.

not only can pass the ball, but want to pass the ball. It was a sweet thing to watch.

"Ugo is very cagey and he works on his inside moves all the time in practice," said Parry. "He knows how to get open and Dyreke always finds the open man. Our bigs pass the ball well. We passed the ball as well as we have all season in the second period. Sometimes we pass too much, and that leads to turnovers. But I'll live with that."

Quincy's 1-3-1 zone closed off the middle in the first half, but the Harbormen hit a couple of threes and went to center Logan Larsen (four dunks) along the baseline to make a run in the second half. Hingham closed to within 55-49 early in the fourth, but Quincy had the answer: Spread the floor and put the ball in Johnson hands. He got to the basket whenever he wanted, scored eight points and dished out three assists in the period.

The best was a long, looping fast-break feed for a Kamalu layup which opened up a non-refundable 66-52 lead with 2:53 left.

"Dyreke sees the floor so well, and he's very unselfish. He leads the team in assists. Against a man-to-man late in the game, we want the ball in his hands," said Parry.

Munroe had 24 points and 14 rebounds in the opening-round win over Southeastern in the opener of the Moscardelli. He added 18 points and 14 rebounds against Milton which gave him 88 points and 44 rebounds in a three-game stretch going back to the win over North.

Evans and Johnson each had 12 while Kamalu added 11 against Milton. Kyle Murphy chipped in with 10. Quincy closed fast with a 27-15 edge in the final period to put away the championship. Evans was named to the tournament all-star team.

"Our transition game was very good against Milton. We played good defense and that got our fast break going," said Parry.

Against Malden Catholic, Michael Boyd scored 16 first-half points to help the Lancers to a 10-point lead at intermission. Quincy adjusted at halftime, went to a box-and-one with Setalsingh chasing around Boyd, and battled back to tie the game in the fourth period.

"That was the first time we played the box-and-one and I was happy with our defense," said Parry. "We took a lot of positives out of the game. We played well against a very good team. It was a good warmup for the tourney."

Munroe led Quincy with 14 while Johnson sparked the Presidents' rally with 10 second-half points. After Quincy drew even in the fourth period, MC hit a couple of threes to open up a lead and made its foul shots down the stretch to clinch the win.

Tournament pairings will be announced Friday.

Munroe, Flaherty Compete At MA Track Championships

The MIAA All-State Championship is the epitome of indoor track competition.

The best athletes in the state and perhaps some of the best in the country, gather at the Reggie Lewis Center to decide who are the best individuals and who are the best teams in Massachusetts.

North and Quincy High schools were both fortunate to be represented by a single athlete. For North it was high jumper Isabelle Flaherty. For Quincy it was shotputter Mike Munroe.

Flaherty perhaps is better known for her volleyball exploits as a powerful inside hitter for the Red Raiders, but her track and field prowess is slowly gaining even keel. Munroe is no stranger to track and field limelight having been to the Mass Allstate outdoor as a sophomore throwing the shot 50 feet. He has been a more than dependable lineman for the football team and helped the Presidents go to two consecutive playoff berths on the gridiron.

Isabelle had cleared a PR matching 5'0" in the high jump good for fifth place in the Division 1 championships Feb. 14. A new approach and some insightful video analysis from assistant coach Kim Allen showed promise. But it was not to be, with three misses at the opening height of 5'00 including a narrow miss on her second attempt, resulting in no mark.

"She had a lot of height on her second attempt" said Head Coach Geoff Hennessy, "but her calf grazed it on the way down. Video footage showed her new approach is a harbinger for things to come. I'm confident she will continue to improve into spring."

For Munroe, learning a new technique has its fits and starts with some great throws and others falling short of the mark. His opening throw of 49'11" was a good start, but he could not improve. Going into the finals he was sixth but the 7th and 8th athletes improved on their final throws to move up bumping Mike to 8th. Only the top six advance to next Sunday's New England and with none of the higher placing athletes opting out, Munroe's season ended.

"Mike is ready for big things come outdoors, but learning a new technique is never smooth sailing," Hennessy said. "Again video analysis shows that with some technical fine-tuning, he'll be among the best in the state. Credit also goes to our Throw coaches Mike Lorenzano, Curtis Calley and Michelle Bell who have worked tirelessly with Mike and all the throwers on lifting, throwing, relaxation and video analysis."

The 2016 version of the MIAA Division 1 Championships had the look of a European Pro Circuit meet with signage and cameras everywhere. The display was for the evening's New Balance Grand Prix which the Reggie Lewis Center hosts every year, but for a few hours the Quincy and North Quincy athletes soaked it in and felt extra special.

"We felt like we were in the professional or Olympic meets. A fun twist," coach Geoff Hennessy said.

The QNQ Athletes got on the board quickly as Isabelle Flaherty cleared 5'00" for the first time indoors placing 5th and qualifying for the MIAA state championship Feb. 20.

Mike Munroe unloaded a huge PR on his second throw of 54'8.25" a three foot improvement over his 51'7" in the State Coaches Elite meet to place 3rd and punch his ticket to Allstate.

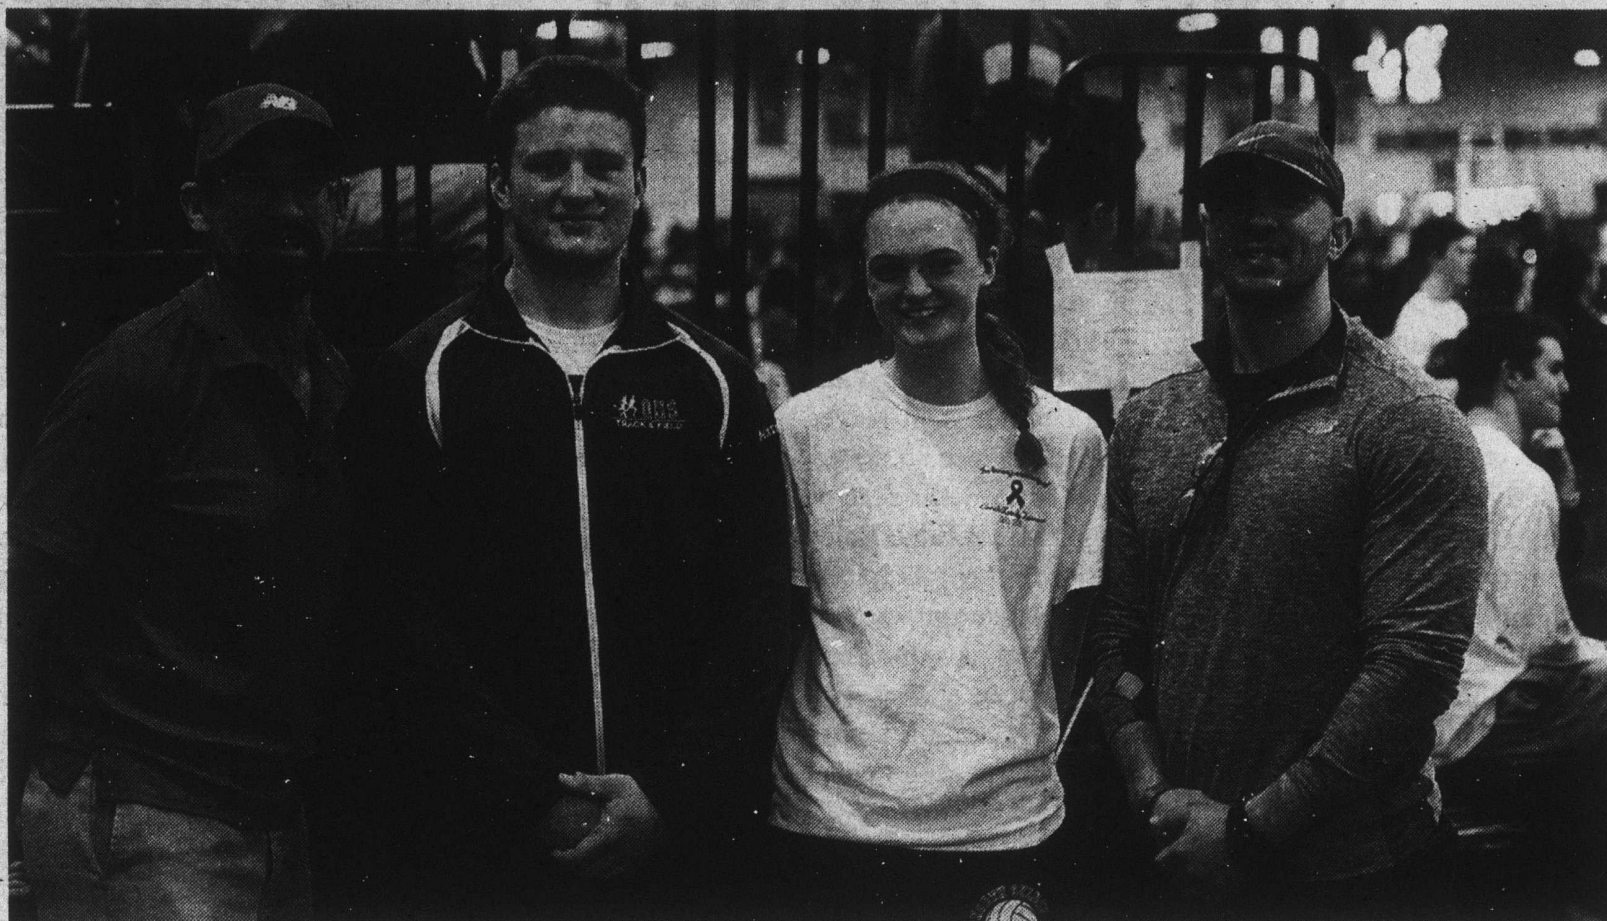

Teammate Nick Kelly placed 16th with a toss of 44'06".

Other competitors included Alex Case 16th and Devin Hiltunen 19th in the 300 meters, and the 4 x 200 team of Case, Hiltunen, Mia Healy and Allison Wong which took 17th and the 4 x 400 relay team of Case, Hiltunen, Abby Murphy and Maggie McGoldrick which also placed 17th.

Hennessy was impressed with the relays which preformed well despite members being sick or coming off illness.

"Devin and Alex have been sick for two week with coughing and congestion, plus Devin is asthmatic. We didn't clock season bests but were close. Abby Murphy ran her best 400 leg ever - a 64.3.

"I was proud of all the athletes we brought. Our staff worked very hard to get people qualified to come here. Division 1 is a beast. Several athletes who didn't make it could have in lower divisions. Bows To Hingham But Holds One Game Lead

Quincy Girls Near Keenan Division Crown

By BILL GRIFFIN

There are nights when the ball won't go in the basket.

It is a simple truth of basketball. No matter how good a team is, no matter how well it defends, rebounds and passes, there are games when it seems like the rim it sealed tight with a ring of iron.

Quincy had a night like this against Hingham. Toss in a tough road gym, an excellent defensive team, and there is the perfect storm for an upset. Hingham sealed off the middle with stifling defense, built a 13-point lead in the third period and survived a strong finishing kick from the Presidents for a 35-30 Patriot League Keenan Division victory Saturday night.

Despite the defeat, Quincy remained in good shape to clinch the Keenan Division crown. Quincy (17-3 overall, 15-2 in the league) had a one-game lead over Hingham (15-3, 14-3 in the league) at the end of last week. Quincy hosted Middleboro Tuesday. Hingham played unbeaten Hanover Tuesday. A Quincy win or a Hingham defeat clinched sole possession of the division title for the Presidents.

"Hingham played a great defensive game," said coach Jeff Bretsch. "They were aggressive, they made it hard for us to get the ball inside and disrupted what we like to do."

Hingham's plan was to put Quincy's 1000-point scorer Nicole Jorgensen in a box of double and triple-team defenses. The Harborwomen used their best player, senior Sydney Blasetti, to front Jorgensen on every play - with or without the ball. When Jorgensen did move to an open space or the ball did come inside, Bridget Hoffses and Abby Landry circled around Jorgensen. Jorgensen had no room. Not an inch.

Hingham's quickness and length, particularly from sophomore Haley Blasetti, made entry passes challenging. The Harborwomen's defense created a 21-13 halftime lead which grew to 28-15 midway through the third. Quincy was down by 12 with less than a minute left in the third when the Presidents kicked their own defense into high gear for a closing run which nearly won the game.

"They followed Nicole everywhere," said Bretsch. "I was proud of the intensity we showed. We played hard for the entire game. I thought we executed well at times on offense. We got good shots. They just didn't go in."

The defense brought back Quincy. Gabby Jerahian and Lianna Cunningham played lockdown defense on the perimeter for the entire game holding Sydney and Haley Blasetti to four points apiece. Joelle Robinson came off the bench and gave the Presidents a shot of energy with a steal and a beautiful entry pass for a Jorgensen bucket in the fourth.

Jorgensen protected the rim with smart, effective defense despite playing with four fouls. Jerahian, Cunningham, Robinson, Alyssa Camara, Sarah Gibbons, and Arianna Paulo created chaos with a fullcourt trap. Quincy made steals, forced a shot-clock violation, won 50-50 balls, pressed Hingham into bad passes, and blocked shots.

"Joelle's steal and pass to Nicole was the play of the night for us," said Bretsch. "We got more assertive and aggressive on defense and it brought us back into the game. We had a good chance at the end."

The defense held Hingham to four points and no field goals until the final 45 seconds of the fourth period. Quincy still could not catch a break at the rim. Jumpers circled in and out. Layups kissed one side of the basket and rolled off the other without falling. Still Quincy kept coming. Jerahian had two strong finishes at the rim. Camara (six points) hit on a lefty drive. Jorgensen (10 points, 11 rebounds, five blocks) had eight in the second half and made a short jumper off a Robinson assist to make it 33-30 with 2:18 left.

"I was proud of the way Nicole responded in the second half. She could have become frustrated with that defense, but she kept playing her game," said Bretsch. Quincy had the ball, down three with 1:30 left. The Presidents had a good drive to the basket, but the layup - you guessed it - rolled off the rim. Hingham was able to work the clock and clinch the win.

"We just had trouble scoring for the entire game," said Bretsch.

Jerahian played a terrific game. She had 14 points, nearly half her team's total. She swished two deep threes early and had three more which were halfway down the hoop before spinning back out. Her defense on Blasetti was relentless. In a tough challenge, on the road, against a top team, she came up big. She was the best player on the floor.

"Gabby played great," said Bretsch. "Her defense was very good, and I liked the way she went to the basket and finished her drives in the fourth period."

The tournament pairings will be announced Friday. Quincy is assured of a home game and a high seed in Division 1 South. Don't read too much into the Hingham game. The Presidents have seen defenses like this before, and they will see them again. When they swung the ball from side-to-side, they got quality shots. The ball would not go in the basket.

Author To Discuss Boston Marathon History Book

Local author Paul C. Clerici will discuss his book "Boston Marathon History by the Mile" on Tuesday, March 15 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The award-winning writer takes readers through the entire colorful 26.2-mile journey, mile by mile, town by town, story by story. With his unique vast array of experiences and knowledge - he has run the Boston Marathon 23 times and covered it for nearly 30 years - Clerici brings the great race to life through informative, humorous, and enlightening detail that includes stories about every statue, moment, landmark, and portion of the course from its start in 1897 to its current incarnation.

With forewords by Boston Marathon race director Dave McGillivray and the first woman to run and complete the race - Roberta "Bobbi" Gibb - the book features a wide range of stories about the very beginnings in Ashland; the various start lines in Hopkinton; the Scream Tunnel at Wellesley College; the Johnny Kelley statue in Newton; the different finish lines in Boston; and much, much more.

A freelance journalist, writer, photographer, and former newspaper editor and sports editor, Clerici has competed in nearly every distance from the mile to the marathon - including two triathlons, 43 marathons, the Falmouth Road Race several times - and has won numerous age-group and Clydesdale running awards.

They're not so focused about working on the best season in team history.

The Quincy/North Quincy girls' hockey co-op (13-5-3) has won more games than ever this season and is expected to be one of the top seeds in MIAA Division 1 when the playoffs roll around. But the Presidents won't have to worry about that for a while.

On Sunday night, the Presidents fell, 6-2, to the Whitman-Hanson/Silver Lake Skaters at home while playing for the SEGMLH Northeast championship.

Junior forward Riley McGlaughlin and freshman forward Cassandra Davis had the co-op's goals in the loss.

Back on Dec. 26, the Presidents topped the Skaters, 4-1. And in that game, junior forward Kate McGehey played defense because the team was low on depth. Since it worked out the first time, the team tried her out on defense again on Sunday and it worked out well, according to head coach Jeff Craig.

Their final regular season game might not have gone in their favor, but now the Presidents have over a week off. And they can use that time to practice every day to prep for the tournament.

"We just have to continue to work hard, fix ourselves and be ready for that first game of the tournament," head coach Jeff Craig said. "I thought this game served as a good measuring stick for us to tell where we're at. For 35 minutes, it was a great game. Both teams had a ton of chances. But we need to work on that last ten."

Now that they'll be on the road, the Presidents might have an easier time because in the regular season, they went 4-4-1 at the Quincy Youth Arena and 9-1-1 away from it. From here on out, all of their games will be played at neutral sites and their goal is simple: keep the season alive.

"We just want to win that first game," said Craig. "We don't know when we'll be playing, who we'll be playing or where we'll be playing. But we just got to be ready to try to win that game. At that point in the year, it's single elimination, so we don't want to lose and be done. We're going to give it a go, work as hard as we can and see what happens."

Craig added that junior Karissa Beal has been strong in net and senior forward Savannah Flynn had a key game winning goal with 11 seconds left against the Peabody/Lynnfield co-op on Feb. 17.

North Quincy Boys Clinch Tourney Spot

It was a fun ferry ride home for the North Quincy boys' hockey team last Saturday.

That is because the Red Raiders (10-9-1) stayed overnight in Martha's Vineyard after beating the island's regional high school, 5-2, last Friday night. With the win, the Red Raiders clinched a spot in the MIAA Division 2 South Sectional playoffs.

All four senior captains, Cam White, Timmy Glynn, Matt MacDonald and Kevin Mock, had goals in the game. Mock had two goals in the contest.

of the Greater Boston Track Club," the first book to chronicle the famous running club - originally coached by Bill Squires - whose members have included Boston Marathon champions Bill Rodgers, Alberto Salazar, Jack Fultz, Greg Meyer, Bob Hall, and many other great athletes.

Copies of his books will be available for purchase, which he will also sign.

in the 50 freestyle for 25th place.

Quincy High School had two members of its team make it to Central/South Sectionals for winter swimming and diving at MIT recently.

Bailee Carey dove beautifully to achieve a score of 468.25 for 11 1-meter dives. This placed her at third place

This marks the fifth time in six seasons that the Red Raiders will make a postseason appearance.

And now that his team has made it this far, head coach Matt Gibbons believes that his team will surprise many. In order for them to do so, it will take a team effort.

"When we're most dangerous is when all three lines are scoring or at least not giving up goals," he said. "I think we've done a nice job of that since we have eight or nine guys with double digit points on the year. That doesn't happen too often. You can't be a one line team."

"I don't want them to think they can shut down the first line and then that will shut us down. I want them to think we have three solid lines that they have to worry about. I think our speed comes in huge, especially in the playoffs. We have a team that can motor which gives other teams a lot to worry about. Speed is definitely going to be huge for us with all the lines."

His top line, consisting of junior Hunter Phillips, Mock and White has been key to his team's offensive production. But Gibbons said that the likes of Austin Lee, Kieran O'Driscoll, AJ Currie, Corey Hernandez, Garrett Kulig, Ethan Herman and John Norton should also prove key in the tournament.

White has especially stood out since making the switch from defense to the attack. The now-forward has scored nine goals in his nine games since making the move.

"To ask a kid to average a goal a night since he's moved up to forward is way too much," Gibbons said. "But he's done it and it's been fun to watch."

All three of the city's varsity high school hockey programs are headed to the tournament.

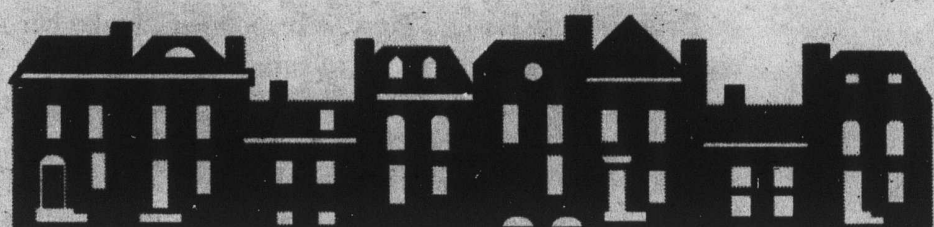

Besides the Q/NQ girls and the NQ boys teams, the Quincy Presidents boys team also earned a tournament seed last week.

Pairing will be announced later this week.

In the 100 yard butterfly swim, Thomas Tran placed 24th clocking 59.72. Later, in the 100 yard breaststroke, Tran became the first boy to score QHS points at the sectionals tournament. He placed 16th clocking 1:05.49.

Overall, the girls tied for 29th and the boys placed 47th at the tournament.

lion federal Transportation Investment Generating Economic Recovery grant for the project. The TIGER grant application estimates the construction of a new station, which would also include a new justice center and office space and visitor center for the Adams National Historical Park, would cost $52 million.

A public-private partner would be responsible for paying the remaining project cost, estimated at $22 million. That company would be tasked with the final design and construction of the facility and maintain and operate it for a period of 30 to 40 years, after which it would be returned to the city. The public-private partner would be paid using income, such as parking receipts and rent, generated by the station.

The City Council is considering adding the train station to the city's Urban Revitalization and Development Plan for the downtown area to include the station in the redevelopment district, which would expedite the state environmental permitting process. The council's downtown and economic growth committee will review the proposed URDP amendment at 6:30 p.m. on March 7, at which time a public hearing will be held.

A public informational meeting on the MBTA station plan has been tentatively scheduled for March 10. Other meetings are expected to follow.

City engineer Frank Tramontozzi, who compiled the TIGER grant application, discussed plans for the station at the council's Jan. 16 meeting.

"This is an opportunity, since the station is in such disrepair anyway, to build a grand station at Quincy Center," he told councillors. "Quincy deserves a grand station. It's the gateway to our city and the gateway to our downtown."

Tramontozzi said the current iteration of the plan calls for three buildings on site: A train station with parking above; a 250,000 square foot justice center north of the station on the Burgin Parkway side; and a National Park Service office building on Burgin Parkway, across the train tracks from city hall.

The Red Line and Commuter Rail tracks would remain at the bottom level of the station under the city's plan. A busway would sit inside the station one level above the train tracks. Access to the busway would be from Burgin Parkway instead of Hancock Street, which most buses use presently; the taxiway and pick-up/drop-off area would remain on the Hancock Street side.

A five-story upper garage and a lower level garage would offer some 870 parking spaces, the same number of spaces in the original station's garage, which the MBTA closed suddenly in July 2012 because of structural concerns. Tramontozzi said the garage was only 50 percent utilized while it was still open to the public.

The National Park Service building, in addition to housing office space, would also include a trolleyway accessible from Burgin Parkway.

Construction of the new facility could begin as soon as late 2017, Tramontozzi said.

Chris Walker, the communications director for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the plan for the facility could change depending on feedback received during the forthcoming public meetings and incorporating the station into the URDP would not hinder the city's ability to alter the proposal.

"Whatever happens at the Quincy Center train station, it is the administration's belief that we need to have it within the URDP," Walker stated. "Even if plans change 100 percent between now and the time the public process is complete, it's important for us to have the train station in the URDP."

Councillor Nina Liang, the chairwoman of the downtown committee, said the plan introduced Feb. 16 was a good first step in process of replacing the station and it will be important for the public to weigh in on the concept.

"I think I can speak for all of my fellow councillors that this is an issue that has been brought to our attention many times over the past couple of years and it's been a concern around all the changes that are happening across our city," Liang said. "This is the gateway to our city."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall said the transit station has been at the top of residents' minds since the garage's closure.

"I think this is a creative approach and is actually a vision to potentially leverage outside agencies to solve a common problem," he said. "No matter where I go - it could be a neighborhood meeting or something completely different - the status of the Quincy Center parking garage always comes up."

The URDP for Quincy Center was originally adopted in 2007 and was amended in 2009 and 2010 as Street-Works became the master developer for the downtown. An additional amendment to the URDP, which reflects new plans for Quincy Center with Street-Works out of the picture, was introduced to the council last year but was not approved before the body's legislative term expired at the end of December.

Another amendment, incorporating some of the changes contemplated last year, will likely go before the council in the coming months.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci expressed disappointment over a requirement for the Planning Board to review covenants reached by the mayor and developers proposing to build on privately held land in the Quincy Center urban renewal district was not included in the amendment introduced Feb.

16. The council's downtown committee voted in favor of including that language in the proposed URDP amendment that went before the body last year.

"That's troubling to me," Palmucci said.

NeighborWorks Homebuyer Workshop March 12, March 19

NeighborWorks South-eastern Mass. will offer a two-part workshop for first-time homebuyers, to be held from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, March 12 and Saturday, March 19 at the Winter Gardens apartment complex (lower level community room), located at 45 Winter St. in Quincy.

The workshop will give participants an opportunity to meet and hear from real estate brokers, insurance agents, attorneys and loan originators. Attendees also will have an opportunity to learn about the South Shore Home Consortium's down payment assistance programs, which may provide qualified buyers with up to 9 percent of the purchase price toward their down payment and up to an additional 1 percent toward closing costs on homes purchased in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Holbrook or Milton.

Workshop participants will also be able to speak to a lender about different mortgage options.

The registration fee for the workshops is $20 per person. To register and pay online, visit www.nwsoma.org or call (617) 770-2227 x34 for more information.

On Wednesday, February 17, 2016 at approximately 9:30 p.m., Officers Bruce Tait and Maura DaSilva were dispatched to a Quincy Point address on a call of a male/female disorder.

Upon arrival, Officer Tait observed a female standing outside the building, barefoot, wearing pajama-type clothing and crying. The Officer noted numerous signs of intoxication, including the strong odor of an alcoholic beverage, slurred speech, unsteadiness on her feet and she kept repeating herself. When asked what happened, the female started a rambling story about going out with her daughter for drinks. She kept drifting off-topic, telling tales about life in general.

After listening intently to determine what occurred, Officer Tait was able to put together that the female went drinking with her daughter and at some point called her ex-boyfriend, now roommate for a ride home, but he refused. The female said when she returned home, her ex-boyfriend "Went after me for no reason and pushed me down as soon as I walked through the door." Officer Tait asked the female if she went out with her daughter wearing pajamas and no footwear. She seemed bewildered by the simple question and did not answer.

Brewster Ambulance was dispatched to check out the female. Officer Tait knocked on the door of the male's room and the door was immediately opened by a male who confirmed that he was the ex-boyfriend. He readily invited the Officers in and immediate observations showed that he was completely sober, rational and very cooperative. He confirmed that he and the female had a romantic relationship, but now are just platonic roommates, with the female paying rent to him for her separate bedroom. He also confirmed that the female called him for a ride home from the bar where she was drinking, but he declined, stating he had to work early in the morning. He stated that the female came home intoxicated, had some abusive words with him and then went into her bedroom. Within a few minutes, she came out of her bedroom and started a verbal argument. She stumbled into a potted plant, knocking it over, then threw a ceramic plate at him, which missed and shattered on the floor. She cut her knee when she fell atop the broken plate.

The ex-boyfriend invited the Officers in to look around the apartment, which revealed the potted plant laying on the floor, along with pieces of a broken plate, consistent with his account of the incident. He also confided that he knows from living with her that she is on psychiatric medication, and gets "crazy" when she mixes them with alcohol.

Based on the Officer's observations and the statements of both parties involved, Officer Tait formed the opinion that the ex-boyfriend's account of the incident was accurate. The fact that the female said that she was out socializing, but was wearing pajamas when the Officer arrived, supports the ex-boyfriend's assertion that she first went into her bedroom to change, then came back out to initiate the confrontation. The broken potted plant and dish in the living room area as well as abrasions on the female's knees also support his statement that she knocked over a potted plant while falling to the floor and also threw a plate at him.

Officer Tait placed the female, a 49 year old Quincy resident, under arrest for, "Assault by Means of a Dangerous Weapon (ceramic plate)." The female was being checked out by Brewster EMT's, who stated that she first declined medical assistance, but now wanted to go to the hospital.

LT. DAN MINTON

Brewster transported the female to South Shore Hospital for evaluation.

Officers DaSilva and Bossart responded to take her into custody when she was to be released from treatment. The ex-boyfriend declined assistance with applying for an emergency protective order, stating he needed to go to bed, but that he would seek one at Quincy District Court during his lunch hour the next day, as he works near the courthouse. In some cases, the victim who signed up for the free sample soon after receives a huge bill and/or merchandise not ordered. In three unrelated cases, the FTC sued companies for allegedly duping organizations such as schools, churches, nonprofits and small businesses out of millions of dollars. This was followed up by deliveries of more merchandise and increasing invoices. When the victim failed to pay, these companies used bullying tactics to try to force the company to pay up.

The FTC said that one company deceptively claimed to be offering sale or clearance prices, but used vague language about price and quantity. In fact, the FTC said that one company in particular sent large shipments at high prices, used pressure tactics to collect, and then sometimes sent more unordered shipments. The FTC stated that companies who scam the public may be in violation of the "Telemarketing Sales rule" and the "Unordered Merchandise Statute." According to the FTC, the law states that you do not have to pay for stuff you didn't order and you can keep it if you like. The FTC also said that you can notify the vendor that you are going to keep the merchandise, but you are not obligated to do this. The FTC advises consumers to be cautious about goods advertised as "free trials" or at unusually low prices. Read the fine print. Are you joining a club that requires regular purchases? Houghs Neck Congregational Church

The Sunday worship service at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave. starts at 10 a.m.

Pastor Felix Carrion will lead the service and deliver the sermon "Satisfying Sustenance."

Shirley Pearson, Liturgist for the day will call to worship and read the scripture lesson. Molly Jacobs and Robert Rheault will serve for the Diaconate. Steve Reed, minister of music will direct the choir and play the organ and piano. Nursery and Sunday school begin after the Pastor gives the children's message.

A fellowship coffee hour follows the service hosted by Nancy and Molly Jacobs.

The choir rehearses on each Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Hatha Yoga classes are on Tuesday with Amy Ross and Thursday with Linda Beck. Both are held at 7 p.m. in M Alicia Corea Fellowship Hall. Bring water, a mat and $5.

Quincy Point Congregational Church

Worship for the third Sunday of Lent is Feb. 28th at 10 a.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

The Rev. Ann Suzedell will preach. Sheena Delmonte will be the deacon of the day and deliver a Stewardship Moment on what this year's theme of, "Trust in the Promise" means to her.

Following worship everyone is welcome to a special simple meal hosted by the Missions Committee. The luncheon is called "Soup Sunday" and it's the Missions Committee's way of saying thank you to everyone for their hard work and generosity to the mission projects of the church over the past year. All are welcome.

Bethany Congregational Church

Bethany Congregational Church will have a Worship Service and Sunday School at 10:00 a.m. The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the service and preach the sermon entitled "All Invited!" Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Worship Church Services and its numerous group activities. Bethany has an active Youth Group and a Missions and Growth Committee doing various charity works. Lent Services Wednesday evenings at 7:00 p.m.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon - 1 to 4 p.m. Please visit our website at: www.bethanyconchurch.org for updates and activities. Thanks to the Video Ministry, if you're unable to attend, the Service is broadcast on Quincy Access Television at 6:00 p.m. on Thursdays and 10:00 a.m. on Sundays on Channel 8.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers during worship service on Sundays. The church is wheelchair accessible.

Diane C. Castrini, 56

DIANE C. CASTRINI

Visiting hours for Diane C. (Regan) Castrini, 56, of Quincy and formerly Hull will be held Friday from 4 to 8 p.m. at Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Mrs. Castrini died Feb. 20.

She was the devoted and loving wife of 20 years to the late William J. Castrini, who died Sept. 14, 2014.

Raised in Hull, Mrs. Castrini was the youngest of nine children born to the late Grace E. (Ashenden) and Walter F. Regan, Sr. She enjoyed a long career in Boston as a telephone systems time they spent together.

She was the stepmother of William J. Castrini, Jr. of Saugus, Elena M. Frisco of Saugus and Kristy L. Castrini of Malden. Sister of Grace Joyce and Alice Teehan of FL, Walter Regan, Jr. of Hull, Richard Regan of NH, Janice Regan of NY, Christine Regan of Hingham, John Regan of Quincy and the late Patricia Colameco. Also survived by many nieces, nephews, extended family and close friends including Cheryl Brown of Hull.

Service and interment information private.

First Baptist Church

Sunday Morning Worship Service begins at 10:30 a.m. at the First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 81 Prospect Ave.

On the third Sunday of Lent Pastor Stephen Trimble will preach the sermon "No to Self - Yes to Jesus". All are welcome.

Serving the church will be Greeter: Lori Thomas; and Scripture Reader: Jan Burton.

Sunday School begins following the Pastor's message to the children.

There will be a coffee hour of light refreshments and fellowship in the Chapel after the service.

All areas of the church are handicap accessible.

Union Congregational Church

The Rev. John C. Swanson, pastor of Union Congregational Church, corner of Beach Street and Rawson Road, Wollaston will preach on Luke 19:1-10 this Sunday, Feb. 28th during the 10 a.m. service.

The story of Zacchaeus, the hated Tax Collector, who comes to faith is a familiar story of repentance and redemption. The story has been a staple of Sunday School lessons as the story of "the wee little man who Jesus calls to come down from the sycamore tree and has lunch with.

The point of the story being that nobody is beyond God's loving call.

OBITUARIES

Rita M. Gibbons Newcomb, 94

A celebration of life for Rita M. (Roberts) Gibbons Newcomb, 94, of Quincy will be held Thursday from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Quarry of the Elks Lodge, 254 Quarry St., Quincy.

Mrs. Newcomb died peacefully Feb. 19 surrounded by her loving family.

She worked in the Kid-die Products office for many years and at Simply Silver in the South Shore Plaza. She was a volunteer election poll registrar and through her volunteer work at the Quincy Department of Public Works helped inaugurate Quincy's recycling program.

Mrs. Newcomb was a lifelong resident of Quincy, 1940 graduate of North Quincy High School and as a young widow raised eight children. A wise woman, she was always available to offer counsel to her children, with the aid of a memory capable of recalling decades worth of facts.

She was a reliable presence at school plays, games, graduations and concerts, and seemed to have a never ending supply of lollipops for the little ones. Always dressed to impress, she was always well-coordinated from head to toe, with accessories to match. She was truly a hot ticket, with a plethora of sassy quips. She loved a high stakes bingo game. An avid ce-

Beloved wife of the late Wilbert Gibbons and the late John Newcomb. Loving mother of Diane Loud of FL, Linda Schofield, Ann Johnson, Michael Gibbons, James Gibbons, Robert Gibbons, all of Quincy, Rita Kipp of Abington and Richard Gibbons of Kingston. Survived by many loving sons-in-law and daughters-in-law. Devoted grandmother of 17 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren. Caring sister of Edward Roberts of NH and Frank Roberts of MD. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Services will be private.

Arrangements by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to BeatNB Cancer Foundation, PO BOX 850804, Braintree, MA 02185.

Richard A. Johnson, 86

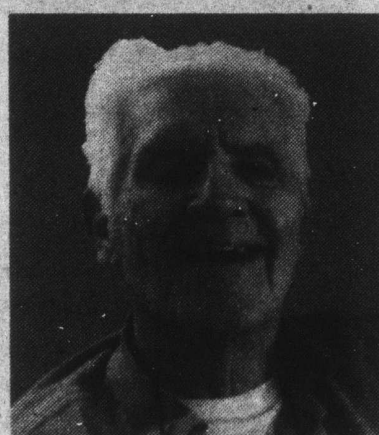

A Mass of Christian Burial for Richard Axel "Jay" Johnson, 86, of Quincy was celebrated Feb. 20 in St. Brigid's Church, South Boston.

Mr. Johnson died peacefully Feb. 16 after a brief illness.

He was the deeply loving husband of Mildred (Matulas) Buckley Johnson who he lost in 2011. Born and raised in South Boston by Swedish immigrants, he was the eldest child of Mildred (Petersen) Johnson and Axel (Jonsson) Johnson.

Mr. Johnson was a retired bookkeeper and liquor store owner in South Boston. He was a member of the South Boston Wildcats Football Club, a formidable L Street Bathhouse handball player, and an award-winning bowler at the Kennedy Center's Senior Olympics. Mr. Johnson loved to travel, swim, play cribbage and play cards as often as he could.

Survived by his children Robert D. Buckley III and his wife Linda O'Brien Buckley of Hanover, Susan Buckley Johnson of Boston and Victor Buckley Johnson of FL. Cherished grandfa-

Devoted brother of Elaine (Johnson) Drew of Avon, the late Paul Johnson and his wife Marilyn of Dorchester. Loving uncle to Kenneth Drew and his wife Kathy of Raynham and to James Drew and his wife Susan of Whitman and their families.

Funeral arrangements were made by Casper Funeral Home, South Boston.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Donations may be made in memory of the late Mildred Buckley Johnson to the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

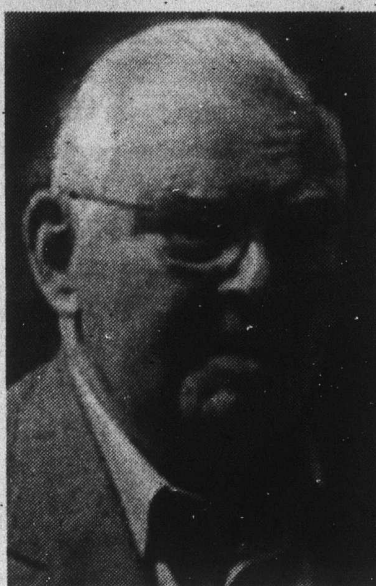

James B. Malnati, 87

A funeral Mass for James B. Malnati, 87, of Quincy was celebrated Feb. 20 at St. Mary's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Malnati died Feb. 15 at Ledgeview at the Taylor Community in Laconia, N.H., his residence for the past four years.

Born in Weymouth where he was raised and educated, he graduated from Sacred Heart School and lived in Quincy for 60 years. He worked as a pressman for the Boston Globe for more than 40 years and was an avid woodcarver and painter who created many beautiful works of art.

Mr. Malnati was the beloved husband of Gilda (Cecilian) Malnati with whom he just celebrated his 65th wedding anniversary on Feb. 4; loving father of Linda Glassett and her husband Robert of NH, Paul Malnati of NH and his late wife Linda (Duran) Malnati and Edward Malnati and his wife Sharyn of Randolph; dear grandfather of Robert J. Council Taking On Underground Economy

By SCOTT JACKSON

Councillor Joseph Finn took part in a picket at a construction site in Quincy in 2006, organized by union carpenters who were protesting the contractor's use of undocumented labor. Ten years later, Finn does not believe progress has been made in the fight against the so-called "underground economy."

"Here it is a decade later and those situations have not improved," he said. "Perhaps they may have even worsened."

Finn recalled the 2006 protest at the opening an oversight committee meeting held Feb. 16 to address the underground economy, a term used to describe the misclassification of workers on construction sites. Such misclassification occurs when construction companies pay workers as independent contractors instead of employees, or pay them under the table.

"What it's really about is people who are breaking the law. That's something that really needs to be addressed. We...need to be particularly vigilant about it [so] that it doesn't happen in a city with the community standards that we have had here for so long," Finn said.

"This is something that affects not just union shops - this is something that affects even non-union shops because it becomes very difficult to be able to compete. There is an unfair advantage when people cheat."

Finn sponsored an order that called on the City Council to hold hearings on the impact of the underground economy; Mark Erlich, executive secretary-treasurer for the New England Regional Council of Carpenters, gave a presentation during the Feb. 16 meeting. As a result of the hearings, Finn hopes to draft a new ordinance that would give the city greater power to enforce labor laws on construction sites.

Councillor Noel DiBona co-sponsored Finn's order that called for the hearings. While on the campaign trail last year, DiBona said union and non-union workers asked him what he would do about misclassification of employees on construction sites.

"For me it's about enforcement - what you do when you do catch somebody that's not supposed to be on the job," DiBona stated. "That's the main issue for me."

The Feb. 16 meeting will be the first of several held regarding the misclassification of workers on construction sites, according to Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, the chairman of the oversight committee. Cynthia Mark, chief of the Fair Labor Division under Attorney General Maura Healey, has been invited to a future meeting and general contractors will also be invited.

"Quincy is a blue collar, working-class city," Palmucci said. "We have to make sure that we do what we can to protect those types of jobs in our community and ensuring we create a fair playing field for all is paramount to that."

A 2004 study by the Harvard Construction Policy Research Center found up to 24 percent of construction employers in Massachusetts had misclassified employees, Erlich said during his presentation, noting that number has likely increased since the recession of 2008.

"I think it's a pretty extraordinary problem," he stated. "This has been a particular concern of mine for 20 years now, watching a once proud industry really be damaged by the growth of the underground economy."

The same 2004 study found the state lost out on $103.6 million to $187.1 million in unreported income and unemployment insurances taxes between 2001 and 2003; insurance carriers missed out on $91 million in workers' compensation premiums over that same three-year period.

"You can see the consequences," Erlich said. "There is money lost to the business community, money lost to legitimate companies that play by the rules, money lost to the state, money lost to the feds and all of it because the underground economy is allowed to run rampant in the construction industry."

Erlich underscored the need for enforcing labor laws, citing a 2014 report by the state of Washington's Department of Labor and Industries that found each dollar spent on enforcement returned $8.36 to the state economy.

"This issue of enforcement is critical and it's money well spent," Erlich said. "This is by every stretch of the imagination a wide and prudent investment. Not only is it the right thing to do, it is financially prudent."

Erlich noted a New Hampshire-based drywall subcontractor was fined in December 2014 for violating wage laws during the Coddington Building restoration project in Quincy. The company, R&A Drywall, was ordered to pay more than $200,000 in restitution and penalties for violations at the Coddington Project and a separate one at Boston's Haymarket Station, then-Attorney General Martha Coakley stated at the time.

Additionally, Erlich said two workers present at the Feb. 16 meeting were owed two months back pay for work performed on a more recent private project in Quincy. When they did receive checks from the subcontractor, those checks bounced because of insufficient funds, he stated, and no taxes had been withheld.

"Here is a human face for the underground economy. It's not just an abstraction, it's not just hundreds of millions of dollars lost to the state and lost to the feds," Erlich said. "It's actually people - it's people who are being mistreated, exploited and abused."

To remedy the situation, Erlich suggested the council consider adopting an ordinance that would insert a clawback provision into future special permits and tax increment financing agreements. With the provision in place, the city could revoke those permits or agreements if a contractor was to have broken labor laws.

"They should only be available to people who play by the rules," Erlich said.

Joseph W. Tantillo

A graveside service for Joseph W. "Joe T." Tantillo of Quincy was held Monday in Calvary Cemetery, Brockton.

Mr. Tantillo died Feb. 17 after a brief illness.

Born in Quincy, he was the loving son of the late Anthony and Delia Tantillo. He served as corporal in the U.S. Army during the Korean War. He worked at Stetson Shoe, Regal Shoe, Native Footwear and Stacy Adams as a hand stitcher before starting his own carpentry business with his son Ricky, known as Tanco Construction, for the past 45 years. Mr. Tantillo was a quick learner; there was not much he could not do. He also tended bar at local restaurants in and around the Boston area for many years.

Mr. Tantillo loved to country dance, then he learned how to ballroom dance as well, he loved to plant in the garden and tend to his roses bushes of over 50 years old and loved going out for breakfast. He lived life to the fullest and did it "his way, it was all good." He was deeply loved by his family and friends and will be sorely missed.

Mr. Tantillo is survived by his son Richard Tantillo and his wife Wanda, his daughter Donna Gulizia and her fiancé Stephen McCord, grandson Derek Gulizia and his wife Marie, and two great-granddaughters Alita and Olive Gulizia. He was the dear brother of Angelina "Tootsie" Tantillo, Marion Tantillo and the late Anthony "Jimmy" Tantillo, Mary "Lindy" Maloney and Domonic Tantillo. He is also survived by many nephews, nieces, grandnephews and grandnieces.

Funeral arrangements were made by Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Quincy College, ENC Offer New BA In Management Program

Quincy College students who earn an associate's degree are now able to continue their studies at Eastern Nazarene College (ENC), earning a bachelor's degree in Management through a new partnership between the two colleges.

Through a new articulation agreement between the two colleges, Quincy College graduates will be able to make a seamless transition into ENC's Bachelor of Arts (BA) in Management program. Students will be accepted on a rolling basis into the 30-month BA program, which follows a cohort model whereby classes meet once a week for six weeks. The first cohort through the partnership with Quincy College begins April 4 at ENC's Old Colony Campus in Quincy. A cohort based at Quincy College's Plymouth Campus will begin in the fall.

The partnership developed after both institutions recognized a local need for higher education programs that would enable associate's degree graduates who live on the South Shore to continue their education locally.

"Eastern Nazarene College is very excited about our new partnership with Quincy College," said Dr. Jossie Owens, vice president for ENC's Adult and Graduate Studies Division. "Our joint partnership will further enhance our students' local community experiences and at the same time broaden their academic and social development in preparing them to be global change agents."

Mary Burke, Quincy College's vice president of academic and administrative affairs and dean of the Plymouth Campus, added, "Quincy College is happy to partner with Eastern Nazarene, providing a pathway to success for our students to pursue a bachelor's degree in Management. We are dedicated to providing the highest quality of education, enabling Quincy College students to reach their academic and professional goals, allowing them to remain on the South Shore to continue their education and invest in their future locally."

For more information on ENC's Bachelor of Arts in Management program, call (617)-774-6800 or visit www.enc.edu/adult-studies. For more information about Quincy College's programs, please visit: www.quincy-college.edu.

INVITATION TO BID

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts is seeking sealed bids for On-Call Emergency Water, Sewer and Drain Repairs for City of Quincy, Massachusetts until 11:00 a.m. local time Wednesday, March 16, 2016, in the office of the Purchasing Agent, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The work under this contract consists of: The scope of work includes construction services related to emergency repairs to water, sewer and drain utilities as an on-call annual agreement with renewal up to 3 years. The Contractor must have the capability to respond to a request to perform an emergency sewer or drain dig repair within a three hour period and/or an emergency water dig repair within a two hour period. The Contractor is cautioned that there is no guaranteed workload throughout the length of the Contract.

The Contract awarded in response to these specifications shall be effective for a period of one year, upon the satisfactory performances of the vendor; the City of Quincy may extend the contract for two (2) additional terms of one (1) year each. Contract shall automatically renew upon anniversary date of contract execution, unless notified to the contrary by the City. Funding source will be water and sewer budgets.

Detailed specifications are available on-line at the City of Quincy's website, www.quincyma.gov and also available at the Office of the Purchasing Agent, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, 02169, between the hours of 8:30 AM and 4:30 PM. Specifications will be available February 24, 2016.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form of a bid bond or certified/treasurer's check.

The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 30, Section 39M, as last revised. All Federal, State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Equal Employment Opportunity, and subject to the minimum wage rates set under the Massachusetts Prevailing Wage Law Chapter 149, §26. The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids when such an action is deemed in the best interests of the City.

Non-responsive and/or unbalanced bids may be rejected.

A FINAL LOOK - An excavator and worker pause inside what was once the main entrance of the former Woolworth's Department Store at Hancock and Cliveden Streets in Quincy Center after the building's front section was toppled at about 9:25 a.m. Monday morning. The razing was done by demolition contractor Jamie McGuinness and Sons, Inc. located at 95 Federal St. in Quincy. After the site is cleared, another local company - Galveon Development - will construct two six-story buildings with 56 residential condominium units and 8,000 square-feet of retail space at the location that was home to the well-known department store for 48 years from 1949 to 1997.

Sanders, Trump Win Quincy

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders scored a narrow victory in Quincy in Tuesday's Democratic Presidential Primary but challenger and former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton was projected the big winner nationwide as she took a major step toward her party's nomination on "Super Tuesday."

In the Republican Presidential Primary here, billionaire real estate developer Donald Trump easily won Quincy by a more than

Home Rule Petitions At Crux Of Ward 6 Dispute

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city's top attorney is hopeful the legal dispute over the vacant Ward 6 City Council seat is resolved quickly, with a preliminary election to fill the opening a little more than a month away.

City Solicitor Jim

Timmins said William Harris, the Squantum resident who contends he is entitled to serve out the remainder of the council term as the runner-up in the November municipal election, filed for a motion for summary judgment last week.

Timmins on Monday said the city has 21 days from the date of that submission to file its response. Timmins was still preparing the city's response, but was optimistic it would be filed well ahead of the deadline so the case could move forward. A preliminary election, in which voters would whittle the field of candidates seeking the seat from five to two, has been set for April 5 and Timmins wants the matter resolved before that date.

"We're trying to get it done," Timmins said, referring to the city's response to the motion for summary judgment.

"We would like to see this resolved."

Harris made his initial filing in the legal dispute, a petition for declaratory judgment, on Jan. 27; former City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie is representing Harris on the matter and filed the petition.

FedEx Proposal Before Board March 9

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Planning Board hearing on a FedEx distribution center proposed for a Commander Shea Boulevard warehouse currently home to Boston Scientific will take place March 9.

The board's meeting begins at 7 p.m. on March 9 and it will be held in the first floor of the James R. McIntyre Government Center at 1305 Hancock St.

The site at 500 Commander Shea Blvd. is home to two warehouses. FedEx plans to renovate and then move into the north warehouse. Those renovations include reducing the building's footprint from 471,000 square feet to 373,000 square feet, of which FedEx will operate 277,830 square feet.

Boston Scientific would then move into the south warehouse.

The Planning Board had scheduled a public hearing on the proposed distribution center Jan. 27, but it was postponed to next week's meeting to allow for a community meeting to be held Feb. 17.

Two other items were also continued to March 9 during the Jan. 27 meeting after the board listened to comments from the applicants and members of the public.

The first project is

Orders Coming In For SAL Squadron 294 'Bricks For Vets' Program

Order Form Below Or Call 617-472-5952

Orders are coming in for the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post's new "Bricks for Veterans" program.

The Squadron is selling inscribed bricks for $50 each. The bricks will line the walkway to the main Flag Pole at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy. The Squadron maintains the island that is decorated twice a year with more than 300 American flags.

Paul Moody, commander of Squadron 294 and coordinator of Flags for Veterans Island, said the island is running out of space to accommodate more flags. So, SAL has decided to launch a brick program for those who want to recognize and/or memorialize veterans.

"We have started a Brick for Veterans program. We are putting a border of brick pavers alongside of the walkway going to the Flag Pole," Moody said.

"The pavers will have the name of the veterans, rank and service branch. If you would like to purchase a brick, the cost is $50," Moody added.

Or, call Commander Paul Moody at 617-472-5952 for more information.

Moody hopes to have at least 120 bricks ordered for installation by Memorial Day this May.

Squadron 294 will also host its annual Corned Beef and Cabbage Dinner Saturday, March 12 from 3 to 7 p.m. at the Morrisette Legion Post Hall, 81 Liberty St., Quincy.

Along with the dinner, there will be music by Squadron DJ Steve Fowles, raffle drawings, and a performance by a group of Irish Step Dancers.

There will also be a cash bar.

Proceeds from the dinner benefits the upkeep and care of Flags for Veterans Island including flowers, grass cutting and replacing tattered American flags with new ones.

QCAP Awarded Financial Literacy Grant

Quincy Community Action Programs in Quincy has received a $5,000 grant from the state treasurer's office to foster financial literacy.

QCAP is among four recipients of Operation Money Wise: Financial Education Opportunity Grant funded through state Treasurer Deb Goldberg's Office of Economic Empowerment. This newly launched program supports non-profit organizations, public agencies, and higher education institutions in Massachusetts that foster financial literacy in the Military, Veteran, Family and Survivor Community (MVFSC). A total of $20,000 in grant money to expand upon or establish these initiatives was awarded. Applicants for this grant were eligible to receive up to $5,000 of funding for their program.

"These financial literacy grants will further empower our military community and their families to make informed financial decisions," said Treasurer Goldberg. "I am honored to support organizations that work to bring economic stability to the men, women and families who help keep our country safe."

The grants aim to increase the scope of financial education for military personnel and their families and provide them with the tools they need to achieve financial stability through regional conferences. Many of these workshops will include strategy sessions on managing money, planning for college, preparing for retirement and monetary decision-making.

City Considering 'All Options,' Including Purchase

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city has not ruled out the idea of purchasing the former Quincy Medical Center, which remains open as a satellite emergency facility, with the hospital's current owner now seeking buyers for the 14.4-acre site who would continue its use for medical purposes.

Steward Health Care, the for-profit company that acquired Quincy Medical Center in 2011 while the hospital was in bankruptcy court, shuttered QMC in December 2014 but agreed to keep it open as a satellite emergency department operating under the license Carney Hospital in Dorchester.

Chris Walker, a spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the mayor would like to see the site's use as a medical facility continue in the future.

"We await further information from Steward relative to the hospital," Walker said. "The mayor's priority, as it always has been, is to maintain its use as a medical facility."

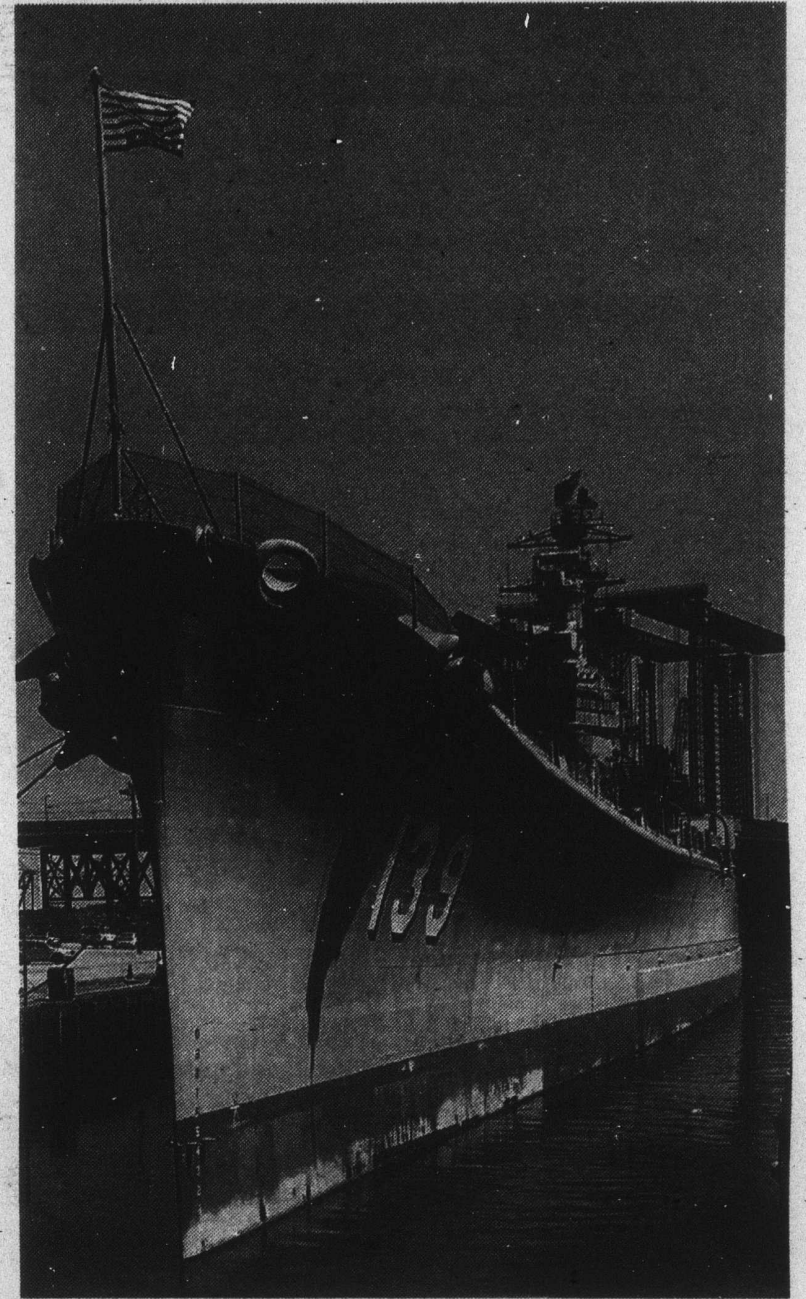

When asked if the city would consider purchasing the hospital if Steward were unable to find a suitable buyer, Walker responded "the mayor is keeping all options open."

Steward has reached out to potential buyers for the site, according to company spokesman Jeff Hall; Steward intends for the site to be used for medical purposes after a new owner is found.

"Steward doctors and staff have continued to pro-

NEW SALEM LEASE - The owner of the USS Salem and Jay Cashman recently came to terms on an agreement that will keep the cruiser at the Fore River Shipyard for at least five more years. The ship's future was in doubt following the MBTA's 2013 closure of the pier where the Salem was docked; Cashman later purchased that property. Representatives for the Salem could not be reached for comment.

Fore River Field Update Meeting March 9

City officials will update residents on plans to upgrade Fore River Field on March 9 during a meeting of the Ward 2 Civic Association.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. inside the Fore River Club House at 16 Nevada Rd. Ward 2 Councilor Brad Croall and Park Department Director Chris Cassani will be in attendance that night to provide an update on plans for the 7.2-acre field. Coffee and desserts will be served and green Point Pride shirts will be available for $10.

Fore River Field is currently home to a baseball diamond, a softball diamond, a playground, a tennis court, a basketball court and street hockey court. The city has developed plans to make improvements to the facility and the adjacent park on Mound Street.

Cassani in December said the first phase of those improvements, set to begin this spring, includes the building of a standalone bathroom facility between Fore River Field and the Mound Street field. The bathroom facility will be large enough to accommodate users of both parks.

The first phase also includes moving the baseball diamond from one side of the field to another to accommodate residents living near the field who have complained about foul balls, Cassani said previously; the new diamond on Harrison Street will have an adequate backstop to prevent the issue from popping up again on that side.

The master plan for the park also calls for the elimination of the softball diamond, which is located at the corner of the park where Beechwood Street meets Follett Street. New playground equipment will also be installed to replace the aging equipment in the park and the fenced-in area that is home to the basketball, tennis and street hockey courts will be rebuilt, potentially closer to Beechwood Street.

Recreational space for activities popular among senior citizens, such as bocce or pickleball, will also be added near the Fore River Clubhouse.

Keenan Speaker Tonight At Montclair/Wollaston Meeting

Sen. John Keenan will be the guest speaker at the Montclair Wollaston Neighborhood Association meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Room at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Harvard and West Squantum Streets.

Keenan will talk about state issues.

FROM HERE TO ETERNITY

When it comes to declarations of love and commitment, a diamond "eternity" ring is an ultimate symbol of never-ending love. Its splendid design consists of a gold or platinum band that is set with an unbroken line of diamonds that continues entirely around the finger. Often worn by women on the fourth fingers of their left hand, eternity rings can also be worn instead of a wedding or engagement ring or in addition to them. Many women choose to wear eternity rings on other fingers, and even their thumbs. While diamonds symbolize loyalty, devotion, and undying love, eternity rings can incorporate other precious gemstones that are interspersed between the diamonds to signify birthdays and anniversaries.

Because this classic ring style has gems that are set all the way around, eternity rings have to be made to fit you perfectly, and they can't be sized more than a quarter-size. For more information, please call 617-773-3636. The finest quality diamonds and precious stones have been a hallmark of Rogers Jewelry. From your engagement ring to the joy and beauty of a unique wedding ring, our jewelers can make your ring selection perfect. Our store is located at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy Center's 'A-Changin'

As the Bob Dylan song goes, "the times they are a-changin'."

That tune goes back more than 50 years but it is perfectly appropriate for Quincy's downtown today.

Take a stroll up and down Hancock Street from City Hall to the Hannon Parkway and you'll see buildings going up and buildings coming down.

In the span of a few days last week, we had a chance to get an inside look at some of the finished units in the West of Chestnut apartment development near 1400 Hancock St. And then witnessed the fall of a landmark: the old Woolworth's Department Store a few blocks south.

The new downtown – the much talked about, highly anticipated and perennial election issue – is progressing. And continues to evolve virtually daily.

There is concrete proof – no pun intended – that what the tired and sluggish downtown used to be is in the rear-view window. True – not all of the downtown's rebirth has touched every area in the city's main business district – but much of it has improved and shows real promise for a thriving community and rejuvenated neighborhood.

Take for example the twin six-story West of Chestnut development. The first of two residential-business space buildings at 1400 Hancock St. is nearing completion. New tenants – both renters and businesses – are expected to move in starting May 1.

There is still work to be done, of course, as residential units and retail space are completed. But walking around the project's footprint you get a sense that this first major project in the redevelopment of Quincy Center will help spur future growth as much as it's changing the city skyline.

Just down the street, a different but just as dramatic transformation is taking place.

The former Woolworth's building – occupied by the well-known retailer for 48 years – is now just a memory. Much of the landmark – including the iconic front façade – was knocked down and reduced to rubble by excavators last week.

In its wake will rise two six-story buildings with 56 condominium units as well as retail space. The new development is being built by Quincy-based Galvcon Development. The company's principals – Sean and Scott Galvin – were among a handful of observers who watched the front of the building come down last Monday. They, like many others familiar with the square, have fond memories of frequenting the store in their younger days.

The decision to knock down the old Woolworth's hasn't been popular with everyone. Some long for the days of yesteryear. But nostalgia isn't bringing back the old downtown. To paraphrase former Boston Celtics coach Rick Pitino, "Sears isn't walking through that door. . . Woolworth's is not walking through that door, and Remick's is not walking through that door."

Those retailers were among the square's "Big Three" like the Celtics' Bird, McHale and Parrish.

Business districts, like pro hoop rosters, change. And those changes can leave us feeling a little empty.

And I can understand folks are saddened that the old Woolworth's building is gone. Many of us made many happy memories there. Eating a grilled cheese sandwich or hot dog at the lunch counter. Taking a peak at the vast variety of animals in the pet shop in the back of the store. And the store sold just about everything. The Galvins dad, Quincy postcard aficionado and city historian Tom Galvin, tells the story of Woolworth's selling baby chicks for 15 cents apiece years ago.

But those days ended nearly 20 years ago in 1997 when Woolworth's closed its doors after a 48-year run that began in 1949. Think about that. For nearly two decades Woolworth's has been gone from the square. Since closing their doors the space has been occupied by a myriad of local businesses but none of them had the history or unique charm that Woolworth's had.

I feel fortunate that I can still remember the square in its heyday. Call me a "young old-timer." I'm just old enough to remember some great stores as "Shopperstown, USA" was winding down including Child World, Sawyer's and Jason's. Child World at Christmas time was Utopia. Toys, games and bikes stacked floor-to-ceiling from corner to corner.

Another shopping mecca was Colman's Sporting Goods. How many of us got our first pair of ice skates there? Toss in a few pucks and wooden hockey stick and that's all you needed for the long winter.

The square hustled and bustled in the summer, too, especially during the old sidewalk days.

Sawyer's and Jason's Music Store were staples during those "bazaar" days – always held during the third week and seemingly hottest three days in July. The event also unofficially signaled the end of summer vacation. It was where a lot of us kids went back-to-school shopping. You could buy every shade of Levi's jeans at Sawyer's and get a great new fall jacket, too. Browsing Jason's was another ritual. The store had more record albums than the post office had stamps or so it seemed.

Remick's Department Store was one of the downtown's crown jewels. Before it closed in the mid 1980s, my dad took me there to get a long wool winter dress coat. The quality was unsurpassed. I'm sure it wouldn't fit me today but I'd still find a spot in my closet if I still had it today for old time's sake.

It's okay to be sentimental about the downtown. It's where we shared time with family and made new friends. I recalled some of my fondest memories of the square when the old Woolworth's façade came crashing down around 9:25 a.m. on Feb. 22.

And then it was back to reality because no one can really live in the past.

There's only the present and what we make of it.

Look around and you'll see a Quincy Center that is on the move again.

We are hopeful the downtown's rebirth will continue to grow.

We are optimistic that this revitalized neighborhood in Quincy Center will attract new residents who want to live, shop and dine here.

And make new memories.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A late 1920s view of the Gulf gas station at 726 Hancock St. on the corner of Wollaston Avenue near Wollaston Center. At the time Gulf also had another gas station at 100 Hancock St. just over the Neponset River Bridge from Boston. It had a huge circular flashing orange neon sign that in its day was as much an icon as today's Citgo sign near Fenway Park. The small round sign on the left at this station only had the two white globes for lighting. Today this triangular corner lot with a two-story brick building is home to The Morisi and Oatway Law Office. A note on the back of this postcard says the fellow standing by the gas pumps was a student named Andy who pumped gas here while attending law school. Open The Quincy Adams MBTA Pedestrian Gate

Editor's note: The Quincy Sun generally does not publish unsigned letters. We are making an exception with this letter since it was submitted by neighbors living in the area near the Quincy Adams MBTA station pedestrian gate on Independence Avenue. The neighbors wish to remain anonymous to avoid any potential confrontations with other neighbors who oppose the gate's opening.

The letter follows here:

Mr. Mayor, please open the Quincy Adams T Station (QA) pedestrian gate on Independence Avenue to everyone.

A few facts for the public:

- The gate can be opened with one telephone call from Mayor Tom Koch to the MBTA. That's it. That's all there is to it. No "studies," surveys, task forces, etc. are required.
- The MBTA does not care one iota if the gate is open. Repeat that over and over. It will do what the city asks. The city is us. We – the huge majority of residents – want it open.

- The gate has never been "officially" open. Thirty three years ago the gate was forced open by area residents to gain T access. The gate remained opened for a number of weeks and parking issues developed. Parking issues could have been mitigated by putting up the same type of signs that area on the other side of QA and around every T station in Quincy – "Resident Parking Only." How hard is it to put up those signs.

- How many subway stations are there on the MBTA? One hundred and twenty seven. And how many have a gate blocked to a neighborhood like QA? Drum roll please... one.

- Daily parking rate at QA - $7. Annualized that's a staggering $1,820 that Quincy is charging neighborhood residents to park in a station that they should be able to enter for free.

- Home values increase dramatically when you have access to public transportation. Walking distance to the T. Google it. Look it up yourself.

- It's 33 years since QA opened. Things have changed. Thousands of new residents live near that gate and want to be treated fairly – just like in your neighborhood Mr. Koch. Wide open access to the T at your house.

Seeking Good Candidates To Support

As I read Son Beams this week, I had to agree with Bob Bosworth on how difficult picking a president has become this year. I wasn't surprised that nearly half of Quincy's registered voters are unenrolled.

Like Bob, I have voted for both Democrats and Republicans in my lifetime as a registered voter. I remain a registered Democrat only because the Republican Party which I often agree with more isn't really a political party. Most of the time it is irrelevant. Often the GOP lets races go unchallenged.

Recently, there is a big in-house squabble going on between Governor Charlie Baker and the conservative grassroots. Wish the party were big enough to afford in-fighting but it isn't. It is all over talk radio as if it means anything. Most of the time the Republicans act like passengers on the Titanic looking for a seat on the deck as the ship goes down.

I tried being a Republican every now and down but not for too long. I would rather stay a Reagan Democrat and look for good candidates to support. The GOP should be ashamed that it cannot attract all this so-called Independent voters looking for good candidates to support. In the recent presidential primary, I voted for Bernie Sanders not because I am a socialist but because he wasn't Hillary Clinton. Come November, I most likely will vote Republican because I have little choice to do anything else.

Quincy Point Site For $5.7M Renewal Project

Quincy Point has been selected for a planned potential $5.7 million Neighborhood Improvement Code Enforcement Program, the city's second residential rehabilitation project.

The 116-block area was recommended by Geoffrey A. Davidson, director of City Planning, after an extensive survey, Mayor James R. McIntyre announced.

"There has been a tremendous favorable response to our first project in North Quincy," the mayor noted. "This will be a continuation of the revitalization of our residential areas."

POLLUTION THREAT COULD CLOSE WOLLASTON BEACH

Mayor McIntyre has requested a meeting with state health officials to avert a possible closing of Wollaston and Quincy Bay beaches this summer because of a pollution threat.

The mayor said several clam beds in the area have already been closed.

In a letter to State Public Health Commissioner Alfred L. Frechette, Mayor McIntyre said, "I know that you are aware of our problems along Wollaston Beach, which came close to being closed last year because of the pollution which affected other areas in the Boston Harbor."

McIntyre said that pollution factors could possibly endanger the health of people who would be using Quincy beaches during the 1970 season.

Leaders Mike McFarland, Bette Campbell Honorees

The Salvation Army of Quincy will host its third annual Civic Dinner Wednesday, May 11 at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, 27 Glendale Rd., Quincy.

This year the Salvation Army of Quincy will honor two community leaders: Michael McFarland and Bette Campbell.

McFarland, the president of Colonial Federal Savings Bank, will receive The Others Award.

Campbell, executive director of Quincy Access TV, will receive the Community Partner Award.

The Others Award recognizes extraordinary service to the community and the Salvation Army. McFarland's service to Quincy has spanned local government, the business sector and charitable organizations. A former city auditor, he served eight years on the Quincy School Committee before being elected to five terms as a city councillor at-large. During his 20 years in elected city government, he also served two years as school committee vice chairman and two years as city council president.

McFarland has also served as an appointed member of the Quincy Retirement Board, Quincy Access TV Board of Directors and the Norfolk County Agricultural High School Board of Trustees.

His civic activities include the City of Quincy School Building Task Force, Quincy College - College Courses Board of Directors, Quincy Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, and the City of Quincy Flag Day Parade.

He is a past president of the Quincy Rotary Club, treasurer of the City of Quincy Christmas Festival Committee and a past president of the William B. Rice Eventide Board of Directors.

McFarland graduated from Suffolk University with a degree in accounting. He is a graduate of Boston College High School.

He and his wife, Martha (Sinclair), are the parents of three adult children.

Campbell will receive the Community Partner Award for her leadership and community involvement as the executive director of the Quincy Access Television. Campbell has served as QATV director since its in-

Congressional Art Competition Open For High School Students

Cong. Stephen F. Lynch announces the opening of "An Artistic Discovery," the 2016 annual congressional art competition.

This competition is open to all high school students who reside in the 8th Congressional District. The winner will have his or her work displayed in the U.S. Capitol for a full year. Additionally, there will be a reception in Washington, D.C., for all art competition winners and their families to celebrate the opening of the exhibit.

The annual congressional art competition is now open for submissions and all entries must be received by Thursday, April 28. Entries can be sent to Cong. Lynch's Boston, Quincy, or Brockton district offices and addressed to the attention of Araba Adjei-Koranteng. Contact Congressman Lynch's office at (617) 428-2000 or refer to his website, <http://lynch.house.gov/serving-you/art-competition>, for more information on the competition.

"The 8th Congressional District is home to some wonderfully gifted and talented artists," Cong. Lynch said. "The annual congressional art competition is an exciting opportunity for high school students with a passion for art to share their creativity and skill."

"Last year, we had a number of outstanding entries and I am proud to have the artwork of last year's winner, Isabelle Xu of Westwood, representing our District in the U.S. Capitol. The judges praised her piece, "The Little Match Girl," as imaginative and well done."

"I look forward to viewing this year's submissions and displaying one of them in Washington, D.C. this summer," Lynch added.

Coddington Hall, Library Tour

The public is invited to take part in a walking tour of two local architectural treasures at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, March 5: Coddington Hall and the Thomas Crane Library, including La Farge windows, a Romanesque masterpiece, an Olmsted-designed landscape and a charming bird's eye view of downtown.

The tour will be led by Stephen Wessling and Bob Cala, the architects responsible for the Coddington Hall renovation; Mary Clark, retired librarian; and Tony Ricci, Chairman of the Quincy Historical Commission.

The Crane Library Bookstore will be open for those who would like to shop or browse at the end of the tour.

Optional lunch at a local restaurant after the tour.

Meet in the parking lot in front of Coddington Hall, 34 Coddington St.

Rain date is Saturday, March 12 at 10:30 a.m.

For more information call 617-472-0799. The program is sponsored by the Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures program.

Quincy Lions Club 75th Anniversary Gala March 31

The Quincy Lions Club is celebrating its 75th anniversary serving the community of Quincy.

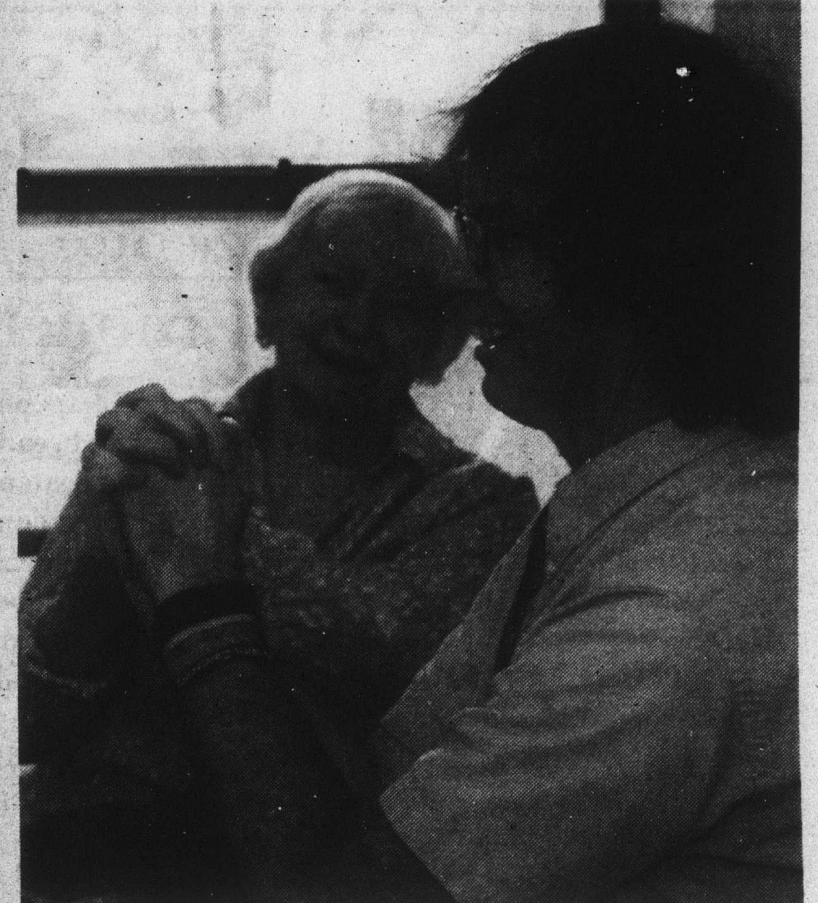

As part of the anniversary celebration, The Quincy Lions will host two major community events: A 75th Anniversary Gala on March 31 and the Annual Pancake Breakfast in late October. All proceeds from the two community events will help support Lions Club charities to aid the visually impaired in our community.

The Anniversary Celebration at the Quincy Neighborhood Club March 31 will highlight the 75 years of civic contributions that the Quincy Lions have provided to Quincy, as well as display the continued commitment and fellowship to the community of Quincy through future leadership and initiatives.

For 75 years, The Quincy Lions have devoted themselves to helping the blind and visually impaired, answering Helen Keller's call for them to become "Knights of the Blind" in the crusade against darkness. This has been a commitment of the Quincy Lions Club with approximately $175,000 donated to Massachusetts Lions Eye Research, thousands of recycled eyeglasses collected for future use, free eye screenings to area residents, and hundreds of free eyeglasses for children without financial resources.

For more information about the 75th Anniversary Gala, including sponsorship, attendance and membership visit www.quincylions.org.

Allerton House Celebrates American Heart Month

In celebration of American Heart Month in February, Allerton House at Hancock Park in Quincy recently held a special Heart-Healthy Day.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death among women in the United States. Additionally, new research suggests that although great strides have been made in the prevention and treatment of heart disease, it is still "under-diagnosed and under-treated" in women, according to the American Heart Association. It is estimated that more than 53,000 American women die each year from heart attack.

To encourage women and men to embrace a heart-healthy lifestyle, Allerton House at Hancock Park assisted living residence scheduled several events. A juicing demonstration and a "Cooking with Heart" program, featuring a grilled chicken salad, minestrone soup and strawberry mousse took center stage. In addition, Wayne Cushing, personal trainer, held a Tai chi class at the community. Tai chi is an ancient Chinese form of self-discipline and exercise that many people today see as a graceful form of expression with stress-reducing benefits. It is a favorite activity of the residents at the Quincy assisted living community.

"We were pleased to provide this heart-healthy series of activities designed to showcase the attention to the healthy lifestyle we promote at Allerton House at Hancock Park in Quincy," said Kelly Richards, marketing director for the 42-unit rental assisted living community. Richards adds that the intimate community prides itself on providing beautiful and spacious apartments for adults 62 and older in a home-like environment, with personal care services when and if needed.

The heart-healthy programs were reserved for current residents and their families, and adult children and seniors who have been in the process of gathering information to help their loved ones determine when it is time to move into assisted living.

WHAT'S COOKING

with
Marie & Suzie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUZIE FALCO

Potato Croquettes

By MARIE

Today's recipe is a great way to use up left over mashed potatoes. Naturally you can also make this recipe from scratch. It is a great addition to have for breakfast with bacon and eggs or any other breakfast treat.

POTATO CROQUETTES

2 cups mashed potatoes
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese
3/4 cup bread crumbs
1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water
3 tablespoons of vegetable oil

Thoroughly mix potatoes, add one of the eggs, salt, pepper, parsley, and cheese and shape into small balls. Dip balls in bread crumbs, then into egg and water mixture and again in the bread crumbs.

Let stand on waxed paper 20 minutes. Sauté in vegetable oil and brown on all sides.

P.S. Add more oil if needed.

Chicken And Salad

By SUZIE

Salads are everyone's go to meal on a hot day. A freshly made homemade one is so much better than the ones you can get at a restaurant, or takeout.

Here is a recipe that has everything you need and is a "chopped" style salad which makes it easier to eat as well. With chicken and bacon, a nice creamy Italian style dressing homemade dressing and lots of colorful crunchy vegetables, this is sure to be a favorite.

Great for leftover chicken and just make some extra bacon during the week so you have it on hand in a jiffy.

DRESSING

1/4 cup Greek Yogurt (Full fat is best when purchasing Greek yogurt)
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
3 tablespoons wine vinegar
2 tablespoons chopped fresh chopped basil
1 tablespoon chopped fresh Italian parsley
1 tablespoon minced shallot (or red onion is fine)

2 cloves garlic, minced
1 tsp dijon mustard
1/2 teaspoon sea salt
1 teaspoon raw honey

CHICKEN AND SALAD

1 lb leftover or freshly cooked chicken chopped (it can be grilled, baked, however you prepare it is fine.)

4 cups chopped romaine lettuce
3/4 cup finely chopped red cabbage
3/4 cup diced red bell pepper
1/2 cup diced red onion
1/2 cup assorted cherry tomatoes, chopped
1/2 fennel bulb, halved again, thinly sliced

1 avocado, diced
2 slices cooked chopped bacon

To prepare dressing: Puree the dressing ingredients in a food processor or blender until smooth. You can also whisk if you are feeling like doing it the old school way.

Combine lettuce, cabbage, bell pepper, onion, tomatoes, fennel, avocado and bacon in a large bowl. Add the chicken and dressing and toss well. Season to taste. ENJOY!!!!

Cinnamon Bread French Toast

By MARIE

At a recent birthday brunch at my daughter Nancy and Jed's house, a delicious cinnamon bread French toast was the highlight of the brunch.

If you haven't tried cinnamon bread, just plain or toasted you're in for a surprise when you do. This breakfast treat was a welcomed addition and a nice compliment to the rest of the food. This bread comes unsliced.

CINNAMON BREAD FRENCH TOAST

1 1/2 loaves of cinnamon bread cut in cubes
6 eggs
3 cups of milk

1/2 cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons of cinnamon

In a bowl, beat the eggs add the milk and whisk until well blended, gradually add the brown sugar and mix gently.

In a greased baking dish place a layer of the bread evenly, add some of the egg mixture, sprinkle one teaspoon of cinnamon over that layer, add another layer of the bread and top with rest of the eggs and the rest of the cinnamon.

Before you bake, press down with spoon until bread is submerged in liquid, refrigerate about one hour.

Cover in aluminum foil, not tightly (like a tent) Bake at 350 degrees oven for one hour. When cooled cut in squares. It is delicious!

FedEx Proposal Concerns Residents

On Wednesday night, Feb. 17, there was a meeting at Marina Bay regarding the sale of the Boston Scientific building on Commander Shea Boulevard in North Quincy.

Many thanks to Joe Finn, Councillor at-large, who is covering as the Ward 6 delegate until our area elects a new Ward 6 councillor. In addition, our newly elected councillors at-large, Nina Liang and Noel DiBona. Also thank you to state Rep. Bruce Ayers for his continued support and always present.

Residents are concerned with the rush hour traffic trying to leave the Marina area. Actually this is an existing problem without FedEx becoming a new tenant to the Boston Scientific building. Since the Neponset Bridge repairs, motorists have been cutting through the Marina on to Commander Shea Boulevard, then everyone meets at the no name street between Edgewater Place and Seawinds condominiums. At that point, traffic is forced to merge to get over the Neponset Bridge with the Quincy Shore Drive traffic.

We are dealing with all privately-owned streets. Marina Bay is owned by Marina Point Condominiums. Commander Shea Boulevard is owned by the Boston Scientific building and the no name street is owned by the two abutting condominiums who want to give the street to the city. The street needs storm drains, widening for a second left turn and a detailed policeman during rush hours in the morning, with the possibility of traffic lights.

This will resolve the issues of getting on the Neponset Bridge with Quincy Shore Drive being bumper to bumper. Fed Ex said they would help resolve the issue.

On another issue, opening the other side of Commander Shea Boulevard will give direct access to a much-needed ferry service. Fed Ex could ferry the incoming and outgoing mail to and from Logan Airport without having to use the roadways.

As a community advocate, we need repairs to the pier for handicapped accessibility, open Commander Shea Boulevard alongside Boston Scientific and implement a ferry service, which is badly needed. Our city officials including Mayor Thomas Koch, plus Bruce Ayers, our state representative, have been working on this issue. It is badly needed in a city that needs help with its traffic issues.

'Gift' For Illegals, Undocumented Aliens

In all the newspapers and news outlets, on Dec. 23rd, 2015, I'm sure you heard the news: the Massachusetts State Senate approved, out of the Joint Committee on Children, Families and Persons with Disabilities, giving a generous Christmas present to all the illegal aliens and non-citizens in Massachusetts.

The bill would allow all current and soon-to-arrive illegals and undocumented people access to virtually all State and local government programs, benefits, payments, services, participation in any program or activity, licenses, grants, health care, etc., and, who knows? Maybe they will, at some point, also allow these illegals to vote, which you know will happen! That would be the Christmas gift of 2017. This bill was reported out of Committee on Jan. 21st, 2016 and referred to the Joint Committee on Health Care Financing.

I spoke with State Senator Keenan's office, and they did verify that this bill IS alive, and moving along. The aide who I talked to assured me that the Senator would NOT support this bill, and that he has never supported any bill LIKE this.

This just goes to show why individuals like Donald Trump are doing so well in the polls.

It's become a sad time in American history when the politicians that we send to the State House, Washington, and local government care more about people who break the law to get here than the people who come here legally, who are now proud American citizens.

Hopefully, before it's too late, and we are the 2nd-class citizens that they are trying to make us, YOU will say, "Enough is enough", and you will call your elected officials and make yourselves heard now and in November at the polls.

You can read about this by going to the February issue of The Boston Broadside at www.BostonBroadside.com.

Fuji Restaurant Group Signs Lease At West Of Chestnut

Gate Residential announced Feb. 24 it has signed a lease with Boston area restaurateur Jimmy Liang to open a 5,000 square-foot Japanese fusion concept under the Fuji Group brand at West of Chestnut 169-apartment development in downtown Quincy.

"For someone who started a company in Quincy based on creating unique and memorable dining experiences, the opportunity to be part of the most exciting development in Quincy is a once-in-a-lifetime thing," said Liang - a Quincy native who began building the 9-location Fuji Group when he was 19-years-old. "Fuji at West of Chestnut will be Quincy Center's new shining gem - an expansive space in the most dynamic new residential community - further enhancing the vibrant downtown area."

Liang founded Fuji Restaurant in Wollaston with his best friend and partner Peter Tse in 1998, which ultimately evolved into Fuji 1546 on Hancock Street. Over the past 18 years, together with their other partners, Liang and Tse created the Fuji Group - with restaurants in Quincy, Kendall Square, East Cambridge and Assembly Square, Somerville. Fuji at West of Chestnut will be their 10th location.

"I don't think we could have found a better fit for our premium dining space than Jimmy Liang's Fuji. Our retail and lifestyle pieces need to fit together in just the right way. This announcement demonstrates that the biggest piece is in place, with other exciting news to come," said Kyle Warwick, a principal in Gate Residential - developer of West of Chestnut. "Jimmy's dining concepts are always best in class, and that's what we were looking for here."

Damian Szary, another

Gate principal, said the WOC team is being very prescriptive and purposeful with its strategy for bringing just the right mix of retail, dining and lifestyle amenities to the community they are creating downtown.

"You have one chance to get this just right, and we have absolutely nailed it with Jimmy Liang and Fuji," Szary said.

Other components of the outward-facing amenities at West of Chestnut will include a second high-concept restaurant, a lifestyle and health and fitness tenant, and a café-bakery.

West of Chestnut features 169 amenitized residential units in two six-story urban midrise buildings - including approximately 12,400 square feet of commercial and retail space on the street level. Amenities include a top-of-the-line fitness center, cross-training studio, a club suite with a lounge and media room, a dog-wash room, and an outdoor kitchen, fireplace and courtyard.

Gate Residential began construction on West of Chestnut last year following the 2014 announcement of a new joint venture with landowner Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company. Quincy Mutual, which has been in continuous operation in Quincy since it was founded in 1851, is a major investor in the downtown redevelopment.

West of Chestnut is one of many new developments set for Quincy Center, which will include the renovated Quincy Center MBTA station, the newly-remodeled City Hall, and the expected Adams Green urban park. A second phase of West of Chestnut, called East of Chestnut - featuring 220 units with additional amenity and retail space, is also planned.

Healthy Pets Make Healthy People

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Pet ownership has many positive benefits. They console us and give us companionship. Studies have shown that the bond between people and their pets can encourage fitness, decrease stress, and bring contentment to their owners.

But there's something important you should be aware of. Pets sometimes carry germs that can make people ill. Some of these creatures, especially those that are frequently associated with outbreaks of human illness, are not the best animals to select as pets. This is especially true for certain high-risk groups of people, including children younger than 5 years or immunocompromised patients.

The diseases people acquire from animals are known as zoonotic diseases. A zoonotic disease is a disease that can be passed between animals and humans. Zoonotic diseases can be caused by viruses, bacteria, parasites, and fungi. These diseases are very common. Scientists estimate that more than 6 out of every 10 infectious diseases in humans are spread from animals.

Many people intermingle with animals in their daily lives. We raise animals for food and keep them in our homes as pets. We might come into close contact with animals at a county fair or petting zoo or encounter wildlife when we go hiking in a wooded area. Many of these animals may even frequent our backyards and gardens.

Because of these interactions, it's important to be aware of the different ways people can get zoonotic diseases. These can include:

- Coming into contact with the saliva, blood, urine, or feces of an infected animal

- Being bitten by a tick or mosquito (often called a "vector")

- Eating or drinking something unsafe (such as unpasteurized milk, undercooked meat, or unwashed fruits and vegetables that are contaminated with feces from an infected animal)

Luckily, there are many ways you can protect yourself and your family from zoonotic disease. It is difficult to know which animals could be carrying zoonotic diseases, especially since pets carrying these germs often look healthy and normal. To ensure good health for you and your pet:

- Take your pet to its veterinarian regularly so it stays in good health.

- Practice good hygiene around your pets so they don't unintentionally pass germs to you.

- Learn about diseases different types of pets can spread. Many pets, such as dogs, cats, reptiles, rodents, and birds, carry germs that can be spread from animals to people.

- Always wash hands upon leaving areas where animals live (i.e. coops, barns, stalls, etc.) even if you did not touch an animal, after going to the toilet, before eating and drinking, before preparing food or drinks, and after removing soiled clothes or shoes.

- Avoid encouraging wild animals such as raccoons, prairie dogs, or wild rodents to come into your home by feeding them... Refrain from touching wild animals and their habitats, as many carry germs, viruses, and parasites.

It is also essential to wash your hands right after handling pet foods and treats, which can be contaminated with bacteria and other germs. Pet food and treats might include dry dog or cat food, dog biscuits, pig ears, beef hooves, and rodents used to feed reptiles.

Before you purchase or adopt a pet, make sure that it is the correct choice for you and your family.

- Households with children under 5 years of age should not own reptiles, such as turtles, or amphibians, such as frogs.

- Pregnant women should avoid contact with pet rodents to prevent exposure to lymphocytic choriomeningitis virus, which is a virus that can cause birth defects.

- Pregnant women should avoid adopting or handling stray cats, especially kittens. They particularly should not clean litter boxes to avoid getting toxoplasmosis from them.

- Immune-compromised persons and persons with HIV infection or AIDS should take extra precautions when choosing and handling pets. Talk to your veterinarian and health care provider to help make this decision.

Salmonella is one of many zoonotic pathogens that can be spread between people and their pets. Countless Salmonella infections occur in people who have contact with certain types of animals or "risky" pets. These include reptiles, such as turtles, snakes, or lizards; amphibians, especially frogs; poultry, including chicks, chickens, and ducklings; and rodents, such as hamsters.

Infected animals can seem happy, healthy, and clean and still be shedding. Small turtles pose a risk to young children because they are mistakenly thought to be safe pets; they are small enough to be placed in the mouth and they can be handled as toys.

It is imperative to know that directly handling these pets isn't the only way people can get sick; the environments where the animals live and roam, such as water from a frog or turtle tank, can be just as contaminated as the animal itself.

In many outbreaks of human Salmonella infections linked to water frogs, turtles, and chicks, most of the infected patients or the parents of infected children stated that they were not aware that these animals could cause Salmonella infections. Although young children are particularly at risk for serious illness, anyone can get sick from handling the turtle or its environment, including the water from containers or aquariums where they live. This water can also cross-contaminate areas where tanks are kept or cleaned, which can indirectly lead to illness in people who did not directly touch a turtle or its habitat. Actually, small turtles are so risky, that their sale as pets has been banned since 1975.

You can help prevent the spread of Salmonella or other zoonotic infections by being educated about high-risk contact with animals, both in the home and away from home, in public places such as fairs, schools, and petting zoos.

Be aware of the risks of Salmonella and other zoonotic infections from animals. Recognize that some pets are not appropriate for children younger than 5 years old or other high-risk patients.

Also, take simple precautions to diminish the risk for a zoonotic infection including using good handwashing practices. This includes washing hands thoroughly after handling animals or anything in the animal's environment.

Remember, healthy pets = healthy people!

QHS Students Attend Harvard's Model Congress

Thirty-three Quincy High School students representing all four grades attended Harvard's Model Congress over February school break for four days and three nights at the Sheraton Boston. Harvard Model Congress is the largest government simulation conference in the world and it is run entirely by Harvard students as a nonprofit organization which is dedicated to teaching and inspiring the leaders of tomorrow.

Quincy High students assumed specific individual roles of Congressional Representatives and Senators, or roles within special programs that included the President's cabinet, the media, the Republican and Democratic National Committees, the FBI, and the Delegates participated in influencing, writing, and debating bills that included GMOs, energy, US-Cuban relations, for example. After four days of simulation, awards of excellence were given for outstanding participation. Prestigious engraved gavels were given to three Quincy High students: juniors Evan Bausemer and Liam Rogers, and senior Megan Fox.

Quincy Students Inducted Into BC High National Honor Society

Gregg Selbert of Quincy a senior at Boston College High School, and juniors Evo Fearnley, Andrew Golden, Mingsley Jiang, Andrew Kraunelis, Aidan Largey, Cormac McAdams, Henry McBride, Sean McDermott, Michael O'Donovan and Jonathan Sheehan of Quincy, were 11 of the 136 students recently inducted into the Robert J. Fulton, SJ chapter of the National Honor Society at the Hunter-Fahey Commons.

The National Honor Society Officers welcomed the guests and spoke about the pillars of excellence that guides the work of the Society: scholarship, character, leadership and service. New members received congratulations and certificates from Principal Stephen Hughes

'73 and Assistant Principal Charles Drane. Earlier, the inductees received gold NHS pins that were worn on their jacket lapels during the ceremony.

NHS faculty moderator Patricia Keenan-Byrne welcomed the new members and invited guest speaker, English teacher Michael Frost, to address the group. Frost offered an inspiring message to the young men about living the values of scholarship, character, leadership and service as an adult.

Dr. Matthew Finnegan and the BC High Concert Band provided the music for the ceremony.

Two Quincy Students On RIT Dean's List

Two students from Quincy are on the Dean's List for the fall semester at Rochester Institute of Technology in Rochester, N.Y.

They are:

Ellen Chen who is studying in the game design and development program; and Stephen Cook who is studying in the university studies program.

Three On RPI Dean's List

Three Quincy residents have been named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, NY.

They are:

Joslyn Huang, Maryanne Ly and Kevin Mullin.

Quincy College Invites Biotech Community To Utilize Virtual Lab

Quincy College invites the Commonwealth's biotechnology and compliance community to utilize a new Virtual Single-Use Biomanufacturing Laboratory, with the hope that science instructors and biopharma companies will use the lab with their students and employees as a way to learn about single-use technology and practice lab skills through a virtually simulated online learning program.

In sharing this resource with the Commonwealth's biotechnology community, it is Quincy College's Biotechnology and Compliance goal and hope that science instructors and biopharma companies will use the lab as a learning platform for single-use technology, develop industry best practices following good manufacturing processes, and support further development of critical, real-world lab skills through a virtually simulated online learning program.

"There is a real need in the industry for not only qualified professionals graduating from programs like Quincy College's Biotechnology and Compliance program but also a need for specialized and customized training pipeline for incumbent workers employed in the Commonwealth's leading biopharma companies," said Bruce Van Dyke, chairperson of the Biotechnology and Compliance Department at Quincy College. "Quincy College's Virtual Single-Use Biomanufacturing Laboratory was designed in collaboration with our industry partners who provided critical feedback on the processes, approach, and design.

"The virtual lab strives to meet this real-world need head-on, providing a resource for continuing education as incumbent worker training and critical skill development for those just entering the biotechnology industry. When coupled with Quincy College's on-site intensive AKTA Pure training and HPLC training, Quincy College is uniquely positioned to support skill development for levels of professionals working in the Biotech industry," Van Dyke added.

Quincy College is the first higher education institution to integrate a virtual lab into its biomanufacturing program. The virtual lab is a highly interactive and comprehensive tool for teaching and learning disposable biomanufacturing technologies. The Virtual Single-Use Biomanufacturing Laboratory has applications not only for students, but established researchers and industry professionals.

Quincy College Biotechnology and Compliance Program's mission is to comprehensively teach the laboratory and critical thinking skills necessary to immediately enter the growing biomanufacturing industry in Massachusetts. Through lectures, seminars, and over 450 hands-on laboratory hours, students earn an Associate of Science or Certificate in Biotechnology and Compliance, and are fully trained to begin working in the biomanufacturing industry at entry-level positions.

Since the grand opening of the Virtual Single-Use Biomanufacturing Laboratory, the greater biotechnology community have been able to access the virtual lab, review comprehensive videos, and walk through critical processes that are often encountered in industry settings. MassBiologics, GE Healthcare, BioVolutions and Albany Molecular Research, Inc., Shire Inc., and Biogen industry partners have all demo'd the virtual lab.

"The virtual lab can have many applications," said Courtney Debrececi, Operations Project Manager at Shire and Curriculum Design Consultant for Quincy College. "It could be used to provide background knowledge to new manufacturing hires; allow people to learn about processes in a no stress, no impact environment at their own pace; and help provide an overview of what is happening on the manufacturing floor for non-Manufacturing personnel.

"Beyond the practical industry applications, Quincy College's Virtual Lab could be used as a resource for high school students or people looking to begin a career in biotech by giving them a glimpse into what happens in a biomanufacturing facility."

Quincy College recognized the Department of Labor for providing the funding for this free resource and to the Massachusetts-based company Advanced Tools for e-Learning (ATEL) for providing the resources necessary to develop this virtual lab for the greater community.

Timmins filed the city's response Feb. 4.

Harris contends he is entitled to serve the remainder of the two-year term created after the Dec. 23 death of incumbent Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee because of a 1953 state law that requires the runner-up in a council race be seated if the winner in the race dies before the start of a new legislative term or is otherwise unable to assume the position.

Timmins has said, however, that two home rule petitions approved by the City Council and lawmakers on Beacon Hill in subsequent years take precedence over the 1953 statute.

The first home rule petition, approved by the council in an 8-0 vote on Feb. 6, 1984, and by state lawmakers on April 2 of that year, requires a special election if any council seat is vacated during the first 12 months of the term for any cause; the remaining councillors would fill a seat vacated during the second 12 months of the term.

The second home rule petition, passed by the council by a 6-3 margin on Feb. 2, 2004, and by state lawmakers on Jan. 5, 2005, made a distinction between how ward and at-large seats would be filled. Under that law, ward seats would be filled by a special election if vacated for any cause during the first 12 months of a term and by the remaining councillors after that point, while at-large seats would be filled by a vote of the council regardless of whether the vacancy occurred in the first or second 12 months of a term.

Timmins has said the Ward 6 seat became vacant on Jan. 4, when McNamee was unable to be sworn-in to a new term during the council's organizational meeting.

The 1953 law was approved when Quincy had a Plan E type of government — the city switched to its current plan, Plan A, in 1957 — and Timmins said Monday that is one thing the city is looking at as part of its response to Harris' motion for summary judgment.

Harris, a resident of 74 Ashworth St., is one of the five candidates who will appear on the April 5 preliminary ballot. The remaining four are Nathan Knowles of 44 Ocean St., North Quincy; Kevin Mock of 76 Alstead St., North Quincy; Brian Radell, 21 Standish Rd., Squantum; and Herbert "Alie" Shaughnessy of 32

Essex St. in Squantum.

Harris and Radell both challenged McNamee in previous elections. Radell ran against McNamee for the seat in 2011. McNamee won that race with 1,864 votes to Radell's 1,587. McNamee went unopposed in 2013 before besting Harris 2,243 votes to 1,535 in 2015.

Ward 6 voters will have a chance to meet the candidates March 23 during a forum organized by the Squantum Community Association. The event begins at 7 p.m. that night and is being held in the lower level of the First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd.

The two candidates with the most votes on April 5 will advance to the final election, slated for May 3.

March 16 is the last day to register to vote in the preliminary and April 13 is the deadline to register for the final.

If the special election goes ahead, it will be the first one held in Quincy to fill a council opening since 1984, when then Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly resigned his seat to accept a position with the Quincy Housing Authority. Five candidates ran in that special election, with Michael Cheney ultimately winning the seat.

Recent vacancies, which occurred in the second year of council term, have been filled by votes of the body. In June 2011, for example, Francis Orlando was appointed to represent Ward 2 for the remainder of the term vacated by Daniel Raymond after the latter resigned to become commissioner of public works and in February 2003 John Keenan was appointed to the at-large seat vacated by Timothy Cahill after Cahill was elected state treasurer.

Ward 6 Candidates Night March 23

The Squantum Community Association will host an event Wednesday, March 23 for residents to meet the candidates running for the Ward 6 seat on the Quincy City Council.

A special preliminary election is scheduled to take place on Tuesday, April 5, which will be followed by the special election on Tuesday, May 3.

Following opening statements by the candidates, residents will be invited to pose questions, which may also be sent in advance to SCASquantumEvents@gmail.com.

The free event will be held at 7 p.m. in Fellowship Hall at the First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd., Squantum, and provides an opportunity for residents to meet the candidates in an informal setting. Refreshments will be served.

For more information, contact SCASquantumEvents@gmail.com or 617-851-1673.

The council seat in Ward 6, which covers Squantum, Marina Bay, and parts of North Quincy, is open following the death of Brian McNamee in December.

Steward Shopping Hospital Site; City 'All Options Open'

vide exceptional care services to the Quincy community through our multiple care access points including our 24-hour satellite emergency center within the city," Hall wrote in an emailed statement.

"In keeping with that commitment and by reaching out specifically to potential buyers who provide health-related services, Steward is aiming to ensure that the next use of the property is for medical purposes which make a positive contribution to the health and safety of Quincy area residents.

"Under the current arrangements being discussed with potential medical use buyers, Steward intends to operate the emergency room for multiple years beyond the date of sale," Hall added.

The property at 114 Whitwell Street includes 14.4 acres of land and four buildings. The site has an assessed value of $41.6 million, according to the city assessor's online database. The property had an assessed value of $65.6 million in 2013 and that number has fallen each year since then; its assessed value was $58.8 million in 2014 and $50.4 million in 2015.

Walker said Steward has kept the Quincy Medical Center site in good condition since the hospital closed and has continued paying property taxes.

The hospital site is in a planned urban development zoning district; one side of the neighborhood surrounding the site is zoned as Residential A and the rest is Residential B.

Quincy Medical Center first opened its doors in 1890 and was owned by the city between 1919 and 1999, when it was known as Quincy City Hospital. In 1999, it became an affiliate of Boston Medical Center and took on its new name.

The hospital had 196 beds in 2014 before it closed and re-opened as a satellite ER. About 545 employees were affected by the closure.

Under terms of an agreement reached with then Attorney General Martha Coakley in January 2015, Steward agreed to maintain emergency services in the city of Quincy for up to two years and was required to provide those services at the Whitwell Street facility through at least Dec. 31, 2015.

Steward in November 2015 announced it would keep the Whitwell Street emergency room open through at least the end of 2016.

The company could have closed the emergency department at the end of 2015 had it provided state regulators with sufficient evidence its services weren't used enough to justify it remaining open.

Coakley's settlement with Steward additionally required the company to provide several services in the city through Oct. 1, 2018. Among those requirements, Steward has to maintain primary care and specialty physician services; a patient transportation network linking the emergency department, doctors offices, Manet locations, and two Boston hospitals operated by Steward, Carney and St. Elizabeth's; continued community benefit programs and charity care; services to Medicare and Medicaid patients; services to emergency patients regardless of their ability to pay; and transition for employees of the hospital, $16 million through re-employment, early retirement, severances, or other means.

Spaulding Adaptive Sports Centers Making A Difference At The Y

By JOHN GALLUZZO
Development Writer
South Shore YMCA

It was a partnership that just seemed perfect from the start.

The South Shore YMCA is "dedicated to improving the quality of life for all through programs that promote healthy spirit, mind, and body." Spaulding Rehabilitative Network is a recognized leader in rehabilitative medicine in Eastern Massachusetts. Last year, Spaulding opened an outpatient center inside the Quincy Y. This year, construction is being finalized on another outpatient center at the Emilson Branch of the Y in Hanover.

The placement of such facilities inside of YMCAs made sense enough. But both sides wanted more.

On Feb. 20, the South Shore YMCA's Emilson

Branch ran a three-hour adaptive tennis clinic, thanks to the loan of several court sport wheelchairs from Spaulding. Twelve athletes, teens and adults, took part in the event, learning for the first time what it's like to play the sport from a wheelchair.

The Y's staff tennis pros - Lucy Dickman and Martha DiGrigorio, as well as Assistant Director Brandon Benbenek - led the program with Thomas Dodd of New England Wheelchair Sports. Dodd, who uses a wheelchair himself, taught participants basic wheelchair maneuver skills for the court.

The instructors then took the players through a series of tennis stroke skills, but not before taking one important step. In order to understand the challenges of playing tennis from a wheelchair, they took to the chairs on test runs themselves. The afternoon ended with a series of one up/one down scrimmages.

For some participants, clinics like this one mean the opening of a new world. Mary Faherty, whose 11-year-old daughter took in the clinic, said the program hit home on more than one level. "It gave Catherine the opportunity to participate in playing tennis, just like any other kid," she said, "the difference being not many tennis coaches know much about wheelchair tennis, never mind the skills required to play the sport. It was amazing to be taught by coaches that truly understand the sport."

The Emilson Y's Tennis Director, Bob Carroll, felt it was an important step for his program, a way of introducing the sport he loves to a whole new audience at the

Y. "It was a fantastic clinic," he said, "attended by both wheelchair-bound and able-bodied athletes. The event was well received by those taking part."

Dodd, who teaches adaptive sports clinics of all kinds, felt, too, that the event was a success. "I thoroughly enjoyed my time teaching at the wheelchair tennis clinic," he said. "I love teaching tennis and seeing all the participants learn new tennis and wheelchair skills. Looking forward to scheduling our next clinic!"

And tennis is just a first step, said Lisa Drennan, the South Shore YMCA's Director of Inclusion. "Through our partnership with Spaulding Adaptive Sports Centers we plan to expand the opportunity for wheelchair sports to include golf and basketball in the near future," she said.

Watch for those events to come to the Quincy Y soon.

The South Shore YMCA is a charity. For information on how to support its work through volunteering or donations, contact Mary Orne at morne@ssymca.org or 781-264-9400 ext. 3306.

Cancer is a life-changing disease that takes a tremendous physical and emotional toll on those affected. The Y and the LIVESTRONG Foundation have joined together to create LIVES-TRONG at the YMCA, a research-based physical activity and well-being program designed to help adult cancer survivors reclaim their total health.

Participants work with Y staff trained in supportive cancer care to safely achieve their goals such as building muscle mass and strength; increasing flexibility and endurance; and improving confidence and self-esteem.

The program starts Tuesday, March 15 on Tuesday and Thursday for 12 weeks, 1 to 2:30 p.m. For more information or to enroll, contact Katelyn Szafir at 781-829-8585 ext. 8228 or kszafir@ssymca.org.

A variety of family activities are hosted each Friday night from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Quincy Y. Enjoy meeting other families as well as trying new activities together.

Cost is included in household membership to the South Shore YMCA. For information about membership call the Quincy Y Member Service Desk at 617-479-8500, or visit the Member Service desk for a tour.

The 20th annual Taste of the South Shore will be held Thursday, March 24 at Lombardo's in Randolph.

for Taste of the South Shore

Event co-chairs are Jonathan Dunn and Jimmy Liang.

The event features food from 40 local restaurants, wineries and breweries. Proceeds support the South Shore YMCA's Send a Kid to Camp appeal.

A Taste After Party at Vincent's Night Club, also at Lombardo's, follows the event.

Tickets are $125 per person, or $100 when purchased before March 4th. After Party-only tickets are $25 per person. Entry into the After Party is included in Taste of the South Shore ticket purchases.

Scottish Settlers Topic For Alpha Delta Kappa Group

ALPHA DELTA KAPPA recently met at North Quincy High School for a program about the early settlement of the Scottish in Quincy. The Robert Burns statue in Quincy Center was erected by members of that community. Many early leaders of the city were of Scottish descent and were mayors, state senators and charter members who established groups such as the Rotary. At the meeting we enjoyed some tasty Scottish treats. The group also sampled some wonderful Chinese New Year treats. From left: Deanna White-Hebert, Angela Yu, Mary Young and Peggy Walker. Folk Concert Saturday

The Stone Temple Coffee House, Quincy's own official Boston Area Coffee House, will present a unique local folk concert with nationally known and recognized singer-songwriters, David Roth, and Johnsmith on Saturday, March 5.

Doors open at 7:30 p.m. and the concert starts at 8 p.m. at the "Church of the Presidents," United First Parish Church, Social Hall, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Roth has been described as a pure, smooth voice with unsurpassed instrumental ability, incredible humor, and heart-piercing, intelligent lyrics. Johnsmith's been called a talented singer songwriter who has a gift for writing deceptively simple songs, with his heart on his sleeve and his voice in control, that spring from a deep place in the soul.

Refreshments will be available. Admission is $20. For reserved tickets and more information call Eileen Baker at 617-821-4073.

Zoning Request For Billings Road Eatery Withdrawn

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal to convert a former dry cleaner on Billings Road into an 81-seat hot pot restaurant was nixed by the applicant with the zoning board set to reject the plan amid opposition from residents and elected officials.

The applicant, Alpha Billings Realty Trust, had sought a finding for a change of use allowing the opening of a hot pot restaurant at 67 Billings Rd., previously home to Fashion Quality Cleaners. The restaurant would have no privately owned parking lot, relying instead on an abutting public lot on Vane Street and on street parking nearby. Under the city's zoning code, an 81-seat restaurant would require 20 parking space, seven more than the dry cleaner did.

A standing-room-only crowd was on hand Feb. 23 at the McIntyre Government Center for an hour-long public hearing on the proposal before the Zoning Board of Appeals. Nine people spoke against the plan, citing the impact on parking and traffic in the neighborhood. The five board members also signaled their intent to reject the plan, prompting the applicant's attorney, Jack Milgram, to withdraw the application without prejudice.

Board chairman Martin Aikens said the withdrawal means the proponent has the ability to submit revised plans for consideration by the ZBA at a future meeting, but not the same proposal.

Rep. Bruce Ayers and Councillor Joseph Finn were among those who spoke in opposition to the project during the hearing.

Ayers presented the board with the signatures of 21 area business owners opposed to the 81-seat restaurant. He said he could not support the project, given opposition expressed by residents dating back to a public meeting in September organized by late Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee.

"Personally, Mr. Chairman and members of the board, I feel after attending the neighborhood meeting, after listening to the neighbors' concerns, after listening to the businesses' concerns, I want to speak in strong opposition for this proposal," Ayers said. "I don't think it's the right development for this area — we want to make sure it's smart growth and right for this area."

Finn said all 50 residents who attended that September meeting were opposed to proposal. McNamee had received several emails from residents who opposed the project and none in favor, he added; Finn himself received three emails expressing opposition to the project.

"If anyone is supporting it, I have to be honest I haven't heard," Finn said. "The complaints are not being made simply by residents. It's being made by residents, it's being made by businesses and interestingly enough — and I think this is one of the grave concerns of the businesses — it's also being made by the patrons of those businesses as well."

Brian McMahon of West Elm Avenue said parking in the area of Billings Road was an ongoing problem; he had been ticketed earlier that afternoon after being unable to park in the Vane Street lot.

"I was at the barbershop at 1:30 today and guess who got a ticket for parking on Vane Street," McMahon said. "The reason I was parked on Vane Street was I could not get into the lot."

Vane Street resident Simon Gee said the lot on his street is often full, prompting residents to double park on his street and Billings Road among others.

No one spoke in favor of the proposal at the meeting, though Milgram did submit three letters in support of the project and petitions in favor of it signed 58 times.

Jack Gillon, a traffic engineer hired by Milgram who conducted a parking study from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. during three weekdays and a Saturday in November, said there was ample parking within a 500-foot radius of the restaurant, though available spaces in the lot were limited.

"Over 20 [spaces] were available in every hour on both the weekdays and the Saturday," Gillon stated.

Several residents and board members, however, questioned the results of the traffic study because it ended at 6 p.m. each day.

Two of the five candidates hoping to win a special election this spring to fill McNamee's seat on the council appeared before the zoning board to speak against the proposal.

Nathan Knowles, a resident of 44 Ocean St., expressed concern that patrons of the restaurant could park in spaces on residential streets if streets in the business area were filled up. The neighborhood, he added, was becoming too saturated with restaurants.

"This board at some point has to make a decision on whether or not a change of use is in order to continue to changing spots from retail to restaurant," Knowles said. "At some point you run out of spaces and I think we're reaching that point."

Alie Shaughnessy, who resides at 32 Essex St., said there was no room for the restaurant given the parking situation. Its customers, he explained, would stay longer than those who used the dry cleaner.

"When the dry cleaner was there you'd go in, get your dry cleaning — you're gone in five minutes," Shaughnessy said. "Somebody comes into an 80-seat restaurant...they're going to stay there on average I would think at least an hour and if they're having a cocktail they might be there an hour-and-a-half."

Zoning board member Brian Radell, who lives at 21 Standish Rd., is also seeking the Ward 6 seat. He planned to vote against the 81-seat restaurant had the application not been withdrawn. He said the section of Billings Road couldn't handle any additional demand for parking, even if the proponent's traffic study said it could.

"Everybody knows that there is an existing issue as of today," Radell said. "In the study it says there would be an incremental difference as determined by the proposed change of use — I don't think the area can handle any difference."

Aikens, the board chairman, said the proposed restaurant would not be a good fit for the neighborhood because of the parking situation.

"I think we're restaurant-ed-out there and we don't have the room for parking," Aikens said. "Dry cleaners, you're in there 30 seconds dropping-off, picking-up two minutes...the perfect business if someone wanted to open it there. A restaurant [with] 81-seats, no. I just can't even see that, another restaurant in the area."

Board member Russell Chin concurred that the proposed use was not a good fit for the site.

"[The area] is very congested. I'm concerned about the traffic and the parking. I'm concerned about pedestrian and vehicle accidents happening more and more," Chin said. "So while I applaud your desire to use the space, I think it's the wrong use for that particular location."

Also on the agenda for Feb. 23 was an application by CPI Management LLC of Boston to build a six-story, 135-room hotel in the 58,670 square foot parcel of land at 1-15 Arlington St. and 22-30 Fayette St. in North Quincy. The proposal was continued without a hearing until the ZBA's meeting on March 22.

The plan for the proposed hotel includes a 102-spot parking lot on site. The developer would also create 13 on-street parking spaces on Arlington Street adjacent to the site as well as a new sidewalk on that side of the road.

Filing Taxes Just Got (A Little Bit) Easier

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Now that it's March, your annual tax filing deadline is fast approaching. If you receive Social Security benefits, one of the documents you need to file your federal income tax return is your Social Security Benefit Statement (Form SSA-1099/1042S).

Your Social Security benefits may be taxable. This includes monthly retirement, survivor, and disability benefits. About one-third of people receiving Social Security benefits must pay taxes on some of these benefits, depending on the amount of their taxable income. This usually happens if you have other substantial income — such as wages, self-employment, interest, dividends, and other taxable income that must be reported on your tax return — in addition to your Social Security benefits. You will never have to pay taxes on more than 85 percent of your Social Security benefits, based on Internal Revenue Service (IRS) rules.

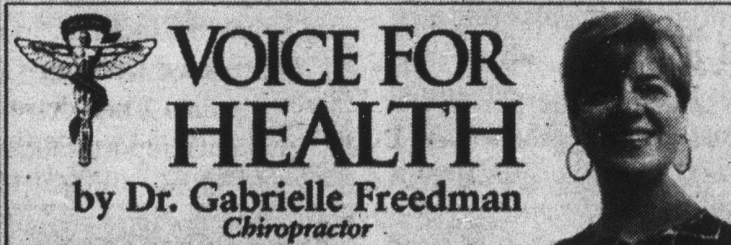

To find out if you must pay taxes on your benefits, you will need your Social Security Benefit Statement (Form SSA-1099/1042S). You should automatically receive it in the mail each January. It shows the total amount of benefits you received from Social Security in the previous year so you know how much Social Security income to report to the IRS on your tax return. The benefit statement is not available for people who receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI), as SSI payments are not taxable.

Whether you file your taxes early or wait until the deadline, Social Security makes it easy to obtain a replacement benefit statement if you didn't receive one or misplaced it. You can get an instant replacement easily by using your secure online my Social Security account. If you don't already have an account, you can create one in minutes. Follow the link below to the my Social Security page, and select "Sign In or Create an Account." Once you are logged in, select the "Replacement Documents" tab to obtain your replacement 1099 or 1042S benefit statement. You can also use your personal my Social Security account to keep track of your earnings each year, manage your benefits, and more.

You can also obtain a replacement benefit statement by calling us at 1-800-772-1213 (TTY 1-800-325-0778), Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., or by contacting your local Social Security Office. If you live outside of the United States, please contact your nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate. But by going online you can print your replacement benefit statement immediately and not have to wait to receive it in the mail.

With a my Social Security account, gathering your Social Security information for tax season has never been easier. Open your own personal my Social Security account today at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

IN THE AFTERMATH OF A COLLISION

Now that texting and cell-phone use have become so widespread among drivers, rear-end collisions have become quite common. According to the National Transportation Safety Board, approximately 1.7 million rear-end collisions occur annually, causing 1,700 deaths and 500,000 injuries. While the term "fender-bender" tends to downplay the seriousness of many such collisions, their effects can be long-lasting. One study reports that 18 percent of the people who sustained a grade 1 or 2 neck injury from a car crash (which is less serious than a grade 3 or 4) reported pain one year following the crash. This pain results from micro-tears in the ligaments and muscles of the spine that become inflamed. Chiropractic treatment helps reduce this inflammation and restore motion.

Professional chiropractic care can be helpful in relieving pain after a car accident. Call us at 617.472.4220 and find out how chiropractic care can enhance your well-being and help you enjoy your life to the fullest. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, we work with you to restore your health and guide you in a personalized approach to overall wellness. We offer computerized spinal scans.

P.S. Research shows that chiropractic adjustments help the body release anti-inflammatory Interleukin 6 (IL-6), an important substance created by the body to help heal acute injuries.

Oil Change Reminder Light, Head Gasket Sealer Products

I have a 2008 Chevy HHR SS, it runs good and has about 46,000 miles on it. The oil change reminder light came on. I had the engine oil changed but they couldn't turn off the reminder light. I left with the dash message on, I went home and tried what it said in the owner's manual and still the lights on. I needed a new keyfob and the dealer told me they turned the light off, but it is still on. Do you have a suggestion on how to shut it off? It is not serious, but is annoying.

According to AllData, the database I use this is a suggested procedure to turn off the oil change light. Turn the ignition key to RUN with the engine OFF. Press the INFO and RESET buttons on the Driver Information Center (DIC) at the same time to enter the personalization menu.

Press the INFO button to scroll through the available personalization menu modes until the DIC display shows OIL-LIFE RESET. Press and hold the reset button until the DIC display shows ACKNOWLEDGED. This will tell you the system has been reset. Turn the key to LOCK. If the CHANGE ENGINE OIL SOON message comes back on when you start the vehicle, the Engine Oil Life System has not reset. Repeat the procedure.

There is also an alternate method. Turn the ignition key to RUN with the engine off. Fully press the release the accelerator pedal 3 times within 5 seconds. Several beeps sound. This confirms the oil life system has been reset. If the CHANGE/OIL message comes back on when you start the engine, the engine oil life system has not been reset. Repeat the procedure.

I own a 2006 Subaru outback limited with 70,000 miles on it. In a recent visit to the dealer I was advised that my head gaskets were starting to weep. No repair was necessary at this time but the situation should be monitored they advised. They stated the repair would cost about $1,750. I am aware of the Outback 2.5 engine head gasket problem. I also asked the service manager, would any of the goopy goop solutions that are available on the Internet work in my engine? He advised no, that it potentially could clog up oil passages. The Internet postings seem to contradict this comment. I am wondering what your suggestions are in this area.

I have had mixed results with the head-gasket sealer products, in some cases they work, other times not at all. With Subaru vehicles the leak usually starts as an oil leak and then ends up as a coolant leak. I have seen many cases where the leak lasts the life of the car without repairs by just maintaining fluid levels. Certainly the leak won't get any better by itself but depending on how long you plan to keep your car it may be an option worth considering. Regarding sealants, some repair shops have told me they have had good luck with a pour in product called K-Seal.

I am hoping that you can give me some insight regarding these issues I am having with my Honda. I bought this as a new car, because I had such good luck with my previously Honda Civic. My Civic was a standard transmission and this Accord has an automatic transmission. What I don't like is it has a rather high pitched whiny sound upon acceleration. Deceleration is not smooth as I would like, almost like it is skipping down a gear and finally catching the low gear. The other issue and I don't think this is related, but now when I turn the steering wheel it makes a whiny noise too. I have taken it to Honda they and don't understand the problems. They did say perhaps the steering motor may be partially the reason, but they weren't sure. Can you help me please make sense of this nonsense?

The first thing I would do is find the exact same car and see if it behaves the same way. If the second car does the exact same thing then it may be a characteristic of the car (not necessarily a desirable characteristic, but not repairable). If the second car is different: then your car has a problem that you can identify to the dealer and hopefully get repaired. When you bring the car to the dealer for evaluation, road test the car with a mechanic or the service writer so they know exactly what you are talking about.

I have a 2006 Toyota Solara that I truly love but the one feature that I wished the car had is a rearview camera. I lament this because so many drivers never respect the right of way of a backing driver, when that driver clearly has the right of way. Is it possible to have a rear view camera installed that is as good as the factory style cameras?

There are some very good aftermarket cameras that are nearly as good as the factory style. Some of these camera systems replace the rear view mirror others mount a monitor in or on the dash. To me the mirror style more closely mimic the factory installed systems provided it uses a good quality camera. On other note, backing drivers never have the right of way.

Survey: 87% Of Drivers Engage In Unsafe Behaviors Behind Wheel

About 87 percent of drivers engaged in at least one risky behavior while behind the wheel within the past month, according to latest research by the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

These unsafe behaviors include driving while distracted, impaired, drowsy, speeding, running red lights or not wearing a seat belt. Nearly 33,000 Americans died in car crashes in 2014, and preliminary estimates project a nine percent increase in deaths for 2015.

The report finds that 1 in 3 drivers have had a friend or relative seriously injured or killed in a crash, and 1 in 5 have been involved in a crash that was serious enough for someone to go to the hospital. Common unsafe behaviors include:

Distracted Driving

- More than 2 in 3 drivers (70 percent) report talking on a cell phone while driving within the past 30 days. Nearly 1 in 3 drivers (31 percent) report doing this fairly often or regularly.

- More than 2 in 5 drivers (42 percent) admit to reading a text message or email while driving in the past 30 days, while 12 percent report doing this fairly often or regularly. Nearly 1 in 3 drivers (32 percent) admit to typing or sending a text or email over the past month, while eight percent say they do so fairly often or regularly.

- Over 80 percent of drivers view distracted driving as a bigger problem than three years ago.

- Previous research by NHTSA estimates that distracted driving is a factor in at least 3,000 deaths per year, though the actual number is likely much higher. Drivers who take their eyes off the road for more than two seconds can double their risk of being in a crash.

Speeding

- Nearly half of all drivers (48 percent) report going 15 mph over the speed limit on a freeway in the past month, while 15 percent admit doing so fairly often or regularly.

- About 45 percent of drivers report going 10 mph over the speed limit on a residential street in the past 30 days, and 11 percent admit doing so fairly often or regularly.

- Previous research by NHTSA estimates that speed plays a factor in nearly 10,000 deaths per year. Drivers are more likely to be seriously injured or killed at higher speeds, and speeding increases the risk of being in a crash because there is less time and distance available to respond.

Drowsy Driving

- Nearly 1 in 3 drivers (32 percent) say they have driven when they were so tired they had a hard time keeping their eyes open in the past 30 days. More than 1 in 5 (22 percent) admitted doing this more than once during that time.

- Previous research by the AAA Foundation estimates that drowsy driving is a factor in an average of 328,000 crashes annually, including 109,000 crashes that result in injuries and 6,400 fatal crashes.

Red-light Running

- More than 1 in 3 drivers (39 percent) admit to having driven through a light that had just turned red when they could have stopped safely during the past 30 days. About 1 in 4 drivers (26 percent) reported doing this more than once during that time.

- Previous research by NHTSA estimates that 697 people were killed and 127,000 were injured in crashes that involved red-light running in 2013.

Seatbelt Use

- Nearly 1 in 5 drivers (18 percent) report driving without a seatbelt within the past 30 days, and more than 1 in 7 (15 percent) admit to doing this more than once.

- Previous research by NHTSA estimates that nearly half of all vehicle occupants who died in a crash in 2013 were unrestrained at the time of the crash. Seatbelts can reduce the risk of fatal injury by more than 45 percent.

Impaired Driving

- More than 1 in 8 motorists (13 percent) report driving when their alcohol level might have been near or over the legal limit within the past 12 months. About nine percent of drivers report doing this more than once over the past year.

- Previous research by NHTSA estimates that there are nearly 10,000 deaths a year from crashes involving drivers with a BAC of .08 or higher, and impaired-driving crashes cost the country more than $50 billion per year.

Survey data are from a sample of 2,442 licensed drivers ages 16 and older who reported driving in the past 30 days.

ception in November, 1996 – nearly 20 years.

Campbell grew up in Hyde Park and settled in Quincy in 1972 with her husband Robert and son David. Two subsequent children followed: James in 1975 and Nancy in 1981.

In 1980, Campbell founded the "Alzheimers Support Group" at Beechwood Life Community Center. She became the director of Elder Services under the mentorship of Betty Southwick in 1985.

In 1989, she volunteered at Quincy Community Television at Continental Cablevision. Four years later, in 1991, she was offered a position in the production department working with the staff and board of directors of Continental Cablevision.

In 1996, she was the executive director of what is now Quincy Access TV. Campbell has been a guiding and steady force at the local access TV organization overseeing its growth from a two-camera operation to a state-of-the-art corporation.

"Over the years QATV has won many awards. Some have been won by the members we have taught and some by the staff of QATV," Campbell said.

Quincy Access Television has received the "Overall Excellence" award from the regional chapter of "The Alliance for Community Media" several times and on the national level QATV has been recognized three times with the "Overall Excellence Award".

Most recently, QATV placed first in the nation for its extensive election coverage.

The Salvation Army's Civic Dinner is a fundraiser for the charitable organization. Proceeds from the event will help the Salvation Army provide emergency services such as utility assistance, food pantry assistance, rental assistance, camperships and more to individuals whose lives are impacted by economic hardships in Quincy.

Tickets to the dinner are $75 per person.

The Salvation Army of Quincy is offering sponsorship opportunities to help support the civic dinner. Sponsorship levels are $5,000, $2,500 and $1,000. Sponsors to date include NorthEast Community Bank, The Quincy Sun and Colonial Federal Savings Bank.

All three sponsorship levels offer acknowledgement in event press releases and post event advertising and logos on event night signage. The $5,000 and $2,500 sponsorship levels include a reserved table for 10 guests. The $1,000 level includes four complimentary dinner tickets.

The dinner will also feature a silent auction. To donate an item to the auction, for tickets or for more information on sponsorship opportunities, call The Salvation Army of Quincy at 617-472-2345.

Grandasia, QHS Student Council Prom Partners

Raffling Off $500 In Merchandise

When the Quincy High School Student Council was looking for new and innovative ways to raise funds for their upcoming prom, Grandasia Founder and Executive Fashion Director Phi Du was more than willing to help.

Du donated merchandise, valued at $500, to the Student Council to raise funds via a raffle. Raffle tickets are currently being sold at $1 per chance at Quincy High School sporting events and during lunches.

Student Council volunteers are also selling tickets at Grandasia, 1259 Hancock St. on upcoming weekends. The raffle is open to anyone in the market for a prom gown or bridal fashion. The $500 can also be used towards any dress, shoes and accessories offered at Grandasia.

Organizing a prom can be expensive, and money raised by the raffle will help to lower the cost of admission for all students who plan on attending the Quincy High School senior prom. Students and parents from all schools in Quincy and the surrounding areas are encouraged to purchase raffle tickets as it is open to anyone in need of evening wear.

Grandasia has won the Couples' Choice Award from Weddingwire and Best of Weddings from The Knot three consecutive years. It is located in the Monroe Building at 1259 Hancock St. adjacent to McIntyre Mall near City Hall.

Du said her donation is her way of giving back and helping Quincy High School students achieve their goals.

PROM PARTNERS – Grandasia Bridal, Prom and Fashion located at 1259 Hancock St. in Quincy Center and the Quincy High School Student Council have partnered to help lower the cost of attending the school's senior prom this year. Grandasia has donated $500 in merchandise as a raffle prize. The Student Council is selling raffle tickets at the fashion emporium, QHS sporting events and at school lunches. Kids Walk To Cure Diabetes May 14

The sixth annual JDRF Kids' Walk to Cure Diabetes, a partnership with the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation and many of QPS students, friends, and family, will be held Saturday, May 14.

The 2.7 mile walk will kick off at 10 a.m. (arrival at 9:30 a.m.) from the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School and wrap up approximately 45 minutes later with fun and refreshments.

Money raised will go toward funding for research, treatments, and eventually a cure for Type 1 Diabetes, a disease that affects more than 18 million Americans, with 15,000 children diagnosed each year. Funds will also be raised through the sale of Quincy Kids Walk T-shirts and bracelets that will be available in the coming months for purchase at participating schools.

For more information or to volunteer contact Jennifer or Stephen Golden 617-786-8738.

QUINCY CATHOLIC ACADEMY (QCA) recently sponsored a food drive to benefit the Pantry Shelf Food Program at Interfaith Social Services. By bringing a can of soup on Feb. 12, students were invited to come to school in casual clothes instead of uniform. A donation of over 400 cans of soup were delivered to Interfaith Social Services in Quincy. Shown here (from left) are QCA K-1 students Hannah Lakshmanan, Anna Avdiu and Varnia Pierre. One of Greater Boston's largest food pantries, Interfaith Social Services' Pantry Shelf has been providing emergency food to families and individuals since 1975. Last year volunteers distributed over 750,000 pounds of food to hungry families. The Pantry Shelf also operates various seasonal initiatives for the children of families who depend on their food pantry.

NEW TREATMENT FOR GUM DISEASE?

If gum disease is allowed to occur and progress from its mildest form ("gingivitis") to its most severe form ("periodontitis"), it will lead to inflammation, bleeding, and even tooth loss (by destroying the bone that supports the teeth). Of course, the best way to avoid tooth loss associated with gum disease is to floss and brush regularly and schedule regular dental checkups and cleanings. Once periodontitis takes hold, only professional treatment (scaling, root planing, and antibiotics) can eliminate it. However, promising new research has identified a gene (Del-1) that can prevent periodontal bone loss by inhibiting the activity of "osteoclasts," cells that absorb bone tissue. Subsequent research is likely to lead to new treatments for periodontitis and other bone-damaging diseases. Knowledge about gum disease is imperative to good dental health. If you are looking for a family dentist who understands the needs of everyone in your family as individuals and as patients, we hope you will consider us. If you need answers to questions about gum disease, or any other dental health care, don't hesitate to contact us at 617 479-6220. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com. P.S. Advanced periodontitis may necessitate gum-pocket reduction surgery, soft tissue grafts, and bone grafting.

Adams Green & Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of: February 28, 2016

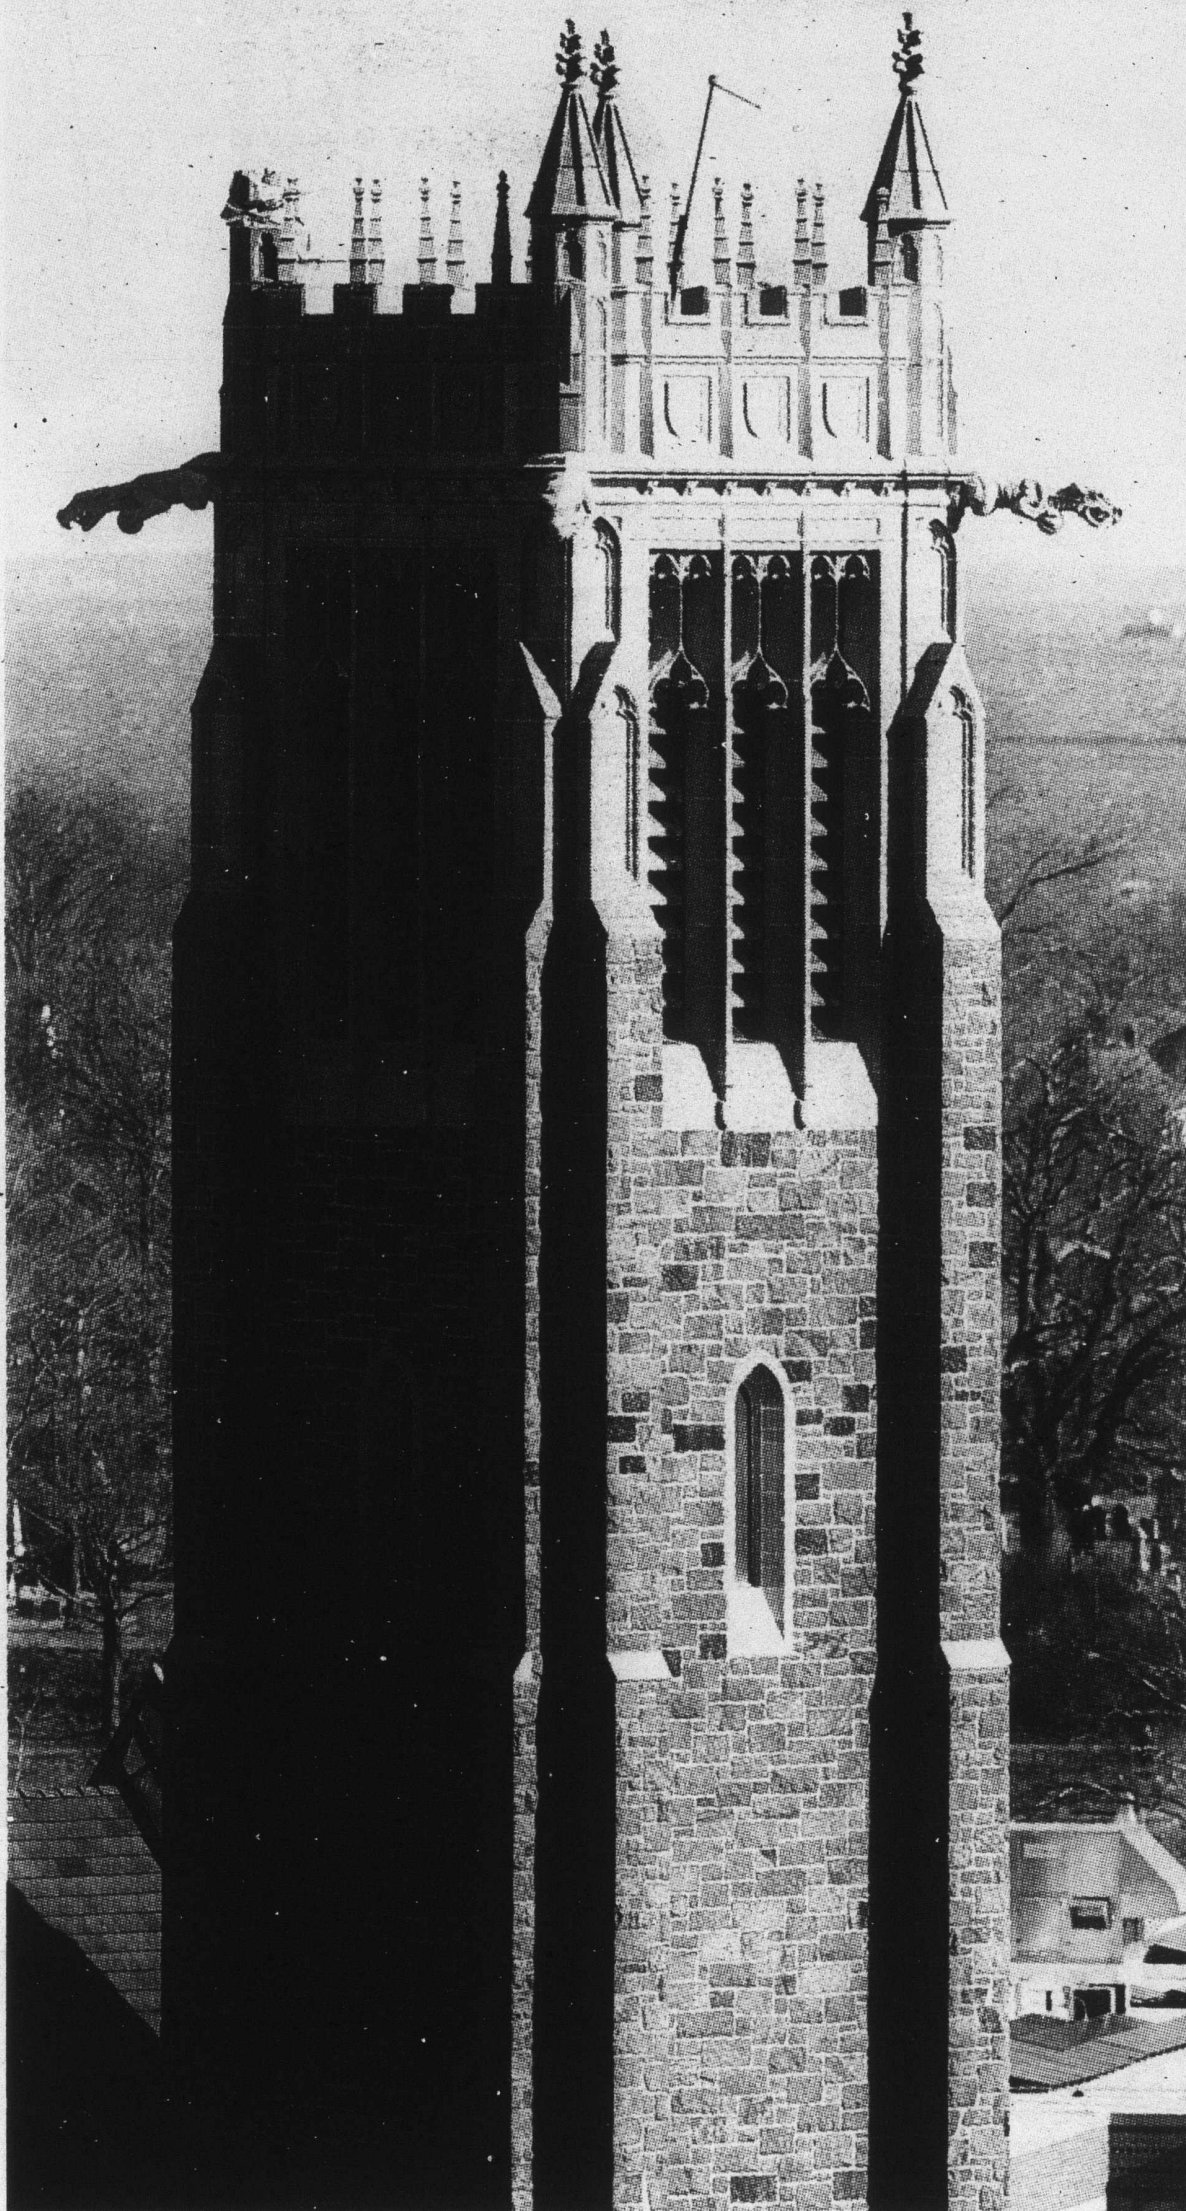

- Demolition of the old Woolworth's building at the corner of Hancock and Clivedon Streets is ongoing in preparation for a new mixed used condo complex on this parcel. Clivedon Street will be closed from March 14th thru project completion.
- NGRID Electric will continue to install cables in the underground conduits on Cottage Avenue and Cottage Street to upgrade the services to the existing buildings and for future buildings. Work should be complete in the coming weeks.
- A.R. Belli will continue to install conduits on Temple Street. These underground conduits are being put in to provide electrical, phone and cable lines for the Church of the Presidents. This work is being done in conjunction with the Adams Green work. There will be lane reductions on the lanes closest to the church on Temple Street. Expect traffic delays.
- Riley Bros. are continuing to install a gas main in Cottage Avenue. This work will replace the aging gas main with a new gas main to serve a variety of commercial and residential buildings downtown.

To receive project updates, sign up for CityLink at <http://www.quincyma.gov/citylink> or follow @CityofQuincy and @MassDOT on Twitter.

Quincy Bounces Barnstable, 54-25

By BILL GRIFFIN

There was something for everybody.

There were a school-record 11 assists from Quincy's brilliant sophomore Liana Cunningham who had a night at point guard out of an instructional manual on the proper way to play the position.

There was senior Gabby Jerahian who drained three clean three-point swishes to open up both the Barnstable defense and an early lead which was not seriously threatened.

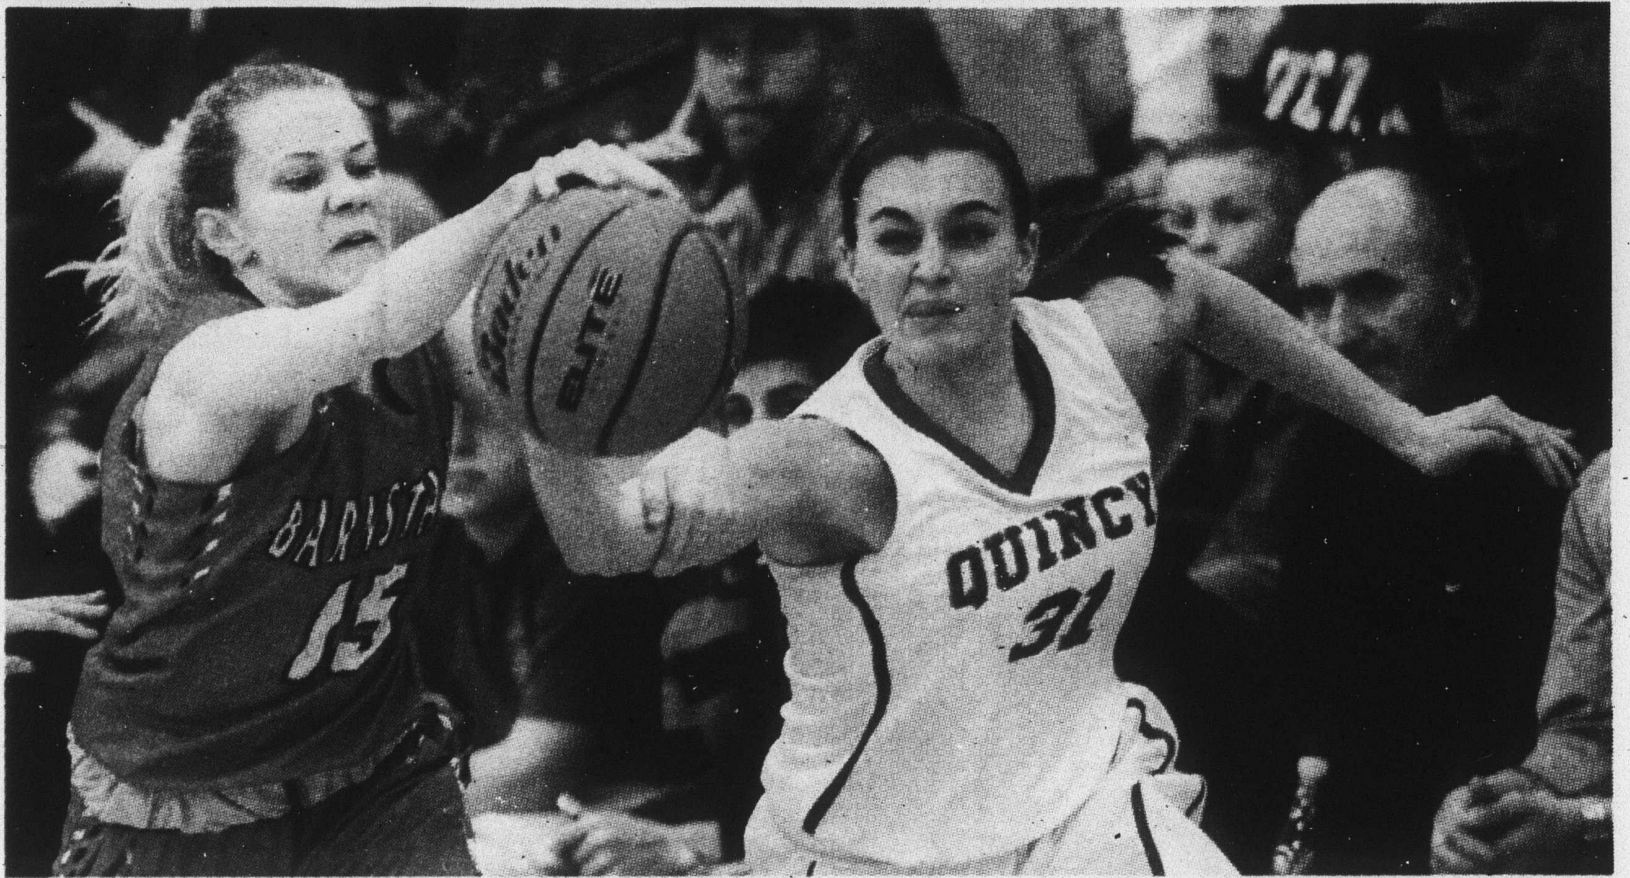

There was senior center Nicole Jorgensen who ruled the inside with 18 points 12 rebounds and six blocks. And there was a relentless defense which forced a bushel-full of turnovers and defended every inch of the court with effort and skill.

It all added to a 54-25 win for No. 7 seed Quincy over No. 10 seed Barnstable in the first round of the Division 1 South Sectionals before a large crowd at the Quincy High gym Tuesday night.

Quincy (18-3) travels to meet No. 2 seeded Bishop Feehan (19-1) Thursday night.

"Our main focus was to

QUINCY SOPHOMORE point guard Liana Cunningham had 6 pts, 7 steals, and a school record tying 11 assists in the Presidents 54-25 win over Barnstable Tuesday night.

get a fast start," said Jerahian. "We knew they were a young team and we wanted to make our mark and take control right away."

Begin with Cunningham. There is nothing better than watching a point guard who knows how to play, and she is one of the best. She had clean entry feeds to Jorgensen for easy buckets, she had pinpoint fast-break bounce passes which caught the runner in full stride for layups, she had no-look hand-offs off good penetrations for easy buckets.

She added six steals. She forced at least 10 turnovers or bad passes with her defense. She scored six points on drives to the hoop and she had a three-point jumper which went halfway down before it rimmed out. She delighted the crowd with behind-the-back dribbling which was not meant to be flashy, but to get the ball where it needed to be.

"This was one of her best games for us," said coach Jeff Bretsch. "Her poise and decision-making keeps getting better and better. She not only made good passes, she took care of the ball. Her defense was excellent."

Jerahian (11 points) made everything easier by hitting the early threes that were so spot-on they barely disturbed the strings as they went through the hoop. Her threes loosened the grip around Jorgensen and propelled Quincy to a 27-17 lead at the half which only grew larger over the final two periods. There are nights when a shooter feels it from the moment she touches the ball. This was one of those nights.

"I felt good before the game. I could just tell from the way the ball left my hand that it was going in. My shot felt smooth and in rhythm. I was happy because it got us off to a good start," she said.

Jorgensen put up her numbers despite playing only 18 minutes. Thanks to the entry passes from Cunningham, she got the ball where and when she wanted it. She hit hooks, short jumpers and layups. She also anchored the defense, allowing Quincy to take chances and press confidently with the assurance that Jorgensen was there to handle any penetration.

"They had a girl at 6'2" who was a big body against Nicole which is something she is not used to," said Bretsch. "Nicole played very well. Her shot selection was good and she anchored our defense."

The defense controlled the game. Quincy was most effective out of its full court trap. Cunningham, Jerahian, Joelle Robinson, Arianna Paulo, Sarah Gibbons, Alyssa Camara, and Taisha Alexandre chased the ballhandler and knocked away passes all night. Quincy gave up just eight points in the second half, four in the final period. Enough said.

"We got energy from our defensive pressure. We were able to force turnovers and get out in transition off them. Our guards did a great job pressuring the ball," said Bretsch.

Camara had seven while Paulo added six on a pair of three-point jumpers. Alexandre had three, Robinson added two and Maeve Hennon had one for the Presidents.

It is rare that a team like Quincy that loses only three games hits the road for its second tournament test. However, Division 1 South is loaded. Seven of the top 13 teams in the state are in Division 1 South, and those seven teams have lost a combined total of 11 games. Feehan will be a test.

"They're very good, and they'll be tough in their own gym," said Bretsch. "We're capable of beating them, but we have to play our best. We showed in the Woburn Tournament that we can play with anyone. I think we can compete with them."

Quincy Boys Hockey Bow; 3 More Tourney Games Wednesday

The Quincy High School boys hockey team bowed to Bishop Feehan 4-2 in the first round of the MIAA Division 2 South tournament Tuesday night.

The 15-seed Presidents (10-9-3) led 2-seed Bishop Feehan (16-3-2) by a score of 2-1 in the second period behind goals by Shamus McBride and Griffin Lynch before the Shamrocks rallied in the third period.

Three more local high school teams were in tournament action on Wednesday.

The Quincy High School boys basketball team hosted Boston College High School at 6:30 p.m. in a first round matchup in the Div. 1 South Tournament. The Presidents (15-5) were seeded #5. The Eagles (13-7) were seeded 11.

North Quincy boys hockey (13 seed, 10-9-1 record) faced off against #4 Westwood (12-4-4) Wednesday night at 8 p.m. in Franklin in Div. 2 South action.

The 8th seed Quincy-North Quincy girls hockey team (13-4-3) hosted #25 seed Andover (6-12-2) at 8:10 p.m. Wednesday at Quincy Youth Arena in a Div. 1 match-up.

STUDENT ATHLETES OF THE MONTH

Owen Lynch Boys Hockey - Quincy H.S.

"He's a great student as well as captain of our hockey team. Owen makes life very easy for the coaching staff on and off the ice, making the entire coaching staff proud to have him represent the QHS hockey team."

-Ted Walsh

Owen, a junior, has been a proud member of Quincy High School's Varsity Hockey Team for the past three seasons and currently serves as one of its captains. In addition to hockey, he is also a starting pitcher on the QHS Varsity Baseball Team. Owen has a G.P.A. of 4.0 and is ranked in the top 20% of his class. He is a member of the Business National Honor Society, volunteers for SADD and Friends of Rachel programs, and umpires youth baseball.

Isabelle Flaherty

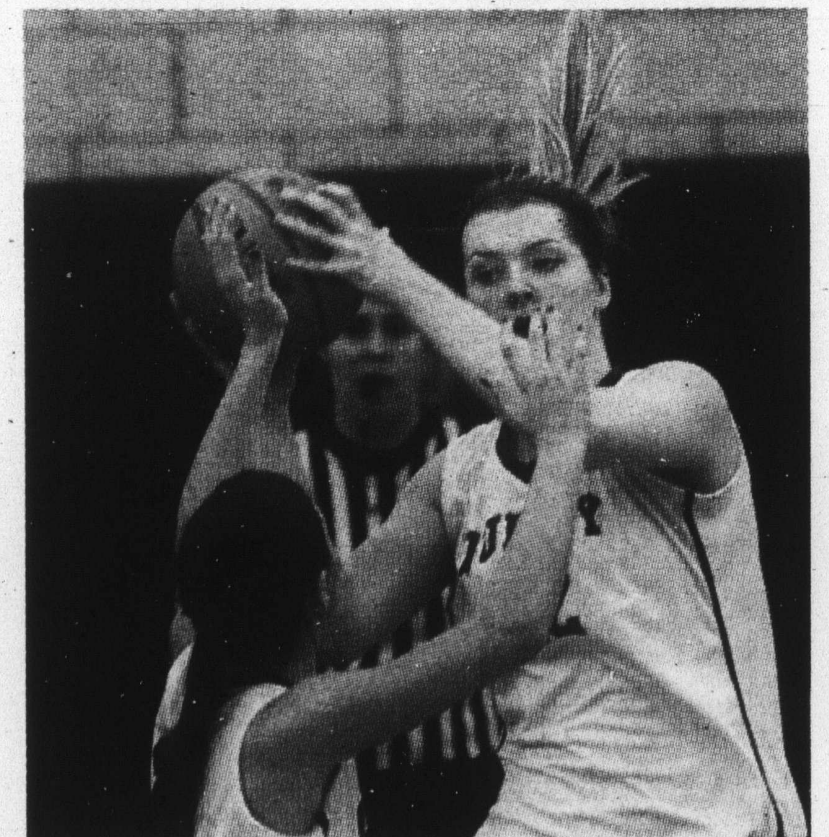

Volleyball; Indoor Track & Field; Outdoor Track & Field - North Quincy H.S.

"Izzy improves every day. She works hard at practice, is very receptive to coaching, and is an excellent member of our team."

-Geoff Hennessy

As a junior, Izzy was a Patriot League All-Star and Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic in Volleyball. In Track this past season, she placed 5th in the high jump at the MIAA D1 State Meet and was 2nd at the Patriot League Championship Meet. She qualified for the All-State Meet in high jump twice. She also volunteers as a coach for the Quincy Track Club. Izzy also has an impressive 4.1 G.P.A.

AFTER GRABBING a win over Barnstable in the first round of the Div. 1 South Sectional Tournament Tuesday night, Nicole Jorgensen (with ball) and the 7-seed Presidents visit No. 2 seed Bishop Feehan Thursday night.

Candidates Class For High School Football Officials

The Association of Independent Football Officials announces a candidates class leading to becoming an on-field football official for the 2016 season.

The classes will be held at Braintree High School for eight weeks starting on Wednesday March 23 in the library at 7 p.m.

The class is open to men and women with a cost of $50.

Those interested are asked to contact Bob Denise at 508-947-6760 or Dennis Devine at: 508-947-4465.

Houghs Neck T-Ball Registration March 19

Houghs Neck T-Ball League will hold open registration for Quincy youngsters on Saturday, March 19 from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Atherton Hough Elementary School Gym, 1084 Sea St., Houghs Neck.

Boys and girls ages 3-7 are eligible to play.

Players must be 3 years of age by Jan. 1, 2016. Birth certificates are required for all players (returning and new.)

Games will be played at Labrecque Field on Sea Street on Saturday mornings

in May and June at 9 a.m.

Registration fee is $25 on March 19 and $35 for any registrations after that date. All players receive a t-shirt, hat, and a personalized trophy on the last day.

The league is also looking for volunteer coaches;

no coaching experience is necessary. Volunteers coach their own child's team. At least two or three volunteer coaches per team is the goal so that it's a group effort.

FedEx Proposal Before Planning Board March 9

Chapman Corner LLC's proposal for a six-story, 30-condominium building at 28-34 Chapman St., the site of a vacant bank branch at the corner of Clay Street. The plan presented Jan. 27 included a 34-car ground floor garage, which would include both tandem spaces, where one vehicle parks in front of another, and spaces with lifts, which allows one vehicle to park on top of the other.

Developer Timothy Long told The Sun following the initial public hearing that his team would revisit the configuration of the garage to assuage concerns from residents and city officials about the parking layout.

The second item is a definitive subdivision plan that would include the extension of Holliston Street and Forest Avenue. If approved, the subdivision plan would create three new lots that could be developed into single-family homes.

Also scheduled for the March 9 meeting is a public hearing on a 135-room hotel proposed for a vacant lot at 1-15 Arlington St. and 22-30 Fayette St. in North Quincy. The six-story hotel would also include first floor retail space and 102-vehicle parking lot on site. As part of the project, the developer would create a sidewalk and 13 on-street parking spaces on Arlington Street next to the site.

Sanders, Trump Top Ballots Here

the GOP nomination although he did not secure a clean sweep in all states holding primaries. At press time, Trump was projected the winner in Massachusetts, Virginia, Arkansas, Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama. Cruz was the projected winner in his home state of Texas and neighboring Oklahoma.

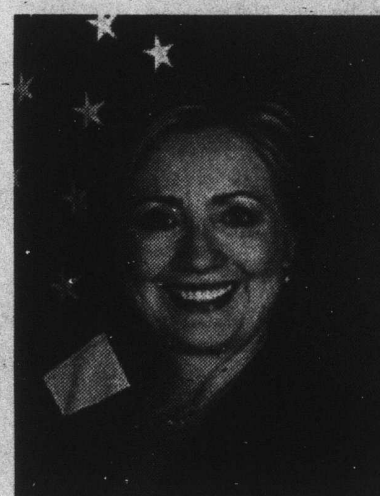

At press time, Clinton — who also served as a U.S. senator from New York — was the projected winner in six states: Georgia, Virginia, Alabama, Tennessee, Arkansas and Texas. She also held a narrow lead in Massachusetts but the race was too close to call at press time.

In the presidential primary eight years ago, Clinton defeated Barack Obama — the eventual party nominee — in Quincy and in Massachusetts.

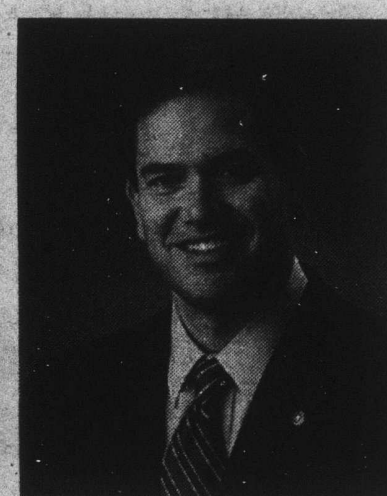

Sanders was the projected winner in his home state of Vermont and in Oklahoma.

Voter turnout in Quincy was 42.64 percent as 23,758 registered voters went to the polls. About 70 percent of those voters — 16,633 — cast ballots in the Democratic primary. The remaining 30 percent or 6,906 voters took a Republican ballot.

In the Democratic primary here, Sanders defeated Clinton by 448 votes. The vote totals were 8,218 and 7,770 respectively. Also receiving votes were former Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley (134) and fringe candidate Roque de La Fuente (36). There were 164 blanks and 311 write-in votes in the Democratic primary.

In the Republican primary here, Trump rolled over the remaining four candidates in the field receiving 3,709 votes — 2,612 ahead of his nearest competitor. Rubio was second with 1,097 votes, Kasich had 1,041 votes and Cruz 629. Neurosurgeon Ben Carson was well behind with 140 votes.

Republican candidates who appeared on the ballot Tuesday but had suspended their presidential bids after poor showings in earlier contests and their vote totals included former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush (90 votes), New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie (25) and Kentucky Sen. Rand Paul (18). There were also 46 blanks and 67 write-in votes in the GOP primary here.

Candidates for state committeeman and state committee woman in the Norfolk-Plymouth District were also on the ballot Tuesday.

In the Democratic primary here, Patrick McDermott of Quincy polled 11,558 votes, for state committeeman. Alicia Gardner, also of Quincy, polled 11,387 votes, for state committee woman.

In the Republican primary here for state committee man, Stephen Tougas of Quincy polled 2,276 votes, Matthew Sisk of Braintree polled 1,443 votes and Patrick Verhault of Quincy received 1,366 votes.

Kathleen Dewey of Quincy received 3,995 votes for GOP state committee woman.

Massachusetts was one of 12 states holding primaries Tuesday with a total of 1,460 delegates at stake — the most for any one single day during the primary election season.

Some 865 delegates were up for grabs in the Democratic primaries and 595 delegates available in the Republican primaries. The number of delegates needed to secure the Democratic nomination for president is 2,383 while the number of delegates required for the GOP nomination is 1,237.

Register O'Donnell Stresses Need To File Mortgage Discharges

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell reminds consumers about the importance of filing a mortgage discharge in a timely manner after their mortgage has been paid off.

"During our office hours, one of the most common asked questions by homeowners is whether they have clear title to their property. This can be determined by accessing the Registry's online records and verifying if all mortgages associated with the property have been discharged," O'Donnell said.

"When a mortgage is paid off," O'Donnell continued, "a mortgage discharge document needs to be recorded with the Registry of Deeds to clear a homeowner's property title. A discharge is a document (typically one page) issued by the lender, usually with a title such as "Discharge of Mortgage" or "Satisfaction of Mortgage."

In many instances stated O'Donnell, "Discharges are sometimes filed directly by banks or settlement attorneys with the Registry as part of a property sale or as a result of a refinancing transaction. In other cases, Cont'd On Page 28

Homebuyer Workshop March 12, March 19

NeighborWorks South-eastern Mass. will offer a two-part workshop for first-time homebuyers, to be held from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, March 12 and Saturday, March 19 at the Winter Gardens apartment complex (lower level community room), located at 45 Winter St. in Quincy.

The workshop will give participants an opportunity to meet and hear from real estate brokers, insurance agents, attorneys and loan originators.

Attendees also will have an opportunity to learn about the South Shore Home Consortium's down payment assistance programs, which may provide qualified buyers with up to 9 percent of the purchase price toward their down payment and up to an additional 1 percent to ward closing costs on homes purchased in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Holbrook or Milton.

Workshop participants will also be able to speak to a lender about different mortgage options.

The registration fee for the workshops is $20 per person. To register and pay online, visit www.nwsoma.org or call (617) 770-2227 x34 for more information.

New Scams Target Health Insurance, Medical Discounts

Crime Prevention Officer Lt. Dan Minton Warns Residents

Quincy Police Lt. Dan Minton, the department's Crime Prevention Officer, advises residents to be aware of scams centered on health insurance and Medicaid.

Those scams are listed below:

What Health Insurance Marketplace Is:

A resource where individuals, families, and small businesses can: learn about their health coverage options; compare health insurance plans based on costs, benefits, and other important features; choose a plan; and enroll in coverage. The Marketplace also provides information on programs that help people with low to moderate income and resources pay for coverage. This includes ways to save on the monthly premiums and out-of-pocket costs of coverage available through the Marketplace, and information about other programs, including Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP). The Marketplace encourages competition among private health plans, and is accessible through websites, call centers, and in-person assistance. In some states, the Marketplace is run by the state. In others it is run by the federal government.

And Is Not:

Charging you for help getting new insurance

Someone contacts you, offering to help you navigate the Health Insurance Marketplace for a fee – or saying that you need a new insurance card now or you'll have to pay a penalty. Regardless of the set-up, their goal is to get your bank account or credit card number.

Don't give your information. The people who offer legitimate help with the Health Insurance Marketplace – sometimes called Navigators or Assistants – are not allowed to charge you. In fact, you can't pay them. What's more, you don't need to buy a special insurance card, or pay any penalties for not buying one, either. Bottom line: Never give your money or your information to anyone who contacts you.

"I'm from the government."

No. They're not. The government will not call you about your health insurance; and no one from the government will ask you to verify your Social Security number or bank information. Some government agencies might send you a letter (for example, Medicare and the IRS), but they will never ask you to wire them money or give your credit card number. If someone calls, emails, or texts and says they're from the government, it's a scam.

Medicare cards

Someone contacts you, claiming that you need a new Medicare card because of "Obamacare." They tell you that you'll lose Medicare coverage if you don't pay a fee for a new card or give them your Social Security number and bank account or credit card number.

Not true. The Affordable Care Act doesn't say you need a new Medicare card, or another health insurance card. Nor does the law say you'll lose Medicare coverage. Don't give your personal or financial information to anyone who contacts you. When in doubt, call 1-800-MEDICARE, before you give anyone your money or information.

Medical discount scams

Someone contacts you, offering discounts on health services and products. They might say the discount plan will save you money and that it meets the minimum coverage required under "Obamacare" so you won't have to pay a penalty or look at other plans.

Crime Prevention Log,

Medical discount plans are not health insurance. Sometimes, medical discount plans illegally pretend to be insurance. Ask specific questions and don't pay until you read the terms. Your state insurance commissioner's office can tell you if a health plan is insurance. Most medical discount plans are a membership in a "club" that claims to offer reduced prices from certain doctors, certain pharmacies, and on some procedures. Some medical discount plans provide legitimate discounts, but others are scams that don't deliver on the medical services promised. Others are attempts to get your personal or financial information, so the scammer can use it to commit identity fraud.

Insurance agents

Someone claiming to be an insurance agent gets in touch to say you should "act now" to get your new insurance. They may promise to get you a special deal or help you avoid a penalty. Or they might say they can help you avoid losing access to your current doctors under Medicare – unless you sign up for a Medicare Advantage Plan.

Not true. You don't have to do anything different because of the Affordable Care Act. While some insurance agents can help you with your application through the Health Insurance Marketplace, don't give your personal information or pay any money to someone who contacts you.

"I can help you. Really."

Someone contacts you, offering to help you navigate the Health Insurance Marketplace. There really are trained people who can help. But experts expect scammers to wade in here, too. So...

See what they do. The helpers might be called navigators, assistants, counselors, connectors, or something similar. The important thing is what they do. The official helpers will try to help you find the plan that serves you best. If you want, they might help you get signed up through HealthCare.gov. They will not try to sell you a particular plan or ask for money to help you. If someone does that, chances are they're not an official trained helper. (From the FTC)

Dedicated and Uncompromised Loyalty –
Exclusive Buyer or seller representation

On Tuesday, February 23, 2016, at approximately 6:50 p.m., Officer Paul Foley and his drug detection K9 unit were driving through the parking lot of the Home Depot (177 Willard Street) when he observed a grey Cadillac Seville parked in an area of the lot far from the front entrance of the store and away from all of the other vehicles.

As he drove past the vehicle, he observed a front seat passenger leaning far forward with his head near the dash board. As soon as Officer Foley drove by, the Cadillac driver put its running lights on and backed out of the parking space. The Officer watched as the Cadillac relocated to a different parking spot closer to the entrance. Home Depot has been the scene of numerous criminal infractions for a multitude of offenses so this behavior caught the attention of the Officer. Officer Foley decided to encounter the occupants of the vehicle.

As he pulled up behind the Cadillac, he observed the male passenger exit the vehicle and walk around to the driver's door (the trunk popped open simultaneously as he did this). As Officer Foley exited his cruiser and said "Quincy Police, how are you sir?", the passenger spotted the Officer and panicked. He ran from the driver's door to the trunk, threw a black canvas bag into the trunk, then slammed it closed and ran away toward the front entrance of Home Depot. For unknown reasons, the passenger stopped in his tracks, turned around and started running back toward the Officer saying, "I'm not gonna run - you got me" as he flailed his arms in the air and yelled several more unintelligible statements. Once the passenger returned, Officer Foley told him to put his hands on the hood of his cruiser.

At first he complied but as soon as the Officer approached him, he suddenly turned around and bolted toward the parking lot's exit. Officer Foley then yelled to the fleeing passenger that he would release his K9 dog on him if he didn't stop. The Officer did not have his K9 outside of the cruiser at this point and was using this directive to encourage the passenger to return. When the passenger heard this, he charged back toward the Officer in an aggressive manner.

When he failed to keep his hands up where the Officer could see them, the Officer ordered the passenger to stop and drop to the ground but he kept coming. Fearing for his safety and concerned that the driver was still a possible threat, the Officer drew his firearm and ordered the passenger to the ground. Only after seeing the firearm aimed at him did the passenger finally comply with commands to lie on the ground. Officer Foley noted that shoppers were drawn to this Police activity.

With the passenger prone out on the ground at gun point, the operator of the vehicle exited and began to move toward the Officer. Outnumbered and fearing for his safety, Officer Foley ordered the driver to the ground and to drop what he had in his hand. He immediately complied and dropped an orange bottle cap (wrapped in a plastic corner bag) along with an empty Marlboro cigarette pack. As the Officer attempted to radio his location and request back up, the passenger attempted to stand up several times and refused to keep his hands away from his body. Detective Sergeant Tapper and Officers Bossart and Dabilis arrived on scene.

Officer Bossart placed the passenger in hand cuffs while Officer Dabilis locked up the driver. A pat frisk of the passenger was negative for weapons however Officer Dabilis did find a hypodermic syringe in the passenger's sock. Officer Foley advised both men separately of their Miranda rights and explained that they were not under arrest but were being detailed while he conducted his investigation. After saying they both understood their rights, Officer Foley further explained that they were in hand cuffs because of their suspicious behavior coupled with the passenger's threatening and physically offensive behavior. Officer Dabilis picked up the plastic orange cap (wrapped in a corner bag) located next to the driver, which he dropped when he (the driver) exited the vehicle.

Inside the cap was a brownish white substance with a small piece of soaked cotton in the middle. The corner bag had brown powder residue inside it as well. The Officers immediately recognized these items (including the syringe seized from his sock) to be paraphernalia used by Heroin users to prepare and intravenously inject Heroin and other illegal substances (based on training and experience). When asked what these items were, the driver responded, "You know what it is." After concluding that the two males were in the process of preparing Heroin for use inside the Cadillac, Officer Foley conducted a search of the vehicle for further evidence. Inside the trunk, Officer Foley located the black canvas bag that he had observed the passenger attempt to conceal just minutes earlier. Inside the unlocked bag, Officer Foley located numerous corner bags containing a brown powder residue, numerous hypodermic syringes and one unopened corner bag containing a pill sized amount of a brown powder that he immediately recognized as Heroin. Officer Foley asked the passenger what was in the bag and he responded, "Its Heroin." An RMV license check of the driver showed that he had a suspended license in Massachusetts.

Officer Dabilis transported the driver, a 45 year old Hull resident, to Quincy Police Headquarters where he was charged with, "Possession of Class A Heroin and Operating a Vehicle with a Suspended License." The passenger, a 36 year old Hull resident, was charged with, "Disorderly Conduct and Possession of Class A Heroin (subsequent offense). He was found guilty of Possession of both Heroin and Cocaine in Quincy District Court in 2009. Nice Work!

Quincy Point Congregational

Stewardship Sunday will be celebrated at 10 a.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Peter Johnston will preach. Theresa Jackson will be the deacon of the day. Return pledge cards to the church today. The Stewardship Committee will host coffee hour following worship. All are welcome.

The Easter memorials are starting to be collected. This year will be a little different because it will include a Missions project, so there will be three funds to donate to: The UCC Emergency USA Fund for water for Flint Michigan; The Access Fund to finish funding the new QPCC elevator; or the Scholarship Fund.

Forms are available on Sundays, online at www.quincypointcong.org - see To The Point Tab at bottom of home page, or call 617-773-6424. For more information about how the funds will be used for Flint, Michigan see www.ucc.org/flintstory-11916.

Save the Date: April 2nd in the Social Hall of Quincy Point Congregational Church will have an April Fool's baked Potato Bash to raise funds for the Children's Summer camp Music Scholarships. The night will feature a talent show, a baked potato bar and attire for the evening will be mismatched anything and everything. More details to follow.

United Methodist Church

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 45 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its annual "Beach Blanket Bingo" Sunday, March 13 at 10:30 a.m.

Everyone is encouraged to attend worship dressed in their favorite summer/tropical/Hawaiian clothes. After worship, everyone is invited to come downstairs to the fellowship hall, where they will find a little bit of summer.

At the "Cheeseburger in Paradise Beach Shack," party goers will enjoy cheeseburgers and frappes. Desserts and tonic will also be available. Those who choose to do so may give a free will donation.

During and after lunch, beach and summer themed music will be provided by Jeannie and John O'Connor. Games will also be available.

For more information call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church will have a Communion Worship Service and Sunday School at 10:00 a.m. The Rev. Peter M. Preble will conduct the service and preach the sermon entitled "Coming Home." Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Worship Church Services and its numerous group activities. Bethany has an active Youth Group and a Missions and Growth Committee doing various charity works. Lent Services

Wednesday evenings at 7:00 p.m.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon - 1 to 4 p.m. Please visit our website at: www.bethany-congchurch.org for updates and activities. Thanks to the Video Ministry, if you're unable to attend, the Service is broadcast on Quincy Access Television at 6:00 p.m. on Thursdays and 10:00 a.m. on Sundays on Channel 8.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers during worship service on Sundays. The church is wheelchair accessible.

United First Parish Church

Sunday Morning Worship and Church School on March 5th begin at 10:30 a.m. at United First Parish Church (Unitarian Universalist), 1306 Hancock St.

Folk singer Joe Jencks will lead the service, "Partners in Creation," on the value of community and how we partner together in covenant to heal what is broken within and without. The Hebrew phrase, "Tikkun Olam' means to repair the world or heal the world. The mystical ideas behind these words suggest that we are partners in creation and that God left the work unfinished and imperfect that we might rise to the occasion and help make a world more in the image of divine love.

Sunday worship is followed by coffee and conversation. All are welcome.

First Baptist Church

Communion will be observed at the 10:30 a.m. worship service at the First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 81 Prospect Ave.

All are Welcome.

On the Fourth Sunday of Lent, Interim Pastor Stephen Trimble will conduct the service and preach the sermon "What is the Sequel?"

After the Pastor's message to the children, Sunday school classes begin.

Following the service there will be a coffee hour of light refreshments and fellowship in the Chapel.

All areas of the Church are handicap accessible.

Information about the Church and its activities are available by calling the church office at 617-472-0824 on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Union-Congregational

What do Pope Benedict and George Washington have in common and why would a Protestant clergyman mention the former Pope in his Sunday sermon?

Come and find out this Sunday at the 10 a.m. service at Union Congregational Church, corner of Beach Street and Rawson Road in Wollaston. Pastor Swanson will be preaching on the topic of humility and he can think of no better example of Humility than the former Pope and our nation's first president George Washington for one gave up a Pontificate and the other turned down a crown.

Everybody is always welcome at Union Church. Coffee hour and conversation follows the service.

Houghs Neck Congregational

The Sunday worship service at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Avenue starts at 10 a.m.

Deacon Ralph Jacobs will lead the service. His sermon topic will be "Prodigal Son, Prodigal Father."

Sue Rheault, liturgist will call to worship and read the scripture lesson. Shirley Pearson and Susan Stimpson will serve for the Diaconate. Steve Reed, minister of music will direct the choir.

A fellowship coffee hour hosted by Nancy and Mollie Jacobs will follow the service.

Hatha Yoga continues on Tuesday with Amy Ross and Thursday with Linda Beck both at 7 p.m. in Fellowship Hall.

Elaine P. Sullivan, 66

Memorial visiting hours for Elaine P. (Jenckes) Sullivan, 66, of Quincy, formerly of North Smithfield, R.I., were 4-8 p.m. Wednesday in Shepherd Funeral Home, Pembroke.

Mrs. Sullivan died Feb. 24 at the Seasons Hospice & Palliative Care Center in Milton.

Born in North Smithfield, R.I., she was the daughter of the late Warren and Yvonne (Piche) Jenckes. Mrs. Sullivan was a self-employed professional seamstress for many years. She loved animals, took care of stray cats, rescued feral cat colonies and loved life.

She was the beloved wife for 29 years to Martin T. Sullivan and dear sister to the late Jeffrey Jenckes. She is also survived by many loving in-laws, nieces, nephews, cousins and dear friends.

Funeral and interment services will be private.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 30 Speen Street, Framingham, MA 01701.

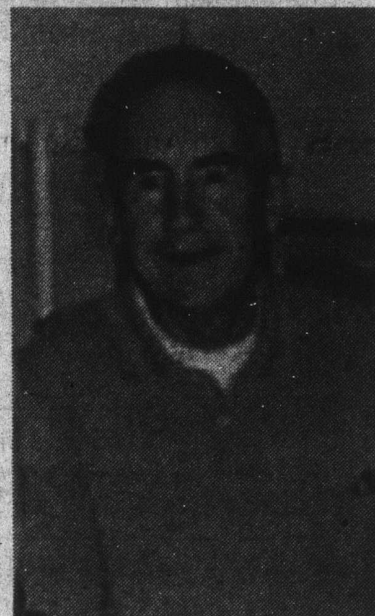

Donald B. Buckley, 75

A funeral Mass for Donald B. Buckley, 75, of Marshfield was celebrated Monday at Our Lady of Assumption Church, Marshfield.

Mr. Buckley died Feb. 25.

Beloved husband of Noreen (Donahue) Buckley. Loving father of Kevin D. and Jennifer Buckley of Brockton and Sheila M. Hampton of Lynn. Cherished grandfather of Michael, Jason, Jonathan, Brianna, and Christopher. Dear brother of Patricia O'Shea of Billerica and Dorothy Ferrara of Winthrop.

Mr. Buckley was born in Quincy and was a 1958 graduate of North Quincy High School. A veteran of the U.S. Army, he went on to work at Fiduciary Trust Company in Boston and retired after 43 years as an operations officer. He had fond memories of traveling to Bermuda, spending a day at the track and playing on the Knights of Columbus

Kathleen de la Garza

A funeral service for Kathleen Marie (Burke) de la Garza of Quincy was held Feb. 26 in Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, Milton.

Ms. de la Garza died peacefully Feb. 22.

Born and raised in Boston, Ms. de la Garza was a former flight attendant for American Airlines and a graduate of Aquinas College in Milton. A longtime Quincy resident she previously lived in East Milton for many years.

She was a highly energetic woman whose passions included traveling, working out, and floral design; but her favorite pastime was spoiling her only granddaughter, Danica. Ms. de la Garza was also a former volunteer at the Pine Street Inn in Boston.

Devoted mother of Bianca de la Garza of Boston. Cherished grandmother of Danica Wade. Beloved daughter of the late Raymond "Buddy" Roche and Mary (Daly). Dear sister of Kevin Roche of Weymouth, Mary Burke of Quincy and the late Eileen Burke.

Private interment.

Memorial donations may be made in her memory to the Wings Foundation at wingsfoundation.com.

Nancé E. Stier

Nancé E. (McKenna) Stier of Quincy, formerly of Weymouth, died Sunday.

Beloved wife of the late Kenneth H. Stier. Loving mother of Susan Struzik and her husband Alfred of Quincy, John R. Applegate and his wife Debbie of RI, Gerard Applegate and his wife Linda of Kingston. Dear sister of the late John P., Robert B., Paul R. McKenna and Marjorie Radden. Cherished grandmother of Michael, Matthew and Lauren Struzik and Robert Applegate. Great-grandmother of Charlotte Struzik.

Visiting hours were 4-8 p.m. Wednesday at McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

At the request of the family, all other services will be private.

Memorial donations may be made to the Pets and People Foundation at petsandpeoplefoundation.org.

Donald G. Cunningham

A graveside service for Donald G. Cunningham, of Quincy, will be held Thursday at 12:30 p.m. in at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Mr. Cunningham died Feb. 27 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

He was 81 years old and the beloved husband of the late Rose J (Mercurio) Cunningham.

Born in Waltham on January 9, 1935, he was the loving son of the late Harold and Phyllis (Ames) Cunningham. Mr. Cunningham served in the United States Navy and worked as a sergeant in the Quincy Police Department for 38 years.

Mr. Cunningham was the loving father of Laurie Avnet and her husband Jonathan of NH. He was the cherished grandfather of Sherri and is also survived by his loyal companion, his dog Anna.

Visiting hours are 11 a.m. to noon Thursday at Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Jude's Children's Hospital, 501 St. Jude's Place, Memphis, TN 38105.

Pedro A. Lacsamana, 80

A funeral Mass for Pedro A. Lacsamana, 80, was celebrated Monday at St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Lacsamana died Feb. 25 in his Quincy home with his family by his side.

He is survived by his devoted wife Milagros of 52 years. They were married in the Philippines at Mary Help of Christian Church in Caloocan City on April 21, 1963. Mr. Lacsamana is lovingly remembered by his wife Milagros, his sons Jether and Pompeyo, daughters Jethra, Jolina and Jennifer; daughters-in-law Jane and Elizabeth, son-in-law Rodolfo; and grandsons Jether, Adrian, Arnell, Jaiden, Jared, Christian and Vincent, granddaughters Julianne, Bianca, Jolyne and great-granddaughter Alexis.

Mr. Lacsamana was born in the Philippines, the son of Soledad Angeles and Marcelo Lacsamana. He graduated from FEATI University with a Bachelor of Science degree in aircraft engineering. He worked for Philippine Airlines and then established his own transportation business. His dream was always to move to the United States but he first ensured that all his children had an opportunity to do so. Finally when he reached his retirement, he was able to fulfill his lifelong dream and follow his children to America.

Funeral arrangements were made by Lydon Chapel for Funerals, 644 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

O'Donnell Stresses Need To File Mortgage Discharges

the mortgage discharge is sent to the property owner who is then responsible for making sure the document is recorded at the Registry.

"Whether or not a discharge is recorded by the lending institution or the individual property owner, ultimately the responsibility falls on the property owner to check and make sure that all necessary documents have been recorded at the Registry of Deeds," O'Donnell said.

He also noted there have been cases where no discharge has been recorded against a long paid off mortgage. Unfortunately, some of the lending institutions that provided funds for these mortgages are no longer in existence. While in most other cases, financial entities have merged with another lending entity.

"You cannot sell your property without having all mortgage discharges recorded," O'Donnell said.

If a property owner needs to retrieve an original discharge of a mortgage and is unclear which lending institution is now responsible for providing the document, an option is to contact the Massachusetts Division of Banks at 1-800-495-2265.

This government agency can assist the consumer in tracking down contact information for the lending institution that is responsible for the mortgage.

When recording a discharge, the original document is required. The Registry of Deeds does not accept photo copies or faxed copies of documents. The filing fee, set by state statute, is $76.

"After paying off all the mortgages on their property, homeowners want to be assured that they have clear title to their property, especially if they are contemplating selling it. Being diligent and aware of what is required will go a long way in giving the homeowner peace of mind," O'Donnell said.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is staffed with a team of customer service representatives who can be reached Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 781-461-6101. Representatives have been trained in researching documents and are well versed on the subject of mortgage discharges and what, if necessary, needs to be done to clear title to a property."

To learn more about these and other Registry of Deeds events and initiatives, like us at facebook.com/NorfolkDeeds or follow us on twitter.com/NorfolkDeeds.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County.

The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

Residents in need of assistance can contact the Registry of Deeds Customer Service Center via telephone at (781) 461-6101, or on the web at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Consider moving beyond the usual methods to find a more creative means of handling a difficult on-the-job situation. Avoid confrontation and, instead, aim for cooperation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Seasonal change creates a new look for the outdoors. It also inspires Taureans to redo their own environments, and this is a good week to start redoing both your home and workplace. Enjoy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A misunderstanding needs to be straightened out so the wrong impression isn't allowed to stand. If necessary, offer to support the use of a third party to act as an impartial arbitrator.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A career change offering what you want in money and responsibilities could involve moving to a new location. Discuss this with family members before making a decision.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Feeling miffed over how you believe you were treated is understandable. But before you decide to "set things straight," make sure the whole thing wasn't just a misinterpretation of the facts.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Showing you care makes it easier to build trust and gain an advantage in handling a delicate situation. What you learn from this experience also will help you understand yourself better.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Planning for the future is fine, especially if you include the roles that family members may be asked to play. Don't be surprised if some hidden emotions are revealed in the process.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Making choices highlights much of the week, and you have a head start here, thanks to your ability to grasp the facts of a situation and interpret them in a clear-cut manner.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Carrying a torch can be a two-way situation: It can either keep you tied to the past or help light your way to the future. The choice, as always, has to be yours.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your watchwords this week are: "Focus." "Focus." "Focus." Don't let yourself be distracted from what you set out to do. There'll be time later to look over other possibilities.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A workplace opportunity might require changes you're not keen on making. Discuss the plusses and minuses with someone familiar with the situation before you make a decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Love and romance are strong in your aspect this week. If you've already met the right person, expect your relationship to grow. And if you're still looking, odds are you'll soon be finding it.

BORN THIS WEEK: You approach life in a wise and measured manner, which gives you an edge in many areas.

Super Tuesday Voters Cite Economy As Chief Concern

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy voters on both sides of the political aisle identified the economy as a chief concern Tuesday morning as they headed to the polls to cast ballots in the Bay State's presidential primary.

Voters across Massachusetts cast ballots in the Democratic and Republican primaries. Primaries and caucuses were held in a dozen states Tuesday, leading to its designation as Super Tuesday.

The Democratic contest is between two candidates — Hillary Clinton, a former secretary of state and first lady, and Bernie Sanders, a U.S. Senator from Vermont. Five candidates are vying for the GOP nomination: neurosurgeon Ben Carson, Texas U.S. Senator Ted Cruz, Ohio Gov. John Kasich, Florida U.S. Sen. Marco Rubio, and businessman Donald Trump.

At the Wollaston School on Beale Street, where Precincts 4 and 5 of Ward 3 go to vote, a steady stream of residents went to the polls around 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Anne Meyerson cast her ballot for Sanders. She said she supported the Vermont senator because of his economic policies and stance on the influence of money on politics.

"I truly believe in what he's saying about our economy and the role of big money that influences everyone in our government," Meyerson said.

Maureen and Kevin Vey

both voted for Sanders as well.

"I like the way he thinks about things," Kevin Vey said. "He might be able to change things in the Democratic Party, get them away from being centrists."

Dianne Curran said Clinton's experience sets her apart from her rival for the Democratic nomination.

"I think she has the most experience and the least bit of rancor," Curran said. "I really like Bernie Sanders too, but I don't think he can win the general election."

Kevin Mantville identified jobs and the economy as his top concerns when he voted. He cast his ballot for Rubio; Mantville said he supported Kasich but did not believe the Ohio governor would be able to win.

"Rubio is the best choice," Mantville said. "He's a better candidate than Trump."

Joe, who declined to give his last name, voted for Trump, crediting the businessman for bringing issues such as illegal immigration and international trade to the forefront.

"He's brought to the forefront the issues with illegal immigration, the trade deficit with China and Mexico, and foreign policy," he said. "We're weak in the world — countries like Iran are making a mockery of us."

Amy Brooks was unable to vote Tuesday morning because she had just moved to the area, but identified women's rights as her top concern.

"That's huge to me," Brooks said, "as well as fair pay and taking some money from the big guys to give to the people."

Henry and Rose Bradley declined to say whom they voted for. Henry Bradley said he was concerned with finding the best candidate to lead the country over the next four years.

"There is a lot of nonsense to try to sift through," Rose Bradley added.

Harvard Launches Study On Quincy Development

By SCOTT JACKSON

A group of graduate students at Harvard University are in the process of gathering input from those who live and work in the city about what they would like to see happen in terms of development around Quincy's four MBTA stations.

The students with the Harvard Graduate School of Design are conducting the study over the next several months, according to Chris Walker, a spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch.

"It will be a good exercise and it provides another tool we can use as we continue to push forward with development," he stated Tuesday.

The students in recent weeks have conducted surveys outside the transit stations in Wollaston and Quincy Center as well as at other venues, such as the Lunar New Year Festival at North Quincy High School in January. The survey can also be taken online via the group's website, harvardin-quincy.com.

The survey asks respondents to rank what they feel is most needed in Quincy — restaurants, office spaces, parks and open spaces, housing, industry, parking, entertainment options, cultural/artistic space, street beautifications and improvements, improved walking paths, or other transit paths such as bike lanes and bus lanes.

Respondents are also asked what new construction in Quincy should accomplish — job creation, increased walkability, provide affordable housing, improve public transit accessibility and quality, add new parking, or bring new restaurant and entertainment options.

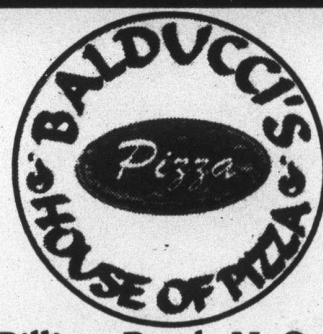

The survey also asks for a ranking of certain aspects in Quincy currently, including restaurants, shopping, housing, parks and open spaces, safety, parking, transportation, and entertainment.

Walker said information gathered by the Harvard students could be used in the future by the city as it contemplates further development around the four stations, though he does not believe the study will include formal recommendations.

Development, Walker noted, has already begun around the train stations with projects such as Deco, a 180-unit apartment building across Burgin Parkway from the Quincy Adams station that is now leasing. In Wollaston Center, the Planning Board in August approved a proposal for a 40-apartment building on Old Colony Avenue within walking distance of the neighborhood's MBTA station. And the MBTA is in the process of vetting developers for a potential mixed-use project at the North Quincy station's parking lot.

Auction bidding begins at 1:15 p.m. with the concert following at 2 p.m.

Tickets are $5 and will be available at the door.

The popular event will be sold out, so come early to buy a ticket and bid.

The Quincy Choral Society was founded in 1981 for the purpose of bringing musical excellence to the South Shore and the world. The chorus performs locally and has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., in Europe, and, most recently, at Carnegie Hall in June 2015 as part of the Masterworks Series.

John Nichols was appointed music director of the Quincy Choral Society in 1988. Nichols has been involved with the musical life of Greater Boston for more than 35 years as a conductor, composer, arranger, performer, adjudicator, and educator. His formal degrees are from Ithaca College and Indiana University with additional studies at the Julliard School and Master Classes with Sir David Willcocks and John Rutter in England.

Virginia "Gingy" Grimes has served as the accompanist for the Quincy Choral Society since 1993. Grimes received her piano accompaniment degree from Duke University. She is also Minister of Music at First Parish, Norwell, Music Director for the Pierce Players of the Milton Public Schools, and she teaches and accompanies at Milton Academy.

City Must Press Ahead On New Center T Station, Planner Says

By SCOTT JACKSON

The top official tasked with overseeing downtown redevelopment said the city must act quickly to replace the blighted Quincy Center MBTA station, and including the site in the Urban Redevelopment District would go a long way towards that goal.

William Geary, special counsel to Mayor Thomas

Koch for downtown development, highlighted the need for a new commuter center during a public hearing Monday on amending the Urban Revitalization and Development Plan for Quincy Center to include the station and other adjoining MBTA property into the district. The Planning Board had given its endorsement to the URDP amendment on Feb. 10 and the City Council is now considering it.

"We cannot allow that significant economic asset for the city of Quincy to remain at a standstill. The people - thousands upon thousands - who use it everyday need a new facility," Geary said during the hearing, held before the council's downtown and economic growth committee.

By including the station and its environs in the district, Geary said the development could go forward using the state environmental permits previously issued to the city for its entire downtown project.

"We are hoping that this process will allow the Department of Transportation to take advantage of some of

Ordinance Calls For Off-Leash Area For City Canines

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposed ordinance would allow dogs to run and play off-leash in designated areas, a move that would make the city eligible for outside funding to build a dog park.

"The city of Quincy is looking for a grant to construct a dog park. One of the requirements of the grant is to have areas designated in the community to allow dogs off-leash," Ward 1 Councilor Margaret Laforest said.

"You're not going to fund a dog park if an ordinance prohibits off-leash dogs."

Laforest introduced the proposed ordinance, which was also sponsored by Councilors Brian Palmucci and Kirsten Hughes, Monday night. It was referred to the ordinance committee for further review, which could take place on March 21.

The proposed ordinance does not designate any areas as exempt from the Ballot Position Drawn For Ward 6 Preliminary

Radell First Followed By Shaughnessy, Knowles, Mock And Harris - Election April 5

By SCOTT JACKSON

The order of names appearing in the preliminary election for the open Ward 6 City Council seat has been determined.

Lots were drawn March 4 at City Hall to set the order of names appearing on the ballot for the April 5 preliminary election. City Clerk Joseph Shea presided over the drawing. Each candidate was allowed to draw his own lots, though only two candidates did so.

The five candidates will appear on the ballot in the following order: Brian T. Radell, 21 Standish Rd.; Herbert Alie Shaughnessy III, 32 Essex St.; Nathaniel J. Knowles, 44 Ocean St.; Kevin C. Mock, 76 Alstead Rd.; and William Harris, 74 Ashworth Rd.

Radell and Shaughnessy both drew their own lots. Radell went first and got the first position, then Shaughnessy went and drew the second spot. The city clerk's staff drew lots for the remaining candidates who did not attend the drawing last Friday morning in Shea's office.

The April 5 preliminary election will whittle down the field from five candidates to two. The top two vote-getters would then face off in the final special election on May 3.

Residents have less than a week to register to vote in the preliminary election — the deadline to do so is next Wednesday, March 16. The clerk's office, located on the second floor of the City Hall annex at 1305 Hancock St., will remain open until 8 p.m. that night.

April 13 is the last day to register for the final election.

Shea on Monday said the Ward 6 special election will cost the city approximately $20,000. The City Council on Feb. 16 appropriated $65,000 to the elections department to cover costs associated with both the Ward 6 race and last week's presidential primary.

The Ward 6 seat was last held by Brian McNamee, who died Dec. 23 following a brief battle with cancer.

Harris, who ran against McNamee in last year's municipal election, is challenging the necessity of the special election in Norfolk County Superior Court. He contends he is entitled to the seat because a 1953 state law requires the runner-up in a council election be seated if the winner dies before the start of a new term.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins has said special legislation approved in 1984 and 2004 takes precedence over the 1953 statute; those acts call for a special election to be held if a ward council seat is vacated for any cause during the first half of the two-year term. Timmins has said the Ward 6 seat became vacant on Jan. 4, when McNamee was unable to be sworn-in to a new term during the council's organizational meeting.

As of Monday morning, Shea said no court date had been set in the legal dispute.

Quincy Center T Station Redevelopment Topic Thursday

By SCOTT JACKSON

A community meeting on the potential redevelopment of the Quincy Center MBTA station and garage area will take place tonight (Thursday).

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the lower level meeting room in the James R. McIntyre Government Center, 1305 Hancock St. City Council President Kirsten Hughes, who represents Ward 5, and Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest are hosting the meeting.

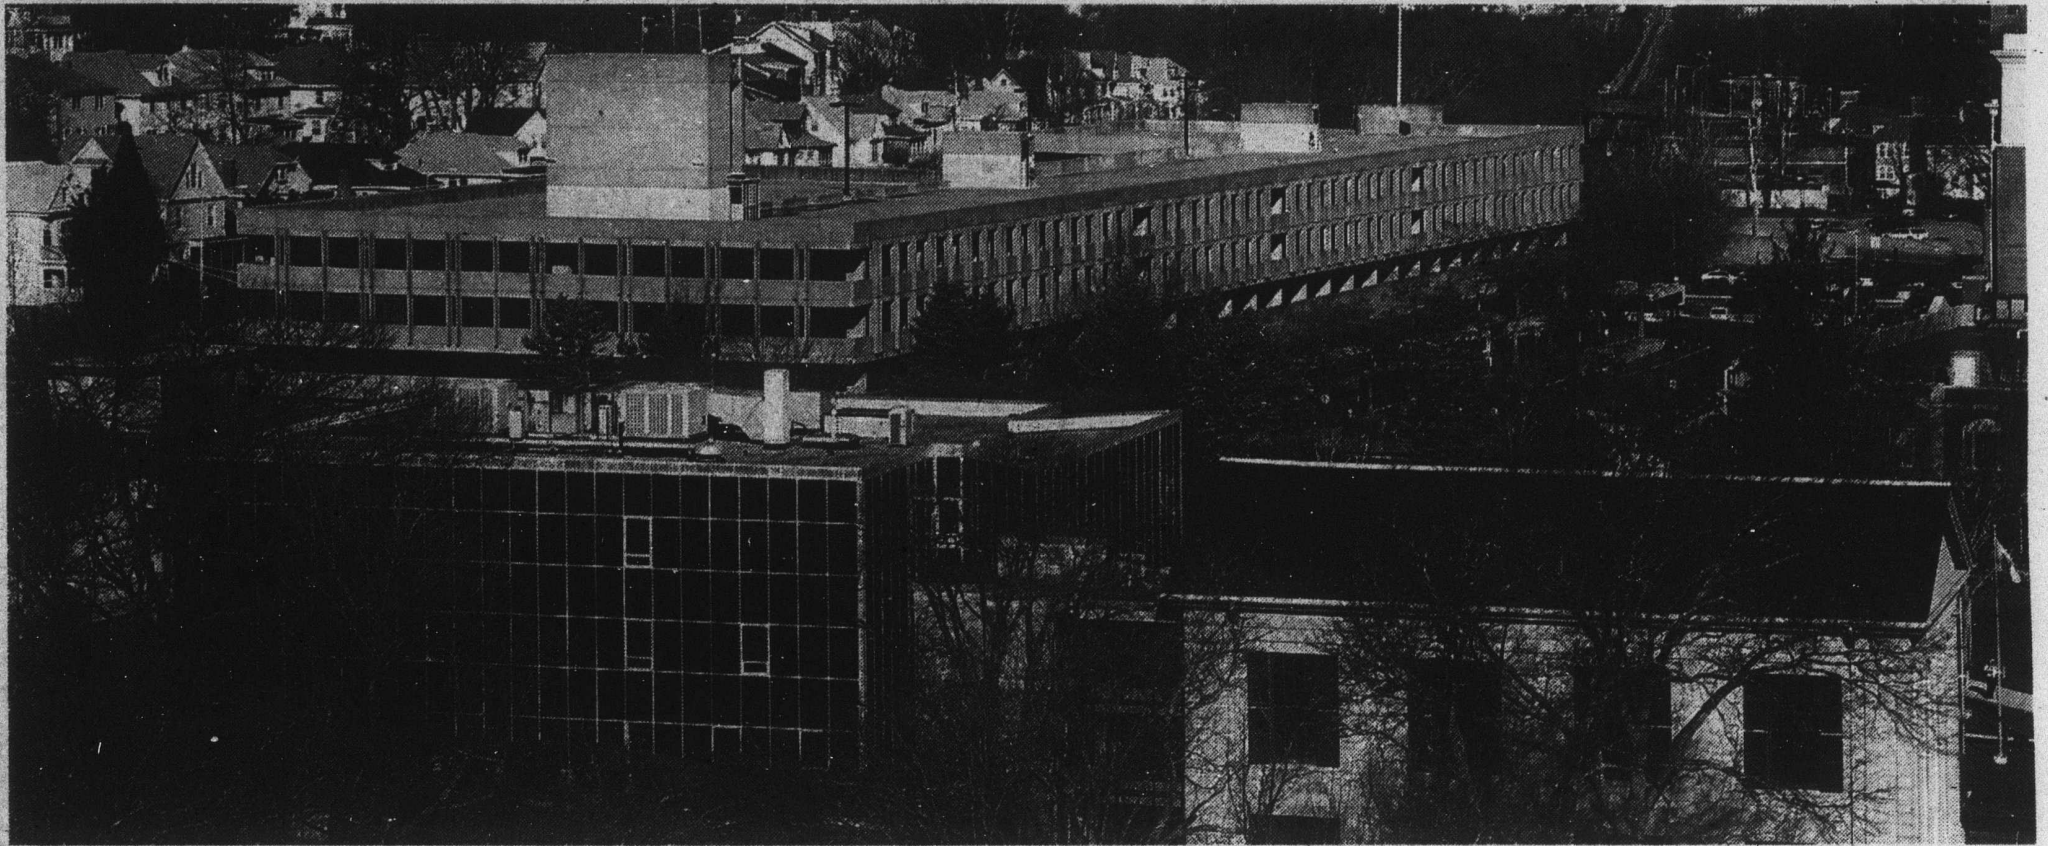

The city has taken the lead on building a new station to replace the current 45-year-old facility. The MBTA abruptly closed the station's garage in July 2012, citing structural concerns.

Conceptual designs for the new station include a 250,000 square foot justice center that would serve as a replacement for the Quincy District Court as well as office space, which could be used by the National Park Service.

Penn's Hill Neighborhood Forming Civic Organization

Residents in the Penn's Hill neighborhood of Quincy are forming a civic organization to promote sustainability, safety and betterment of the neighborhood as well as the City of Quincy.

Residents in the Penn's Hill neighborhood are invited to join and participate in the community organization.

A five-story garage would house 870 spaces, roughly the same as the current garage, and be used by both commuters and those going to the justice center. A new covered MBTA busway would be located on the first level of the Burgin Parkway side of the station, with drop-off/pick-up continuing on the Hancock Street side.

The redevelopment has an estimated cost of $52 million, which the city hopes to fund using $10 million in state money approved for the project in 2014 but not yet released; $20 million in federal transportation grants, which Quincy has applied for; and $22 million from a private-public partner who would come up with the final design and operate the facility for 30 to 40 years, after which time it would revert back to the city. The private-public partner would be paid back with income generated by the project, such as parking receipts and lease payments.

Tonight's meeting is the first step in what officials have said will be an extensive public process. The team working on conceptual designs will share those ideas with members of the public and begin to field questions.

Residents with questions or concerns about the station project can contact Laforest at 617-376-1351 and by email at mlaforest@quincyma.gov or Hughes at 617-376-1355 and by email at khughes@quincyma.gov.

Finally ... you get to do what you want to do

The question now – what's the best way to pay for it? Maybe you're simplifying your life. Maybe you're complicating it. Either way, you're at the point where some new doors are opening. You have resources. You have options. What you want is a lender you can talk with, to help make the financing happen intelligently. At Colonial Federal, you deal directly with lenders who actually like coming up with good ways to make things happen. Including sometimes being able to make customized loans. Sound interesting? BAR NECKLACES

Whether you love them for their simplicity (just one step up from an ID tag) or prize them for their ability to be personalized, bar necklaces are showing up on many individuals' list of jewelry "must-haves." These subtle yet obvious necklaces feature a slim rectangular band of metal with attachment points for a necklace at each end that create a horizontal positioning just below the collarbone. As austere as these pieces may seem to be, they can be inscribed with names, slogans, and other wording that captures onlookers' attention as much as a billboard. Those with more ambitious intentions can adorn their bar necklaces with pavé diamonds, which underline the chin with the brilliance that only these gemstones can provide.

Looking to give an extra special gift? A beautiful, personalized bar necklace could be just what you need. Let us help you find a necklace, bracelet, ring, watch or pair of earrings that will show your special someone how much you care. For the latest trends in jewelry, stop by our store at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center or call us at 617-773-3636. Our prices have always been more than competitive with no fake markups in order to offer huge discounts.

Don't Forget: We pay cash for Gold - Platinum - Diamonds... highest prices paid.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On March 22, 1765, to raise funds to pay off debts and defend the new American territories won from the French, the British government passes the Stamp Act. It levied a tax on all materials printed in the colonies, from newspapers and pamphlets to playing cards and even dice.

- On March 25, 1911, the Triangle Shirtwaist Company factory in New York City burns down, killing 145 workers. Owners had refused to install sprinkler systems and take other safety measures in case they needed to burn down the shop to collect fire insurance, a not uncommon practice at the time.

- On March 23, 1937, Craig Breedlove, the first person to reach land speeds of up to 600 mph in a jet-powered vehicle, is born. He designed a three-wheeled, rocket-shaped vehicle powered by a surplus military jet engine and dubbed it the Spirit of America.

- On March 27, 1945, Nazi Germany launches its last V-2 long-range rockets, killing 162 civilians in England and Belgium. The V-2 could carry a 2,000-pound warhead and became the precursor of the ICBM of the post-war era.

- On March 26, 1953, American medical researcher Dr. Jonas Salk announces that he has successfully tested a vaccine against the virus that causes polio. In 1952 -- an epidemic year for the crippling disease -- there were 58,000 new cases reported in the U.S.

- On March 21, 1965, in the name of black voting rights, 3,200 civil-rights demonstrators, led by Martin Luther King Jr., begin a historic 54-mile march from Selma, Alabama, to the state capitol at Montgomery.

- On March 24, 1989, the worst oil spill in U.S. territory begins when the supertanker Exxon Valdez runs aground on a reef in Alaska's remote Prince William Sound. An estimated 11 million gallons of oil was released and eventually covered 1,300 miles of coastline.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL students -- all taking AP government classes or participating in a Harvard model Congress -- recently had a chance to meet with U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch. Lynch spoke to the students for an hour, spending the bulk of the time answering questions on current events. Lynch Encourages Students To Get Involved In Public Service

By SCOTT JACKSON

Growing up in South Boston, Stephen Lynch never aspired to enter politics; he wanted to work as an ironworker. The political bug wouldn't bit Lynch until years later, while he was doing pro bono legal work in Boston's Old Colony Housing Project -- where he grew up -- and residents there encouraged him to run for office.

A member of the U.S. House of Representatives since 2001, Lynch spoke to a group of 50 Quincy High School students -- all in either Advanced Placement U.S. government classes or who will be participating in a model Congress at Harvard. The goal of his visit, Lynch explained, was to awaken the students' interest in pursuing careers in government and public service.

"I am the first person in my family ever to be involved in politics. I really didn't plan to be involved at all. I wanted to be an ironworker," Lynch said during the hour-long visit. "When I was in high school I focused on welding and shop courses. You had to choose either college courses or shop."

"I did three-and-a-half years in a college course, but then one summer I worked as an ironworker when I was in high school and I loved it so much I begged my father to let me join the ironworkers' union."

After graduating South Boston High School in 1973, Lynch entered the Ironworkers Union Local 7 and would later become the youngest president in its history. As president of the union, Lynch thought he would be the one in charge but said he couldn't sneeze without consulting with the union's attorneys beforehand; because of that, he decided to enroll at pursue a law degree at Boston College.

While in law school, Lynch interned for a firm specializing in labor law, his preferred field. He was required to work 20 hours a week pro bono -- for free -- as part of the internship and opted to do so in the Old Colony Housing Project, representing families with lead or asbestos in their apartments, among other issues. The residents of the housing project encouraged him to run for public office then, Lynch said, because they said he was always there while they never saw their elected officials.

Lynch ran for office for the first time in 1994, winning a seat in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. Fourteen months later, he won a special election to fill the state Senate seat vacated by William Bulger and in 2001 won a special election to fill the seat in Congress left vacant after the death of John Joseph Moakley.

"That's how that all happened," Lynch said. "I never had really an intention to be a congressman but I am now and I am blessed for the opportunity."

The South Boston Democrat also told the students about his work in Washington, which he said involves far more than being a lawmaker.

"To be a congressman, the job description is you're a lawmaker but that's only one little part of the job," Lynch said.

The congressman pointed to his work on two major House committees: the Financial Services Committee, which deals with the banking industry and Wall Street, and the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform. Lynch described the latter as a "troubleshooting committee," and said his work on it has sent all around the world investigating issues concerning the U.S., going to places such as Afghanistan, Iraq, Pakistan and Gaza.

Lynch told the students the committee system used in the House -- where committees of 30 to 60 representatives work to vet legislation -- is necessary in the 435-member body.

"You can imagine how difficult it would be if we had a conversation in Congress between 435 people. A lot of egos. A lot of different perspectives. To facilitate debate in Congress they created the committee system," the congressman explained.

"You work as a smaller group to try to come up with solutions to the problems we have and fulfill our job as lawmakers. So really a lot

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1909 real photo postcard is a view of Bromfield Street in Wollaston looking northeast towards Wollaston Beach from Billings Road. In the distance across Quincy Bay can be seen Moon Island. Many of the house lots on this street had yet to be improved; the Boulevard had been built just the year before and this street was still a dead-end. At the far end on the right the Metropolitan Police and lifeguard station was built in 1912. That site is now the Richard Reilly Overlook. On the left just out of sight across the Boulevard is the Wollaston Yacht Club. This postcard was one of many early Wollaston street scenes published by the Barron Souvenir Company of Wilmington, Mass. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Budget Almost Finished; Layoffs Could Reach 117

The city will likely lose 117 workers from the school, fire and police departments during the fiscal year 1991, which begins July 1, Mayor James A. Sheets said.

The layoffs represent nearly 6% of the city's 2,000-employee workforce.

The school department is planning to lay off 52 people including 40 teachers.

Acting Police Chief Paul Nestor said the 201-member force would be reduced to 194 through retirements. Five civilian jobs will also be cut. Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said his department would likely lose 21 men, including 15 to 18 firefighters.

The completed budget is expected to be $121 million.

Most city officials are blaming Gov. Michael Dukakis, who, they say, has mismanaged the state.

PROPERTY VALUATION FIGURE CERTIFIED

Real estate and personal property valuations for the city's fiscal year 1990 tax bills have been certified by the Commonwealth's Department of Revenue "as full and fair," this according to the Commissioners' certification standards.

Since the city was last certified by the DOR, as of January 1986, the city's assessments as of July 1, 1989 now satisfy FY90 requirements under state law.

Elmer (Mike) Fagerlund, chairman of the Board of Assessors, said the process would enable the city to set FY90 tax rates following a classification public hearing scheduled for March 19 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chamber.

Condo Constructions Burying Neighborhood

We are being buried with condo constructions in our neighborhood near and behind the National Guard Armory in Quincy.

We have condo construction at the old Central Middle School; at the former site of the Temple Beth El, which is across the street from the school; and now there's a proposal to build condos on Bridge Street, close to the temple site. Condos going up in a 1-2 block area. Plus, down on Hancock St., there's a hotel proposal at 1073 Hancock St.

These "developments" mean more traffic, more noise, more trash, more congestion... the very issues that we moved here to escape from.

If you have these same issues in your neighborhood, notify your city council representative immediately. He/she represents you, and is your voice, maybe your only voice, in government.

Our city council representative will surely hear from us.

A good friend of mine once told me that a well-known Quincy official wanted the city's population to reach a goal of 100,000. Why would you say such a foolish, irresponsible comment?? He must realize that much more residents mean much more traffic, trash, congestion, less open space, etc.. Luckily, he doesn't work in Quincy government anymore.

Let your voices be heard. Loud and clear. And frequently.

QHS Drama Club To Present 'Guys And Dolls' March 18-20

The Quincy High School Drama Club will present "Guys and Dolls," book by Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows; music and lyrics by Frank Loesser, with performances Friday, March 18 through Sunday, March 20.

"Guys and Dolls" is a musical romantic comedy involving the unlikely pairings of Manhattan pairings: a high-rolling gambler and a puritanical missionary, a show-girl dreaming of the straight and narrow and a crap game manager who is anything but.

The original Broadway production won the Tony for best musical in 1950 and has been called one of the most perfect musical productions ever as well as being revived several times on Broadway, was a major motion picture and in the process of being revived again as a movie. There are many songs in the show that people will recognize such as "Luck Be a Lady" and "A Bushel and a Peck." The production will be accompanied by a 15 piece orchestra.

This production is directed by Margaret Spencer with Tom Doucette as technical designer; Michael Murray as musical director; and, choreography by Tina Storer and Cailyn Halley.

Quincy High's Drama Club, as well as students from the area's middle and elementary schools make up the cast with Joe Scott starring as Nathan Detroit; Rob Smith as Sky Master-

The students have been rehearsing since December and are proud to perform this great production, come back to the '50's and old New York and bring the family, guaranteed a fun time for all while supporting the performing arts at Quincy High School, 100 Coddington St., Lloyd Hill Performing Arts Center.

Opening night is Friday, March 18th at 7:30 p.m. Other performances are Saturday, March 19th at 2 p.m. and at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, March 20th at 2 p.m.

Tickets are $12 for general admission and $5 for students and can be purchased in advance weekdays from 3 to 5 p.m. in the auditorium and also at the door.

Musical Cantata 'Resurrection' March 19

As part of the Quincy Catholic Collaborative celebration of the Year of Mercy announced by Pope Francis, St. Mary Parish, 95 Crescent St., West Quincy, will host the musical cantata, "Resurrection," performed by the St. Patrick's Family Players on Saturday, March 19 at 7 p.m. at the church.

"Resurrection" is an inspirational story of Simon

Peter's spiritual journey as he faces his martyrdom. Peter recalls his own experiences with Christ as well as those he shared with Mary Magdalene and the disciples as they followed Jesus. In moving son, Peter shows the anguish for his denial of Christ and the joy that comes with the Resurrection and His forgiveness.

The St. Patrick's Family

Players is a multi-denominational musical group from Watertown featuring over 85 members ages 4 to 85. The group, directed by Carly Johnson and Jean-Alfred Chavier, was founded by Judy Johnson in 1997 to perform "Resurrection" as part of Watertown's St. Patrick Church's 150th anniversary. From the single planned performance, this musical has become an Easter tradition. Since then, the St. Patrick's Family Players travel to bring this cantata of hope and faith to churches around greater Boston and the New England area.

People of all ages are invited to attend this presentation. A free will offering will be accepted, and there will be a reception in the lower parish hall following the performance.

All are invited to attend.

For more information, visit www.qcc14.org, email office@qcc14.org, or call St. Mary Parish office at 617-773-0120.

Cape Cod Luncheon Train Trip May 26

Members of the Quincy Council on Aging will board the Cape Cod Luncheon Train in Hyannis Thursday, May 26 for a scenic two-hour rail tour of beautiful Cape Cod.

They will embark the Cape Cod Central Railroad in Hyannis and experience the Cape as never seen before, with parts only accessible by rail. Travel alongside sand dunes, salt marshes, cranberry bogs and the famous Cape Cod Canal, while on board narration keeps you informed and entertained.

Featured on PBS Great Scenic Train Journeys, this train also boasts the title of one of the top dinner trains in the nation by Food TV Network. Indulge in a three-course meal including your choice of Chicken Franciase or Vegetarian Manicotti, with Cape Cod Central Seafood Chowder, dessert, coffee or tea. Weather permitting enjoy some time to shop on Main Street in Hyannis.

For more information on this trip call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Communication Strategies For Caregivers March 29

Jennifer Hoadley from the Alzheimer's Association will be at the Kennedy Center on Tuesday, March 29th at 11 a.m. to talk about Communication Strategies for Caregivers of those with Alzheimer's.

Communication is more than talking and listening - it's also about sending and receiving messages through attitude, tone of voice, facial expressions and body language.

As people with Alzheimer's disease and other dementias progress in their journey and the ability to use words is lost, families need new ways to connect. Explore how communication takes place when someone has Alzheimer's, learn to decode the verbal and behavioral messages delivered by someone with dementia and identify strategies to help you connect and communicate at each stage of the disease.

This program is free of charge but pre-registration is required. To register call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Magic Show March 30

Magician Jack Ryan will return to the Kennedy Center on Wednesday, March 30th at 1 p.m.

Ryan has been entertaining people with his classic and clean magic for over 30 years. The show features audience participation, humor and fun. Light refreshments will be provided.

Tickets ($5) are available at the Kennedy Center. For more information call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Baked Sweet Potatoes, Ricotta Cheese

By MARIE

If you like sweet potatoes as many of us do, today's recipe for baked sweet potatoes is a tasty, savory version. They are made with ricotta cheese, a favorite of many.

BAKED SWEET POTATOES WITH RICOTTA CHEESE

3 medium sweet potatoes
1 teaspoon of olive oil
2 shallots finely chopped
½ cup of ricotta cheese
Salt and pepper to taste
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 tablespoon of brown sugar
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 teaspoons of Bell seasoning

Preheat oven to 400 degrees, pierce potatoes with a fork, and bake on a baking sheet (parchment paper can make this easy) bake until soft, about 1 hour, and let potatoes cool until they can be handled.

In the meantime, heat oil and cook shallots until softened. Reduce oven temp to 350 degrees and grease a large baking sheet (I use parchment paper instead of greasing)

Cut potatoes in half lengthwise, scoop out pulp and place into a bowl leaving a thin shell. Set aside. Mash pulp with potato masher until smooth and add ricotta cheese, salt and pepper, ginger and sugar mashing until smooth.

Stir in shallots, Parmesan cheese and Bell seasoning. Spoon mixture into potato skins put potatoes on the prepared baking sheet and bake about 30 minutes.

Roasted Spaghetti Squash

By SUZIE

Here is a delicious and simple recipe that my whole family devoured. (So much, that there was not any left for me.) But I did get to taste it before it was served.

Spaghetti squash is simply a wonderful addition to your diet. The only tough part is cutting it in half in order to roast. Just have a good knife on hand.

Some people pierce and put in the microwave for a few minutes to soften before roasting. Spaghetti squash, once cooked, and shred with a fork, looks just like spaghetti, with a sweet and nutty bite. Here is a recipe that took little effort, and looked beautiful as well.

Roasted Spaghetti Squash Boats with Meat Sauce and Cheese

Preheat oven to 400 and cover a baking sheet with parchment paper. (Very important, it prevents a big mess!) Split the squash in half and scoop out the seeds, then season with salt and pepper and place cut-side down on baking sheet drizzled with olive oil. Pierce a few times as well.

Roast the squash 45 to 60 minutes until very tender. Turn the roasted squash over and shred each half with a fork turning the flesh into what looks like a yellow boat filled with spaghetti, drizzle the hot squash with a little extra-virgin olive oil and adjust the seasoning. These look like boats. Set aside.

You can use any meat sauce you like, but on this night, I was so busy, I used a jar of tomato sauce (I love Rao's in a pinch). But first, in a sauce pan, I simply sautéed some onion, garlic, salt, and pepper with a pound of organic grass fed ground beef until browned.

Next, I simply poured the sauce in the pan and heated until simmering. Spoon the sauce on top of the boats and sprinkle with some cheese of choice. I used mozzarella and Pecorino Romano. Bake for an additional 20-30 minutes or so until browned and bubbly. Serve. Eat right from the boat! (You can cut each boat in half if desired) ENJOY!!!!

Cookie Kisses

By MARIE

Today's recipe is for a delicious cookie that I found amidst my mother's recipes. It is simple to make and these cookies will melt in your mouth!

COOKIE KISSES

Pre-heat oven to 275 degrees
½ cup of egg whites
1 cup of powdered sugar
1/8 teaspoon of cream of tartar
1/8 teaspoon of salt
1 teaspoon of vanilla

1 cup chopped nuts (pecans or walnuts)

In a mixing bowl place egg whites, add salt and cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Add ¼ cup of powdered sugar.

Fold in rest of the powdered sugar adding the nuts and the vanilla. Mix well.

Drop by teaspoons on cookie sheet lined with parchment paper. Dust each cookie with powdered sugar.

Bake in slow oven for 50 minutes then increase heat to 325 degrees until cookies brown lightly.

Boston Marathon History Author To Speak March 15 At Library

Paul Clerici of Walpole, author of Boston Marathon History by the Mile will speak at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Tuesday, March 15 at 7 p.m.

The book is an entertaining history of the great race and the 26.2-mile course. Mile by mile, town by town, story by story, the race will be brought to life through informative, humorous, and enlightening detail that includes stories about every statue, landmark, event, and portion of the course from its start in 1897 to the present.

Clerici has also written other books including "A History of the Falmouth Road Race: Running Cape Cod," and "History of the Greater Boston Track Club."

"A History of the Falmouth Road Race" is the first book devoted entirely to the race's legendary history. It includes over 40 years worth of stories, anecdotes, behind-the-scenes tales, interviews, and fun facts from the race's inception in 1973 to the present.

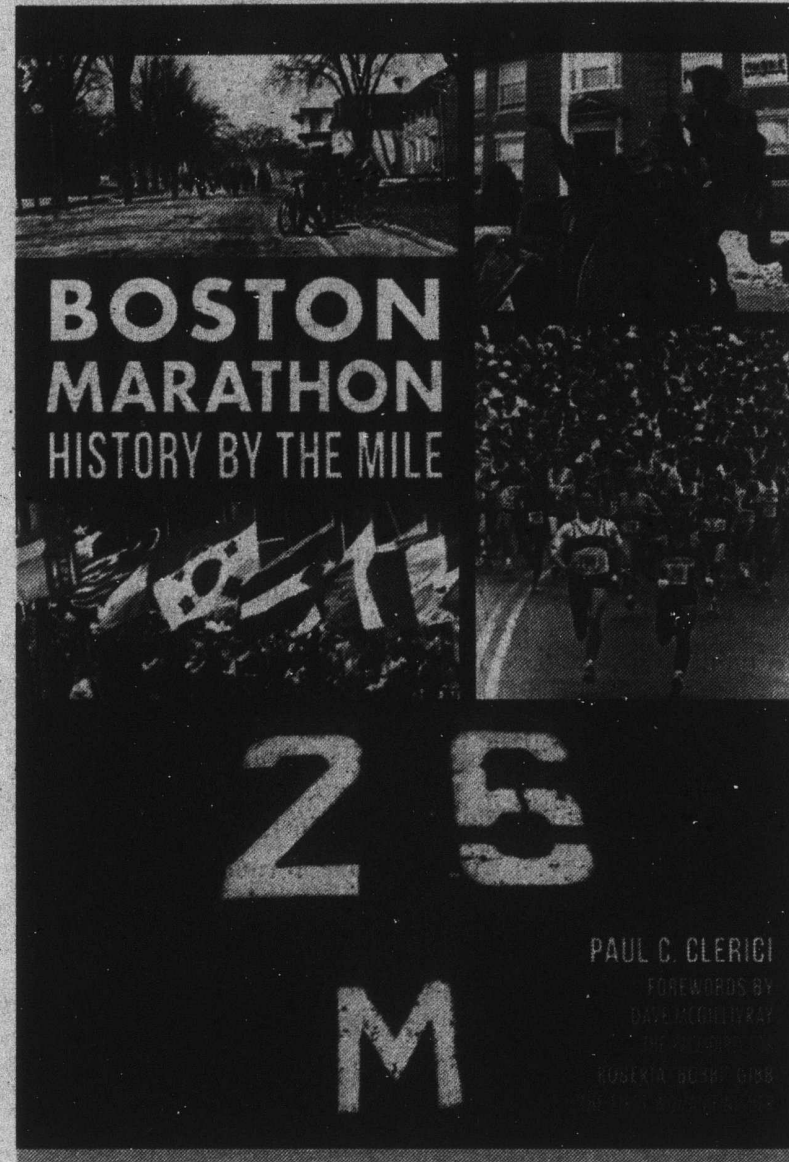

"History of the Greater Boston Track Club" celebrates and chronicles the illustrious four-decade-old club whose members have included Boston Marathon winners Bill Rodgers, Alberto Salazar, Greg Meyer, Bob Hall, and other great runners such as Randy Thomas, Bob Hodge, Anna Willard, Tom Derderian, and coach Bill

Kidney Stones: Types, Individuals With Increased Risk

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

A kidney stone is a solid piece of material that forms in a kidney when substances that are typically found in the urine become exceedingly concentrated.

A stone may remain in the kidney or travel down the urinary tract (the body's drainage system for removing wastes and extra water).

Kidney stones vary in size.

A small stone may pass on its own, causing little or no pain. A larger stone may become trapped along the urinary tract and impede the flow of urine, causing severe pain or bleeding. Daily, both kidneys process about 200 quarts of blood to produce about 1 to 2 quarts of urine, composed of wastes and excess water. Urolithiasis is the medical term used to describe stones occurring in the urinary tract. Other commonly used terms are urinary tract stone disease and nephrolithiasis.

Kidney stones are one of the most frequent disorders of the urinary tract. Yearly in the United States, people make more than a million visits to health care providers and more than 300,000 emergency room visits for kidney stone issues.

Men are affected more often than women, and kidney stones are more common in non-Hispanic white people than in non-Hispanic black people and Mexican Americans. Overweight and obese people are more likely to get a kidney stone than people of normal weight.

In the United States, 8.8

percent of the population, or one in 11 people, have had a kidney stone.

Kidney stones can form when substances in the urine such as calcium, oxalate, and phosphorus become highly concentrated. Certain foods may promote stone formation in susceptible people, but researchers do not believe that any specific food causes stones to form in people who are not susceptible.

People who do not drink enough fluids may also be at greater risk, because their urine is more concentrated. Others at increased risk of kidney stones are those with:

- hypercalciuria, a condition that runs in families in which urine contains unusually large amounts of calcium
- family history of kidney stones
- cystic kidney diseases, which are disorders that cause fluid-filled sacs to form on the kidneys
- hyperparathyroidism, a condition in which the parathyroid glands, release too much hormone, causing extra calcium in the blood
- renal tubular acidosis, a disease that occurs when the

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

kidneys fail to excrete acids into the urine, which causes a person's blood to remain too acidic

- cystinuria, a condition in which urine contains high levels of the amino acid cystine
- hyperoxaluria, a condition in which urine contains unusually large amounts of oxalate
- hyperuricosuria, a disorder of uric acid metabolism
- gout, a disorder that causes painful swelling of the joints
- blockage of the urinary tract
- chronic inflammation of the bowel
- a history of gastrointestinal (GI) tract surgery.

There are four major types of kidney stones:

- Calcium stones are the most common type of kidney stone and occur in two major forms: calcium oxalate and calcium phosphate.
 - Uric acid stones form when the urine is persistently acidic. A diet rich in purines, substances found in animal protein such as meats, fish, and shellfish, may increase uric acid in urine.
 - Struvite stones result from kidney infections.
 - Cystine stones result from a genetic disorder.
- Kidney stones vary in size and shape and may be as insignificant as a grain of sand or as sizable as a marble. Some stones are even as big as golf balls. Stones may be smooth or jagged and are ordinarily yellow or brown.

Those with kidney stones may have pain while urinating, notice blood in the urine, or feel a sharp pain in the back or lower abdomen. The pain may last for various durations. People may experience nausea and vomiting with the pain. However, some who have small stones may not have symptoms at all.

To diagnose kidney stones, your health care provider will perform a physical exam and take a medical history. The medical history may include inquiries about family history of kidney stones, diet, GI problems, and other diseases and disorders. The health care provider may order urine, blood, and imaging tests, such as an x ray or CT scan to complete the diagnosis.

Treatment for kidney stones usually depends on their size and composition, as well as whether they are causing pain or obstructing the urinary tract. Small stones usually pass through the urinary tract without treatment. Still, the person may need pain medication and should drink lots of fluids to help move the stone along.

A person with a larger stone, or one that blocks urine flow and causes great pain, may need more urgent treatments, such as shock wave lithotripsy (lithotripter machine generates shock waves that pass through the person's body to break the kidney stone into smaller pieces to pass more readily through the urinary tract), ureteroscopy (a scope inserted to find and retrieve a stone), or percutaneous nephrolithotomy (a tube is inserted directly into the kidney through a small incision in the person's back and a nephroscope is used to locate and remove the stone).

The initial step in preventing kidney stones is to recognize what is causing the stones to form. Depending on the type of kidney stone a person has, modifications in the amounts of sodium, animal protein, calcium, and oxalate consumed can also help. Drinking adequate fluids each day is the best way to help prevent most types of kidney stones. Health care providers recommend that a person drink 2 to 3 liters of fluid a day. Though water is best, other fluids may also help prevent kidney stones, such as citrus drinks. Your health care provider may also prescribe certain medications to help prevent kidney stones based on the type of stone formed or conditions that make a person more likely to form them.

Keep in mind, you can get subsequent stones even if you've had surgery, changed your diet or are taking medications. However, with the right dietary and medical treatment, you can be less likely to have a recurrence.

"Boy Scouts is a way we bring families, siblings, and the whole community in,"

Karl DeBisschop, the scoutmaster of Troop 24, says as he is giving his speech to the elderly in Atria Marina Place.

The troop gave three weeks worth of sewing 40 pillows to the elderly. Sally Erickson and Faith Lutheran Church donated the fabric.

The also sang with them "This Land Is Your Land," "The Winter Song," and "America, The Beautiful" and had an ice cream social with the elderly. Ben DeBi-

Cong. Stephen F. Lynch (D-Boston) announces the nomination of Troy Shepherd of Quincy for appointment to the U.S. Military Academy.

Shepherd, the son of Gerard and Kim Shepherd, is a senior at Xaverian Brothers High School.

As part of his congressional duties, Cong. Lynch nominates exemplary candidates to the service academies each year.

"These candidates are the best of the best, and I am proud of their desire to serve our country," Lynch said. "The academies graduate leaders who will guide our nation into the future and the men and women who attend the academies are entrusted with the greatest responsibility - to serve and protect the United States of America," Lynch said.

"Troy was highly recommended by his teachers at Xaverian Brothers High School. He is a remarkable young man, and we are fortunate that young people like Troy are willing to serve our nation," Lynch added.

Lynch and his congressional liaison to the United States Service Academies, Bob Fowkes, examined each candidate's record of academic, athletic, and service achievements in addition to evaluating letters of recommendation. After an extensive review process and a personal interview, Troy was selected as someone whose scholastic record and community contributions elevated him to the top of a list of well-qualified candidates.

"There were many impressive candidates this year for the United States Military Academy. Troy stood out as a young man of keen intelligence and strong character. He is a wonderful reflection of his parents, Gerard and Kim. The Shepherd family, the City of Quincy, and the entire Commonwealth of Massachusetts should be proud of Troy in this achievement," Lynch said.

Students interested in attending one of the U.S. Service Academies should contact Bob Fowkes in Cong. Lynch's Boston office at (617) 428-2000.

School Enrollment Up 370 In Decade But Down Slightly Last Two Years

Most Schools At Capacity; 9,339 Students As Of October 2015

By TOM GORMAN

School officials will be monitoring student enrollment numbers that has seen a 300-plus increase over the past decade.

Quincy Public Schools Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro presented a detailed report on the city's public school population numbers, enrollment history and trends and school capacity levels during the March 2 school committee meeting. The committee approved filing the report that will be reviewed by a subcommittee.

DeCristofaro said that student enrollment has increased by 370 since 2006 but has dropped slightly in the past two years. The number of students grew from a total of 8,969 in Oct. 2006 to 9,339 in Oct. 2015.

"A 370 increase over a 10 year span is somewhat significant," he said, noting that six of the 10 years had increases.

According to DeCristofaro, most schools are at capacity while a few have some room to accommodate more students.

At the elementary level, Wollaston, Squantum, Lincoln-Hancock, Beechwood Knoll, Montclair, Marshall, Bernazzani and Merrymount are at capacity while Parker, Snug Harbor and Atherton Hough have some room for additional students if needed. The superintendent noted that in recent years a few of the schools had libraries relocated to create additional learning space.

Central Middle School and Atlantic Middle School are at capacity while Point Webster, Broad Meadows and Sterling can accommodate some additional students.

DeCristofaro said that Central Middle School that opened in 2013 was built for 600 students and now has 660. He said it is a "concern" but officials will keep an eye on it. He noted a new Sterling Middle that is in the planning stages would be built to accommodate more students.

Both North Quincy High and Quincy High schools have room to grow, according to the superintendent. He said that neither school has had significant increases.

Overall, DeCristofaro said class sizes were at comfortable levels districtwide. He noted that fewer requests are being granted for enrolling students at some schools to keep class sizes reasonable.

He recommended that no action be taken but that kindergarten enrollment trends be monitored so they can be used as a base for future student population growth.

Committee member Emily Lebo said that some of the schools that are at capacity house special education programs that could be moved to other schools if necessary.

School Committee Vice Chairman Paul Bregoli wanted to look at mapping some neighborhood school areas in case redistricting would be needed in the future.

Paraeducators Recognized By School Committee

By TOM GORMAN

Mary MacDonald has been assisting kindergarten teachers in the Quincy Public Schools for the past 45 years. She was one of 34 paraeducators recognized by the school committee for helping in the classroom.

As their families looked on, each paraeducator received a certificate of recognition from the committee. The paraeducators work in administration, kindergarten and special education.

"They make our schools and programs run," said Quincy Public Schools Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro. "Some of them have been with us for 20, 25 and even 45 years. We are appreciative of everything you do."

The latter DeCristofaro referred to is Mary MacDonald who started as a kindergarten teacher's aide exactly 45 years ago this month.

"I've enjoyed every year," she said. "I work with the best teachers."

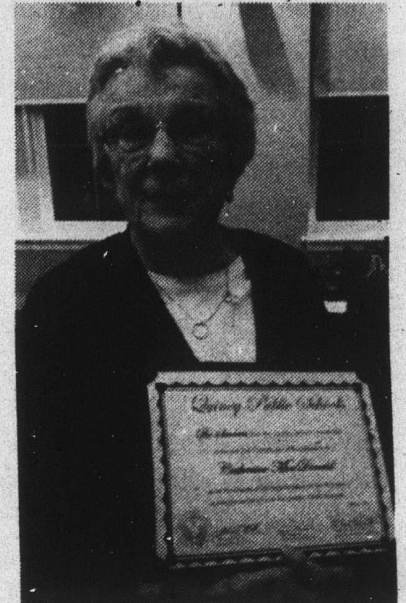

Committee members praised the paraeducators' work and dedication.

Committee Vice Chairman Paul Bregoli said that the school system "couldn't run without you. The work you do is so critical."

Committee colleague Anne Mahoney said the paraeducators are needed more than ever.

"Everyday you provide services to the kids," she said. "Schools have changed tremendously since my oldest has been going. Now, so much more is expected in the classroom. You make it fun for those who have anxiety."

As a parent with a child in the school system, Bar-

HONORED: Mary MacDonald was among 34 paraeducators who were recognized by the Quincy School Committee for helping in the classroom. MacDonald has been assisting QPS kindergarten teachers for 45 years.

bara Isola noted how the paraeducators have had an "impact on my child," adding, "I can't express how much you are needed."

In another matter, the superintendent told the committee that the Emily Z' BOKS (Build Our Kids Success) program got underway last week where nearly 600 students participated in the before school physical fitness program at all 16 elementary and middle schools.

The program is in honor of Central Middle School teacher Emily Zarnoch, who died in a Maine car crash in August. Last November, Reebok International donated $50,000 to the school department to fund the program for all the city's elementary and middle schools in Emily's memory.

"The name of Emily's legacy lives on," DeCristofaro said.

New Teacher Contract Approved; 10% Salary Bump Over Next 5 Years

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy public school teachers will be receiving a 10 percent salary increase over the next five years under a new contract.

The school committee on March 2 unanimously ratified a new contract with the Quincy Education Association (QEA), the union that represents the city's 900-plus teachers. QEA members had approved the agreement on Feb. 24 following negotiations, according to union president Allison Cox.

"It is a very fair contract," Cox said. "We feel the five-year deal gives us a level of stability."

The agreement covers Sept. 1, 2015 through Aug. 31, 2020 and calls for a 1 percent pay raise the first year, a 2 percent increase the second, third and fourth years and a 3 percent hike in the fifth. Cox explained that the contract is actually split into two separate agreements since each one cannot be for more than three years.

The contract also includes additional class preparation time for teachers and an increase in bereavement days.

The previous three-year contract expired last Aug. 31. Cox said negotiations on the new contract began last September and concluded in January.

She said the QEA members are pleased with the terms of the new agreement.

"We see it as comparable to surrounding districts," said Cox. "We are pleased the teachers get additional prep time."

In other business, committee members Emily Lebo and Anne Mahoney urged parents to contact their legislative representatives to pass a bill that would require school districts to screen students by age six or before entering grade 2 for dyslexia, a neurological condition that affects reading and spelling.

"This would give us the opportunity to prescreen students and have parents get the services they need and have services brought into our schools," Mahoney said.

According to Lebo and Mahoney, dyslexia is often misdiagnosed and affects student learning for years.

Currently, they said the state does not require screening for dyslexia and treats it as a general learning disability and the new measure would change that.

Atlantic Youth Orchestra Performance March 18

SJC Upholds 2006 Conviction In Quincy Inheritance Murder

The state Supreme Judicial Court has affirmed the 2006 conviction of the Norton man who bludgeoned an elderly Quincy hairdresser to death in her home in 2001.

When police initially responded to Marina Calabro's three-family home on Bedford Street, they found her dead at the foot of a staircase with head trauma. Law enforcement referred the matter for autopsy, but the initial finding was that her cause of death was accidental, Norfolk Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey said.

Thomas Lally, 35, who was convicted of first degree murder at trial, was friends with Mrs. Calabro's nephew and heir, Anthony Calabro, whom she had taken in and allowed to live with her, and Jason Weir, who also lived in Norton.

Months later, a witness familiar with all three of those men came forward to authorities with information that led the case to be re-opened and declared a homicide, according to Morrissey, who took office a decade later.

"When a witness came forward in October 2002, State and Quincy Police were tasked with investigating a murder that had been declared an accidental death 9 months before," Morrissey said. "The effort and skill involved in investigating this case and proving these charges was enormous - and impressive. We are very pleased this just conviction remains undisturbed."

Morrissey noted present

Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan was, at the time of that investigation, the lieutenant detective assigned to the case for Quincy PD.

Morrissey also praised the work of Assistant Dist. Atty. Pamela Alford in what he called "a difficult and challenging" set of issues in Lally's appeal to the SJC. "Pamela Alford is a very talented and dedicated prosecutor. This was a tremendous amount of work and she did it beautifully."

After Lally was found guilty by a Norfolk Superior Court jury, Anthony Calabro, now 32, who was in the front yard of the home at the time of the killing, pled guilty to second degree murder and Jason Weir, now age 30, pled guilty to manslaughter.

city's requirement that dogs be leashed; off-leash areas could be designated after the ordinance was approved. Off-leash dogs would not be allowed in playgrounds, tennis or basketball courts, and athletic fields.

Certain dogs would not be permitted in the off-leash areas under the proposed ordinance, including dogs determined to have a vicious disposition under state or city regulations, dogs in heat, dogs wearing prong or choke collars, and dogs under the age of four months, because inoculations would not be complete before then.

The proposed ordinance requires that dogs be leashed en route to and from the off-leash area; must be accompanied by an owner/keeper over the age of 16 at all times; and must have a current city dog license, be up to date on vaccinations and free from contagious disease or parasites.

No owner would be allowed to have more than two dogs off-leash in the designated area at one time. The owners would also be required to clean up after their pets, fill any holes they dig in the park, remove dogs if they exhibit aggressive behavior towards people, dogs or other animals, and leash them if directed to do so by a police or animal control officer.

Smoking would not be allowed in the designated off-leash space. Food - for both people and dogs - likewise would be prohibited, though training treats would be allowed.

Owners found in violation of any of the proposed regulations would be subject to a $50 fine.

Quincy Youth Soccer Announces Applications Available For Three Memorial Scholarships

Beginning in 1995, Quincy Youth Soccer(QYS) established a Memorial Fund, in memory of Joy Hanlon. Joy was an active participant in QYS until her tragic death in 1992, at the age of nine. In establishing this book award, QYS wished to honor Joy's memory, her competitive spirit and her love of soccer.

A second award established in 2000 honors the memory of Michael Therrien. Mike was an active member of the QYS Board of Directors, serving as Treasurer, until his untimely death in 1999. A devoted coach, father and community member, Michael is most remembered for his energetic dedication to children.

Malcolm McNeil exemplifies dedication to public service and love of the game of soccer. He was a longtime leader and advocate for QYS and is still involved through his extended family.

The emphasis of this award is participation in soccer with QYS and Community Service, with an emphasis on giving back to the greater Quincy community.

Eligibility: Any QYS player or former player, who is a graduating senior and who has played a minimum of eight seasons is eligible. Fall and spring seasons are counted separately.

In addition, any season as a volunteer, coach or referee may be counted toward the 8 season total. Community service, not related to soccer, may also be considered.

The committee is made up of the Committee Chairpersons; Rich Hanlon and Marie Therrien, their designated selectors, the QYS President, and two additional QYS board members.

Applications are distributed to local high schools in the spring. Additionally, applications may be obtained by visiting the QYS website at www.quincyyouthsoccer.com.

Completed applications should be returned to Quincy Youth Soccer, P.O. Box 69-2209, Quincy MA, 02269 or attached and emailed to the above address with the Subject Line "Book Award" by March 25, 2016.

Band Boosters Seeking Donations

The Quincy Band Boosters is seeking the community's support in raising funds to help defray the costs of the marching program for all high school band students in the Quincy Public Schools.

Organizers for the band boosters noted it has been several years since the City of Quincy has had a proper marching band. After tireless effort, the marching band is back on track. However, they are missing one thing: uniforms. The high school bands have been representing the City of Quincy in only a sweatshirt and jeans. The students have proven themselves worthy of uniforms. For example, for the past two years the bands have received second place in their division during the annual Christmas Parade, which they had not placed in prior. The only complaint was the band's lack of uniforms.

The band boosters have scheduled a fundraising event on April 2. The public is welcome to attend.

The event will take place at the Sons of Italy in Quincy from 7 p.m. to midnight. Tickets will cost $20. A door prize of a flat screen TV will be raffled off.

There will also be a DJ, cash bar and light refreshments.

Anyone who would like to make a donation can mail a check to:

The Quincy Band Boosters is a 501(c)(3) organization and all donations are tax-deductible.

the work that was previously down by the city through its MEPA application for the Urban Redevelopment District," Geary said. "It is possible to save the taxpayers many, many dollars in expenditures but most importantly also a great deal of time so they do not have to recreate that wheel."

The current MBTA station in Quincy Center first opened in 1971. Its 870-car garage was closed without warning in July 2012 by the transit agency because of concerns over its structural integrity.

Preliminary plans for a new station include parking for up to 870 vehicles in a five-story above ground garage and additional areas of lower level parking; a 250,000 square foot justice center to replace the Quincy District Court; and office space for the National Park Service as well as a visitors center for the Adams National Historical Park.

Committee Chairwoman Nina Liang explained that if the council were to expand the URDP district to include the Quincy Center station and adjoining MBTA land, it would not stop the community process of deciding what a replacement station should look like.

"The objective to this hearing tonight is to talk about adding the land around the Quincy MBTA to the URDP," she said. "The planning process and the funding will be discussed at a later date at many community meetings – not just one, not just two."

The first community meeting on the design of the new station is set for tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. in the lower level meeting room at the McIntyre Government Center.

The next downtown committee meeting to review the URDP amendment has been set for March 16, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Projects in the URDP district require a certificate of consistency from the Planning Board, which is tasked with determining whether the proposals conform to standards for redevelopment in Quincy Center. Councilor Joseph Finn noted the council would still have input into the redevelopment of the Quincy Center station because it is on public land.

"This is a public piece of property," he said. "This council will need to be engaged in anything that happens there quite honestly."

The city is now ramping up efforts to replace the 45-year-old station and has proposed including it in the downtown Urban Redevelopment District. Councillors Seek Answers On Rodent Control

By SCOTT JACKSON

A pair of city councillors wants an update from officials on efforts being made to control and eradicate the growing rodent population seen in their wards.

Councillors Brian Palmucci and Ian Cain introduced a resolution Monday night seeking an update on efforts to curb the rodent population affecting their districts. The resolution states that residents have reported increased sightings of rats, which are known to carry disease and gnaw through insulation, wallboards, cardboard, wood and electrical wiring – one in four house fires throughout the U.S. are caused by wires left exposed after being gnawed on by a rat or mouse.

The resolution seeks a report from Health Commissioner Drew Scheele and Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca on measures being taken to address the problem.

"We wanted to call this to light in the city, bring it before the council so we can have the commissioner of public health and director of inspectional services come before us to share with us concepts of how we can prevent this from becoming a greater issue," Cain said.

and officials are optimistic its demolition this spring and related improvements will help pave the way for future development in the vicinity, which could entail building over the MBTA train tracks.

Negotiations are also continuing with two developers who previously announced plans for projects on the Hancock Lot — including a mixed-use hotel and residential project that could be finalized in the coming weeks.

William Geary, the Squantum resident hired in January as special counsel to Mayor Thomas Koch for downtown development, highlighted the changes being made in Quincy Center over the next several months during a recent interview. Geary previously worked as the executive vice president and general counsel for Clean Harbors for 23 years and was president of a subsidiary, Clean Harbors Development, for three years. Prior to that, he spent six years as commissioner of the former Metropolitan District Commission.

He also served on the Quincy Planning Board for seven years, including the past four as chairman.

Geary said utility replacement efforts now underway in Quincy Center will set the stage for future development in the area. That work — such as the replacement of aging sewer, water and drain lines — is nearing completion.

"Most people who work in and visit Quincy Center over the course of the last year-and-a-half have unfortunately only seen the disruption," Geary said. "What has been accomplished over the course of the last number of years with regard to the city's infrastructure is really tremendous. It's really changing old infrastructure that is in some instances 100 years old for the new century — for the new millennium."

"We're replacing stuff that's a century old with stuff that hopefully is going to take us into the next century. All of the benefits of that work are unseen. It's all underground — it's what I call a city underground — it's all the necessary work that has to occur to support any major building construction anywhere in the downtown area."

Additionally, utility poles have been removed with electric and telephones buried underground now.

"It has improved and will continue to improve the aesthetics of the neighborhood of the whole downtown area because we've taken a lot of these lines that were on ugly, 150-year-old telephone poles and placed them underground where they belong," Geary said. "Of course, there is an improved safety factor there too. In the high winds, snow and so forth — they don't come down."

The utility work has coincided with roadwork needed to accommodate a new traffic pattern that will begin once the portion of Hancock Street between the two historic buildings closes. That new traffic pattern will include traffic flowing in two directions on Temple and Washington Streets adjacent to the church.

The closure of the portion of Hancock Street between the two buildings is expected to begin in late April or early May, Geary said. The city will reach out to the public to inform them of the pending change, using electronic message boards and other mediums.

"We don't have a date certain but we will communicate in advance what that will be," he said. "It will be certainly in the next month-and-a-half or so."

New traffic lights have been installed as part of the project, including a new signal that came into service Tuesday at the entrance to the MBTA station on Hancock Street. Geary said the decision to signalize that intersection was made because of safety concerns.

"It's a dangerous intersection with conflicting pedestrian activity and vehicle traffic," he said. "It's a safety issue."

Once the new traffic pattern begins, traffic headed southbound along Hancock Street in Quincy Center will now travel on Washington Street adjacent to the church. Two lanes will be available at the intersection where Washington, Coddington and Temple Streets meet — one to take a right onto Temple and then back onto Hancock Street and the other to continue along Washington Street or turn left.

Southbound traffic on Temple Street would flow in one direction until reaching a new raised crosswalk where Hancock Street resumes. At that point, three southbound lanes would be available heading into the intersection with Granite Street — a right-turn only lane onto Granite Street, a center lane to stay on Hancock and a lane to turn left on Maple or Chestnut Streets.

Traffic headed northbound on Hancock Street would travel in one lane in the 1300 block between Granite Street and Temple Street. About halfway up Temple Street, traffic would split into two lanes — one allowing vehicles to take a right onto Washington or go straight ahead onto Coddington and a left-turn only lane that would lead back to Hancock via Washington Street.

Sidewalks along Hancock Street have been widened as part of the traffic project. Planners hope businesses, restaurants in particular, take advantage of the wider sidewalks and make them into more active spaces.

"We've widened the sidewalks and we're hoping to encourage various business establishments, particularly the restaurants, to utilize these spaces in fair weather months for outdoor dining or even takeout places where tables can be set up safely and there is enough room on the sidewalk to accommodate it," Geary said.

"We'd like to activate those sidewalks with people-oriented activity so that the people who live and work in downtown will have an opportunity to go to these restaurants and other food establishments and even retail establishments as the case may be and begin a vibrancy in the downtown area."

The implementation of the new traffic pattern will allow utility work to commence in the portion of Hancock Street being closed to traffic.

Once completed, the area won't be paved — it will be turned into a park instead. The utility work and completion of the interim park will be done by the end of June. At the same time, the first phase of work on the permanent Adams Hancock Green will begin in the area between the James R. McIntyre Government Center and the Munroe Building.

"There is the last stretch of Hancock Street that is literally that portion between the church and City Hall — there will be utility work that needs to be done there and that utility work will start first," Geary explained.

"We also, around that same time, will start building what's referred to as phase one of the Adams Hancock Green and that will cover the area immediately to the side of the old town hall in front of the new city hall over toward Grandasia.

"The only work that's going to be happening immediately in the new area that's in the portion of Hancock Street that's closed off will initially be the utility work. When that's done there will be an interim park because we don't have funding yet to finish that park. There will be an interim park between City Hall and the Church of the Presidents and that will be done by June 30.

"We hope to activate that park area with street fairs and other types of activities encouraging tourism — because the beginning of the tourism season will be occurring then — so that people who come to Quincy to go to the [Adams National Historical Park] visitors center and come to church will have an amenity with the interim green that will be in that space, connected to the Hancock Cemetery where significant upgrades are also going to occur."

Improvements to the Hancock Cemetery, which was first used as a burial ground in the 1620s and is the final resting place of the Rev. John Hancock, father of the signer of the Declaration of Independence of the same name, could include programming for visitors.

"That is a treasure for the city of Quincy. There is a lot of history in that cemetery," Geary said. "We're hoping to have some programming there that is going to guide tourists through there so they'll appreciate the history that is represented in that cemetery and the impact it had on American history."

Once the new traffic pattern along Hancock Street is implemented, the ball will get rolling on another long-awaited project — the demolition of the Ross Garage. The demolition and subsequent work will be paid for using a $5.6 million Mass-Works grant awarded to the city in November 2015.

"The Ross Garage needs to come down. It needs to be demolished and we intend on starting that process this spring as well," Geary said. "Immediately after we implement the new traffic pattern, we will begin to demolish the Ross Garage and we will need to provide replacement parking for the little parking that's left there — half the garage was taken down a number of years ago, the other half is only less than half utilized.

"We're presently doing an inventory with our traffic department to determine how many cars are parking there actively every day. That project also has a more compressed timeframe. That's going to be now more than 90 or 120 days to get that done."

Geary added that rendering — processing of materials after demolition — would not be done on site. Those materials will be hauled away instead.

"We're going to remove the debris right away so that there's not going to be that grinding activity that occurs on site with some projects,"

THIS PORTION OF Hancock Street between United First Parish Church (left) and the James R. McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall, right) will close to vehicular traffic this spring. An interim public park will be created this summer. The space will eventually become part of the new Adams Hancock Green park. A new traffic pattern will continue to allow northbound and southbound traffic in this area of Quincy Center.

he said.

Demolition of the garage is scheduled for completion by June 30. During demolition, portions of the Ross Way will be closed to traffic and two-way traffic allowed on Parkway between Granite Street and Hannon Parkway.

The city's plan calls for the replacement of those two roads with one larger one.

"We're planning on replacing those two roads ultimately with a new north-south thoroughfare that will be a wide road so there will be one wide road that conveys traffic two ways to replace the two that currently exists," Geary explained. "Whatever remaining parcels are left in the interim will be for parking."

The garage's demolition will open up the surrounding area to future development and remove a blighted structure, Geary said.

"I think that will be an important project because it removes a blighted structure from the center of what can be a very vibrant area. It opens that area for development," Geary said. "There have been private parties that have purchased property there and who have indicated to us their interest in having new development occur there. They're interested in developing and we're interested in encouraging that."

"Part of that may also include as part of their development covering over a portion of the Red Line tracks that run behind the building where the Commonwealth is and the coffee shop — it would go right out to Burgin Parkway."

Three downtown projects were announced last April during a City Hall press conference.

One of those projects — Quincy-based Galvcon Development's plan to build two buildings with 56 condos and 8,000 square feet of street-level retail space at 1545 Hancock St., formerly the home of Woolworth's Department Store — won approval from the Planning Board last fall and construction is now underway.

Another project unveiled at that time was LBC Boston's plan for a hotel in the 1500 block of Hancock Street, which will be partially sited on the Hancock Lot. Geary said negotiations with developers of the project could be completed in the coming weeks; LBC Boston hopes to break ground on the development, which would include residential units and an extended stay hotel, this summer.

"We are in negotiations with a developer who wishes to build a mixed-use project there that will be a combination of residential and extended stay hotel. We are hoping to finalize those negotiations in the next couple of weeks and be prepared to

$150,000 Of Marijuana Seized; Four Charged

By SCOTT JACKSON

Four people are due back in court March 18 for a probable cause hearing after being arraigned on charges of marijuana trafficking and conspiracy last week.

The four individuals – Wai Eng, 41, of 11 Alrick Rd.; Terry Wong, 37, of 23 Ruthven St.; Hua Ye, 53, of Queens, N.Y.; and Ming Shum, 45, of Jamaica, N.Y. – all pleaded not guilty during their arraignment March 2 in Quincy District Court.

Bail was set at $50,000 for Eng, Wong and Ye and $5,000 for Shum.

They had been arrested after the Quincy Police Department executed five search warrants March 1 following a two-month investigation. With the assistance of the Weymouth Police Department and Braintree Police Department, warrants were executed at 224 Presidents Ln., 11 Alrick Rd., and 32 Churchill Rd.; two vehicles were also searched.

Detectives seized 53 one-pound bags of marijuana and the $80,000 cash during those searches, according to police. The street value of the drugs seized was estimated at $150,000, police said.

Police officials asked that anyone with information or who suspects drug activity to contact the Drug Control Unit at 617-328-4527 or through the MyPD smartphone app.

$6.9M In Sewer Work Proposed

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city is hoping to take advantage of an MWRA program to help finance more than $6.9 million worth of sewer work.

A proposal to borrow the $6.9 million was introduced Monday during the City Council's meeting, where it was referred to the finance committee. That committee is set to meet March 21.

The city hopes to borrow the $6.9 million from the MWRA's infiltration and inflow reduction program. Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi, in a memo provided to city councillors, said the MWRA has significantly increased the grant portion of that program – from 45 percent to 75 percent – meaning the city would only have to repay 25 percent of the total amount borrowed.

"This notable funding change makes the continuation of our I&I reduction program even more cost effective than in previous years and will substantially reduce the effective payback period for these important capital improvement investments," Raymondi said in the memo.

Raymondi also noted reducing infiltration and inflow into city sewers is the department's best tool to stabilize future assessment increases from the MWRA. The $6.9 million, he said, would allow for the completion of a citywide sewer survey and provide funding so that the infiltration and inflow reduction work can continue for "years to come."

which unanimously supported adding the MBTA property to the district earlier this month, backed the proposed amendment at Monday's hearing.

"We believe the amendment will increase the likelihood that redevelopment will occur in Quincy Center," said McCarthy, a former School Committee member. "I think it's a great, great opportunity to take care of the T, take care of parking, [and] also look down the road at the [National Park Service] office as well as a justice center."

Alie Shaughnessy, an Essex Street resident running in this spring's Ward 6 special election, voiced his approval for the amendment during the hearing Monday, saying the Quincy Center station should be replaced before the MBTA moves ahead with mixed-use development in the North Quincy station's parking lot. The transit agency is now reviewing proposals for the North Quincy project.

"I think it's a wonderful idea. I applaud the administration for putting it forward," Shaughnessy said. "With the garage being shut-down it affects obviously the amount of cars that flow now into the northern part of the city. The garage being empty, everybody goes north. The lot fills up pretty quickly in the North Quincy area...I just want to make sure that we look at developing this area first and there isn't any hopscotching to try to do the North Quincy area ahead of this one."

Four residents said they opposed the URDP amendment.

Jocelyn Sedney, a Monroe Road resident, was among those in opposition, noting a courthouse would have to address certain security concerns. She preferred a new standalone court facility be built at the same site on the Dennis Ryan Parkway where the current courthouse sits and a new train station be built for commuters only.

"The combination of uses that we're taking about at this location, I think are wrong," Sedney said. "We can develop a wonderful transportation center with places to eat – a Starbucks or whatever – great parking so we can relieve the neighborhoods – for instance, Monroe Road and the other areas of Ward 5 where we have people parking all time – and dedicate that use only to a commuter center."

Red Raiders Hockey Battles To The End

NQ Bows To Pembroke 4-3 In Double OT In Quarter Finals; Coach Confident Program Will Return To Ice Next Season

By TOM JOYCE
North Quincy boys' hockey goes down battling. Their goal was to be competitive in the playoffs. And they did just that.

It took four overtimes in two games to knock the North Quincy Red Raiders boys' hockey team out of the playoffs.

On Sunday afternoon, the Red Raiders (11-10-1) fell, 4-3, in double-overtime to the Pembroke Titans in the MIAA Division 2 South sectional quarterfinals at Gallo Ice Arena in Bourne.

With 3:33 left in the third period, senior captain and defenseman Timmy Glynn's goal put the Red Raiders up, 3-2. But less than a minute later, the Titans reacted -- tying the game at three goals apiece.

Even though they did not win it in regular time, there was a sense of optimism for the Red Raiders in overtime. After all, they upset the defending Division 2 State Champs, Westwood, 2-1, in the first round in double overtime.

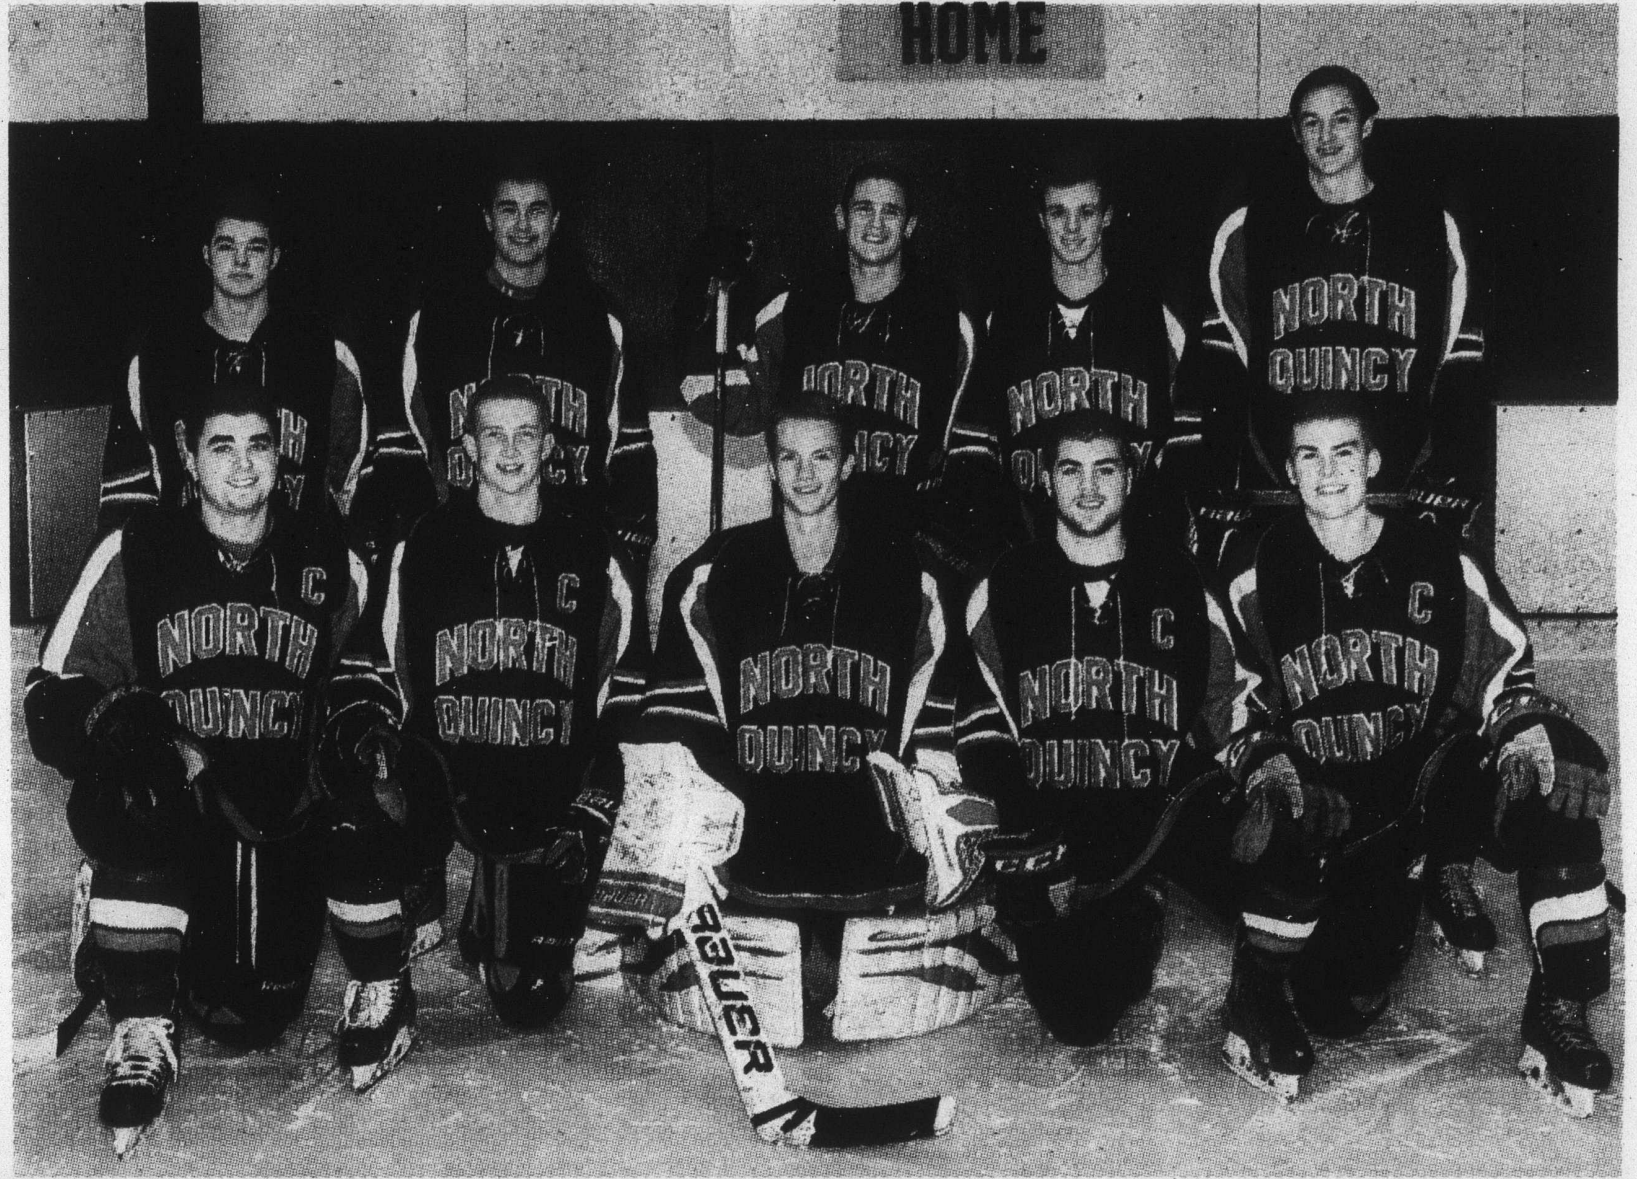

This time around, there were a few scoring opportunities for the Red Raiders after regulation, but they just could not bury their shots.

On the other side, the Titans had a clear advantage in terms of possession time in overtime. And in double overtime, they had the first opportunity to strike. A strong two-on-one chance allowed to do just that, ending the Red Raiders' season.

Regardless of the end result, the Red Raiders endured what they would consider to be a successful season.

"These guys tasted it," said Red Raiders head coach Matt Gibbons. "It's not like these guys just made it to the postseason and then got blown out. If you lose in double-overtime, that's a tough one to swallow."

NORTH QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL seniors led the Red Raiders varsity hockey team into postseason play as the squad reached the quarter finals of the Div. 2 South Sectionals before bowing Sunday to Pembroke 4-3 in double overtime. The Red Raiders had advanced to the second round of the sectionals ousting defending Div. 2 state champs Westwood March 2 in a thrilling 2-1 double overtime win. Time and time again, Gibbons said that if his team could make it to the postseason, they would be dangerous. With their win over Westwood in the first round and their battle with Pembroke in the second, they proved just they could be a threat.

"We elevated our game as the season went on and really emptied the gas in these past two games," he said. "Against Westwood, we were the better team and against Pembroke, I thought we were the better team for three periods. We had a couple of chances, but we just couldn't finish. That said, I couldn't be prouder of the guys. It's really a coin flip when you get into overtime."

In his final game in net, senior goaltender Kevin Doherty had 27 saves on 31 opportunities.

Against the Titans, senior captain and forward Kevin Mock had two goals, bump-

Q/NQ Girls Hockey Exceed Expectations

Skate To 13-6-3 Record; Earn Tourney Berth

By TOM JOYCE

Quincy girls hockey was a pleasant surprise this season

All they hoped to do was not start their season 0-6. It is safe to say the Quincy/North Quincy High School girls' hockey co-op ended up blowing away those expectations.

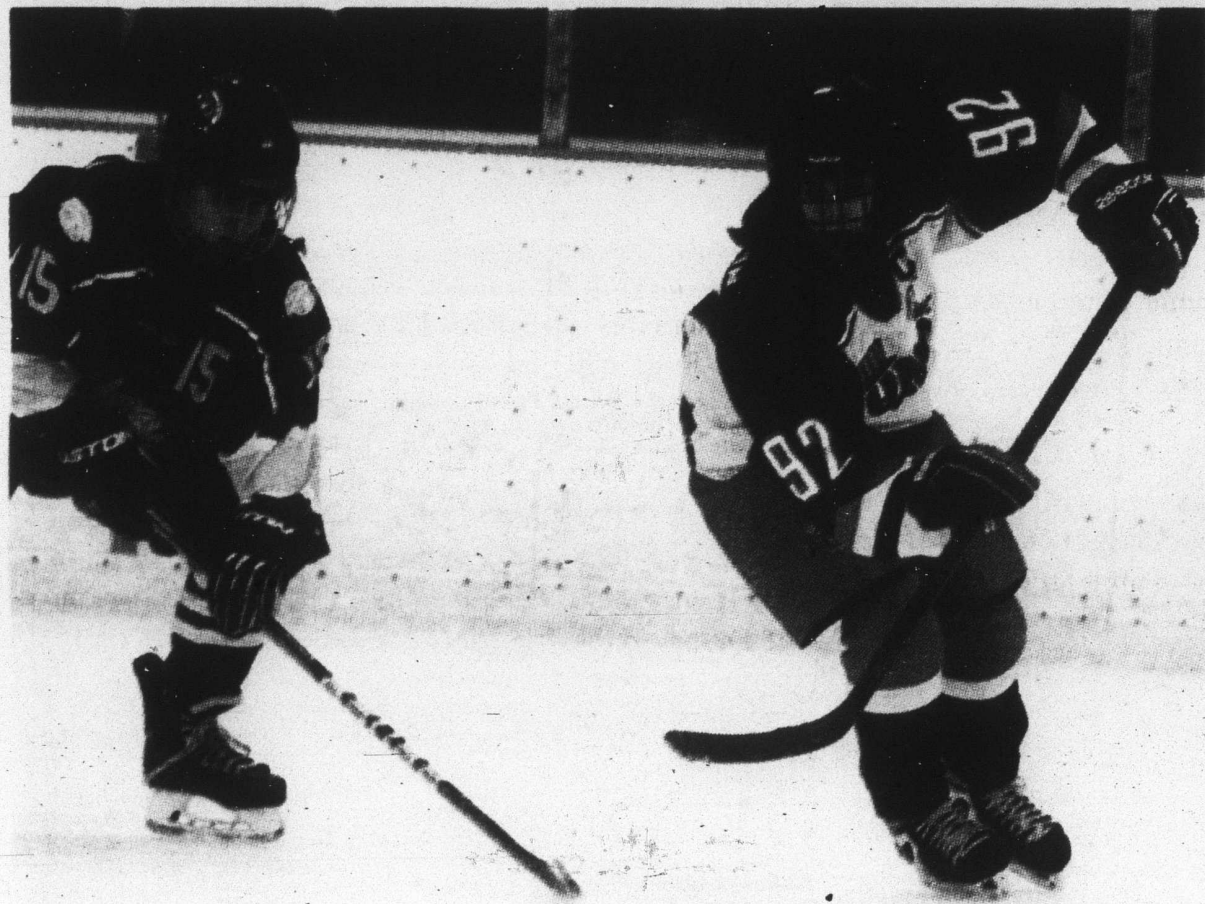

For the first time, headed into next year, there will be expectations on the team after they finished their season 13-6-3. It was the first time the team had won more than six games in a season and the first time they made it to the MIAA Division 1 South Sectional playoffs.

Q-NQ fell in the first round of the playoffs, 5-1, to Andover at the Quincy Youth Arena March 2. And while they were disappointed with the outcome, it will still go down as a productive season.

"It was great to be a part of this," head coach Jeff Craig said. "It was great to make it to the tournament. I thought it was a good game. We just did not get some bounces. Andover got some bounces and they're a really good team."

"We would like to get to their level and play like them on a consistent basis. I could not have asked for any-

Joe Amorosino To Receive Lifetime Achievement Award

Honor For Former QHS Coach At Fitzy-Nolan Games March 17

By BILL GRIFFIN
Former Quincy coach Joe Amorosino will receive the Lifetime Achievement Award at the 14th annual Fitzy-Nolan games which will be held at Quincy High School Thursday, March 17.

The Boston Athletic Basketball Club sophomore team will meet a select team of South Shore all-star juniors at 6:30. The BABC juniors will face the South Shore all-star seniors at 7:45.

The games are held in honor of Knobby Nolan, a legendary coach at North Quincy, and Paul Fitzpatrick, a great guard from the Quincy High teams of the mid-1960s.

Nolan had a record of 153-61 and won four Greater Boston League titles at North. Fitzpatrick played on a Quincy team which made the old Tech Tourney in Boston Garden. He played and coached at Boston State. He coached Boston State to the finals of the NCAA Division 3 Tournament in 1977.

Former Mount Ida coach Leo Cabral started the tourney in 2002 shortly after Fitzpatrick's death. This is the third year the games have been held in Quincy.

"We've been very pleased with the move to Quincy," said Leo Papile. Papile founded the BABC in 1977. The BABC has won 19 national championships, produced 211 NCAA scholarship players, and sent 17 players to the NBA.

"We have a good fan base which has turned out for the games, and the quality of the basketball is excellent. It's a chance for fans to see players who will be on television playing for some of the top Division 1 college teams in the country," added Papile, a 1971 graduate of North and a member of the North Quincy Basketball Hall of Fame.

"The games keep alive the memory of Knobby and Fitzy. They are legends in the city. The awards give us a chance to honor people who have literally given their lives to young people playing basketball in the Quincy. Nobody deserves it more than Joe Amorosino."

After coaching at Sterling and as an assistant to Nolan at North, Amorosino was the head coach at Quincy High from 1972-1983. His teams qualified for the state tourney seven times and won one Suburban League title. In those years, a team had to win 70 per cent of its games to make the tourney.

Amorosino coached as an assistant at BU, Suffolk and Wentworth. He worked as a scout for the NBA's New Orleans Hornets for nine years.

He will run a Celtics Camp for young boys and girls for the 49th straight year this summer. He first combined with Larry Siegfried, a guard from the great Celtics championship teams of the 1960s. In 1980, he merged camps with Dave Cowens, who led the Celtics to two championships in the 1970s. The two have remained partners to the present day.

"I don't think any person in the country has been running camps for young kids for as long as Joe," said Papile.

Amorosino is a member of the baseball and basketball Hall of Fame at Sharon High for his contributions as a player. He is also a member of the Quincy High Basketball Hall of Fame and the Massachusetts State Coaches Hall of Fame.

His son, Joe, is an Emmy-Award winning sports reporter for WHDH, Channel 7 in Boston.

"This honor means so much to me because I've tried to devote my life to helping young kids play basketball," said Amorosino who currently lives in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. "I love to teach them the game, but what means the most to me is the number of lives I've touched. So many kids that I coached still keep in touch with me. It will be great to get back to Quincy and see my former players. I want to thank Leo for making this possible."

Papile and Amorosino will have stories and tales to share from the rare old days. Papile played for Amorsino as a JV player at North. He has memories of that first practice and of the season that followed.

"The first thing Joe did was roll basketballs out on the floor. He told us we would all dive for them until we had bruises on our knees. It was a different world back then," said Papile. "Joe was a great coach. Our JVs went 20-0 that year and we played some great teams, big schools with basketball tradition like Somerville and Brockton."

Amorsino's best team at Quincy in 1977 defeated defending state champion Boston English and made the sectional finals. Jack Uhlar, the first 1000-point scorer at Quincy High, and Mike Lamie were the stars of the team. The Presidents lost to Framingham South who were led by David Blatt. Blatt went on to captain Princeton's basketball team, gain international fame as a coach in Europe, and lead the Cleveland Cavaliers to the NBA finals in 2015.

"I remember that game and I remember Blatt," said Amorsino. "I could tell two things about him right away. He knew the game, and he was a quality person. That is still true today."

No 2016 Season For Wollaston T-Ball Program

Organizers Karl, Marsha Roos Step Away After 15 Seasons

With great disappointment it is being announced that Wollaston T-Ball will not be having a 2016 season.

Karl and Marsha Roos, who started Wollaston T-Ball and have run it for the past 15 years, have decided it is time to step away from the organization.

"It has been an incredible experience," Karl Roos said Monday. "I am amazed how fast the years have gone. We started Wollaston T-Ball when our oldest child was young, he is now in college. Our youngest child, last played eight years ago."

"It was great being able to bring families together and provide some fun and smiles to all the kids who played throughout the years. I am so glad we did it for all of those years."

Over the past 15 years over a thousand families participated in Wollaston T-Ball, playing on Saturday mornings at Forbes Field. Roos said. He said he is sorry to see it stop but he was unable to find someone willing to take on the responsibilities of running the league.

"If the young families of Quincy think it is important to have Wollaston T-Ball, I would love to see it continue. I would of course be glad to help with the transition."

Roos said he is guardedly optimistic. "Hopefully someone might step up, it doesn't look promising for this season but maybe someone will want to do it next year. You never know."

The main concern for the 2016 season is that parents don't miss the opportunity to sign up their children in the other T-Ball leagues, Houghs Neck T-Ball or Squantum T-Ball. Roos said he has notified Houghs Neck and Squantum T-Ball of the plans to not continue Wollaston T-Ball and is confident that the leagues will be prepared for the extra players this season.

Karl and Marsha Roos would like to thank all of the great parents they meet throughout the years, and especially thank the coaches and volunteers whose help made the league possible and so enjoyable.

"Wollaston T-Ball would also like to thank the Quincy Park Department for all of its help through the many season as well," the Rooses said.

TARGETED TREATMENT

Because not all back pain is the same, each case should be treated differently. This approach to treating back pain was recently underscored by a study in which back-pain patients were divided into two groups—those receiving targeted treatment and those receiving non-targeted treatment. The patients in the targeted-care group were evaluated on the basis of their risk level, and then were provided different levels of physiological and psychological treatment. In the final analysis, those who received targeted treatment showed significant improvement while the non-targeted patients did not. This research shows that some medium- and high-risk patients may miss out on treatments that could prove beneficial. Chiropractic evaluation can help these individuals identify the appropriate treatment.

If you suffer from back pain, why not give chiropractic a try? At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we recommend a continuing schedule of regular chiropractic checkups, which can help detect, correct, and maintain optimum spinal and nervous system function. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. Chiropractic works!

P.S. In the study mentioned above, the targeted patients missed fewer days of work due to back pain and experienced better physical and emotional functioning, higher quality of life, and reduced disability from back pain. They also saved money on health bills.

Ride Over But Quincy's Season A Big Success

ty experience. It ended in a tournament treat with all the trappings before a packed and rocking crowd at the Quincy High gym. Who would have thought it?

The unexpected gift of a season ended when the No. 11 seeded Eagles used their three-headed monster of a backcourt to rattle off a 23-8 run and pull away to a 75-60 decision over No. 6 seeded Quincy in a Division 1 South Sectional victory last week.

"At the beginning of the season, we looked at the schedule and saw maybe eight games we could win" said Parry. "We wanted to find another couple so we could make the tourney. This team far exceeded my expectations. They are unselfish to a fault and came together as a unit to have a great season."

Quincy pounded the ball inside all night and was right there, down 38-37 when BC High's brilliant guard Jack Loughnane (26 points) went to the bench with four fouls with 3:32 left in the third. It was there to be taken.

Ugo Kamalu (14 points) and Dyreke Johnson controlled the inside. Quinn Evans (20 points, five threes) shot down the basket from deep. Scott Mele added six points, seven assists and a near flawless floor game. An upset that would have been unthinkable three months in the past was there in front of them.

"That was where I thought we had a chance to break through and take the lead, but BC High is a good basketball team, and good teams have an answer," said Parry.

The answer is BC High is not a team with one stand-out guard, but with three. Loughnane, Travis Eeve (17) and Carl Pierre (16) scored 59 of their team's 75 points. The guard trio scored the Eagles' first 24 points of the game and with Loughnane sitting, it was Eeve and Pierre who opened up the lead in the third and fourth periods.

"Loughnane is a great player. We just wanted to limit him," said Parry. "We thought we could contain the other two, but they stepped up and made the big shots. They are three excellent guards."

If there is one image the Presidents will carry into the off-season, it is of layups and short jumpers kissing the rim and rolling off without falling. Mele, Evans, and Darius Setalsingh (excellent defense) got the ball inside all night. The interior passing between the big men was good. The shots were there. They just would not fall.

Part of the reason was BC High's unusual quickness swarmed the shooter. Part of the reason was Quincy was not blessed by good fortune at the rim.

"They knew what we like to do which is go inside and they tried it to take it away. They're a smart team," said Parry. "They were quick to our shooters, and we may have been pressing a little. On some, it came down to a bounce of the ball. That's basketball."

Even after BC High went up, 61-45 three minutes into the fourth, Quincy would not go away quietly. Kamalu continued to use his quickness, moves and touch in close. Evans kept raining down threes (four in the second half) from the parking lot. The Presidents drew within 11 (63-52), but BC High's backcourt triple threat answered every Quincy surge.

"We called time out. We had to tell Quinn to stop looking to pass and shoot the ball," said Parry.

"I'm a Quincy guy. I know Quinn Evans. He, Scott (Mele) and Jack (Loughnane) have been shooting hoops together since grade school," said BC High coach Bill Loughnane.

It was a remarkable season. The Presidents started 11-3. They played three overtime contests and seven games that were decided by six points or less. They won the Moscardelli Tourney for the fourth straight year behind MVP Mark Munroe.

They won the city championship. Parry won his 100th game as a coach. Munroe had 26 points and 18 rebounds in a win over North.

They won three of four games during February vacation to get a home game in the tourney. They had an unforgettable win over Plymouth North. Plymouth tied the game at the buzzer in regulation on a once-in-a-lifetime play, but the Presidents picked themselves up and Johnson willed them to victory in overtime.

"The Plymouth North game was one I'll remember. I knew after that game we had the resiliency and mental toughness we needed," said Parry.

As the final seconds flew away against BC High, the Quincy crowd stood and chanted: Thank You Seniors. Parry knew well about what they spoke. He called a timeout with nine seconds left so that his seniors: Mele, Evans, Johnson, Setalsingh and Munroe could walk off the floor together for one last time.

"They started the season by walking onto the floor as a group. I wanted them to end it the same way. I also wanted them to hear the cheers of the crowd for one last time as a team," said Parry.

Nice touch, coach.

Team Success, Individual Achievements For Quincy Girls

By BILL GRIFFIN

Before it began, it held the promise of being a legacy season.

It was a season to make memories, win games, capture titles, put up banners and set records. It was a year for nine seniors, many of whom had played basketball together since they were old enough to bounce a ball, to enjoy one last, wonderful ride that they would always cherish and remember as a fine time in their lives.

The promise was kept.

Quincy won 16 straight games. The Presidents won the Keenan Division of the Patriot League. They won their holiday tournament. They played well in the sectionals. They won the IAA-BO Sportsmanship Award that is presented to one girls team by the officials from Plymouth and Norfolk counties.

Nicole Jorgensen moved into second place on the all-time Quincy High scoring list behind only Doug Scott. She became the first player in the history of the city to have 1,000 points and 1,000 rebounds. Gabby Jerahian broke the all-time school record for career three-point shots. Sophomore Lianna Cunningham shattered the season record for assists and moved within one of the career mark despite playing only two varsity seasons.

Jorgensen, Jerahian, and Alyssa Camara were Patriot League All Stars. Cunningham, the best passer in the league, should have been an all star. Jorgensen was the league Most Valuable Player.

Their season ended last week when second-seeded Bishop Feehan broke to an early 20-point lead and held off a second-half rally to drop the seventh-seeded Presidents, 74-57 in the second round of the Division 1

South Sectionals despite a four-star closing act by Jorgensen who had 24 points and 15 rebounds.

"Feehan came out very aggressively. They hit a couple of three-pointers and got up on us early," said Quincy coach Jeff Bretsch whose team finished the season at 19-4. "Our shooting was cold early, but settled in and played them evenly over the last three quarters."

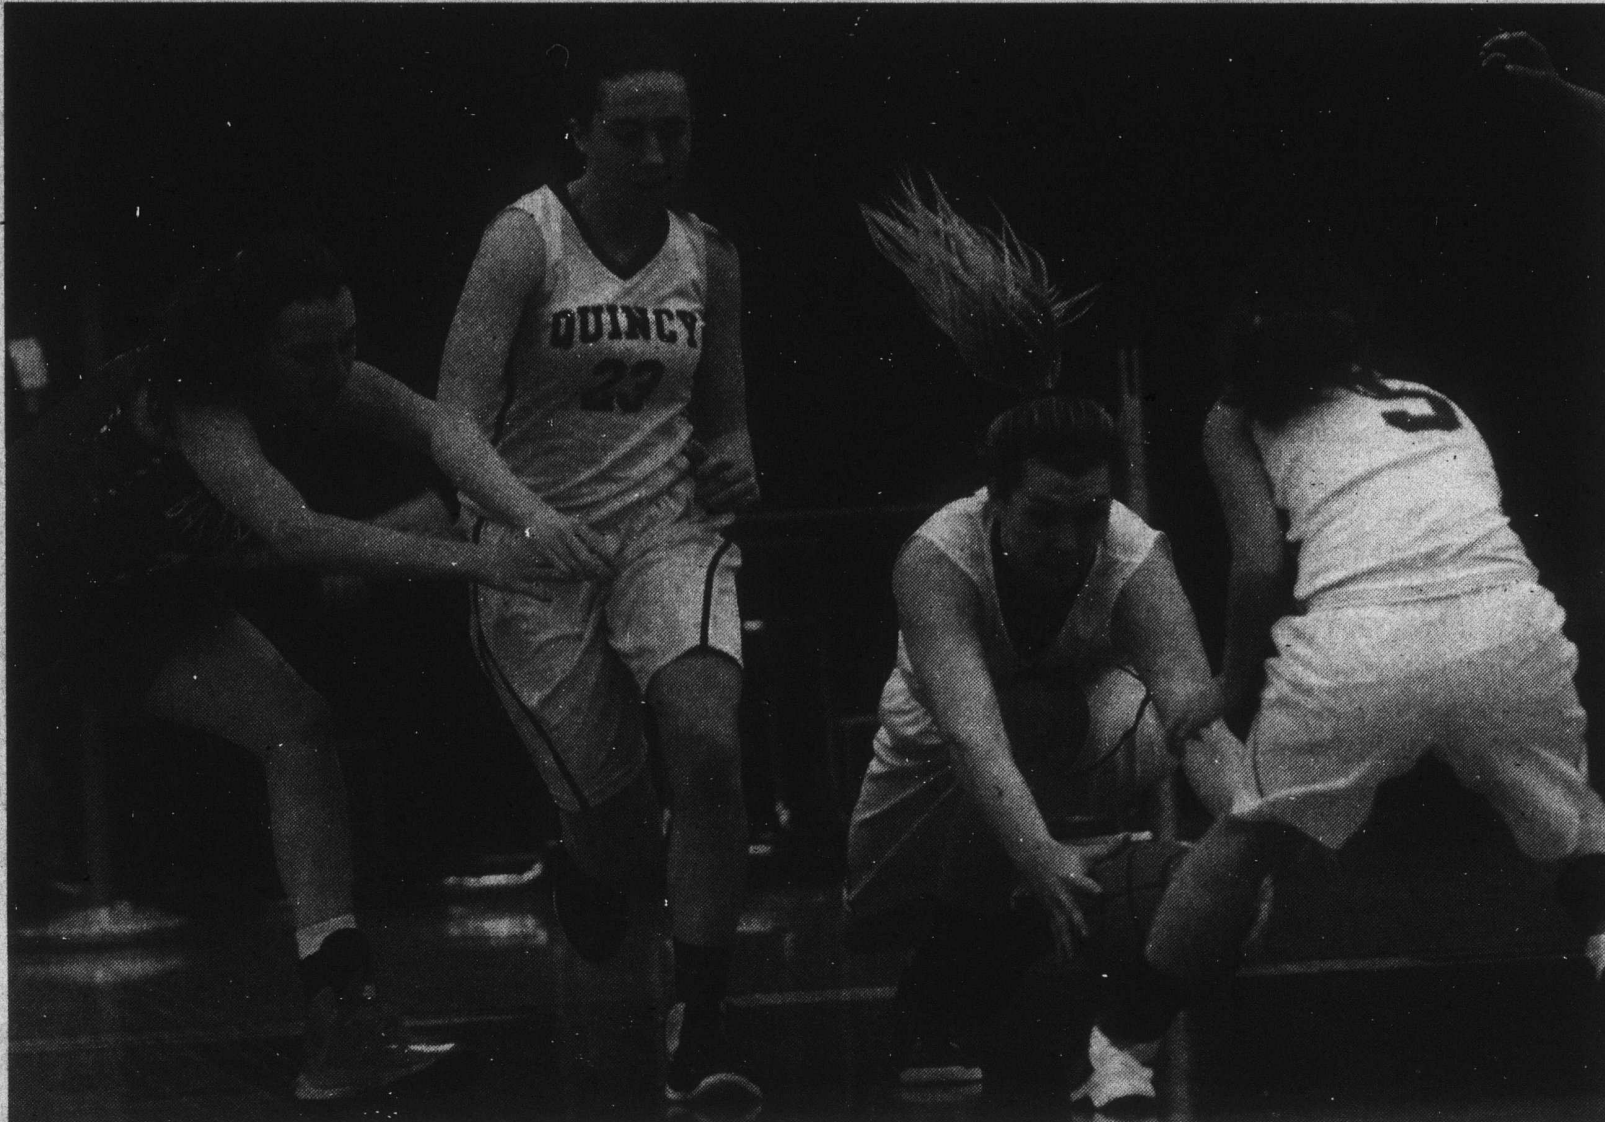

Feehan led, 38-18 in the second and 40-24 at the half. Quincy battled back in the third. Jorgensen took over the inside and simply demanded the ball. Cunningham and Jerahian (14 points) found clean lanes for entry passes. Jerahian and Camara (12 points, four steals) each hit a three. Joelle Robinson gave the Presidents an energy shot off the bench and made a couple of buckets.

Robinson and Sarah Gibbons played terrific defense on Feehan's Lauren Manis holding the Holy Cross-bound star to four points. Quincy ran 16 straight points. The Presidents were within 46-40. It was a game.

"I think when we fell behind we relaxed a little and just played our game. Our defensive pressure was good and Nicole just took control," said Bretsch.

However, Feehan hit a couple of threes to stretch out the lead and Boston University-bound Katie Nelson (31 points) went 10-for-10 from the line to protect the lead in the final minutes.

Jorgensen was a once-in-a-generation player. She started from her first game freshman year and set records for rebounding and blocks which may never be touched. She finished her career with 1,274 points, 1,159 rebounds and 384

NICOLE JORGENSEN focuses on a loose ball against Barnstable in the Presidents first round win over the Red Raiders in the Div. 1 South Sectional Tournament. blocks. She had 450 more rebounds than any player in school history. She holds the game, season and career records for blocks. She averaged over 22 points and 17 rebounds per game in her senior year and set a school record of 522 field goals.

She was more than great numbers. Her poise was remarkable. From the first second of her first game freshman year, she was a target. She was hit, hammered, held, double and triple-teamed. She rarely complained and never lost her self-control. As she grew more experienced, especially in her senior year, she not only survived the heavy hitting, she thrived under it.

"I think early in her career, she got frustrated because she wanted to contribute so badly. By her senior year, she was able to find a way, to figure out how to beat the defenses she saw every game," said Bretsch.

Jerahian started for four years as well. She finished with 152 three-pointers. Her light show of five threes in the first nine minutes against Durfee in the tourney her junior year was a treat. To label her as merely a shooter would be foolish. She took the ball to basket well in her junior and senior seasons. More importantly, her defense was terrific. She consistently matched up against the best scorers in the league and held them to 7-8 points under their average. Witness the second Hingham game when she limited Sydney Blasetti to four points. She played her best in the big games.

Cunningham had 125 assists this season wiping out the previous record of 92. She has 204 through two seasons. The school record is 205. It is no accident that Jorgensen's scoring took a huge bump her senior year with Cunningham as her point guard. The two savored the unique relationship between scorer and passer. If Jorgensen had Cunningham as a point guard for four years, her scoring totals would have been ridiculous.

"The better Lianna became as a passer, the more Nicole scored. With Lianna, if you're ready to catch the ball, you get a layup. She did a great job hitting Alyssa on the break as well," said Bretsch.

Camara was the steadiest of players. Every game, she gave Quincy scoring, defense, and passing. Depend on it, count on it, put it in the book. She finished strong at the hoop off the break and on drives out of the set offense. Gibbons gave Quincy a second solid rebounder and inside defender.

"Alyssa is a testimony to hard work. She made herself an excellent basketball player," said Bretsch.

Jorgensen, Jerahian, Camara, and Gibbons were the senior starters. Arianna Paulo, Julianna Kane, Taisha Alexandre, Jessica Ball and Amanda Moosick were the seniors who contributed off the bench. Paulo provided defense and shooting. Kane was a strong inside player. Moosick finished second in the league's three-point shooting contest. Alexandre and Ball were solid all-around players.

"The bench was a big reason for our success," said Bretsch. "On most of teams, these seniors would have played a lot of minutes, but we had too much depth.

They never complained. Everybody got along. There was no drama. This allowed us to just go out and play our best basketball."

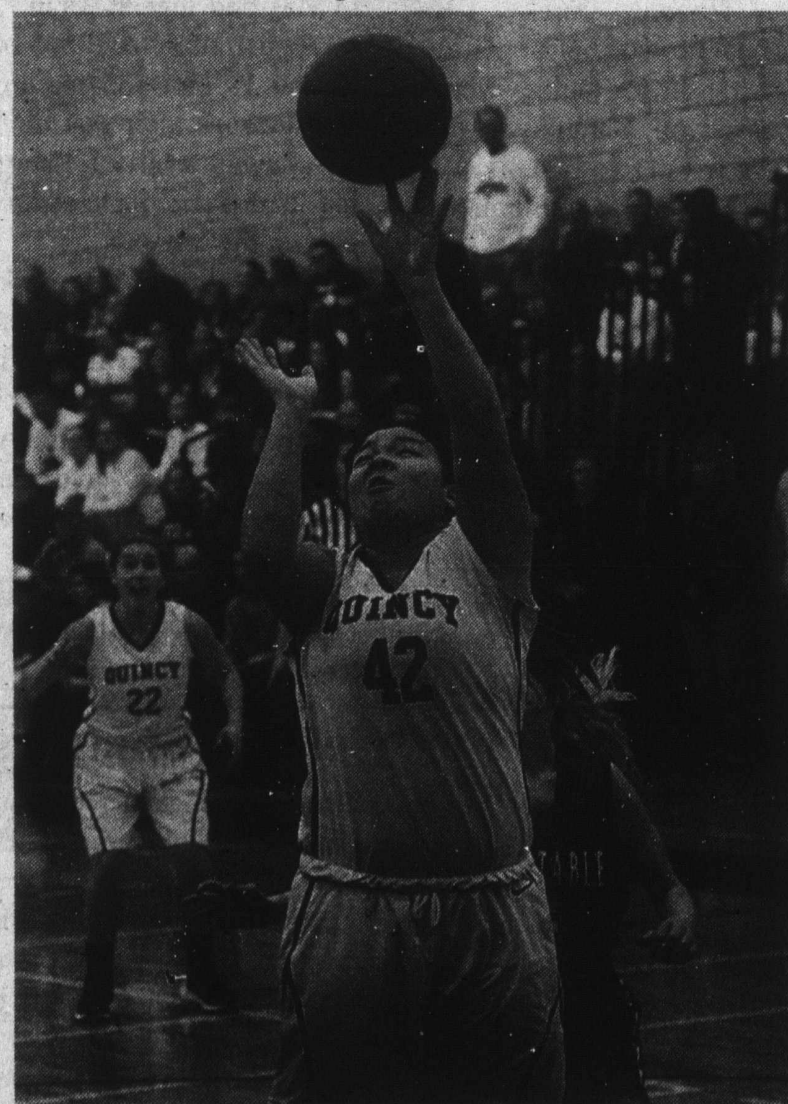

Cunningham and Robinson return next year. Cunningham will surely score more. However, it would be better for at least a brief time to think of the season which has just passed rather than one that has yet to come.

"We went to the Garden last year to watch Duxbury," said Bretsch. "We decided then as a team to make a run at the league title and play well in the sectionals. The girls put in the work in the off-season. That was the reason for our success. They played a lot, worked a lot, but they never lost their love for basketball."

"I think that pleases me the most."

SENIOR CAPTAIN Alyssa Camara was a steady contributor for the Presidents giving Quincy scoring, defense and passing throughout the season.

SENIOR JULIANNA KANE was among the key bench contributors for the Presidents. Here she puts up a shot in Quincy's 54-25 first round tournament win over Barnstable.

thing more from the girls. They gave me everything they had. And I couldn't be prouder."

Perhaps one issue that may have come up in their loss was the team's struggles at home this season. When playing at the Quincy Youth Arena, they were 4-5-1. Away from it, however, they went 9-1-1.

The Andover game was the last for the co-ops' four seniors: defender Maura Crump and forwards Diane Caye, Savannah Flynn and Caitlin Dooley.

"I told the girls after the game that we will always have this year," said Craig. "You only have one chance to turn a program around and they're all part of it. There will never be another year like next year. They're all a part of something special."

As a team, chemistry was their best asset despite players on the team going to Thanksgiving Day rival schools.

"It couldn't have gone smoother," said Craig. "Winning helps. But having a great group of kids helps too. I mean, they're the best group of kids I've ever coached - and I've been coaching hockey for a while."

Craig said that he has plans for a more in-depth offseason training regimen in order to prepare for next winter. And he said the biggest key for his girls will be spending time on the ice.

For next year's team, experience looks to be a serious asset. On the attack, their four leading scorers: freshman Cassandra Davis (41 points), junior Riley McLoughlin (36 points), junior Kate McGahey (33 points) and sophomore Julie Whalen (27 points) will all be back.

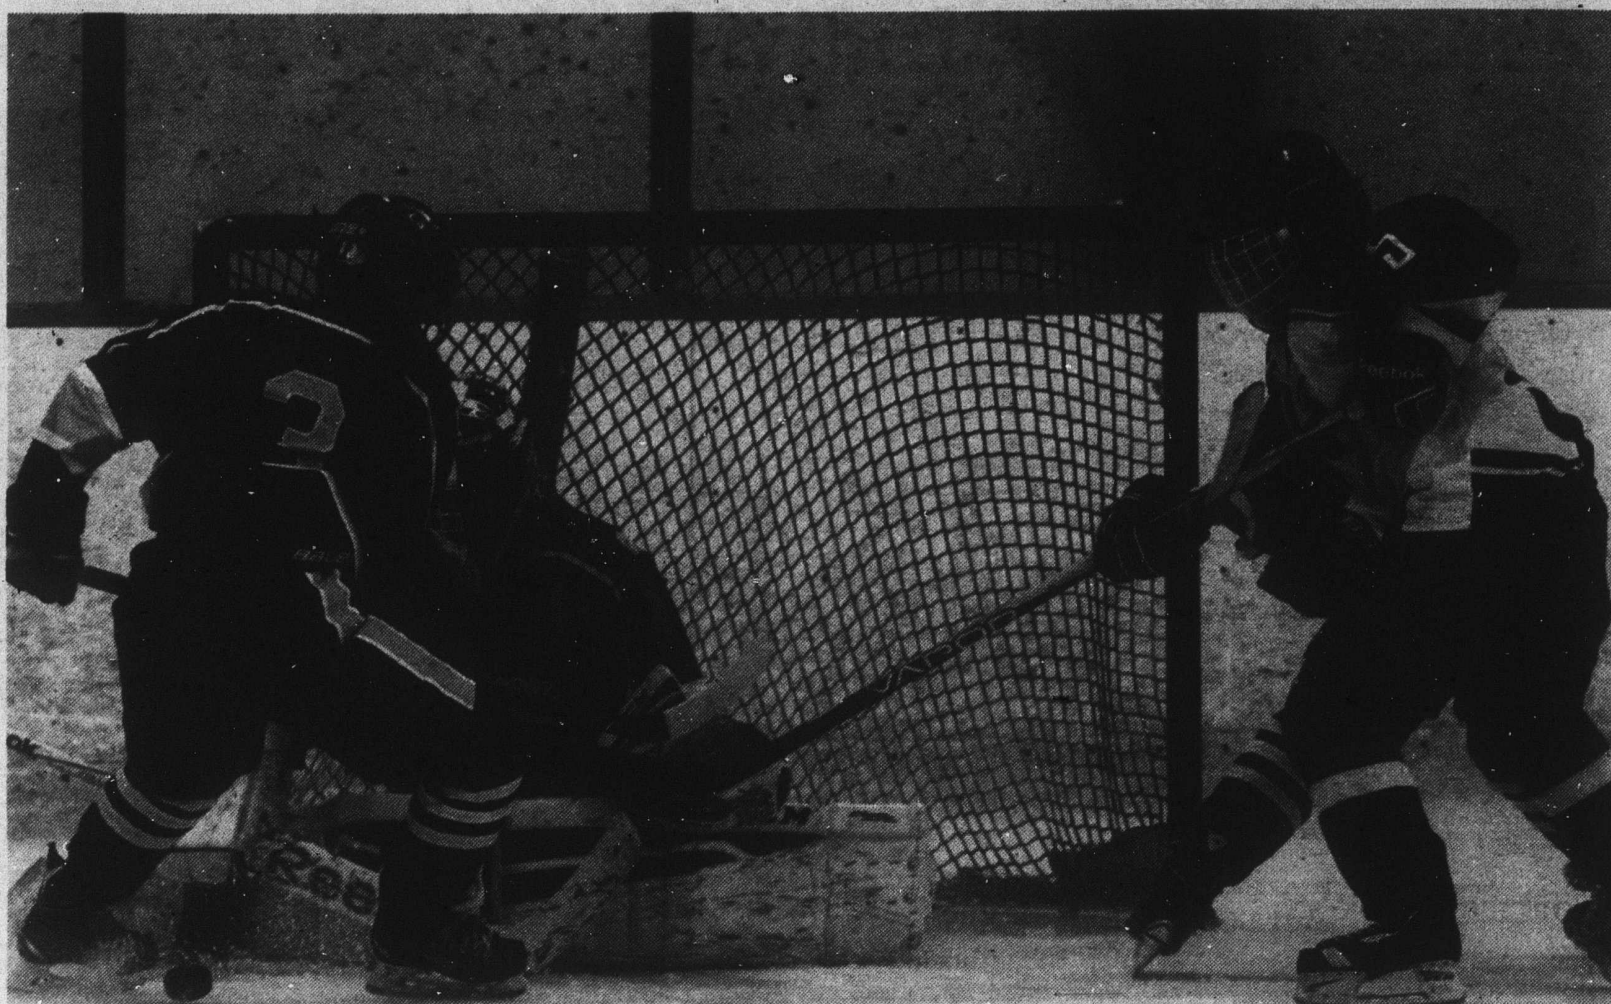

And on defense, freshman Meghan Greene, who notched eight goals, will be back, and the same goes for sophomore Carly McMorow, who was on every other shift this season.

Both of their goaltenders, junior Karissa Beal and freshman Jessica Bille, are also expected to return next season.

"Anything less than coming back here would be us not reaching our goals," said Craig.

"You never like losing in the tournament. You never want to lose any game. But it was a game that we were excited for and had so much support headed into. Only one team remains at the end of the season. We're really excited headed into next season though. It gives us something to build on."

Craig added that his assistant coaches, Kyle Craig, Peter Chism, and Meg Gillespie have been vital in the team's surge into a playoff contender.

ANDOVER GOALTENDER denies Q/NQ forward Kate McGahey in her bid to score her second goal of the night. A few minutes earlier in the second period McGahey scored Q/NQ's only goal of the game cutting Andovers lead to 2-1. Andover eventually went on to score three goals in the third period for a 5-1 victory over Q/NQ.

Houghs Neck T-Ball Registration March 19

Houghs Neck T-Ball League will hold open registration for Quincy youngsters on Saturday, March 19 from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Atherton Hough Elementary School Gym, 1084 Sea St., Houghs Neck.

Boys and girls ages 3-7 are eligible to play.

Players must be 3 years of age by Jan. 1, 2016. Birth certificates are required for all players (returning and new.)

Games will be played at Labrecque Field on Sea Street on Saturday mornings

in May and June at 9 a.m.

Registration fee is $25 on March 19 and $35 for any registrations after that date. All players receive a t-shirt, hat, and a personalized trophy on the last day.

The league is also looking for volunteer coaches; no coaching experience is necessary. Volunteers coach their own child's team. At least two or three volunteer coaches per team is the goal so that it's a group effort.

For more information, visit www.houghsnecktball.com.

St. John's Hoop Seeks Donations

The Saint John's Basketball program is seeking donations.

Money will be used to pay for gym rentals, uniforms and registration fees for boys who are unable to pay. The program's three teams consist of young men ages 12-18. Several players would not be able to play due to financial reasons; however no players will be turned away.

For some players, the program is the only organized activity they participate in.

Checks can be made out to St. John's Basketball, 24 Stanley Cir., Quincy, MA 02169.

Grace Geary On All-Conference Hoop Team

Grace Geary, a 2014 graduate of North Quincy High School and standout basketball player at UMass Boston, has been named to the First team All-Conference Team.

Geary, a 1,000-point scorer in high school, took a huge step forward in her sophomore season, as she assumed the role of the top guard in the Little East. Last year's LEC Rookie of the Year earned the bump from the Second Team to the First, by finishing third in the league in points per game (16.2), tied for second in assists per game (3.9) and leading the entire league with 2.8 steals per game. She also finished tied for fourth in the LEC with 46 made 3-pointers and sixth with her 86 made free throws. Geary started 17 of the 25 games she played in and led the Beacons and ranked tied for eighth in the conference with her 30.4 minutes per game.

The sophomore guard finished with double-digit points in 20 of her 25 games, including the final nine games of the year. She topped 20 points in nine games and tied the program-record for points in a game with 33 in a 69-68 win over conference foe University of Southern Maine on February 10. She also added her first collegiate double-double on February 6, when Geary recorded 18 points and a career-high 11 assists in the win over Rhode Island College.

Geary was the leading force behind the Beacons' playoff run, as she averaged 20 points, 4.66 rebounds and two assists per game in three contests.

Red Raiders Battle To The End But Will Be Back

ing his postseason total up to four in two games.

Perhaps his biggest came in his team's 2-1 upset over Westwood. Mock scored both of the Red Raiders' goals, including the game winner in double overtime.

"It was amazing," he reflected on the moment. "It was one of the best feelings I ever had. Going into this game, you knew that in double-overtime, everyone gave it all they had. It was just an amazing experience."

Certainly, the rest of the team appreciated his postseason performance.

"I've never seen a performance like his in the past few games," said Gibbons, who has been the Red Raiders head coach for seven seasons. "He's really put the team on his back not to take anything away from those other kids because they've all worked extremely hard. At the end of the day, we need to score goals in key moments. He should be so proud of himself, as should all of the other guys."

In addition to Mock and Glynn, the team will be losing their two other captains, defenseman Matt McDonald and forward Cam White. And on top of that, with a senior class of ten this season, they will be losing a handful of key contributors: goaltender Kevin Doherty; forwards Garrett Kulig, Evan O'Connor, and Corey Hernandez; and defensemen Ryan Moreschi and Joey England.

"It's a tough class to say goodbye to," said Gibbons. "There's some kids on this roster who have played varsity for four years in key spots. It was tough walking around that room saying goodbye to all of those guys. This is always the worst part — saying goodbye to all the seniors."

Numbers will be the team's biggest concern headed into next season. But despite any rumors flying around, Gibbons is planning on being the Red Raiders head hockey coach next season.

"We'll be back," he said. "There's no doubt about that. Whatever the numbers are, we'll be back and we'll probably shock some more people."

Sure, they will be low in numbers. If everyone sticks with the program, they are only guaranteed 12 players coming back. But, of course, a strong incoming freshman class could change that, as could transfers from private schools.

With who the Red Raiders do have coming back, talent will not be an issue. Austin Lee, Hunter Phillips and Kieran O'Driscoll play pivotal roles on the team's attack while Kevin McDonald is an asset on defense — just to name a few.

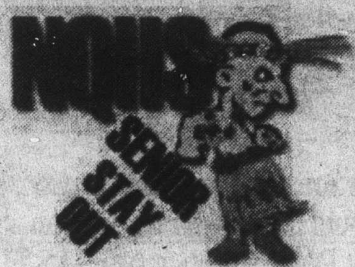

"I think they'll be great since they have a great coaching staff," Mock said. "No one was expecting much from us this year, but we made the second round of the playoffs."

Albeit they have made the tournament in five of his seven seasons as the team's head coach, Gibbons refuses to take credit for the team's accomplishments.

"They dedicate their lives to this," he said of his players. "They play over the summer, they work out in the offseason. I ask a lot of these guys and I ask them to give up a lot. But they do it. We all buy into it, but it's these kids and it's 100 percent them doing it."

"It's a good group of guys, a good community and a good group of alumni as well. I think when you put the jersey on, it's for the thousands who have played. And they play with pride."

On March 1, 2016, at approximately 5:00 p.m., Quincy Police Drug Control Unit Detectives O'Brien, Keenan, Cassidy, Ward, Powers, Duran, O'Rourke, Lieutenant Glynn and Sergeant Tapper set up surveillance on Alrick Road. The Unit was investigating a marijuana distribution business.

Based on information gathered since December 2015, Detective O'Brien was granted search warrants from Quincy District Court for the Alrick Road address and two vehicles there. Detectives from the Braintree and Weymouth Police Departments assisted in the investigation and surveillance too.

At approximately 6:00 p.m., the Detectives observed suspect #1 arrive in his green Odyssey and park in front of the Alrick Road address. He was seen by Detective Keenan carrying a medium sized red plastic bag and a small white bag as he entered the front door of the suspect home. At approximately 7:50 p.m., Detective Duran observed a black Dodge Caravan enter the rear parking lot of the Alrick building. A female exited the vehicle and went inside with the driver.

At approximately 8:10 p.m., Detective Duran observed another male arrive in his white Odyssey and park in the rear parking lot. He then retrieved a large black laundry bag from the rear of the Odyssey and went into the same building the others did. With the suspects all inside the building, the Detectives moved in to execute the search warrants at 11 Alrick Road #2 and both Honda Odyssey's.

Detectives surrounded the residence as Detective O'Brien knocked on the rear door and announced, "Quincy Police Search Warrant." After briefly waiting with no response, the door was breached and entry was made. One male suspect attempted to flee out the front door of the residence but was apprehended by Detective Duran. Two suspects attempted to hide in a bedroom but they were secured by Detective Powers. The remaining suspect was located in the living room.

With all the suspects detained, the Detectives located approximately $60,000 inside the red bag that one of the suspects was observed carrying into the residence. Approximately $17,000 was located inside the residence, some of it in the possession of the male and female who arrived together. In addition to the US Currency, a total of 53 heat sealed 1pound bags of marijuana was found in the residence (20 bags inside black laundry bag, 16 bags in a box and 17 bags in another box).

Detectives also found 8 cellphones, a digital scale, 2 heat/vacuum sealers, a roll of vacuum/heat sealed bags, trash bags and zip lock bags which were seized. Cuff sheets, residency papers, and a deed to an address in Quincy were also seized. It was clearly evident to Detectives that this residence was used solely for the purpose of running a marijuana trafficking business.

The four suspects were placed under arrest and transported to the station for booking. Detective Keenan searched the green Odyssey and located $482 and a cellphone. Both Odyssey's were seized pending civil forfeiture. The four suspects, ranging in age from 37 to 53 and from Quincy and New York City, were charged with, "Trafficking Marijuana and Conspiracy to Violate CSA." Nice Work!

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The week promises a calmer aspect. Although there might be some lingering effects of a recent job problem, things should continue to ease up. Also expect a change in a home-based situation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) If you feel uneasy about a colleague's suggestion, it might be that your wise inner Taurean guide is alerting you to a potential problem. Stepping away could turn out to be the right thing to do.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A family get-together opens up new opportunities for renewing ties. It can be especially effective in dealing with disagreements that should have been, but never were, fully resolved.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might be surprised at the response you get to a recent decision. You might be even more surprised by the reasons behind it. In any event, you'll learn something important.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your aspects favor resolving any tensions left over from a recent incident. You might want to consider having a "clear the air" talk as soon as you can. A call can lead to a change of plans.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Avoid repeating yourself. If your first few efforts fail to connect, maybe it's because you haven't found the right way to get your message across. Try changing your approach.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Good intentions plus a strong resolve to succeed can take you where you want to go. Don't give up just because someone suggests you might be pursuing an impossible cause.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An unexpected setback can be a blessing in disguise. Use it to recheck your facts and how you've presented them. Meanwhile, look for ways to expand your contacts.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You should finally be seeing a positive change in a recent personal situation. However, an on-the-job matter might need more attention than you realized. Stay with it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While you should be close to completing an important matter, you still need to focus on being focused. But things ease up in time for weekend fun with family and friends.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A certain matter might take an unexpected turn. Don't simply accept it; ask for an explanation. What you learn might be helpful in shifting the situation around to your benefit.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Projecting a positive attitude helps restore calm even when you're confronting some pretty stormy situations. Stay the course. The outcome will be well worth your efforts.

BORN THIS WEEK: While you enjoy tradition and stability, you also appreciate the good things that change can bring.

Solid Gains In Real Estate Market Better Weather, Leap Year Factors, Says Register Of Deeds Improved weather from a year ago and a one-day leap year bonus helped propel the Norfolk County real estate market to solid gains in February 2016.

"The month of February saw a 12% increase in the number of land documents recorded compared to the same time period in 2014," said Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell. "Most significantly, the total number of deeds recorded increased by 20% from 870 to 1,042 compared to the previous February. While the weather and leap year were significant factors, I would also argue that this data reflects the vibrancy of Norfolk County's real estate market."

In addition to the increased deed transactions, the total volume of commercial and residential sales also increased by a significant 55% coming in at $519 million. Also, the average sales price of Norfolk County commercial and residential property rose by 23% to $907,950. "These numbers clearly say it all, that Norfolk County remains a destination location to live and work," O'Donnell noted.

The mortgage market was mixed for the month of February, showing a very slight dip in mortgages recorded, but a significant increase in overall mortgage financing.

"The total number of mortgages recorded fell by 3% to 1,911 compared to the same time period in 2015," O'Donnell said. "While this number is hard to assess given all the other positive data, the reduction may be the result of a slight uptick in mortgage rates and also the continuing impact that the new disclosure rules are having on the length of real estate closings.

"However, February 2016 also saw a 63% increase in total mortgage financing, coming in at $1.3 billion. This increase was partly attributable to a $479 million mortgage recorded against a property in Norwood," noted the Register.

In February, Homestead recordings increased by 19%. O'Donnell reiterated the importance of the Homestead Act.

"A Homestead provides limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000," O'Donnell pointed out. "Details on the Homestead Act can be found on our website, www.norfolkdeeds.org. I urge homeowners to consider this vital consumer protection."

February data wasn't all rosy, the Register said.

"A total of 30 foreclosure deeds were recorded last month compared to 25 filings in the previous year, resulting in a 20% increase. This increase is partly attributable to lending institutions that are continuing to work through delinquent mortgages, dating back in some cases to the 2008 recession. More troubling was the con-

Ask Barbara Graceffa: 'Secretary Of The Interior'

What are the differences between hardwood and laminate floors? I am adding an addition to my home for my elderly parents and I need your expertise. Josey

Hardwood floors are made of real wood, can be refinished, and are the only flooring that will add value to your home. They are perfect for most areas, except high moisture ones like bathrooms and basements, and some believe, kitchens, too. They come in unfinished or pre-finished choices in a variety of widths, species (wood types), colors, and designs (like parquet). Some woods are more durable than others and they can fade in direct sunlight. Depending on finishing options, you might be displaced for several days when installers or refinishers are sanding and staining.

However, more folks today are choosing laminates over real wood for cost-savings and ease of installation. Like carpeting and vinyl tiles, laminates are a synthetic flooring option. Laminate floors are bonded layers of a moisture-resistant bottom, a fiberboard core, a photographic decorative layer, and a top wear layer. Laminates can mimic real wood, stone tiles, bricks, and more. They have many advantages: they are thin, durable, and can be installed in one day without glue or nails over your existing floor. Depending on the quality of the laminate and with proper maintenance, they can last 10-25 years. Disadvantages include that they cannot be refinished like hardwood or engineered wood and they can sound hollow when walking on them (but a sound-inhibiting layer can be added to the bottom of the bonded strips to help reduce this).

Here are a few more flooring tips for the elderly from the National Safety Council. All of them will help prevent accidental falls. Avoid elevation changes; choose a ramp over a step or be sure to add texture or color changes to accentuate the different levels. A low-pile carpet versus a deep-pile or shag is more user-friendly for those using a cane or walker and can help cushion a fall in the bathroom. Beware of polished finishes; instead select matte or textured finishes which are less slippery.

City Selected For Community Energy Efficiency Initiative

National Grid Challenges Residents To Complete 701 No-Cost Home Energy Assessments

National Grid has selected the City of Quincy to participate in its 2016 Energy Efficiency Community Initiative, Mayor Thomas Koch announces.

To boost home energy efficiency, the City's new Quincy Saves program encourages residents to take measures to reduce energy used in their homes, while reducing drafts, energy bills and the possibility of ice dams.

National Grid has challenged Quincy residents to complete 701 no-cost home energy assessments by the end of 2016. In addition to checking the safety and efficiency of your heating and hot water systems, residents receive LED and CFL light bulbs and water saving showerheads at no cost, and a personalized report specific to your home.

If the measures are recommended, residents are also eligible for a 75% discount of up to $2,000 in insulation, between $300-$1,600 for an energy efficient heating/hot water system, as well as other discounts and rebates, including 0% loans.

Home energy assessments typically take 2-3 hours. National Grid will track the number of households that have roof or wall insulation installed, replace old inefficient heating systems, and install wi-fi thermostats.

The City stands to earn more than $40,000 from National Grid if City residents achieve all of the initiative's goals; the funds will be used to pay for energy saving measures in Quincy public buildings.

To improve the efficiency of Quincy homes, Mayor Koch announced the creation of the Quincy Saves program to help residents save energy and money.

"Your electric and gas bills includes an 'Energy Efficiency Charge' that National Grid uses to reduce the cost of energy saving measures. Since you've already paid for it, you should use it. The home assessment will find ways to lower your electricity and heating bills and make your home less drafty, while reducing the chance of ice dams," Koch said.

Quincy Saves is a partnership between the City, the nonprofit Home Energy Efficiency Team (HEET), and two Mass Save contractors, Next Step Living and HomeWorks Energy. Quincy Saves will provide outreach and easy accessibility to energy savings services offered by National Grid through Mass Save.

"Saving Quincy residents energy is not only good for your own households, but good for the City. Residents will have lower energy bills, have more money to save or spend as they want, and will reduce the emissions and other harmful environmental impacts associated with natural gas and electricity use," said Shelly Dein, Quincy's Energy and Sustainability Director.

If residents meet the goals outlined in National Grid's initiative, their collective savings is estimated to exceed $150,000 per year. Residents can use either Mass Save approved contractor to participate in Quincy Saves. To sign up, contact: www.HomeWorksEnergy.com/Quincy-Saves/ or call HWE at 617-855-9889; or www.NextStepLiving.com/Quincy or call NSL at 855-704-2992.

Other communities selected for the 2016 Energy Efficiency Community Initiative are Lowell, Swampscott, Melrose, Somerville, Newton, and Winchester.

Kids Walk To Cure Diabetes May 14

The sixth annual JDRF Kids' Walk to Cure Diabetes, a partnership with the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation and many of Quincy Public School students, friends, and family, is set for Saturday, May 14.

The 2.7 mile walk will kick off at 10 a.m. from the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School. Walkers should arrive no later than 9:30 a.m.

The walk will conclude about 45 minutes later with family fun and healthy refreshments.

The money raised will go toward funding for research, treatments, and eventually a cure for Type 1 Diabetes, a disease that affects more than 18 million Americans, with 15,000 children diagnosed each year. JDRF spends more on research from its fundraising than any other nonprofit, with 80% of monies raised going directly to research and development, and just 20% to administrative costs. JDRF is also the largest organization that funds Type 1 Diabetes research in the world.

One of the fundraising tools is the sale of Quincy Kids Walk T-shirts and bracelets that will be available in the coming months for purchase at participating schools.

tinuing increases seen in Notice to Foreclose Mortgage recordings, the first step in the foreclosure process. A total of 55 Notice to Foreclose Mortgages were filed in February compared to 41 in February 2015.

"These filings are a clear indication that while the eastern Massachusetts economy remains strong, many of our neighbors continue to face economic hardship," O'Donnell said.

The Registry of Deeds continues to work with Quincy Community Action Programs and Neighbor Works Southern Mass to help homeowners who have received a Notice to Foreclose Mortgage. Another option for homeowners facing challenges meeting their monthly mortgage payments is to contact the Attorney General's HomeCorps program.

"While there were unique variables that impacted the February real estate market in Norfolk County, it is my contention that these figures provide unmistakable evidence that the economy remains strong and there is a decent pool of buyers and sellers in the housing market," O'Donnell said.

"With that said one thing we need to continue to do is to keep a close eye on real estate inventory. Any reduction could result in a slowdown. Overall, I am pleased the Norfolk County real estate market came through the long days of winter in good shape. I am cautiously looking forward to a strong spring season."

Leonard C. Derbyshire, 90

A funeral for Leonard Carl "Lenny" Derbyshire, 90, of Hingham will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday in Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy, with the Rev. Clifford R. Brown, rector of Christ Church, officiating.

Mr. Derbyshire died peacefully March 2 at Weymouth Healthcare following a short illness.

He was the devoted husband of 37 years to the late Rose C. (Gabriel) Davis Derbyshire, who died Sept. 8, 2015.

Born in Salem, N.H., he was a son of the late Frank H. and Arlene G. (Leach) Derbyshire. As a child, Mr. Derbyshire enjoyed spending time at his father's dairy farm in South Royalston, Vt., and he also had an affinity for clam digging that remained with him throughout life. At age 17, he enlisted in the US Navy and served his country with honor during WWII. He continued his service after the war as a merchant marine.

Mr. Derbyshire started working as a rigger for Bethlehem Steel -later General Dynamics - in 1942 and, except for the years he spent in the military, remained there until retiring in 1984. He was heavily involved in the Shipbuilders Union, Local 5, as an outspoken advocate for its members.

Not one to sit around in retirement, he worked from 1985-1992 as a forklift operator with Armstrong World Industries, and also worked as a greeter at the entrance to the Walmart store in Quincy for many years as well.

Father of Keith Derbyshire and his wife Melba of Bridgewater, Kathy Bugbee and her husband Arthur of NH, Jeffrey Davis and his wife Maxine of Weymouth and Howard David and his wife Sally of VT. Dear brother of Bernice Cincquerano of Hingham, Maxine Maynard of FL, Shirley Smart of Bellingham, the late Myrle Derbyshire and the late Donald Jones. Cherished grandfather of Todd Derbyshire, Cassandra Patterson and Brittany Davis, and great-grandfather of Dylan and Gavin Patterson. Also survived by nieces, nephews, extended family and close friends.

The 20th annual St. Patrick's Day Luncheon will be held Friday, March 18 at 1 p.m. in the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Elks.

Hosted by Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti and Mayor Thomas P. Koch, the festivities will feature music, a full Irish lunch, and of course, the comedic stylings - both good and some not so good - of a number of local leaders.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the Quincy Park Conservancy.

Space is limited. Anyone interested in attending is asked to RSVP to stpatricksquincy@comcast.net. Tickets are $20.

This year, the event will honor Quincy Center restaurateur Leo Keka, owner of Alba, as its Irishman of The Year.

Quincy Ave. Resident Struck, Killed By Taxi

By SCOTT JACKSON

The investigation into the death of a Quincy Avenue resident who was fatally struck by a taxicab he had exited was still ongoing as of early Monday afternoon.

Quincy Police Capt. John Dougan identified the passenger struck by the cab on March 4 as Robert Noyes, a 68-year-old resident who lived at 135 Quincy Avenue.

The driver of the taxi, who worked for Yellow Cab of Quincy, picked Noyes up in Weymouth and drove him to his residence on Quincy Avenue around 2 p.m. March 4, according to Dougan. The driver pulled into a driveway to let Noyes off and did some paperwork before putting the taxi into reverse, striking Noyes.

The driver, whose name has not been released, stayed on scene and spoke with officers once they arrived, Dougan said.

Noyes was found on the ground behind the taxi and had suffered head wounds. He was rushed to Boston Medical Center, where Dougan said he was pronounced dead.

The Police Department's accident reconstruction was still investigating the incident Monday, Dougan stated.

United Methodist Passover Seder March 24

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold a potluck Passover Seder Supper Thursday, March 24.

The reading of the Hagadah will begin at 6:30 p.m.

"Holding a Seder is a way to learn about and to honor Christianity's Jewish roots," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jar-ek-Glidden, church pastor.

"Quincy Community United Methodist Church encourages the participation of everyone, and so the Hagadah—the reading—used is very 'hands on,' everyone who wishes to do so has the opportunity to read and to lead the group," she said.

Because the meal is potluck, everyone is asked to bring a salad, main course, or dessert to share. To ensure that the table is set properly, reservations are required. Reservations may be made by calling the church office at 617-773-3319. Deadline is Sunday, March 20—Palm Sunday.

The church building is handicap accessible through its front entrance at the door nearest the flag pole.

Free Legal Clinic At Quincy District Court

Do you have a legal question or are you confused about a legal issue?

The Bar Association of Norfolk County sponsors free evening legal clinics as a public service to the community.

A free legal clinic is scheduled for Tuesday, May 3 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Quincy District Court, 1 Dennis Ryan Parkway, Quincy.

A panel of attorneys experienced in all areas of the law will be available for a one-on-one consultation to discuss legal questions. All consultations are confidential.

For more information, contact Adrienne Clarke, Bar Association of Norfolk County, at 617-471-9693 or visit www.norfolkbarassn.org.

Purim Events At Beth Shalom Of Blue Hills

The festive Jewish holiday of Purim will be celebrated at Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills (formerly Temples Shalom of Milton and Beth El of Quincy) this year with two special events in March.

On Sunday, March 20th, the synagogue's Rabbi Weistrop Religious School will sponsor its Annual Purim Carnival from noon to 1:30 p.m. at Cunningham Hall, 75 Edge Hill Rd. in Milton. The retelling of the Purim story will precede the Carnival, which will feature games, booths, prizes, raffles, food and fun for all ages, and prizes for costumes. It is open to the entire community with free admission, and tickets for booths and snacks will be available for purchase. All are welcome, especially costumed children.

On Wednesday, March 23rd, at 6:30 p.m. the congregation and guests will enjoy a Passover wine tasting and light refreshments before participating in the traditionally raucous Purim service and interactive Megillah reading at 7:15 p.m.

The wine tasting and service will be hosted by the Ritual Committee and led by Rabbi Fred Benjamin in the Johnson Great Hall of the First Congregational Church, 495 Canton Avenue, Milton, followed by Hamantashen, a traditional three-cornered treat. The public is invited and costumes are encouraged.

The Megillah tells the Purim story of Esther and her uncle Mordecai, who saved their Jewish brethren in ancient Shushan from the evil designs of the wicked Haman. Children and adults wear costumes and listen carefully to the Hebrew text so they can use noisemakers to drown out the name of Haman every time it is uttered.

Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills conducts a full schedule of religious services throughout the year and has a full calendar of cultural, educational and social events. It also operates a religious school for Jewish children of all grade levels.

Beth Shalom's interim sanctuary is at 495 Canton Avenue, at the rear entrance of the First Congregational Church in Milton. For further information about Purim or other temple activities, call the temple office at 617-698-3394, email: office@BethShalomBlueHills.org, or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

Lynch Encourages Students To Get Involved In Public Service of the work that gets done, gets done in committee rather than in full House debate with 435 members. That can become very confusing and it often does during floor debates."

As an example of the work done on Capitol Hill, Lynch highlighted Congress' passage of a $1.1 trillion omnibus bill the week prior. In addition to funding the federal government through the end of September 2016, the bill also includes numerous other provisions.

"The idea is that somewhere in that bill is something that is important to every member and so they don't want to vote against it," Lynch said.

Provisions of the legislation important to him, Lynch explained, included funding for suicide prevention for veterans and housing for veterans; TIGER grants for transportation projects; health benefits for 9/11 first responders; $2 billion for Department of Health and Human Services research grants; and money for alternative energy, particularly wind and solar.

Lynch also fielded questions from those students in attendance.

One student asked the congressman how students interested in public service could get involved. Lynch told her the best way would be to find something she has a passion for and pursue that.

"Do something that you love. The one great thing about my job and that of the federal government is that there is a new issue coming up every seven seconds. You can't be the champion of every cause, because you would just be too spread out," Lynch said. "Find something you really love and have a passion for."

Changes Coming Downtown

announce the format of their project," Geary said.

"I think it's going to be very exciting. It will really be the centerpiece of Hancock Street along that section of Hancock Street, particularly since it will have the dramatic usage of a hotel. It will be about five stories. They're hoping to break ground this summer."

As part of the plan, LBC will be required to setback the new building from Hancock Street to provide wider sidewalks.

"We want to continue the program that we've implemented of widening sidewalks for street usage and activating the sidewalk," Geary said.

The third project announced last April was a proposal from Peter O'Connell to build a 15-story apartment building in the Hancock Lot, near the corner of Dennis Ryan Parkway and Cottage Avenue.

Planners are working with O'Connell - a Quincy-based developer whose previous projects in the city include Marina Bay and State Street South - on siting the project, Geary said, and other matters such as utility lines under the parking lot. At the same time, the city is also working on its plans to build a new parking structure on the Hancock Lot - and an interim parking plan for those displaced during construction.

"We are working with Mr. O'Connell and his team to fix the site in terms of where it would be located," Geary said. "With a 15-story building there are unique structural issues that need to be worked out and financing issues. That's a more complicated project but we are working with them to try to work through those complications."

"It also involves the city's need and plans to build some kind of structured parking over at Hancock Street. Trying to fit his building into an area that ultimately is going to have to accommodate some type of garage structure - both above ground and maybe one floor that is below ground - that's more complicated."

"There are utilities under the Hancock Lot that also need to be relocated, so those issues make the O'Connell project more complicated than the LBC project."

After plans for the LBC and O'Connell projects are finalized, Geary said the city would shift its attention to the remainder of the Hancock Lot.

"We wanted to run the course with these two proposals and once we come to finalization with these two proposals, then we'll look at the next steps as to what the city needs to do for additional development as well as a parking garage," he said.

The Galvcon project is not the only downtown redevelopment underway. Last spring, Quincy Mutual and Gate Residential began work on West of Chestnut, which features two six-story buildings with a combined 169 apartments and 12,000 square feet of street level retail space. Tenants will begin moving into the first building on May 1 and the second is set for completion in August.

"The near completion of West of Chestnut is creating more interest by developers in investing in downtown Quincy," Geary said. "We're meeting with every developer who expresses an interest and has the apparent capacity to follow through on making a substantial contribution to the vitality of the city."

Possible Court Facility At T Station Concerns Residents

By SCOTT JACKSON

The idea of building a new court facility as part of the plan to construct a new Quincy Center transit station was a cause of concern among city residents who spoke out during a recent community meeting on the redevelopment of the MBTA property.

More than 50 people attended the community meeting, held March 10 in the lower level of the McIntyre Government Center. About three-quarters of those present said they take the MBTA on a daily basis, many of them walking to the Quincy Center station.

A 2014 state law that aside $10 million for the new Quincy Center station designated the city as the lead governmental agency for the project. William Geary, special counsel to Mayor Thomas Koch for downtown development, said that the 2014 law also required the city to consider further development at the site.

"What we must do is rebuild the T station and the garage - that's the definitive, mandatory thing that must occur," Geary said. "Under that law, we're also obligated to look at the feasibility of doing something in addition to that, which would enhance the downtown development the city has been pursuing over the course of the last eight years."

Geary noted that the City Council must approve any project built over the MBTA air rights.

Keenan Bill Next Step In Opioid Battle Wants Insurers To Provide Coverage For 28 Days Of Addiction Treatment

By SCOTT JACKSON

It was an emotional scene at the State House Monday as Gov. Charlie Baker signed into law a new bill that includes several measures meant to rein in the rise in opioid abuse seen in recent years throughout the Bay State, said Sen. John Keenan, the Quincy Democrat who authored several of the bill's key provisions.

"It was emotional for many people. The governor was emotional as was the attorney general," Keenan said in an interview Monday afternoon. "This issue hits home with a lot of people and that showed today."

With the ink dry on the new legislation signed Monday, Keenan is preparing to work on a new bill, which

Quincy Police Safety Tips For Pedestrians, Motorists

By LT. DAN MINTON
Quincy Police Crime Prevention Unit

In 2012, in Quincy, there were five pedestrian fatalities. The Quincy Police Department immediately took an aggressive approach to bring the number down.

The Crime Prevention Unit created a multi-faceted program which consists of education and enforcement.

Officers have spoken to various groups in the city, including presentations in Cantonese via an interpreter. With the assistance of Quincy Access Television, videos were created to show safe walking tips as well as an in depth presentation by the Traffic Division which shows pedestrians placing themselves at risk. A new series of videos are currently being created in both English and Cantonese.

As for enforcement, numerous teams of officers continue to go out weekly to various crosswalks around the city to stop motorists who fail to yield to pedestrians.

The main purpose of the crosswalk enforcement is to educate motorists and pedestrians about rules of the road in order to prevent accidents and injuries," said Police Chief Paul Keenan. "The bulk of citations issued are warnings to motorists, which gives the officer an opportunity to explain the violation in depth. The educational programs that we offer are invaluable too. We strongly urge pedestrians to use crosswalks and for motorists to be aware of pedestrians whether they are in the crosswalk or not." It is often poor decisions that drivers and/or pedestrians make that cause these accidents, such as texting, reading, using headphones or any other actions that result in not being aware of their surroundings. It is interesting that almost all of the pedestrians struck are adults. Maybe this is because children not only know the safety issues of crossing the street, but they also abide by them. It often seems that adults are too impatient to wait for the pedestrian light or to go to a crosswalk.

In addition to daily enforcement, the Quincy

Quincy Firefighter Seeks Hanover State Rep. Seat

By SCOTT JACKSON

The head of the Quincy firefighters union is running for state representative this fall in Hanover.

Paul Moody Jr. announced his candidacy Monday for the Fifth Plymouth District seat, which includes Hanover, Norwell and Rockland. David DeCoste, a Norwell Republican, has represented the district on Beacon Hill since unseating Democrat Rhonda Nyman in 2014.

The 46-year-old Moody is running as a Democrat.

PAUL MOODY, Jr.

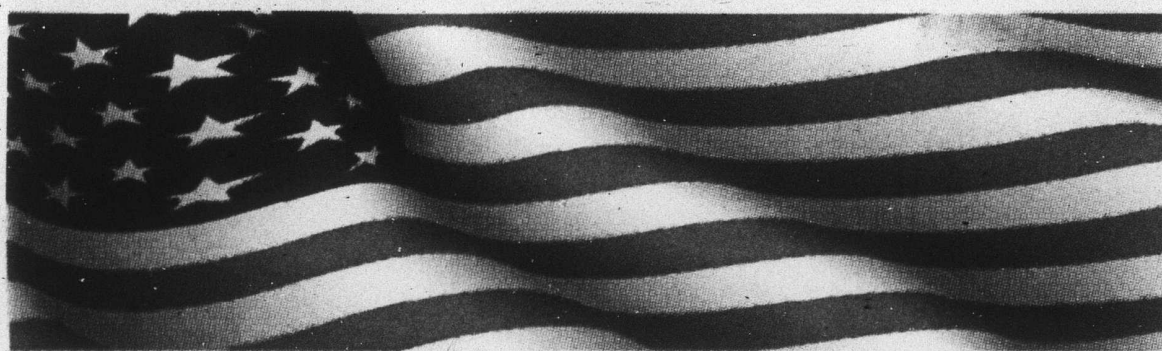

Moody has been president of the Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792 for three years and a member of the Fire Department for 16 years. He told The Sun he would step away from his union position if elected to the seat in November, though he would remain in service as a firefighter.

"I wouldn't be able to do the seat justice or the union justice," Moody said.

Moody said firefighters in the city work two nights and two days each week on a rotating basis, giving him enough time to dedicate to both the position on Beacon Hill and in the Fire Department.

140-Room Hotel Proposal Gets Warm Reception

At Arlington And West Squantum Streets

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposed 140-room hotel in North Quincy would operate under a Marriott or Hilton brand and primarily cater to business travelers, the developer behind the project said during a recent public hearing at which city officials and residents largely voiced their support for the project.

Cathartes, a Boston-based real estate development firm, has proposed building the six-story hotel at the corner of Arlington and West Squantum Streets on what is now a vacant 1.3-acre lot. The project also

Pedestrian Fatalities Under Investigation

No Charges Filed As Of Tuesday

By SCOTT JACKSON

The deaths of two pedestrians struck and killed by motor vehicles this month in the city remained under investigation as of Tuesday morning, according to the Quincy Police Department.

The drivers in both incidents had not been charged, Capt. John Dougan said, with the investigations ongoing.

A pedestrian, identified as Francis McCarthy, was struck and killed shortly after 7 p.m. March 10. McCarthy, who was in his 80s, was rushed to Boston Medical Center where he later succumbed to his injuries, according to police.

A preliminary investigation indicated McCarthy was crossing Hancock Street and the vehicle that struck him — a 2001 Honda Accord — was traveling northbound, police said the following day. The Accord's driver, identified as a 58-year-old woman from Boston, remained on scene.

McCarthy was the third pedestrian killed by a motor vehicle in Quincy this year, according to Dougan, and the second in March.

A 68-year-old Quincy Avenue resident was struck and killed March 4 by a taxicab he had just exited outside his residence. Dougan on Tuesday said that accident remained under investigation.

In January, an 84-year-old man died after he and a 73-year-old woman were struck by a pickup truck backing out of a spot in the parking lot of the Dunkin' Donuts at 687 Hancock St. in Wollaston. The driver of the pickup was not charged following the police investigation, Dougan said.

Easter Candy Sale March 25

The public is invited to an Easter Candy Sale and Raffles in the Hancock Park Lobby, 164 Parkway, Quincy, Friday, March 25 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The sale will feature homemade candies, Easter baskets, baked goods, raffle drawings, spring plants and Easter cards.

Raffle tickets may be purchased in the lobby store prior to the sale or at the sale. Cost is $1 for one ticket or $5 for six tickets.

Those who would like to donate baked goods to the sale may bring them to Adult Day Health on Thursday, March 24 between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. or Friday morning, March 25.

Proceeds will benefit Adult Day Health's recreation programs.

Cigarette Likely Caused Atlantic St. Fire

By SCOTT JACKSON

A two-alarm fire on Atlantic Street in North Quincy was likely caused by a cigarette, according to the Quincy Fire Department.

Deputy Chief Paul Griffith said firefighters responded to the fire at 93 Atlantic St. shortly after midnight on March 6. The first company on scene struck a second alarm immediately upon arriving.

The fire, in an enclosed porch in the rear of the house, took approximately 30 to 40 minutes to extinguish. Griffith estimated that it caused $130,000 worth of damage to the building. The building's four occupants were displaced by the fire.

All four residents were outside the house by the time firefighters arrived, though a cat living in the second floor apartment was killed. Two of the residents were taken to Boston Medical Center for burns. Griffith said the fire likely started when one of the residents — who had burns on his hands — fell asleep while smoking.

No firefighters were injured, Griffith said.

PURE PLATINUM

Gold may be the precious metal that first comes to mind for many people, but platinum is among the purest and rarest metals on earth. The platinum jewelry sold in this country is generally composed of 90 to 95 percent pure platinum, while 18k gold is 75 percent pure gold, and 14k gold is 58.3 percent pure gold. Platinum is also denser than gold (weighing 60 percent more than karat gold) and is also the stronger and more durable of the two precious metals. As far as rarity is concerned, ten tons of ore must be mined to produce a single ounce of platinum, while only three tons of ore are required to produce one ounce of gold.

Platinum's beautiful color and elegance make it an ideal choice for brides and all jewelry lovers. Unlike other metals, platinum does not expand or distort when exposed to heat, and it never tarnishes. Instead, it ages beautifully by developing a lustrous patina. For the latest trends in jewelry, stop by our store at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center or call 617-773-3636. We pay top dollar for old unwanted or broken jewelry.

Don't Forget: We pay Cash for Gold - Platinum - Diamonds... highest prices paid.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On April 1, 1700, English pranksters begin popularizing the annual tradition of April Fools' Day by playing practical jokes on each other. It's thought that when the start of the new year moved to Jan. 1 with the adoption of the Gregorian calendar, some people unwittingly continued to celebrate it in late March through April 1, and they became the butt of jokes and hoaxes.

- On March 30, 1867, U.S. Secretary of State William H. Seward signs a treaty with Russia for the purchase of Alaska for $7 million. The deal was ridiculed in Congress and in the press as "Seward's folly," "Seward's icebox," and President Andrew Johnson's "polar bear garden."

- On March 31, 1889, the Eiffel Tower is dedicated in Paris. The Tower was almost demolished when the lease on the land expired in 1909, but its value as an antenna for radio transmission saved it.

- On April 3, 1948, President Harry Truman signs off on legislation establishing the Foreign Assistance Act of 1948, known as the Marshall Plan, to aid in the economic recovery of Europe after World War II.

- On March 29, 1951, in one of the most sensational trials in American history, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg are convicted of espionage for their role in passing atomic secrets to the Soviets. They were executed in 1953.

- On March 28, 1979, the worst nuclear accident in U.S. history takes place at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania. Due to technical malfunctions and human error, the reactor came within an hour of a complete meltdown.

- On April 2, 1992, a jury in New York finds mobster John Gotti, nicknamed "the Teflon Don" for his ability to avoid conviction, guilty on 13 counts. FBI official James Fox was quoted as saying, "The don is covered in Velcro, and every charge stuck." (c) 2016 King Features Synd., Inc.

FF Walter J. Rizzi Remembered

When Quincy firefighter Walter J. Rizzi died while on duty nearly 46 years ago, his obituary was not even front-page news.

A few lines about his sudden death appeared on an inside page of one of the daily papers a day after he suffered a fatal heart attack at the Squantum fire station May 18, 1970. The single man and lifelong Quincy resident was only 44. He had served 16 years of his life working for the Quincy Fire Department.

"It was a Sunday," says Walter's nephew, Ed Rizzi, holding back a tear while remembering that sorrowful day. "He died at the fire station with the three other men who were his buddies."

"He did what he loved. I think he was where he wanted to be. I am a firm believer that he didn't die at Quincy City Hospital. I'm sure he never made it out of the fire house alive."

Nearly 46 years have passed since Walter J. Rizzi was laid to rest. It's a sad loss and irreplaceable void that his family still feels today.

This May 18th will mark the 46th anniversary since Walter's death.

And while his family has never forgotten Walter, his service to the city will now also be remembered for years to come.

Last week, Quincy fire officials and fellow firefighters from Engine 7 in Squantum dedicated a memorial plaque in Walter's honor outside the front doors to the fire station.

The bronze plaque reads:

"In memory of Walter J. Rizzi, Appointed to Quincy Fire Department Jan. 30, 1954, died suddenly while on duty at this fire house May 18, 1970."

Also attending the dedication was 86-year-old Arthur Rizzi - Walter's brother and Ed Rizzi's father. They paused just outside the fire house door reading the inscription as the marker basked in the bright afternoon sunshine.

"I am very proud of my older brother," said Arthur Rizzi, a retired Quincy school custodian who worked for the city for 50 years. "And we are happy he will be recognized forever with this nice plaque. My brother Walter was proud to be a Quincy firefighter."

Walter Rizzi came from a Quincy firefighting family.

His father, Joseph W. Rizzi, was a 32-year veteran of the Quincy Fire Department. He retired Jan. 31, 1965 as a captain. He first worked as a temporary firefighter in 1933. Back then, firefighters earned about $44 a week. When he retired as a captain, he was making about $80 a week.

Joseph Rizzi died Oct. 4, 1971 - about 16 months after his son Walter passed away.

One of Walter's brothers - Roy Rizzi - was also a Quincy firefighter. He served the department for 38 years before retiring as a lieutenant in 1992. He was appointed a Quincy firefighter in 1954.

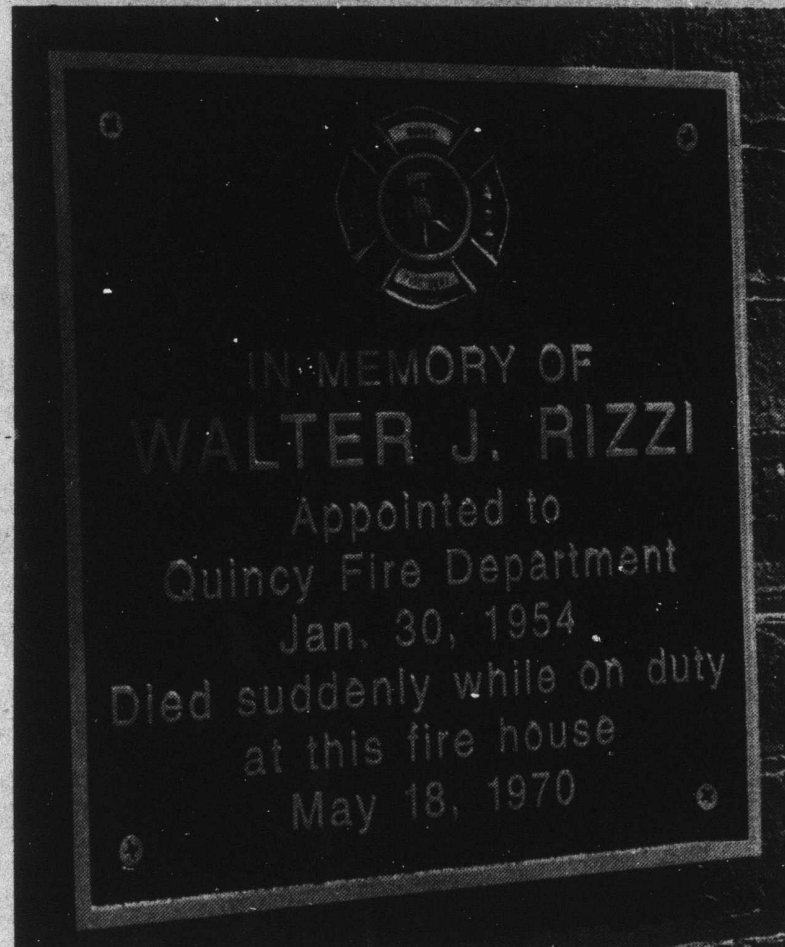

Joseph Rizzi also had a brother who was a Quincy firefighter. John Rizzi worked 28 years for the QFD and retired in 1965 as a lieutenant.

All four firefighting Rizzis were on the department at the same time for part of their careers. Adding in Arthur's service as a custodian, the five combined for 164 years of service.

A MEMORIAL PLAQUE honoring the late Quincy firefighter Walter J. Rizzi was recently dedicated at the Squantum Fire House. Walter served the department 16 years. He died while on duty suffering a fatal heart attack 46 years ago this May 18.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1932 postcard is a view of the Dutchland Farms restaurant at 521 Southern Artery here in Quincy. Dutchland Farms roadside stores offered 30 flavors of ice cream along with hot dogs and sandwiches and they also sold milk, butter and eggs from their farm in Brockton. In 1939 this store became a Howard Johnson's restaurant as did many other Dutchland Farms locations in the Northeast when Howard Johnson acquired the bankrupt company's assets and franchise agreements. The acquisition played a huge role in the future of his company. Johnson adopted the orange roofs and blue and white trim colors used by Dutchland and they became his trademark. To replace Dutchland's familiar windmills as seen behind the car on the left he began to aggressively use what became the iconic cupola on his rooftops. The rest is history. In addition to the restaurant shown here there was another Dutchland Farms ice cream stand in Quincy at the end of Rice Road on Wollaston Beach but it was closed before Johnson bought the company. On the right in this view is a gas tank at the Citizens Gas Light Company on Brackett Street now the site of the Town Brook House. Today this roadside stand would be in the Stop & Shop parking lot on the Artery. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Election: Divide Country More Or Bring It Together Again

Donald Trump calls himself a "unifier." Others have called him a "reformer," while others "a Hitler," while others call him a "monster." Whatever, having him shockingly come this far in the elections is the fault of both the Republican and Democratic Parties.

And then, in the Democratic side, we have Hillary Clinton and Bernie Sanders. Clinton has her "trust" issue, while Sanders has the "inexperience" and "age" issues. Simply put, if the two political parties were just honest with the public, we wouldn't be in this situation with Trump, Cruz, Rubio, Clinton, and Sanders. If both parties lived up to and fulfilled their promises to the American people, we wouldn't be in this chaos.

If the Republican and Democratic parties had worked together and dealt with the country's problems and issues, instead of bickering with each other, and dividing this country, the voters would not be so desperate, angry, frustrated, extreme.

What have I noticed so far?

- Voters have come out in droves to vote. (I never knew that, in Mass., there are at least 580,000 Republicans. A significant number.)

- The young people are again participating and getting involved in the presidential campaigns. I would think they would be discouraged and would not, especially after President Obama's disappointing two terms. But, here they are again, front and center.

- Like it or not, many voters are showing their true colors, feelings / beliefs, in regards to racism, minorities, social class, extremism, religion...

- Many are intimidated about talking about the presidential candidates, either for or against him / her, for fear of high voltage criticism or worse.

- This 2016 U.S. Presidential Election would either further divide the country or somehow bring it together again.

May God have mercy on this country.

Funding Needed For Lyme Disease Research, Prevention

The cases of Lyme disease in Norfolk County has grown substantially over the past ten plus years.

According to the CDC (2015), Norfolk county went from 25 cases in 2000, to 648 cases in 2014. Lyme disease is a bacterial infection caused by a bacterium known as Borrelia burgdorferi. It is transmitted when a human is bitten by an infected blacklegged tick. If left untreated, symptoms will begin to develop which range from mild to severe.

Early symptoms include, headaches, fatigue, fever, and chills. A hallmark circular rash occurs at the site of the bite which tends to be warm to touch, and non-painful (CDC, 2015).

Severe symptoms include inflammation of the brain and spinal cord (CDC, 2015). It is imperative that the community knows how to protect themselves from Lyme disease as the spring and summer months are when tick exposure is at its highest.

Preventative measures include, avoiding areas that are wooded or with high grass and bushes. Utilizing tick repellent, such as DEET 20-30% on the skin and clothes, and permethrin 0.5% on clothes alone (CDC, 2015). Lastly, completing a full body check for any ticks after being outdoors is imperative for quick removal of the tick.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts recognizes that Lyme disease is an epidemic throughout the state, and that there needs to be better funding for research and prevention.

Being a healthcare provider I would advocate that the department of public health place more funding towards education on preventative measures of Lyme disease in the community to raise awareness. It is imperative that members of the community keep themselves well informed, and protected in these upcoming months.

Be aware of your surroundings, apply protective measures when outside, and monitor for any potential exposure.

Quincy Revaluation Delay Possible, Assessors Say

New property valuations may not be put into effect for 1967 tax bills, the board of assessors disclosed today.

William J. Callahan, chairman of the Board of Assessors, attributed the possibility of a delay to a likely postponement of distribution of State Aid information and the need for time to review the valuation recommendation of Cole, Layer and Trumble.

In the same statement, Mr. Callahan said a board decision to postpone use of the new values until 1968 may not bring on court action to force 1967 use of the new figures. (Editor's note: The 100% valuations contained in the Cole, Layer and Trumble report were never used. Full, fair (100%) valuation of real and personal property was not implemented until FY 1984.)

BELLOTTI CLEARED OF CONFLICT OF INTEREST CHARGES

A three-member special committee appointed by Attorney General Elliot Richardson cleared former Lt. Governor Francis X. Bellotti of conflict of interest charges leveled by Richardson during the November 1966 election campaign.

In a two-page report the committee stated that "By virtue and as a result of such an investigation, the committee is satisfied there is no evidence that Francis X. Bellotti performed any acts which were in violation of the conflict of interest sections of Chapter 268A of the General Laws."

Radio's Ron Della Chiesa Speaks At Neighborhood Club

The Neighborhood Club recently hosted an event with a packed house for Boston broadcasting icon and Quincy native Ron Della Chiesa.

The event was supported by the State Sons of Italy Culture Commission, as Della Chiesa is an active Sons of Italy member. The ballroom was filled with members of the Sons of Italy from throughout the state, who helped the Neighborhood Club make this event a great success.

The evening began with an Italian buffet featuring several pastas, baked scrod, and a roast beef carving station. Quincy's Neighborhood Club chefs and wait staff did an outstanding job, and the past president of the Club, Jim Egan, welcomed all.

Della Chiesa gave an outstanding presentation on Frank Sinatra's life, as a celebration of Sinatra's 100th birthday, with a life-size Sinatra cardboard cut-out beside him. He covered Sinatra's youth in Hoboken, N.J., his big band era, and his major recording studio work.

Della Chiesa accompanied his talk with recordings from each of Sinatra's eras. The crowd applauded and sang along, all having a great time. He then introduced his book, "Radio My Way," and reflected on his life in broadcasting. He sold and autographed books, with the help of his wife Joyce, at the end of the evening. The line to purchase his books snaked around the ballroom.

Egan presented Della Chiesa with a citation from the Club. State Sons of Italy Vice President Denise Furnari gave Della Chiesa a beautiful certificate of appreciation from the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. Dr. Dean Saluti, Chairman of the State Sons of Italy Culture Commission, read a citation from Mayor Thomas Koch of Quincy, declaring Feb. 25, 2016 as "Ron Della Chiesa Day in the City of Quincy."

RON AND JOYCE Della Chiesa greeting guests, and Ron autographing his book, "Radio My Way."

Easter's Tasty Ring Of Pastry

By MARIE

Today's recipe is a tried and true one I always make for Easter. It had been in my column before, but I failed to tell you that one thing can be eliminated from the recipe – and that is the placing of the hard boiled eggs on the top. Just making the round ring iced and sprinkled with colored candy on top is effective.

I use anise oil, but anise extract is good also.

ANISE RING

3 cups flour
3/4 cup butter (softened)
1 cup of sugar
2 eggs
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons anise extract (or 3/4 teaspoon anise oil)
1/4 cup milk

3 hard boiled eggs for topping (6 if a large ring)

Mix the butter and sugar together. Alternately add the eggs one at a time, the anise, milk, and the dry ingredients. Mix until it is a dough. If it seems too moist, add a touch more of flour. Save a little of the dough to make strips to seal the eggs on top.

Place on a floured board and make two rings or one large one.

Place on an ungreased cookie sheet or parchment paper. Place three eggs around the ring and seal with the little strips of left-over dough. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes.

When cooled, place icing and sprinkles on top.

ICING FOR THE TOP

1 cup powdered sugar
a little cream of milk to mix
A smidgen of anise flavoring if desired
Sprinkles on top

Turkey Zucchini Poppers

By SUZIE

Here is a fantastic and incredibly simple recipe when you are getting bored of the same old things. This is so good for you loaded with protein and vegetables, you can certainly feel good about eating, and serving this to your family!

TURKEY ZUCCHINI POPPERS

1 lb. ground organic turkey
2 Cups grated zucchini (leave on skin)
2-3 green onions, minced
3-4 sweet basil, fresh parsley, combo

1 Clove garlic, minced
1 TSP sea salt
1/2 TSP pepper
1/2 tsp garlic powder

Instructions: Mix ground turkey and remaining ingredients in large mixing bowl. Spoon out about 9 or 10 nugget size pieces and saute' in olive oil for about 5 minutes on each side.

You can eat them plain or dip in your favorite sauce. I use marinara or aioli! Enjoy!!

Cereal Coconut Cookies

By MARIE

I'm always looking for recipes for cookies since it is a family favorite and mine too. Today's recipe combines coconut and cereal together with great results.

I always make a larger sized cookie instead of the smaller one that the recipe calls for. But this recipe makes 3 dozen if measuring by the teaspoon.

CEREAL COCONUT COOKIES

1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup granulated sugar

1 egg
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup unsweetened coconut flakes
1 cup Wheaties (or a favorite unsweetened kind)

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Mix the butter, sugars, egg and vanilla. Stir in the dry ingredients. Blend in the coconut and the cereal. On an ungreased cookie sheet, drop dough by teaspoonfuls, and bake 8 to 10 minutes. Use a tablespoon for a larger cookie.

Mariano Honored As The Arc Of MA's Legislator Of The Year

Quincy state representative and House Majority Leader Ron Mariano was recently honored by The Arc of Massachusetts as its Legislator of the Year in recognition of his work and dedication to advancing the rights of persons with disabilities.

Speaker Bob DeLeo led the presentation to Rep. Mariano accompanied by Leo Sarkissian of The Arc and artist Roon Das whose artwork was given to the honoree.

Majority Leader Mariano led House negotiations for health care cost reform which included key elements for individuals with disabilities.

He also supported the passage of ARICA (private insurance for autism services) and has always been accessible to disability advocates.

Leo Sarkissian, executive director of The Arc noted, "Representative Mariano has supported progressive policies for individuals with disabilities and their families. We appreciate his leadership."

Speaking on the theme of "Celebrating Individuals and Families," Isaiah Lombardo and his mother, Angela Lombardo shared their story as a youth and parent who worked together to help overcome barriers in school and community. In addition to many state legislator attendees were administration officials including Commissioner Elin Howe of Dept. of Developmental Services, Commissioner Nicky Osborne of the Mass. Rehabilitation Commission, Rebecca Brink, Dir. of Legislative Affairs at Health and Human Services, and MassHealth Medical Director, Carolyn Langer, M.D.

The Arc is a statewide advocacy organization representing 200,000 individuals with 18 chapters in the state. It works to enhance the lives of persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities and their families.

Create Clean Renewable Sources Of Power

On Feb. 16, the Quincy City Council passed a unanimous resolution supporting two bills before the state legislature, both designed to accelerate repairs to leaking underground gas pipes. Quincy Climate Action Network commends the councilors for this vote, and especially Councilor Brian Palmucci, who introduced the resolution. We join the City Council in urging Quincy's statehouse delegation to work for speedy passage of both bills—H. 2870 and H. 2871.

According to paperwork filed by National Grid, Quincy has more than 600 gas leaks. Many have gone unrepaired for years, and some for decades. Leaks from underground gas pipes kill street trees and cause human diseases including asthma. They also contribute to climate change, accounting for no less than 10 percent of the state's carbon footprint.

The problems with natural gas don't end with the leaking pipes beneath our streets. Because of other leaks, from gas wells and the transmission lines that bring gas in from out of state, fracked gas is as bad or worse than coal when it comes to causing climate change, according to research by Cornell University scientists. Unfortunately, the state, under Gov. Baker, is putting expanded gas infrastructure, including unpopular projects like the Kinder Morgan pipeline and the Fore River compressor station, at the center of its energy policy. Adding insult to injury, the administration wants ratepayers to foot the bill for these projects.

For the sake of our health and the health of the planet, Massachusetts citizens should reject these projects and others like them, and demand an energy policy that meets our needs through increased efficiency, demand response, and clean renewable sources of power.

Each day, parents bring their children to the pediatrician for assistance in determining whether their ill child has a cold or something more.

In the U.S. children's colds cost us approximately 22 million missed school days and 20 million parental missed days of work every year. In most cases, these are the "just a cold" variety of virus. However, we also are aware that other, less ordinary infections can develop in our kids, and these need evaluation by the pediatrician to determine if treatment is required.

Bacterial and viral infections have numerous things in common. Both types of infections are caused by microbes, bacteria and viruses, and are spread by things such as:

- Coughing and sneezing.
- Contact with infected people; especially through kissing and sex.
- Contact with contaminated surfaces, food, and water.
- Contact with infected creatures, including pets, livestock, and insects such as fleas and ticks.

Most importantly, both bacterial and viral infections can cause mild, moderate, and severe diseases.

Although bacteria and viruses are both too small to be seen without a microscope, they're as distinctive as night and day.

Bacteria are complex, single-celled organisms that can reproduce on their own. Most bacteria are harmless, and some actually aid by digesting food, destroying disease-causing microbes, fighting cancer cells, and providing essential nutrients. Less than 1% of bacteria cause diseases in people.

The main reason you might want to identify if you have a bacterial rather than a viral infection is because only the bacterial variety will respond to antibiotics. Antibiotics are not effective against viruses, and many leading organizations now recommend against using antibiotics unless there is clear evidence of a bacterial infection.

Viruses are smaller than bacteria. Unlike bacteria, viruses can't survive without a host. They can only reproduce by attaching themselves to cells. In most cases, they reprogram the cells to make new viruses until the cells explode and die. In other cases, they alter normal cells into malignant or cancerous cells. Also unlike bacteria, most viruses DO cause disease, and they're extremely specific about the cells they attack.

In some cases, it's difficult to determine the origin of an infection because many illnesses, including pneumonia, meningitis, and diarrhea can be caused by either bacteria or viruses. But your doctor often can pinpoint the cause by performing a medical history and doing a physical exam.

Vaccines have drastically reduced the number of new cases of viral diseases such as polio, measles, and chickenpox. In addition, vaccines can prevent such viral infections such as the flu, hepatitis A, hepatitis B and HPV. But the treatment of viral infections has proved more challenging, primarily because viruses are relatively tiny and reproduce inside cells.

Common viral infections such as an upper respiratory infection can typically be detected by runny nose, cough, low-grade fever, sore throat, and difficulty sleeping. No antibiotics or antiviral medications can hasten recovery from the cold. When compared to adults, upper respiratory infections in children may last longer (up to 14 days) and occur more frequently (average six to eight per year).

In some cases we become more concerned that the infection may be caused by a bacterial infection. Bacterial infections may be the result of "secondary infection" (meaning that the virus initiated the process but a bacteria followed) when the:

- Symptoms persist longer than the expected 10-14 days a virus tends to last
- Fever is higher than one might typically expect from a virus
- Fever gets worse a few days into the illness rather than improving

Sinusitis, ear infections, and pneumonias are common examples of secondary infections. For example, a runny nose that persists beyond 10-14 days may be a sinus infection that would be best treated with an antibiotic. Ear pain and new onset fever after several days of a runny nose is probably an ear infection. These infections may or may not require an antibiotic.

Other bacterial illnesses that we are concerned about include urinary tract infections (UTIs), which can be hard to detect and can cause kidney damage if they are untreated. If your child has a fever without a great source of infection, your doctor will likely want to check the urine.

More serious concerns are bacterial illnesses like sepsis (bacteria in the blood) and bacterial meningitis (bacterial infection in the lining of the brain and spinal cord). We become concerned about meningitis in older children with a stiff neck or changes in mental status. Babies are less likely to be able to show us these symptoms; and we are more likely to do more tests on them to make sure these infections are not part of the illness.

Keep in mind, many of the vaccines your child receives in their first year of life are meant to prevent some of these bacterial diseases.

Whether the infection turns out to be caused by virus or bacteria, you should observe your child for any of the following signs and get medical attention if they develop:

- Dehydration, demonstrated by decreased fluid intake; urination less than three times in 24 hours; or decreased tears with crying
- Difficulty breathing including fast breathing, nostril flaring, use of rib, stomach, or neck muscles to breathe
- Noticeably decreased activity or responsiveness
- No improvement over a three to five day period
- All children under three months of age with a fever

Keep in mind that children, who are around other children, usually will have more frequent infections. Thankfully, most children these days, because they have received vaccines that prevent most serious secondary bacterial infections, will have viruses that will need supportive care only.

Police Department also received a grant from the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security (EOPSS) Highway Safety Division (from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration) to improve pedestrian and bicyclist safety. This resulted in over 5,500 citations issued to motorists from 2013 to 2015.

In addition, there were hundreds of interactions with pedestrians and bicyclists about crosswalk violations they committed. Officers passed out educational pamphlets in English and Cantonese at major intersections to stress the importance of using crosswalks appropriately.

Bottom Line: The measures taken since 2012 resulted in a total of four fatalities from 2013 to 2015 compared to the five fatalities alone in 2012. As successful as these efforts have been, Chief Keenan remarked, "We strive to get the number to zero and it is possible, but we need the driving and walking public to do their part to prevent these accidents."

Nationally, about 6000

pedestrians are killed each year and thousands more seriously injured. Here are some safety tips:

- Looking and listening are key to crossing the street safely.
- Always use the crosswalk if available.
- Wait for lights to turn red and yellow.
- Look both ways before crossing, looking left, then right and then back to the left.
- Look for the white safe crossing light to be on. If you are halfway across the street, and the red crossing light comes on, continue across.
- Keep your head up as you cross the street for possible danger, like a motorist turning right on red or a bicyclist not obeying the traffic light.
- When no crosswalk is available, drivers may not expect pedestrians to cross. Use extra safety when emerging between cars onto the street.
- Walk on sidewalks or paths. If there are no sidewalks, walk facing traffic as far to the left as possible.
- Avoid using headphones or texting when crossing.

Even telephone conversations can distract you from concentrating on oncoming traffic.

- When crossing four lanes, like Hancock Street at the high school, if one car stops to let you go, be sure the other vehicles in the lane also stop.
- Watch for cars backing out of driveways or parking spots. Look for white lights in the rear of the vehicle to show backing up motion and listen for car engines coming from parked cars.
- At night, pedestrians can be hard to see. Wear bright colored clothing or have reflective materials on. Reflective stripes can often be found on certain sneakers.
- Wet pavement requires extra time for cars to stop and is slippery for walkers.
- One of the most important tips: as a vehicle approaches, try to make mutual eye contact with the driver. If the driver is texting or preoccupied, he/she may not see you. If the driver sees you, he/she may motion for you to cross. Don't assume that because you can see the driver, that they can see you.

Foreclosure Assistance Programs Available

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell reminds homeowners who are confronting the challenges of paying their mortgage or facing a foreclosure that there are consumer programs available to help them out.

"During the past several years our office has partnered with reputable agencies by promoting their services when it comes to mortgage modification and foreclosure issues. We realized that while Norfolk County is a destination location for many homeowners to live and work, some of our neighbors are facing economic hardships. Just last month there were 30 foreclosures recorded at the Registry and 55 notice to foreclose mortgages initiated against homeowners," O'Donnell said.

Those facing mortgage delinquencies or foreclosure actions can contact either the Quincy Community Action Programs at (617) 479-8181 x-376 or NeighborWorks

Southern Mass at (508) 587-0950 x-46. Another option is the Massachusetts Attorney General's HomeCorps program at (617) 573-3333. These agencies provide a range of assistance from helping with the mortgage modification process to providing legal services to stave off a foreclosure and to offering several forms of credit counseling.

Additional information can be found on the Registry's website, www.norfolkdeeds.org under the Support tab.

O'Donnell also had a cautionary warning those seeking such services.

"It's important for you to seek the right source such as a non-profit or state agency as cited above," he said. "Unfortunately, foreclosure rescues and mortgage modifications are becoming a growing scam. Some unscrupulous private companies look to prey on desperate consumers and make unreasonable promises while wanting outlandish fees for service."

O'Donnell concluded: "The Registry is unequivocally committed to helping those facing a mortgage delinquency or foreclosure by directing them to the appropriate agency that can hopefully put them back on the road to financial recovery. I urge people who feel that they need such services to contact the agencies referenced above."

Free Tax Help At QCAP

United Way of Massachusetts Bay and Merrimack Valley and the Greater Quincy Financial REACH Center at Quincy Community Action Programs are partnering to offer free tax preparation services to eligible taxpayers from now through April 15.

The effort is aimed at raising awareness among eligible filers that they can receive the free services along with help maximizing the refunds and credits they have earned, such as the often-unclaimed Earned Income Tax Credit. Last year, United Way's free tax preparation efforts helped 2,177 individuals file returns and claim nearly $3.8 million in Earned Income Tax Credits.

A filer who is married, filing jointly, with three children can make as much as $53,267 and be eligible for the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC). Eligibility for the EITC varies by marital status and number of dependents claimed. The free tax preparation service will be offered at United Way's Financial Stability Center location in at 1509 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Filers can also dial 211, United Way's information and referral line, to find additional tax preparation sites closest to where they live or work.

According to the IRS, 404,000 individuals in Massachusetts claimed the Earned Income Tax Credit in 2014. The IRS estimates that 20% of eligible taxpayers in Massachusetts do not claim the credit, effectively leaving the refund they earned on the government's table instead of their own. Using the Massachusetts' average combined refund amount of $2,081, this calculates to an estimated $210 million that is left unclaimed.

"The Earned Income Tax Credit and our Free Tax preparation program is one of the most effective anti-poverty programs," said Beth Ann Strollo, Chief Executive Officer at Quincy Community Action Programs. "Not only do we help put cash back into working people's pockets and the local economy but we also work with them to improve the management of their personal finances. We are very grateful to United Way and Bank of America for their support of this work. It is critical to assuring the continuation of this service in our community."

Individuals who come in for the free tax prep will also be connected to the other financial budget coaching and job training resources that the centers offer.

Board Approves One Alcohol License, Holds Another

By SCOTT JACKSON

One longtime Quincy Center restaurant will soon be able to add beer and wine to its menu while a proposed new restaurant in the downtown will have to wait to receive its all alcohol license after the city's health commissioner raised concerns over the disposal of trash in a Cottage Avenue alleyway.

The Board of License Commissioners voted unanimously March 8 to approve a request for a beer and wine license from the owner of Craig's Café at 1354 Hancock St. The request for an all alcohol license for Pho Pasteur, 1462 Hancock St., was continued to the board's next meeting on March 22 because of the concerns over trash disposal.

Tom Anacone, who purchased Craig's Café in 2011, said he plans to offer four or five varieties each of red and white wine and a selection of locally brewed beers.

"I'm not looking to have a barroom," he said. "I'm not looking to have a bar scene."

The beer and wine license for the 44-seat establishment allows Craig's Café to serve alcohol between 8 a.m. and 1 a.m. Anacone said he would like the restaurant, which currently closes at 3 p.m. on weekdays, 1 p.m. on Saturdays and 2 p.m. on Sundays, to open for dinner service between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. The restaurant could also host private parties at night.

City Councillors Kirsten Hughes and Margaret Laforest voiced their support for Anacone's request in a letter to the board.

"A beer and wine license would help to enhance the customers' dining experience," they wrote. "This type of quality establishment is exactly what the downtown needs to continue the progressive change it has been undergoing."

The beer and wine license granted to Craig's

Café was previously held by a Chinese restaurant on Washington Street that voluntarily returned it to the city at the end of last year, according to City Clerk Joseph Shea, the chairman of the license board. Anacone had been looking for such a license for several years, Shea added.

"This has been a while coming. Tom does a great job and he has a lot of supporters in the Square," Shea said. "It is a success story."

Sau Cai had proposed to open Pho Pasteur, a Vietnamese restaurant, at the site of a former Dunkin' Donuts. Cai has owned a restaurant of the same name in Boston's Chinatown neighborhood for the past 23 years and also owned one in Needham from 2004 to 2009, according to Ed Fleming, Cai's attorney.

"He's had a very successful operation in Boston in Chinatown for the last 23 years without any incidents and believes that there is a real strong market here for Vietnamese cuisine," Fleming said. "He believes he will do quite well in this location."

The proposed restaurant would include approximately 90 seats; the site includes 2,400 square feet of retail space on the first floor and 1,000 square feet of storage space in the basement, Fleming said. Wait staff and bartenders would all be TIPS certified, Fleming said, and about seven people would work inside the restaurant at any given time, including front and back of the house employees.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele asked that the request be continued to the license board's next meeting on March 22 because of concerns over several dumpsters located in a Cottage Avenue alleyway.

Scheele wants to arrange a meeting between Cai and the owners of several other restaurants on the block including Clash of the Ash, Alba's and 16C, a new restaurant opening later this year in the site of the former Granite Rail, to address the dumpster situation. He suggested one company be hired to handle trash removal to alleviate the problems, instead of each restaurant hiring its own company.

"It's really bad back there and if we're going to have these nice restaurants in the downtown area, people shouldn't be walking down Cottage Ave. looking up that alleyway and seeing what it looks like," Scheele said. "This is something that has to be taken care of."

Cai was seeking one of 23 restaurant all alcohol licenses approved for the downtown district by special legislation signed into law in 2013, Shea stated; Pho Pasteur would be the first restaurant given one of those 23 licenses.

The 2013 special act also gave the city two hotel liquor licenses, one retail license and one beer and wine license for establishments in Quincy Center. None of the 27 licenses can be transferred outside of the downtown district, unlike other liquor licenses that can be transferred anywhere in the city with board approval.

In other action March 8, the license board also:

Approved a transfer of the all alcohol license held by Flagship Marina Bay LLC to Marina Bay Restaurant LLC. The license was previously used by the former Ocean Club, the site of which is now being developed into mixed-use residential and retail buildings. Peter Tam, an attorney representing the developer of those buildings, said part of that retail space would be leased to a restaurant. That restaurant would have to seek permission to use the license from licensing board, which could happen later this year.

Approved a request for a special use permit for the Quincy Food Truck Festival, which will take place on Sept. 17 at Pageant Field. Last year's food truck festival – the first of its kind in the city – had a turnout of 4,000 to 5,000, according to organizer Anne-Marie Aigner. Park Director Chris Cassani called the event an "asset to the city."

Approved special use permits for the following charity events: Smeg's Legs Run on Oct. 8; the Sterling 5K Walk/Run on Sept. 24; Quincycles' Ride the Spine visibility ride May 14; MS Cape Cod Getaway June 25 and 26; and Best Buddies Challenge June 24.

Approved a request by Stephanie Demetro d/b/a Quincy Psychic for a fortune teller license at 532 Washington St. She previously owned a fortune telling business on Copeland Street.

Continued a hearing regarding noise complaints received at Bay State Equipment, 153 Brook Rd., so the owner of the business can meet with the neighborhood's community police officer to discuss the situation.

Approved three one-day wine and beer licenses for Elena's Café at 1 Battery-march Park for events held on the afternoons of April 6, May 10 and May 11. They are for National Fire Protection Association employees only.

Artists, Businesses Sought For DQ Summer Pop Up Art Events

After running a successful Summer Pop Up Art Gallery and Holiday Pop Up Artisan Shop in vacant Quincy Center retail spaces in 2015, Discover Quincy is partnering with businesses citywide to offer local artists a free opportunity to show and sell their work during a Summer Fridays Art Walk Event Series.

"Our intent is to bring a free art event to the public on six Friday nights this summer and showcase various business districts in our community," said Discover Quincy Executive Director Margaret Laforest. "Discover Quincy will set up display panels inside local businesses each Friday and artists will be partnered with a business where they will display and sell their work for the night."

"The priority application deadline for artists and businesses is April 15, but the applications will stay open until shows are filled. Artisans and businesses will be notified by May 1st of their acceptance," Laforest added.

Art Walk Fridays will kick off June 17, time tentatively 5 to 9 p.m., in Quincy Center. Other events will be scheduled for June 24, July 8, 15, 22 and 29 in North Quincy, Quincy Point, West Quincy, and Wollaston.

Discover Quincy welcomes those interested in participating and/or volunteering to attend an informational meeting/brainstorming session on Wednesday, March 23rd at 6:30 p.m. at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, 180 Old Colony Ave, third floor, Wollaston.

"These art events are opportunities to stimulate our creative economy, draw visitors to our community and bring new customers to our business districts" Laforest said.

Keenan: Insurers Should Cover Opioid Addiction Treatment

he hopes includes a requirement that insurers provide coverage for treatment for addiction for up to 28 days in an effort to make more treatment beds available.

The senator was one of dozens of individuals in attendance for the bill signing, joining the state's constitutional officers, members of the governor's cabinet, district attorneys, advocates and activists, legislators, mayors and law enforcement officers, including Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan. Baker said during the ceremony Massachusetts stands together in the fight against the opioid epidemic.

"Today, the commonwealth stands in solidarity to fight the opioid and heroin epidemic that continues to plague our state and burden countless families and individuals," Baker said. "I am proud to sign this legislation marking a remarkable statewide effort to strengthen prescribing laws and increase education for students and doctors."

State Senator

"While there is still much work to be done, our administration is thankful for the Legislature's effort to pass this bill and looks forward to working with the attorney general and our mayors to bend the trend and support those who have fallen victim to this horrific public health epidemic."

The Senate and House of Representatives unanimously approved the final version of the bill last week, sending it to Baker for approval. Both chambers had previously passed different versions of the legislation, and a conference committee included provisions of both in the final bill along with recommendations made by Baker.

"I had urged the conference committee to make sure it was a game of addition," Keenan said. "The governor's ideas, the House's ideas, the Senate ideas — take those good ideas, wrap them together and report the bill out and that seems to be what did occur."

"It's a good bill," the senator added.

The new law, among other provisions, establishes a non-opioid directive that allows patients to record a legally binding order in their medical records that they should not be administered or offered an opiate. A separate provision gives patients the ability to partially fill a prescription for an opioid drug.

Massachusetts is the first state in the nation to take those steps, Keenan said, and will also be the first to establish a drug stewardship program also included in the new law that makes drug manufacturers responsible for the safe disposal of unused pills.

Under another provision of the bill, prescribers will receive trend notifications from the state. Those trend notifications will allow individual prescribers to compare their prescribing patterns with peers.

Keenan worked to include those and other provisions into the Senate version of the bill; they were all included in the final version approved by Baker. The senator credited his chief of staff, Alejandro Alves, for helping draft the legislation.

Other measures in the legislation limit a first-time prescription for an opioid painkiller to a seven-day supply; all opioid prescriptions for minors will be capped at a seven-day supply as well. Doctors will be required to check the state's prescription monitoring program anytime they prescribe an opioid painkiller. Public school students will be screened through interviews to determine if they are at risk for substance abuse. Hospitals will have to provide an evaluation for anyone taken to an emergency room suffering from an opioid overdose.

A provision Baker sought, allowing doctors to place 72-hour holds on those in emergency rooms for an overdose, was not included in the final legislation in part because of concerns over where those individuals would go after the 72 hours ended and the space available in hospitals.

Beacon Hill lawmakers are beginning to work on further legislation on opioids. As part of that, Keenan wants insurers to provide coverage for up to 28 days of treatment for addiction.

A 2014 law, which took effect in October 2015, requires insurers to provide up to 14 days of coverage. Keenan said those two weeks are enough for the first two steps of treatment — detox and clinical stabilization also known as step down treatment. The second 14 days would cover the third step, transitional support services.

"I think there should be insurance coverage in place for that stage of the treatment as well," Keenan said. "It would allow somebody to detox, get stabilized in a clinical sense and then to start planning for the next stages of their recovery."

Keenan said a limited number of spots are available in the second and third steps for those who go through detox, and increasing the number of days insurers are required to cover would help address that issue.

"By having mandated coverage in place for 28 days, it should stimulate the creation of more TSS beds and better access to people for those beds," he said.

The 28-day provision is gaining support on Beacon Hill, Keenan said, though he expects pushback from the insurance industry. Keenan is awaiting a report from the Center for Health Information and Analysis on the cost of requiring up to 28 days of coverage, but believes it would be affordable on a per person basis.

The senator also believes more needs to be done to address the supply of heroin in the state.

"We've done a lot of things to make sure people who have addiction problems are not treated like criminals anymore — that they are diverted and that we try to get them treatment," Keenan said.

"But for those making the decisions to import heroin into the commonwealth and to lace that heroin with fentanyl or to sell fentanyl in and of itself, I think we've got to step up our efforts to make sure we have that under control."

ment. Other lawmakers, he noted, work as attorneys and other professions in addition and split their time between two jobs.

"I would have ample time to be at the state house and at my job as a firefighter," Moody said.

Moody said politics has been an interest of his and he had thought about running before, deciding to do so this year after speaking with residents in the three-town district who expressed frustration in their representatives in the State House.

Moody identified the state's ongoing opiate epidemic as a major reason for entering the race. He said more money should be provided for DARE programs and other education initiatives to focus on prevention.

"As a Quincy firefighter I am on the front lines on the war on opiates every single day," Moody said in a statement. "As a Hanover parent and youth sports coach I think each and every day about the importance of early education and intervention with the youngest and most vulnerable among us to prevent the growth of the opiate epidemic."

"Working on behalf of the people of Hanover, Rockland and Norwell I will fight for the funding necessary to create programs that will expand the DARE program and teach children about opiate abuse."

Moody and his wife, Debra, have three children ages 9 to 14 in the Hanover school system. Moody said he has been active in the Hanover Youth Athletics Association for many years; he is currently the head coach for the fourth grade mite football team.

A campaign kick-off event is planned for the spring.

Fore River Field Renovations Set To Start

By TOM GORMAN

The Fore River Field in Quincy Point will be getting a makeover beginning this spring.

Work on the renovation project is expected to start this week where a new baseball diamond, basketball courts, fencing and a new restroom are among the improvements on the 7.2-acre field.

Residents were updated on the $500,000 multi-phase project during a March 9 meeting of the Ward 2 Civic Association at the Fore River Clubhouse, according to Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall and Park Department Executive Director Christopher Cassani. The plan also includes improvements at the adjoining Mound Street Field.

"We introduced what we believe will be the final concept of the plan," Croall told the Sun. He said residents were supportive of the project and provided positive feedback and first impressions of the plan.

The project is being done in phases and up first is demolishing the existing basketball courts and fencing and building a new baseball diamond that is being reconfigured farther away from neighboring homes. An irrigation system will also be installed for the baseball diamond infield.

The new baseball diamond will have a larger backstop to help better control foul balls that have been an issue with the existing field. The new diamond should be ready by mid-June, according to Croall.

"The goal is to have it done in June," he said.

The project also calls for a new standalone restroom that will be constructed near the Harrison Street end of the field. The restroom will be single stall each for men and women and will be large enough to accommodate both the Fore River Field and Mound Street Field.

Under the plan, the existing softball diamond will be eliminated. A new basketball court will be built near the Beechwood Street end, according to Cassani. The court is being relocated to the other side of the field from its current position. That work is to start during the summer.

Cassani said that if funds allow, a new playground will be built near the Nevada Road and Beechwood Street area, closer to the Fore River Clubhouse, in the future. A pickleball and bocce court will also be added to the playground area. Cassani noted that bids for that part of the project have not yet come back. If the winning bid is within budget, the playground project could get underway.

The new restroom is to be situated between the two parks near the end of Harrison Street and will automatically lock at a certain time at night.

The Fore River Field, bordered by Nevada Road, Beechwood, Beechwood, Harrison and Follett streets, now has a baseball and a softball diamond, courts for basketball, tennis and street hockey, and a football field and a playground.

It is home to the Fore River Clubhouse, listed in the National Register of Historic Places. It was built by Fore River Shipyard in 1917 as a recreation center for its workers. It had a bowling alley, a ballroom and billiards. The building was acquired by the city in 1925 and serves as a community center.

The adjacent Mound Street Field has a soccer field and is located next to Mound Street Beach.

Under the plan, the Mound Street Field will also be upgraded to include a ropes course to be used by Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti's youth aerial ropes program.

Cassani explained that the demolishing of the existing fencing is expected to begin "any day" and the demolition of the basketball courts was to start soon after, likely within a week or so.

He added that during May, the project will get underway "in earnest."

The project is being paid by Community Preservation funds and a state grant secured by Quincy Rep. Ron Mariano.

"It's a great enhancement for the district, the city and Quincy Point," said Croall. "We're 'excited' about the project."

Cassani said that the plan is "pretty aggressive" and that the project would likely carry into next year.

"It's a great project," he said.

Added Croall, "We're ready to go."

Court Facility At T Station Concerns Residents

Frank Tramontozzi, an engineer for the city, said the project is currently in the feasibility stage, which could be completed this year. The city is working with engineering firm Parsons Brinkerhoff on plans for the station.

Preliminary designs for the redevelopment of the MBTA site include approximately 870 parking spaces in a five-story garage and two other buildings – a new justice center, which would house the Quincy District Court, located north of the station and office space for the National Park Service to the south of the station, in the area behind City Hall.

The city is hoping to find a public-private partner to finance the project and is also seeking federal transportation grants. Under the public-private model, a company would finance and build the project and make its money back by leasing space for the justice center and National Park Service – or any other lessee.

Attendees that spoke at the community meeting were concerned about the placement of the courthouse next to the station. A half-dozen residents who spoke said they would prefer a new courthouse built at its current location on the Dennis Ryan Parkway or would rather have a different use for the air rights over the MBTA tracks. No one who spoke at the meeting said they would support placing the justice center in the vicinity of the station.

Judy Brams asked if public safety was being considered during the feasibility study, given the number of students who use the station.

"What kind of safety study is being considered with the courthouse being there?" she said. "You have so many children from the schools and it's a horror show now – that station. Is there going to be a safety study of some kind?"

Tramontozzi said the state's Division of Capital Asset Management is in the midst of working on safety studies in partnership with Parsons Brinkerhoff as part of the planning process.

The new MBTA station, he noted, would likely include an enhanced Transit Police station.

Steve Dyer noted the city is in the process of enhancing the area around the train station and Quincy Center, including the new Adams Hancock Green and streetscape improvements on Hancock Street. Given those improvements, he asked if any other type of use is being considered for the MBTA site.

"I'm not nuts about the courthouse either. You have a nice new park here, the improvements on Hancock Street are looking nice, that apartment building is looking nice. What is being looked at besides the courthouse that might bring in different kinds of people to the neighborhood to continue that enhancement rather than increasing the kind of lousy crowd that's at Quincy Center already?" Dyer said.

"What are we looking at to put there that might bring a different kind of crowd – offices, residences, hotels? Anything besides a courthouse?"

Tramontozzi responded that "nothing is set in stone."

"We're looking at ideas," he said. "That's why we're here."

Tramontozzi was later asked if the financing for the project would be available if the courthouse were not included in the plans, to which he responded another way to help pay for the project would need to be found if the justice center was not included in the proposal.

"If we say no to the courthouse, we have to figure out if there is anything to help finance whatever we can't get grant-wise," Tramontozzi said.

Jocelyn Sedney, who said a new justice center should be built at the present court site, suggested constructing a new building for Quincy College on the MBTA air rights.

"So many kids are coming in off the subway and the buses to go to Quincy College," she said. "That would be a great location with all those students."

Tramontozzi said that option remains a possibility.

"That's another possibility because Quincy College is looking to go to a four-year college and they're going to need more space," he said.

Residents asked other questions regarding the proposed station itself during the nearly two-hour long meeting on a number of topics such as parking, traffic and the impact of construction on MBTA service.

Plans for the new garage include roughly the same number of spaces as the station's current garage – which the MBTA abruptly closed in 2012 – leaving some of those in attendance to question if the new garage would be large enough to accommodate both commuters and the justice center. Though several residents said the garage was full or nearly full during the day, Tramontozzi said it was only half-used during peak periods.

"[The MBTA] has parking operations people who take counts. They know every day how many people are in their parking lots," Tramontozzi said. "They know these statistics and they've given us these statistics that at their peak it was 50 percent."

A number of questions were also raised regarding traffic, particularly the impact on Burgin Parkway. Under the preliminary plans for the new station, buses would enter and exit a covered busway on the Burgin Parkway side of the facility; buses now operate from the Hancock Street side. Access to the parking garage would also be provided from Burgin Parkway under the preliminary plan, with the drop-off/pick-up and taxi areas remaining on the Hancock Street side.

Tramontozzi said the ongoing feasibility study includes a review of traffic impacts.

"We're looking at that," he stated. "That's one of the things we're charged with, taking a look the level of service for traffic operations."

Tramontozzi noted 14 bus routes begin or end at the Quincy Center station and the MBTA is reviewing whether it makes sense to have some of those routes begin and end elsewhere. The transit agency would hold public meetings on those plans before implementing them.

"We really do think there could be some efficiencies that could be gained if perhaps some of them can originate or terminate down in Quincy Adams or elsewhere," Tramontozzi said.

Several of those present inquired about the timeline for construction and whether the Quincy Center station would be closed during the project. Tramontozzi said construction of a new station would likely take two years; engineers hope to avoid any major shutdowns and believe the work can be completed while keeping the station open, though minor closures, such as those on weekends, are possible.

"This isn't just a pipe dream," Tramontozzi said. "We're really trying to figure out ways to get it done and keep the station operational."

Others asked about the cost of the project. Andy Boyd, a Parsons Brinkerhoff engineer, said the cost for the MBTA station improvements would be in the range of $25 to $30 million – the same amount a private developer will pay to renovate the Hynes Convention Center station on the Green Line in Boston's Back Bay as part of a project to build a mixed-use development on Massachusetts Turnpike air rights.

It was too early, officials said, to give a cost estimate for other work at the Quincy Center site, including the garage and court facility.

One woman asked if the design team had looked at incorporating a third Red Line track into the station, allowing some trains to use Quincy Center as a terminal station instead of Braintree.

Boyd said the MBTA will begin receiving new Red Line cars in about two years and will also be rebuilding the signal system for the line, which would allow trains to travel with less distance between them than currently possible.

"The distance between the trains can be reduced dramatically from what they do today," Boyd said. "That's the way they're thinking they would increase capacity on the Red Line."

Sen. John Keenan said he and other officials, including Koch, were set to meet Monday with MBTA management regarding overcrowding on the Red Line.

Boyd added that the MBTA did ask the engineers to look into adding a second Commuter Rail track to the station. While that is being considered, Boyd said doing so does not appear feasible.

Residents did have questions pertaining to Commuter Rail service. One asked if the MBTA would consider allowing passengers to transfer from the Red Line to the Commuter Rail at Quincy Center at no cost. A second resident asked if the MBTA would consider having more trains that presently travel through the station stop at Quincy Center.

Tramontozzi said both those questions were up to the transit agency and not the team designing the new station.

Last week's community meeting is the first of several anticipated over the coming months relative to the Quincy Center station. Tramontozzi said those meetings would allow for consideration of different proposals during the feasibility stage.

"There are going to be many meetings to talk about this, so there will be many alternatives that can be considered," Tramontozzi said.

City Council President Kirsten Hughes, who co-hosted the meeting with Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, said input from the public would help shape the project going forward. She noted the MBTA has revised plans for its redesign of the Wollaston Center station based on feedback received during community meetings.

"The same thing will happen here – not just with the MBTA station but with the other elements of the design," Hughes said. "I do want people to feel like there are not just public forums to oppose or support, but also to inform and that's this is really meant to start the dialogue, start the conversation."

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SEDATION DENTISTRY

Despite the fact that local anesthetics block the pain associated with any dental procedure, some patients would rather suffer the agony of a toothache than sit in the dentist's chair. Fortunately, the dentist can help fearful patients overcome their anxiety by treating them with one of a wide range of sedation options. The most minimal of these is nitrous oxide ("laughing gas"), which is inhaled through a mask over the nose and leaves the patient relaxed and awake. Oral sedation, which can range from minimal to moderate (depending on the dosage), involves simply taking a pill (Halcion) about an hour before the procedure. The patient remains awake but drowsy. Drugs can also be administered intravenously for more immediate effect.

Are you delaying dental treatment? Anxiety-free sedation therapy may be your answer. We appreciate the opportunity to provide patients with quality, comfortable dental care. Our staff is made up of well-trained professionals who work together as a team to provide excellence in dentistry in a warm, caring setting. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist.

P.S. Nitrous oxide has been in use in dentistry as an anesthetic since late 1844.

AINE KING

Aine King Competing At Irish Dance Championships

Aine King, age 16, of Quincy, is among six dancers at The Kenny Academy of Irish Dance who have qualified for and will be attending this month's 46th annual World Irish Dance Championships in Scotland.

The six dancers, ranging in age from 12 to 22, will be competing at Glasgow's Royal Concert Hall from March 20 - 27. Over 14,000 dancers and family members and friends are expected to attend the event.

King has been dancing for 11 years. This is her seventh time attending the World Irish Dance Championships where she has successfully placed in previous years.

In 2009, King was a gold medal holder at the World Championships where she was a member of the drama team.

NQHS Debate Team Participate In Mock Congress In Nation's Capital

One of the fastest growing student organizations at North Quincy High School is its Debate Team.

A small group of upperclassmen in past years, its recent growth has been remarkable. The team has expanded significantly to become a group of more than 40 dedicated students who spend their Friday afternoons having educated - and sometimes contentious - discourse on a variety of topics that range from gun rights to gay rights, to who should be the next president.

The team is associated with the Junior Statesmen of America, and competes in single and multi-day conferences at locations such as Harvard University, Boston University, and St. Anselm College. The overnight conventions, available three times a year, allow the team to dedicate an entire weekend or more to focusing on their skills and honing their abilities.

Two weeks ago, the Debate Team returned from a mock congress held in Washington, D.C., where they presented two bills: one that would mandate sexual education in public schools, and one that would make D.C. its own state. They returned home successfully, with their bill passed and President Grace Anderson the winner of two 'Best Speaker' awards.

The Debate Team has been highly successful in the past year, with Grace Anderson winning a total of eight Best Speaker Awards, I.G. Nick Kazangian winning seven, and secretary Hannah Gray winning three. Through their tireless efforts, the team has garnered a reputation for being passionate, logical and fierce in their arguments - a reputation that is lived up to in competition.

With the last convention of the year fast approaching, the graduating seniors are all feeling bittersweet about leaving behind the team they all worked so hard to build. Spring State will be their last convention before they leave for college. They hope to bring along some underclassmen and newer members who will be inspired and who will grow in their skills and abilities. These seniors have been members of the Debate Team since its conception and have seen it blossom into the thriving group of young minds that are, today, interested and argumentative. This year, President Grace Anderson, Treasurer Stephen Condon, and I.G. Nick Kazangian, all members of the board of leadership of the team, will be graduating.

The funding for the Debate Team is done through fundraising and grant writing. The team acquired a canning license at the beginning of the year, raising more than seven hundred dollars, to put towards conventions and in-school activities, as well as holding a raffle, which, through generous contributions, will help to fund future iterations of the team.

The JSA gave partial scholarships to NQ students for their trip to D.C. President Dan Hess of JSA said, "North Quincy has to be at the winter congress." Hess made sure they were.

For more information or anyone interested in joining the debate team can email nqdebateteam@gmail.com.

THIRD GRADERS at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School gave meteorologist Bri Eggers a warm welcome during a recent visit to the school. Eggers, who forecasts the weather at WHDH TV Channel 7 in Boston, gave a presentation on the weather at the school.

Meteorologist Bri Eggers Talks Weather With Beechwood Knoll Students

The third graders at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School had the wonderful opportunity to meet Bri Eggers from Channel 7 recently.

About 70 students have been learning about the weather from their teachers Katie Connolly, Erin Gerry and Mary Lynne DePaolo. The kids were given a chance to show off their weather skills when Bri questioned them on various types of weather. She gave an informative presentation on hurricanes, tornadoes, thunder, lightening, and floods. The students also got to see a tour of the news station.

Bri also told the third graders about the "green screen" TV meteorologists use to show weather maps and other graphics and how it takes a lot of getting used to. She ended the presentation with a question and answer period.

One student asked her what made her want to be a meteorologist. It turns out her dad is a peppermint farmer, and she grew up in Idaho watching the weather very closely as their crops depended on the weather. The kids thought this was quite fascinating. She also told the group her grandfather nicknamed her "Breezy" so it was only fitting that she became meteorologist.

CHANNEL 7 Meteorologist Bri Eggers answers a question from a student during her visit to the Beechwood Knoll School March 11. In the photo below Bri has a captivated audience as some 70 third graders listen to her presentation on the weather.

Before his appointment as a Quincy firefighter on Jan. 30, 1954, Walter had worked a few years in the Quincy Water Department. He began working for the city after serving in the Coast Guard. He had attended the former Quincy Trade School.

Ed and Walter had bonded when he was growing up. He smiles remembering the days when he was just a kid and he'd make his way up to the area of the Quincy quarries whenever there was a fire.

"For a long time Walter was stationed at Engine 5 in West Quincy. He practically lived at the quarries because of all the fires burning up there all the time. I can remember my dad and I going up there with food and water and watching the firefighters fight fires with those old open-back fire trucks."

Walter, Ed says simply with emotion in his voice, was his favorite uncle.

"I was only 13 when he passed. I remember when I was smaller I'd sleep over his house. Back then, in the 1970s, these firefighters worked 80 hours a week. Shortly after my uncle passed, and my grandfather passed, the city went to a 40-hour work week."

Times have changed but one thing was still missing for the Rizzi family.

A memorial for Walter.

A short time ago, Ed visited the Squantum Fire House with his two grandsons and noticed there was no marker for his late uncle.

"It didn't seem right that there was no memorial for Walter," Ed says. "Walter didn't have any family to speak on his behalf and it just got overlooked."

About a week later, Ed returned to the station and knocked on the door. A firefighter answered and eventually he was contacted by Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson. Soon the effort was made to erect a bronze marker in Walter's memory.

"The city is making it right now and my family is very grateful and proud," Ed said at the dedication. "Chief Joe Barron and Deputy Chief Joe Jackson have been fantastic. I couldn't ask for anything more."

"They should be commended. I'm going to write a letter to the mayor and tell him how much they went out of their way for our family," Ed added.

Chief Barron said the department appreciates the opportunity to recognize Walter Rizzi with a proper memorial to a fallen comrade.

"Walter Rizzi came from a great firefighting family, a lot of public service. I'm sure it was a very sad day when he died. You know what it's like when you lose a brother or a son and that's what this family went through, particularly as a firefighting brother; he's part of our family at the firehouse."

"You know his attributes, you rely on them. You count on him to be there every day. And sometimes you've lost a part of yourself."

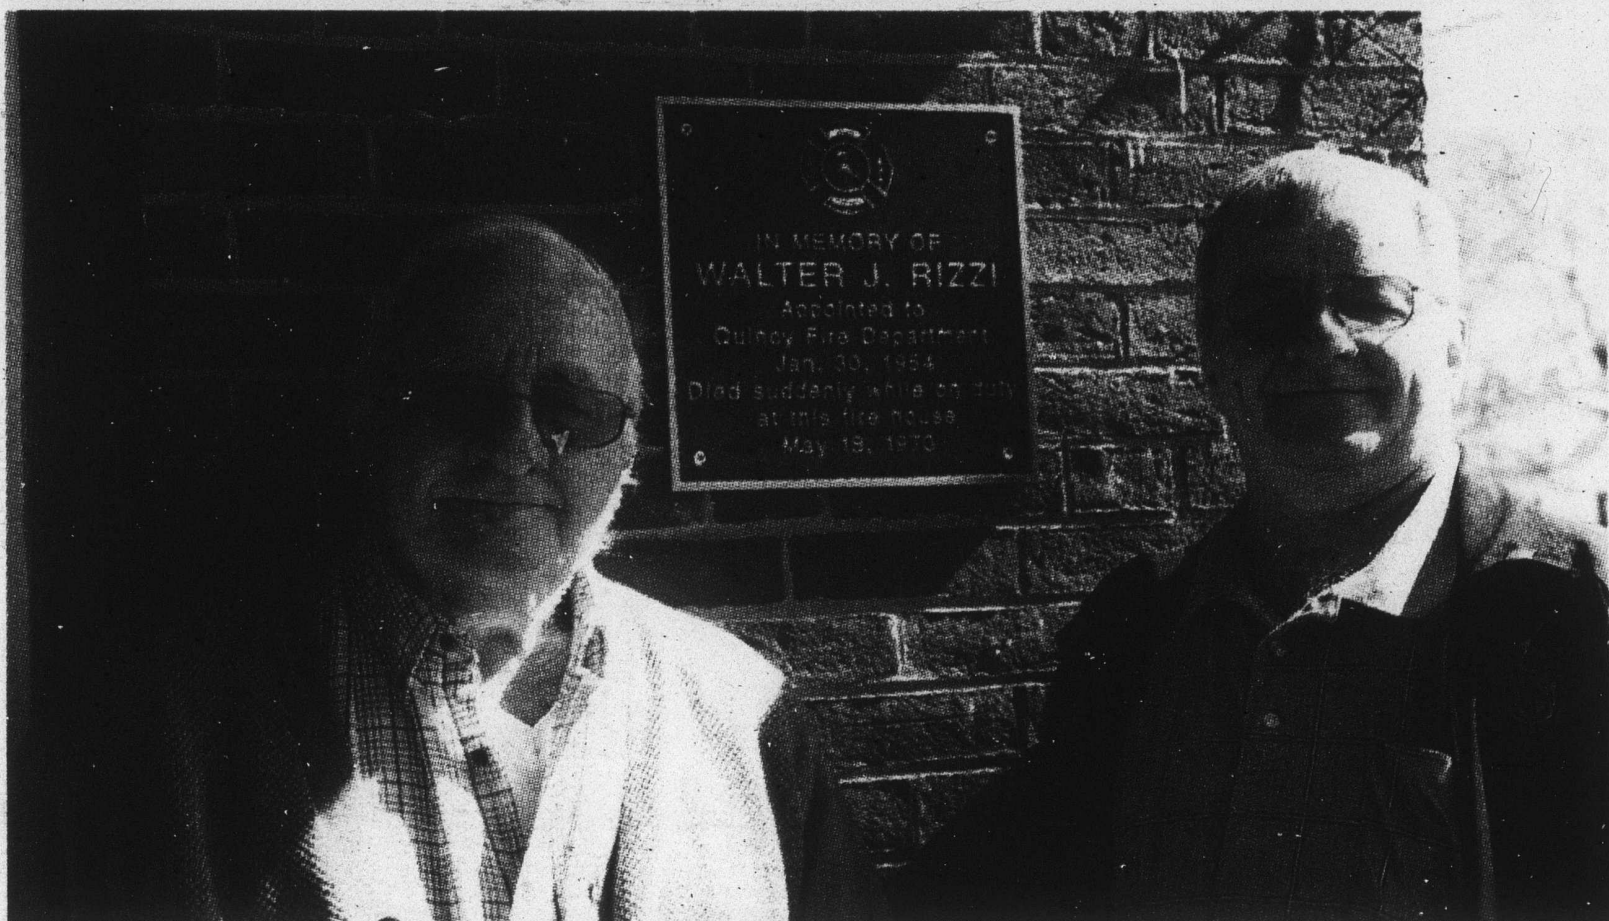

"It's really heart-warming to see Walter's brother and nephew to see them both here today and to let them know that finally we've recognized and have this permanent memorial for him. It's very deserving."

The Rizzis pose for photos with some of the firefighters in front of Engine 7. Other photos are taken near Walter's plaque before the Rizzis leave the station.

The plaque is as much a memorial to Walter Rizzi as it is a reminder of the dedicated – and dangerous – work all firefighters do, Ed Rizzi says.

"I hope when people see this plaque that the citizens realize how much these guys gave and their families to do this type of job and the people of Squantum to realize here's a guy who came to work and never went home."

"This is a very proud day

Walter Rizzi, a 16-year-veteran of the Quincy Fire Department, died of a heart attack while on duty at the station nearly 46 years ago. The plaque was dedicated at the station last week.

for the Rizzi family," Ed continues. "I told the young firefighters that they have the best job in the world."

"It was 1970 when my years ago but you never forget. That was 46 years ago but you never forget."

Six-Story, 140-Room Hotel Proposed In NQ

includes 102 parking spaces in a proposed surface lot — 32 more spaces than needed under the city's zoning code, which requires hotels to have one parking space for every two rooms.

"We are big believers in the hotel market in this location," Jim Goldenberg, a principal for Cathartes, said during a March 9 Planning Board hearing on the proposal.

The board did not vote on the proposal that night as members are awaiting items related to the proposal, such as a city traffic report. The board will resume the hearing on the proposal during its meeting on May 11.

The hotel's primary market, Goldenberg said, would be business travelers given the site's proximity to the State Street South complex, the North Quincy MBTA station and I-93. The hotel would also attract those coming to the area for leisure, he added.

Floors two through six of the proposed building would each have approximately 13,000 square feet of space and hold 28 rooms. The first floor would have SIX-STORY, 140-ROOM HOTEL has been proposed for the corner of Arlington and West Squantum Streets in what is now a vacant lot. The proposal includes a 102-spot surface parking lot. The hotel would operate under a Marriott or Hilton brand and cater primarily to business travelers, according to the developer of the project, Boston-based Cathartes. The Planning Board held a hearing on the proposal March 9 and will hear again from the applicant May 11.

9,000 square feet of space and include the lobby area, a café, prep kitchen, pool, fitness center and conference room.

Goldenberg said a franchise agreement has yet to be signed, but Cathartes is leaning towards a Marriott brand, such as Residence Inn or TownePlace Suites. A Hilton marque would be used if an agreement with Marriott were not reached.

Construction of the new hotel would likely take 12 to 14 months, Goldenberg said. The developer has proposed adding 13 on-street parking spaces and a sidewalk along Arlington Street as part of the project. A 10-foot wide area of plantings and other green space would wrap around the parking lot.

Goldenberg said the site could be further developed in the future with a residential component located on what would be part of the parking lot under the current proposal, though there is no immediate plan to do so. Structured parking, he added, would likely be included in such a development.

Planning Board member Coleman Barry said he was cautious going into the meeting that the hotel brand would not represent the neighborhood's up and coming status, particularly if it included the word "budget" in its name. That was no longer the case after learning it would be a Marriott or Hilton.

"I'm excited about this project," Barry said.

Former Ward 3 Councilor Kevin Coughlin, a Small Street resident, called the proposed site of the hotel a "tired piece of property that demands re-use."

"This is an area that needs rejuvenation, rehabilitation. The project...is something that's really going to bring back vitality," Coughlin said, adding the present site "is not the image that I'd like to have seen as an entryway, a gateway to the Montclair neighborhood. I think this will be a vast improvement — a vast improvement — without equivocation for this site and for the neighborhood as a whole."

Current Ward 3 Councilor Ian Cain also voiced his support for the project.

"This is an important project for the neighborhood. It definitely will improve its profile," Cain said. "As Quincy is now growing up in many different ways, it will shed light on the new character we're trying to create here."

Cain also had several questions for Goldenberg, asking the Cathartes principal how confident he was about being able to reach an agreement with either Marriott or Hilton. Goldenberg responded that the company had never completed a project and been unable to reach a franchise agreement with a desired hotel chain.

"We're negotiating and there are multiple choices that we have. We're very confident we're going to get a high quality brand," Goldenberg said, noting a franchise agreement would need to be signed before construction begins.

Additionally, Cain asked Goldenberg about demand in the Boston area for such a hotel. The developer said there is high demand in the market and less guesswork is involved in a hotel project than a residential or office one.

"There is a demand across Boston — a high demand — for hotels and that filters down to Quincy," Goldenberg said. "One of the things about hotels, a little different than office or residential, you can use data to really tell you how well you're going to do; there is much less guesswork than other product types so it gives us a lot of confidence."

"The other thing about hotels is when you're the new hotel, you do well as a modern hotel...A new hotel is a new hotel for 15 years, so we're very, very comfortable with the market."

Joseph Parmenter, a Safford Street resident, said the location is the perfect spot for a hotel and would eliminate an eyesore.

"That's been an eyesore of that community, the Montclair area, forever," he said. "I think they'll do great there. I think it's the perfect spot there."

Alie Shaughnessy, an Essex Street resident and candidate in the Ward 6 special election this spring, said the project would be for the city and taxpayers.

"I think it's a great idea, too. I don't like the idea of a vacant lot," Shaughnessy said. "It's good for the city. It's good for the taxpayers. It's good for the people. I think the neighbors will be for it."

Parmenter and Shaughnessy both urged the developer to hire union workers for the project, the latter asking Goldenberg if a general contractor had been hired. Goldenberg said a contractor had yet to be selected, but his firm likes to work with local trades and local employees.

"We do urban development. We work in communities all the time and we want to be good neighbors so we like to work with local trades. We like to work with local employees," Goldenberg said.

"We can't make any commitments at this time but I can make a commitment that we will sit down with everybody and give you more than a fair shot at this."

Howard Mackay, a Montclair resident, said the site is not suitable for the hotel because of traffic in the area that occurs when commuters cut through North Quincy when I-93 is backed up.

"This hotel is beautiful but it's in the wrong location because of these traffic problems," he said. "People come in through Quincy because the expressway is all blocked."

In other action March 9, the Planning Board:

Approved Michael Solimando request for a definitive subdivision, which will allow him to create three lots for single-family homes by extending Forest Avenue and Holliston Street in West Quincy. The extension will be a private way, according to a set of conditions for the project, and access to Cunningham Park will be maintained.

Continued a site plan review for the proposed FedEx distribution center at 500 Commander Shea Blvd. The hearing has been rescheduled to April 13.

Continued to May 11 a hearing on the proposed 30-condo building at 28-34 Chapman St. in Wollaston.

Health, Wellness Fair March 25

By JOHN GALLUZZO
Development Writer
South Shore YMCA

Laurel Egan-Kenny beams when she talks about the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's upcoming Health & Wellness Fair at the Quincy YMCA.

As the Chamber's Chief Operating Officer, for Egan-Kenny it all comes down to the Chamber's belief that the South Shore can be the best place in the state – heck, the world – to live, work and play. "We'd like people to be able to work where they live," she said, "and live where they work."

The Health and Wellness Fair is just one example of the way that the Chamber is attempting to reach this goal.

On (Good) Friday, March 25, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. the Quincy Y on Coddington Street will be health and wellness central for the South Shore, as more than 50 vendors will be present doing more than just "pushing papers across the table," Egan-Kelly says.

Each of the vendors will offer health screenings, assessments or services of some kind, on the spot, that day. "These are incredible services," Egan-Kelly adds, pointing to dental screenings, massages, acupuncture treatments and more.

The morning is fun and energetic, and comes with incredible impact. Egan-Kelly received phone calls last year after 1,000 visitors attended the fair from people who had found out that their children had hearing problems that were subsequently addressed, that their own BMI were too high, and others discovered unexpected ailments and sought follow-up treatment.

"We are blessed to be able to help," she said. "This brings a level of health care to the people of the South Shore for free."

Participation for Chamber members comes with a strict policy. "Everybody has to have an impactful screening," said Egan-Kenny, pointing out that there are 39 categories under which they fall.

Three or four physical therapy companies may be present, but they will each offer a different perspective on health care. And the event is organized in two ways: by age (infant and toddlers, early childhood, women, men, geriatric care) and body part (brain, ear, eye, bone/spine, muscles, skin care, dental and emotional health), a true head-to-toe approach.

Specialized areas include autism, obesity, diabetes, heart health and more, and wellness focuses include nutrition, physical fitness, rehabilitation and more.

A sample itinerary could include a stop by the Norwell Visiting Nurse Association's booth for a bone density scan, then an orthodontics screening by Great Hill Dental Partners. Mullis & Associates will be offering physical therapy screenings and Life Care Center of the South Shore can check your blood pressure. Neighborhood Health Plan will be on hand to do Body Mass Index screenings and the Wellness Champions will check stress levels.

The event has been made possible, from its start in Hanover several years ago, by the South Shore Chamber's partnership with the South Shore YMCA.

"The Y is an incredibly impactful partner," said Egan-Kelly. "Even the Y members who are there to work out understand that this is a community benefit," she said.

And, she says, it's in the right place. "Quincy is the community where we can make the most impact," she said.

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce Health and Wellness Fair takes place on Friday, March 25, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Quincy Branch of the South Shore YMCA on Coddington St. For more information, call the Chamber at 781-421-3900.

LIVESTRONG at the YMCA

Cancer is a life-changing disease that takes a tremendous physical and emotional toll on those affected. The Y and the LIVESTRONG Foundation have joined together to create LIVES-TRONG at the YMCA, a research-based physical activity and well-being program designed to help adult cancer survivors reclaim their total health.

Participants work with Y staff trained in supportive cancer care to safely achieve their goals such as building muscle mass and strength; increasing flexibility and endurance; and improving confidence and self-esteem.

The program began March 15 and is held Tuesday and Thursday for 12 weeks, 1 to 2:30 p.m. For more information or to enroll, contact Katelyn Szafr at 781-829-8585 ext. 8228 or kszafr@ssymca.org.

Family Prime Time

A variety of family activities are hosted each Friday night at the Quincy Y. Enjoy meeting other families as well as trying new activities together.

Activities are held every Friday nights from 6 to 8 p.m. Cost: included in household membership to the South Shore YMCA.

For information about membership call the Quincy Y Member Service Desk at 617-479-8500, or visit the Member Service desk for a tour.

SLIPPING AWAY

Many people are quite familiar with the condition "slipped disc," which is the popular label used to refer to a herniation (bulge) or tear in the cartilage cushions between vertebrae. However, most individuals may not be so well acquainted with the term "spondylolisthesis," which is the slippage of one vertebra forward over the bone below it. This slippage, which most often occurs in the lower spine (the lumbosacral area), usually results in pinched nerves and consequent pain as well as numbness and/or weakness in one or both legs. Needless to say, vertebral slippage of this sort lends itself to chiropractic treatment, the primary goal of which is to get misaligned spinal bones back into their proper alignment.

Do you suffer from pain? It could be from a slipped disc. A professional diagnosis, the first step to pain relief, is just a call away. When you're ready, call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC and find out for yourself what other members of the community already know. We're currently accepting new patients and ask you to please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. If your problem is a chiropractic condition, we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Spondylolisthesis can be caused by a defective joint since birth (congenital), trauma, a stress fracture (due to overuse), arthritis, or even wearing high heels.

Father Bill's/MainSpring Surpasses Fundraising Goal

In an effort to create workforce development programs for formerly homeless individuals, Father Bill's & MainSpring (FBMS) announces it has surpassed its fundraising goal in support of its housing philosophy.

FBMS received a $20,000 contribution from Citizens Bank to create housing for formerly homeless individuals who participate in workforce development programs in Southern Massachusetts. Following a campaign for community members to match donations, FBMS received an overwhelming response, raising an additional $21,000 in donations for supportive housing programs.

"We are thrilled that our partnership with Father Bill's & MainSpring helped exceed their campaign goals," said Jerry Sargent, President, Citizens Bank, Massachusetts. "Supportive housing is a long-term solution for so many issues formerly homeless people face. Citizens believes strongly in helping to improve the lives of our neighbors in Southern Massachusetts who are homeless or at risk of homelessness."

The contributions to FBMS are utilized to support the Quincy Workforce Housing Project so that men and women in the nonprofit's workforce programs are able to access housing and case management services as they prepare for a new life of economic independence. Participants in the program benefit greatly from living together in a cohesive and stable environment in which work ethic is emphasized and where staff and more experienced participants model soft skills such as attendance, promptness and reliability needed to maintain future employment.

John Yazwinski, president and CEO of Father Bill's & MainSpring, hosted a tour for Citizens Bank CEO Bruce Van Saun and Jerry Sargent, President, Citizens Bank, Massachusetts, at Father Bill's Place emergency shelter in Quincy last year.

"It's great to have funders meet with us in our programs so they see exactly where their money is being spent," said Yazwinski of the visit. "Citizens has been a strong supporter of Father Bill's & MainSpring for more than a decade, and we are grateful that they continue to help us help others achieve long-term self-sufficiency."

On Wednesday, March 9, 2016, Officer Leuchte was dispatched to McDonalds on Southern Artery for a report of a larceny of a cell phone. The dispatcher stated that a male suspect took the victim's cell phone from the bathroom of the store and was walking up Southern Artery with a female pushing a baby carriage. The male was described as about 30 years old, wearing grey pants, blue hat and a hoody.

Upon arrival at McDonalds, Officer Leuchte met the store manager who stated that one of her workers was cleaning the men's room when the suspect came in. She stated that they were the only two people in the bathroom. The worker briefly left the men's room and left his phone with the cleaning supplies on the sink. When he returned moments later, the suspect was walking out. The worker immediately noticed that his cell phone was gone. When the worker told the manager, she confronted the suspect, who denied taking his cell phone. The suspect continued walking out of the building. The Officer called the victim's white Samsung Galaxy 4 cell phone but it immediately went to voice mail.

Officer Leuchte put out the information for all area cruisers to search for the suspect who could be walking with a female pushing a baby carriage. Minutes later, Anti-crime Officers DesRoche and Donnelly spotted the suspect walking with a female pushing a baby carriage walking behind Quincy High School on the walking path. They asked the suspect where he was coming from and he said, "McDonald's." Officer DesRoche quickly searched the suspect for weapons before having him sit down on a wall nearby while the investigation continued.

While searching the suspect, Officer DesRoche removed the suspect's hat and watched as two pill bottles fell to the ground. Both bottles had no prescription and/or names on the outside of the containers. At this time, Officer Leuchte stated that he was going to come by with the victim for an identification/show up at my location. When the victim showed up, he stated that it was "definitely him," referring to the male who was in the bathroom with him. Officer Leuchte then spoke to the woman pushing the carriage and explained to her what was going on as it appeared that the suspect acted on his own in this theft without her knowledge.

Officer Flaherty took custody of the suspect and placed him in the rear of his cruiser where he was transported to the station for booking. Officer Leuchte requested the McDonald's manager provide a copy of the in store video. Officer Flaherty transported the suspect to the Quincy Police Station. As the suspect exited the cruiser in handcuffs, a cell phone fell from his sweatpants pockets. (He was wearing 3 pairs of sweatpants) This phone was identified as the victim's cell phone. On the screen was the missed call from the manager at McDonald's. While doing an inventory of the suspect's property, several pill bottle containers with marijuana and a mix of pills were discovered. Three of the types of pills were identified as Gabapentin, Clonazepam, and Amphetamine. There were two other types of pills that were unable to be identified due to the numbers being rubbed off. There were 2.5 orange colored pills and 18 small yellow pills and two small buds of marijuana that were logged in for destruction.

The suspect, a 32 year old Fall River resident, was charged with "Larceny over $250.00, Possession of Class E substance and with an outstanding arrest warrant.

NOT TECHNICALLY A SCAM BUT DECEIVING:

A resident provided me with a letter from a company called, "HomeServe" which offers coverage to home owners for water line failure on your property. The resident was concerned that the letter was misleading because in the top right of the letter it says, "Quincy - Water Service Line Responsibility," followed by his Sea Street address. It made the resident believe that that the letter was coming from the city of Quincy. At the bottom of the letter in italic print is a waiver by the Norwalk, Connecticut company that says, "is an independent company separate from your local utility or community." The company provides this information voluntarily but the structure of the letter raised the concern of this resident as well as others who voiced their opinion online. As always, do your research before signing up for any service or company.

HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church

St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, corner of Hancock and Linden Streets, announces its services for Palm Sunday, Holy Week, and Easter.

On Palm Sunday, March 20, there will be a service with the Eucharist at 10 a.m.

On Maundy Thursday, March 24, a service with the Eucharist will be at 7 p.m.

On Good Friday, March 25, Stations of the Cross is at 6 p.m. and the Good Friservice with String Quartet is at 7 p.m.

Easter Vigil with baptism begins at 7 p.m. on Saturday, March 26.

On Easter Sunday, March 27, service with the Eucharist is at 10 a.m.

Easter Vigil At United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will celebrate the Easter Vigil Saturday, March 26 at 7:30 p.m.

"With the exception of the Episcopalians, very few Protestants have had the opportunity to experience the Easter Vigil," said Rev. Dr. Susan Jarek-Glidden, church pastor. "I think this is really unfortunate. The Vigil is one of the most ancient and certainly one of the most dramatic celebrations of the church year. It's my very favorite worship service," she said.

Dating from the earliest years of the Christian church, the Vigil literally leads the congregation from Lent to Easter. It does so through word, song, and, most importantly, symbols that refer to Scripture. Because many people today may be unfamiliar with symbolic interpretation, explanatory notes are provided in the text of the Vigil service.

"I hope people will take the time to read the explanations," said Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden. "The Vigil is a rich, wonderful service on its own, but when a person understands the meaning behind the ritual, it becomes even richer."

People planning to attend the Vigil should expect the unexpected, because the Easter Vigil is a service unlike any other. For example, everyone planning to attend the Easter Vigil is asked to bring a flashlight and to wear comfortable walking shoes.

"I realize that a flashlight sounds like an odd thing to bring to a worship service but believe me, a flashlight is pretty essential," said Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden. "It's simply a modern version of the traditional candles."

"Quincy Community United Methodist Church has chosen to use flashlights for safety reasons. There will be some available in case anyone forgets to bring one. Comfortable shoes are also important because some walking is involved—a short staircase. People then have the option of continuing with the traditional Vigil, which includes more walking, or the non-traditional one in which people remain seated in one place," she said.

"Both groups then join together for the major portion of the service."

The Easter Vigil is very much a participatory worship experience and the more a person puts into the Vigil, the more that person will get out of it," Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden said. "I think a friend of mine put it best when he said, 'I used to think I got Easter here'—and he pointed to his forehead. 'But now,' he continued, 'I get Easter here'—and he pointed to his heart."

"That's what the Easter Vigil is all about. Everyone is invited to share in this wonderful experience."

The church building is handicapped accessible; the handicapped entrance is located in the front, the door closest to the flag pole.

Union Congregational

The annual Celtic Service at Union Congregational Church, corner of Beach Street and Rawson Road, Wollaston will be held Sunday at 10 a.m.

The service will be preceded by a Palm Sunday Breakfast. The blessing and distribution of Palms will be part of the service.

Since 2005 Union Church has celebrated the Irish/Scott heritage of many of its friends and members with a special 8th Century Celtic Liturgy adapted by the Pastor, the Rev. John C. Swanson who studied liturgy at the graduate level at Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria, VA.

The story of Patrick who brought Christianity to Ireland is a story of faith and victory against all odds that can be appreciated and celebrated by all Christians.

RELIGION

First Baptist Church

Palm Sunday Worship service begins at 10:30 a.m. at the First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 81 Prospect Ave. All are welcome.

Interim Pastor, Stephen Trimble will preach the sermon, "Proclaiming and Parading." Serving the church will be greeters Paul St. John and Beverly Moulton. Scripture reader is Jan Burton.

The First Baptist Singers will sing the anthem "The Palms" under the direction of Nancy Conrad, Music Director. Sunday School begins after the Pastor's message to the children. They will fill Easter Baskets to be delivered to our shut-ins.

A Maundy Thursday Service will be held on Thursday, March 24th at 7 p.m. in the Sanctuary.

On Sunday, April 3rd the Coast Guard Academy Cadet Glee Club will present a free concert of Patriotic and Sea Songs at 3 p.m.

All areas of the church are handicap accessible.

Quincy Point Congregational

Palm Sunday worship begins at 10 a.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St. and will feature the Sunday School Choir, The Chancel Choir and the Point Handbell Ringers.

Peter Johnston will preach and Deanna Van Schagen will be deacon of the day. After worship all are welcome for coffee hour and light refreshments in the Social Hall downstairs.

The church is handicap accessible. Enter through doors on Abbey Road side of building to access the elevator.

The Easter memorials are due March 20th. There are three funds to donate to: The UCC Emergency USA Fund- for water for Flint Michigan; The Access Fund to finish funding the new QPCC elevator; or the Scholarship Fund. Forms are by calling 617-773-6424. For more information about how the funds will be used for Flint, Michigan see www.ucc.org/flint-story-11916.

On April 2nd in Social Hall there will be an April Fool's baked Potato Bash to raise funds for the Children's Summer camp Music Scholarships. The night will feature a talent show, a baked potato bar and attire for the evening will be mismatched anything and everything.

Tickets are $15 per person, teens $5 and children under 8 are free. For tickets call Deanna at 781-910-7761 or the church office at 617-773-6424.

Houghs Neck Congregational

The Palm Sunday worship service at 10 a.m. begins Holy Week at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

Pastor Felix Carrion will lead the service and preach the sermon "Peace Alone Prevails." Chris Keating, liturgist, will call to worship and read the scripture lesson. Palms will be distributed by members of the Diaconate.

Steve Reed, Minister of Music, will direct the choir. A Fellowship coffee hour follows the service hosted by Nancy and Molly Jacobs.

Maundy Thursday, March 24th will begin with a special dinner at 5:30 pm.

The service of "darkness and Shadows" is a meditation on Christ's suffering. Readings trace the story of Christ's passion, music portrays his pathos, and the power of silence and darkness suggests the meaning of this momentous day. Come and partake in the Sacrament of Communion in remembrance of Jesus' Passover Meal with his disciples.

Hope is reborn!

OBITUARIES

Emily Foschia, 93

A celebration of life for Emily "Emie" (Moraitis) Foschia, 93, of Quincy was held March 12 in Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Mrs. Foschia died March 5.

Born in New York City where she was raised and educated, she lived in Quincy for most of her life, spending 23 years in Plymouth. A homemaker, she was married for 64 years to her beloved husband, the late Jacob H. "Jake" Foschia.

Mrs. Foschia was the loving mother of Katherine J. von Wendt of Quincy and Jacqueline Foschia and her late partner Sara Brewer of AZ; sister of James Moraitis of FL and the late Bessie D'Ambrisi of FL; and is also survived by many beloved nieces and nephews.

EMILY FOSCHIA

Memorial donations may be made to the Residents DTS Council Fund at Quincy Adams Health Care Center, 211 Franklin St., Quincy, MA 02169. The staff there provided loving care for Emily, which was deeply appreciated by her family.

Robert J. Zacchini

A funeral Mass for Robert J. Zacchini of Quincy and formerly Dorchester will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in St. Agatha's Church, Milton.

Mr. Zacchini died March 5 at home.

He was born in Boston, raised and educated in Dorchester and was a graduate of Cathedral High School, Class of 1962. He had lived in Quincy for 23 years, previously in Dorchester for most of his life.

Mr. Zacchini was employed as an operations manager at the former Jordan Marsh Company in Downtown Crossing for many years. He had served as a lector at St. Mary's Church in West Quincy and most recently at St. Agatha's Church in East Milton. He was a train enthusiast including old trolleys and buses. He also studied genealogy and meteorology.

Beloved son of the late Anthony J. and Mary C. (DiVito) Zacchini. He is survived by several cousins.

Visitation will be held at Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy, from 8:45 to 9:45 a.m. Thursday.

At the request of the family, interment services will be private.

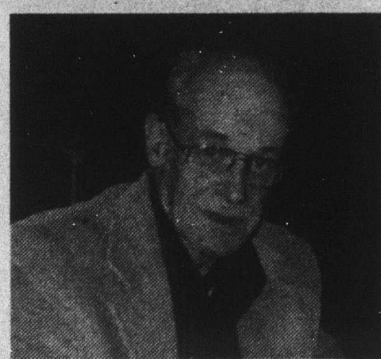

Francis A. McCarthy

A Mass of Christian Burial for Francis A. McCarthy of Quincy was celebrated Wednesday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. McCarthy died suddenly March 10.

He served in the United States Marine Corp. He was a longtime resident of Quincy. Mr. McCarthy worked as a carpenter for the city of Boston in the old Long Island Hospital in Boston and as an operator at the treatment plant.

He is the cherished brother of Mary Hogan, Catherine Judge, Pauline Ryan all of Quincy and the late Julia Lorenz, John and Joseph McCarthy. Mr. McCarthy is also survived by many beautiful nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by Lydon Chapel for Funerals, 644 Hancock St., Quincy.

Private interment.

Aphrodite Blathras, 68

Funeral services for Aphrodite Blathras, 68, of Braintree were held Wednesday at St. Catherine's Greek Orthodox Church, Braintree.

Mrs. Blathras died peacefully March 12 after a long, valiant fight with cancer.

Born and raised in Megalopoli, Greece, she was the daughter of the late Athanasios and Marigo (Velentzas) Dassiaklis. Mrs. Blathras immigrated to the United States in 1969 where she met her husband of 45 years, John K. Blathras. They raised a family and eventually started a family operated dry cleaning business, Billings Cleaners in North Quincy.

In addition to her husband, John, Mrs. Blathras was mother of Costa Blathras and his wife Valerie, Dena B. Vardaxis and her husband Fotios, all of Braintree. Loving grandmother of Marina, Roza, and Aphroditi Vardaxis and Yianni Blathras. She was sister of Sotirios Dassiaklis, and Dena Tatsi, both of Greece. Also survived by many loving nieces and nephews in both the U.S. and Greece.

Mrs. Blathras will be remembered for her humor, humility, grace, and generous heart. She was a devoted and patient spouse, a remarkable, heroic mom, a cherished sibling, a loyal friend, and she enjoyed nothing more than being "yiayia" to her grandchildren and ensuring they were well fed at all times. One could always rely on her for a kind and encouraging word or deed, and she will be missed by all who knew her.

Funeral arrangements were made by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to either the Hellenic Cardiac Fund for Children, c/o Children's Hospital Boston, 300 Longwood Ave., Boston, MA 02115 or to St. Catherine's Greek Orthodox Church, 119 Common St., Braintree, MA 02184.

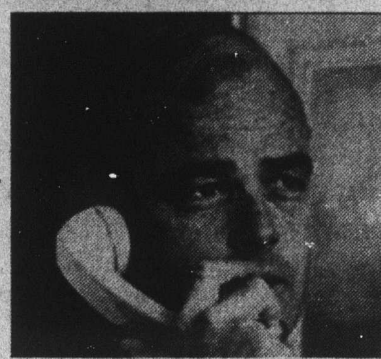

Peter Boylston Adams, 73

Peter Boylston Adams, 73, of Wimauma, Fla., and Scituate, a direct descendant of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams, died March 4.

A graduate of Norwich and Boston Universities and a veteran of the Vietnam War, Mr. Adams served as a helicopter pilot and earned numerous medals, including the Bronze Star, the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Purple Heart, and the Air Medal with 30 oak leaf clusters. A good landing, he was fond of saying, was one you could crawl away from. A great one meant you could use the helicopter again, which he would wryly point out, he was unable to do on 7 occasions.

After the military, Mr. Adams had a successful commercial banking career.

An avid historian with a dynamic personality, he was often asked to speak on behalf of the Adams family, including at the annual wreath laying ceremonies at the United First Parish Church in Quincy. He served in prominent roles in many organizations, including the Boston Veterans Homeless Shelter. After his cancer diagnosis, which was attributed to Agent Orange, Mr. Adams became a vocal advocate for other disabled veterans.

Survived by his wife, Sherry P. Adams, three sons, Charles Francis Adams, Reid Boylston Adams and Rett McKay Adams, and six grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held in Scituate in late August.

Memorial donations may be made to the Disabled Veterans of America.

James H. Connors

A funeral Mass for James H. Connors of Quincy was celebrated March 12 in Cadigan Hall at Boston College High School, Dorchester.

Mr. Connors died March 4 peacefully after battling cancer.

He was the son of the late James A. and Rose T. (Harvey) Connors. He was predeceased by his brother James A. Connors Jr. and is survived by his brother Michael J. Connors of ME, sister Cathleen R. Walsh and brother-in-law James L. Walsh Sr., of South Easton. He was the uncle of Michael Walsh, James Walsh Jr., Michele Casey and Colleen Rose, all of Easton, Shannon Hruz of West Bridgewater, Ryan Walsh of Medway, Jean Kennedy of ME and Sandy Connors of

JAMES H. CONNORS

ME. He was the friend and companion for more than 30 years to the late Barbara Kreckie and the special uncle to Shawn Kreckie of Quincy, Lauren Brooks of CO and Matthew Kreckie of Pembroke. He was the great uncle to eleven.

Mr. Connors was a teacher at Boston College High School, retiring in the fall of 2014 after 38 years. He taught chemistry, biology and mathematics, and had served as the science department chair.

In addition to teaching, Mr. Connors had a love of music, theater and traveling. He traveled with many friends and family including his sister Cathy, Barbara Kreckie and lifelong friend Robert Donovan.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment at New Calvary Cemetery, Boston.

Memorial donations may be made to the Sheila Gailius Scholarship Fund, Boston College High School, 150 William T. Morrissey Blvd. Dorchester, MA 02125.

Cherished brother of Karen King and husband Bruce of Kingston, Jaime Dwyer and husband Matthew of Pembroke and the late Joseph Arsenault. Devoted uncle "Unky Monkey" of Laurie Picot, Michael Picot and wife Andrea, Joseph Dwyer, Allison Dwyer and Nicole Lipnick. Great uncle of Michael Joseph Picot, Nolan Picot, Joseph Lipnick and his adored doggie nephews Max and the late Diezel. Special friend to many, especially Lisa Aprea. Also survived by many aunts, uncles and cousins.

Mr. Arsenault, a former lobsterman and roofer, had been employed as a painter for the last several years. Proficient at many things, he was known as a jack-of-all-trades.

MICHAEL ARSENAULT

He loved camping and the ocean, an avid fisherman happiest with a fishing rod in his hand and a dog by his side. He had a huge heart and an enormous sense of humor. Often told by many "you are the funniest person I know." With his quick wit, he always kept friends, relatives and even strangers laughing. He enjoyed spending time with his family and many friends and will be greatly missed by all. The world was a better place with him in it.

Visiting hours are 4-8 p.m. Friday in the funeral home.

In reflection of Mr. Arsenault's deep love for animals, especially Max and Diezel, donations in his memory may be made to MSPCA.

Anna S. Candeloro

A funeral Mass for Anna S. (Suffaletta) Candeloro of Quincy will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. Friday in St. Agatha Church, Milton.

Mrs. Candeloro died March 7.

Beloved wife of the late Domenico Candeloro. Loving mother of Benny, Toni Taranto, Nick, Fred, and the late Susan Schwartz. Mother-in-law of Robert Schwartz. Also survived by seven grandchildren. Predeceased by two sisters.

Visiting hours are 4-8 p.m. Thursday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy. Celebration of life service at the funeral home at 9:30 a.m. Friday, prior to the Mass.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to Alzheimer's Assn., MA Chapter, 480 Pleasant St., Watertown, MA 02472.

Annual Way Of The Cross In Quincy March 25

On Good Friday, March 25, Quincy Catholics will once more carry the cross throughout the City of Quincy, stopping at each of its seven Catholic Churches.

All are welcome to join in this prayerful journey of remembrance on Good Friday. The group encourages participation of any kind, whether participants are able to walk part of the journey, all of the journey, or not at all.

Many choose to participate by greeting the walkers upon their arrival at a church, and then staying to pray the two stations of the Cross.

There is no need to sign up. The Quincy Way of the Cross is not a fundraiser; no money is collected, and no money is spent.

The Quincy Way of the Cross steps off from Sacred

Heart Church, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy at 9 a.m. After leaving Sacred Heart, the itinerary is as follows:

• Sacred Heart Church, 386 Hancock St., estimated arrival time (ETA) 9 a.m.

• St. Ann's Church, 757 Hancock St., ETA 9:30 a.m.

• St. Mary's Church, 115 Crescent St., ETA 10:45 a.m.

• St. John's Church, 21 Gay St., ETA 11:45 a.m.

• St. Joseph's Church, 550 Washington St., ETA 12:45 p.m.

• Holy Trinity Church (Our Lady of Good Counsel), 227 Sea St., ETA 1:45 p.m.

• Holy Trinity (Most Blessed Sacrament), 1000 Sea St., ETA 2:30 p.m.

For more information call Quincy Way of the Cross at 781-654-1534 or email jt-desmond@verizon.net.

LIFT Worship Service Friday At Sacred Heart

LIFT Ministries will lead a two-hour worship service Friday, March 18 from 7 to 9 p.m. in Sacred Heart Church, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The time of prayer, contemporary music, message and Adoration is hosted by the Quincy Catholic Collaborative of St. Mary-Sacred Heart-St. Ann.

LIFT Ministries is a Catholic ministry based in the Boston area that hosts monthly worship nights featuring praise and worship music, Catholic speakers and Eucharistic Adoration. Hundreds of Catholics of all ages attend these events every month throughout the Archdiocese of Boston.

The speaker at Sacred Heart will be Dave VanVickle. The evening is free, and open to all ages.

QHS Drama Club Presents 'Guys And Dolls'

*Musical Comedy Friday, Saturday, Sunday At Lloyd
Hill Performing Arts Center*

The Quincy High School Drama Club will present "Guys and Dolls," book by Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows; music and lyrics by Frank Loesser, with performances Friday, March 18 through Sunday, March 20.

"Guys and Dolls" is a musical romantic comedy involving the unlikely of Manhattan pairings: a high-rolling gambler and a puritanical missionary, a showgirl dreaming of the straight and narrow and a crap game manager who is anything but.

The original Broadway production won the Tony for best musical in 1950 and has been called one of the most perfect musical productions ever as well as being revived several times on Broadway, was a major motion picture and in the process of being revived again as a movie. There are many songs in the show that people will recognize such as "Luck Be a Lady" and "A Bushel and a Peck." The production will be accompanied by a 15 piece orchestra.

This production is directed by Margaret Spencer with Tom Doucette as technical designer; Michael Murray as musical director; and, choreography by Tina Storer and Cailyn Halley.

Quincy High's Drama

Club, as well as students from the area's middle and elementary schools make up the cast with Joe Scott starring as Nathan Detroit; Rob Smith as Sky Masterson; Maura MacDonald and Colleen Craig sharing the role as Miss Adelaide and Rachel Zisk and Leanne Gough sharing the role as Miss Sarah Brown, as well as a supporting cast including Austin Kimmel as Nicely Nicely Johnson, Jack Donnell as Benny, Bobby Stevenson as Harry, Billy Maier as Fast Eddie and many more, along with a special performance by the staff.

The students have been rehearsing since December and are proud to perform this great production, come back to the '50's and old New York and bring the family, guaranteed a fun time for all while supporting the performing arts at Quincy High School, 100 Coddington St., Lloyd Hill Performing Arts Center.

Opening night is Friday, March 18th at 7:30 p.m. Other performances are Saturday, March 19th at 2 p.m. and at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, March 20th at 2 p.m.

Tickets are $12 for general admission and $5 for students and can be purchased in advance weekdays from 3 to 5 p.m. in the auditorium and also at the door.

Cape Cod Luncheon Train Trip May 26

Members of the Quincy Council on Aging will board the Cape Cod Luncheon Train in Hyannis Thursday, May 26 for a scenic two-hour rail tour of beautiful Cape Cod.

They will embark the Cape Cod Central Railroad in Hyannis and experience the Cape as never seen before, with parts only accessible by rail. Travel alongside sand dunes, salt marshes, cranberry bogs and the famous Cape Cod Canal, while on board narration keeps you informed and entertained.

Featured on PBS Great Scenic Train Journeys, this train also boasts the title of one of the top dinner trains in the nation by Food TV Network. Indulge in a three-course meal including your choice of Chicken Franciase or Vegetarian Manicotti, with Cape Cod Central Seafood Chowder, dessert, coffee or tea. Weather permitting enjoy some time to shop on Main Street in Hyannis.

For more information call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

SHOW CAST - Quincy High's Drama Club, as well as students from the area's middle and elementary schools, make up the cast appearing in "Guys And Dolls" Friday, Saturday and Sunday at QHS's Lloyd Hill Performing Arts Center.

Pedestrian Safety Master Plan Sought

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new pedestrian master plan sought by city councillors aims to increase pedestrian safety in Quincy, by having city departments and residents work together on new education efforts, enforcement plans and long-term infrastructure improvements.

The City Council on Monday night unanimously voted in favor of a resolution calling on the establishment of a pedestrian master plan. Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain introduced the resolution, which was co-sponsored by four of his colleagues.

"It's something that will really involve the citizens of the city and it's something that's drastically going to improve the livability of Quincy, especially as we seek to grow," Cain said. "[It] recognizes the need to make Quincy greater than it already is and make it a more pedestrian-friendly atmosphere."

"Obviously, we've had some unfortunate circumstances recent-

Koch Won't Fund Council Request For Attorney Money

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors on Monday approved a resolution asking Mayor Thomas Koch to set aside $60,000 in the budget for the upcoming fiscal year to allow the body to retain outside counsel on legal matters, a request a mayoral spokesman ruled out on Tuesday.

The City Council on Monday night approved the resolution in a 6-1 vote, with Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain opposed and Councillor Nina Liang abstaining. The resolution asked Koch to include a $60,000 line item in the council's budget for fiscal 2017, which begins July 1. An outside counsel line item already exists in the budget for the law office, which can be allocated by City Solicitor Jim Timmins.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said the ability to retain outside counsel would assist in the council's ability to act as a check

Both sides in a legal dispute over the vacant Ward 6 City Council seat will have their day in court Friday.

Judge Rosalind Miller has scheduled a hearing on the matter for 10 a.m. Friday in Norfolk County Superior Court in Dedham. The hearing will take place less than two weeks before voters are scheduled to head to the polls in a preliminary special election, which would whittle the field of candidates down from five to two.

William Harris contends he is entitled to the Ward 6 seat last held by longtime Councillor Brian McNamee, who died Dec. 23 after a brief battle with cancer, because he finished runner-up to the incumbent in the November municipal election. Harris and his attorney, former City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie, have argued a 1953 state law requires the runner-up be seated if a councillor-elect dies before his new term in office begins or otherwise is unable to assume office.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins however, has said home rule petitions approved in 1984 and 2004 trump the 1953 legislation. The 2004 act requires a special election

Cong. Lynch's POW/MIA Remembrance Act Passes House

Cong. Stephen F. Lynch's legislation H.R. 1670, the National POW/MIA Remembrance Act of 2015, passed unanimously on the floor of the United States House of Representatives Monday.

H.R. 1670 honors American Prisoners of War/Missing in Action (POW/MIA) by placing a chair on the grounds of the U.S. Capitol. H.R. 1670 has bipartisan support from 45 House co-sponsors.

Commemorative chairs, which carry the POW and MIA insignia, have been placed in cities and towns around the country, in spaces ranging from city halls to professional sports stadiums. These seats remain perpetually unoccupied as a solemn reminder of the over 83,000 brave service members still waiting to be brought home.

"I am very pleased to work alongside my colleagues to pay respect to the men and women who are Missing in Action or Prisoners of War," Cong. Lynch said. "These brave Americans serve our nation with valor and honor. This commemorative chair will serve as a daily reminder to our POW/MIA and their families that we will never forget them.

"With the help of Rolling Thunder Massachusetts Chapter 1, the Commonwealth has led the way in honoring our Prisoners of War and Missing in Action. I am proud that the United States Capitol will follow suit," he added.

Joe D'Entremont of Jamaica Plain, the former President of the Rolling Thunder Massachusetts Chapter 1, first brought this initiative to the attention of Congressman Lynch in 2014. D'Entremont and Gus Dante, both members of the Rolling Thunder, Inc. National Board, have worked hard to promote government accountability for American prisoners of war and missing in action and their families. They have also been national leaders in advocating for POW/MIA chairs in venues across the country.

"I would like to thank Congressman Lynch for his hard work on this issue. A POW/MIA chair that will remain perpetually empty to help people remember that even though our soldiers are not here, there is still a space for them," said Gus Dante, member of the Rolling Thunder, Inc. National Board.

A companion bill, S. 885, the National POW/MIA Remembrance Act of 2015, has been introduced by Senator Elizabeth Warren (D-MA).

$1.2M For CPA Projects

Funds Include $400,000 For Affordable Housing

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday voted unanimously to allocate $1.2 million to 15 different projects using money from Quincy's community preservation account.

The largest amount of money, $400,000, was appropriated to Karsten Company/Sage Housing Inc. for the creation of affordable housing. Councillor Noel DiBona, who sits on the Quincy Community Preservation Committee, said the project being funded includes 32 units.

Seven recreation projects received CPA funds Monday. The Parks Department received $100,000 for the preservation of Varsity Field on Merrymount Parkway; $90,000 for work at the Quarry Hills baseball field, which Quincy Youth Baseball President Mike Connors said would include new lighting; $75,000 for Coletta Park/Adams Walk in Merrymount Park; and $35,000 for recreational trails at Broad Meadows Park.

The Quincy Police Department received $170,000 in recreation funds to create a boat ramp and the city received $75,000 to renovate and create a new playground at the Parker School and $30,000 for new recreational space for the Marshall School.

Five historic preservation projects will receive funds. The city will receive $65,000 to conduct a study on the restoration of the crypts of John and John Quincy Adams and their wives, First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams, at the United First Parish Church; the Wollaston Congregational Church was awarded $50,000 to restore its bell tower; the National Society of Colonial Dames $49,534 to restore a doorway at the Dorothy Quincy Home; the First Baptist Church $18,000 to preserve windows; and the Department of Public Works $10,000 to preserve water, sewer and drain records.

Two open space projects received funds. The Department of Public Works will receive $30,000 for preservation efforts at Sailor's Pond off Rice Road and the Squantum Garden Association $5,000 for Wollaston Beach open space preservation.

Quincy's voters adopted the state's Community Preservation Act by referendum in 2008. The CPA fund is financed through a one percent tax on property.

Proposed Compressor Station Hearing March 28

The state's Department of Environmental Protection will hold a public hearing on a proposal to build a natural gas compressor on the Fore River will be held Monday, March 28.

The public hearing that night is scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m. inside the auditorium at Weymouth's Abigail Adams Middle School, 89 Middle St. Shuttles to the school will be available from two locations in Quincy – the Germantown Neighborhood Center at 366 Palmer St. and O'Brien Towers at 73 Bicknell St. – beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Houston-based Spectra Energy has proposed building the 7,700 horsepower compressor station on land in North Weymouth adjacent to the Fore River Bridge as part of its Atlantic Bridge project.

The project requires approval from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. The MassDEP March 28 is to determine if the project should be granted a waterways license. The state agency is accepting written comments through April 8. They must be addressed to: Frank Taormina, MassDEP Waterways Regulation Program, One Winter St., 5th Floor, Boston, MA 02108 or to frank.taormina@state.ma.us.

ENGAGING PERSONALITIES

While traditional white-on-white engagement rings feature classic white diamonds on platinum or white gold, many brides-to-be and marrying couples are taking a more adventurous approach to designing engagement rings. One of the variations from the usual involves the selection of a yellow (canary) diamond, which is set in platinum or white gold and flanked by white diamonds. This pairing retains all the flash of a diamond engagement ring, while introducing subtle color contrast that reverses the traditional look of a white diamond set in yellow gold. Speaking of which, other pieces utilize rose gold or rich, yellow gold to set off white diamonds. The idea behind this trend is to complement and contrast gemstones and precious metals to dramatic effect.

With a remarkable golden hue that sets it apart, a yellow diamond engagement ring is a stunning choice to immortalize your love. Canary diamond engagement rings are available in a wide range of settings and hues designed specifically to please even the most particular tastes. Making City Safer For Pedestrians

Stand at any busy intersection in Quincy and it makes you wonder why it doesn't happen more.

We're talking about accidents involving pedestrians and motorists.

Observe these well-traveled routes long enough and you'll see plenty of infractions.

Both for pedestrians and drivers.

Pedestrians who can't wait for a walk light at a cross walk and instead dart out into traffic like a human game of "Frogger."

Motorists who ignore a red light and barrel through the intersection like they're the President enroute to an airport.

We've seen it in and around the square time and time again.

And wish it would stop.

But accidents will happen -- and have happened -- this year.

So far, in the first three months of 2016, there have been three fatal pedestrian accidents in Quincy. In all three cases -- as of Tuesday anyway -- the drivers in those accidents have not been charged following police investigations.

We extend our sincerest condolences to the families of those three individuals who were killed in those accidents. This tragic loss of human life has put a brighter spotlight on the issue of pedestrian safety in Quincy and rightfully so.

We also applaud city councillors who are calling for a Pedestrian Master Plan that will "incorporate the principles of education, engineering, enforcement, encouragement, and evaluation." Part of that plan calls for a presentation of pedestrian fatality and injury data trends, with associated maps. Another piece would prioritize a list of desirable long-term pedestrian infrastructure improvements and associated cost estimates, along with maps detailing the proposed improvements.

While the opioid problem has received a lot of headlines lately, the pedestrian safety issue is right up there, too. It is on the minds of lot of people including many of our readers.

After we published a front page story by Quincy Police Lt. Dan Minton on pedestrian and motorist safety tips, we received calls and emails requesting follow-up information. One reader noted a dangerous traffic situation near the Hannon Parkway and Star Market.

The reader highlighted the "Right on Red" and the crosswalk at the Hannon Parkway at the location near the grocery store.

"When you leave the Star Market and take a right out of the parking lot to the crosswalk, the light is very confusing to both drivers and pedestrians. At the same time that a pedestrian has a safe to walk signal, the driver turning right has a green light. Makes absolutely no sense," the reader said.

These are the types of safety issues that we hope a Pedestrian Master Plan would target and resolve.

One of the themes in Lt. Minton's article noted the "poor decisions that drivers and/or pedestrians make that cause these accidents." Among those "poor decisions" are texting, reading, using headphones or any other actions that result in not being aware of their surroundings. He also points out that the victims of pedestrian accidents are often adults.

"Maybe this is because children not only know the safety issues of crossing the street, but they also abide by them. It often seems that adults are too important to wait for the pedestrian light or to go to a crosswalk," he wrote.

I also think that we've become a society of multitaskers -- and "tech addicts."

Driving a car or just walking down the street isn't enough activity for some. There are those who are compelled to check their cell phones frequently to reply to email, text messages or visit social media sites like Facebook and put themselves and others at risk.

And it's not just those traveling by foot or car.

Have you ever watched a Red Sox game on TV and taken a good look at the folks sitting in the first few rows? Having some of the best seats in the park isn't enough to enjoy the game. These same "fans" spend inning after inning with their head down texting and emailing friends about who knows what.

Can't that wait until after the game?

It's the same with walking and driving a car.

How about getting to the location you're driving to and safely parking the car before you check Facebook?

I've seen motorists stopped at red lights with their heads buried in their phones.

I'm willing to bet that the incidence of traffic accidents has risen proportionally with the proliferation of cell phones.

And walkers also could do a better job of being aware of their surroundings. How about crossing the street at the appropriate time with your head up and your phone in your pocket before you call your friend about how you just finished an errand?

I'm all for doing whatever can be done to help make the city safer for pedestrians and motorists. Synchronize traffic lights better. Brighten intersections with stronger streetlights. Reline poorly defined traffic lanes and crosswalks.

That would be a great improvement and would help make the city more pedestrian friendly.

But it's really up to those who walk the sidewalks and drive cars on city streets to focus on their walking and driving if we're going to reduce the number of pedestrian accidents in Quincy.

In Lt. Minton's article, he pointed out that during a three-year period -- from 2013 to 2015 -- the department issued 5,500 citations to motorists. In addition, there were hundreds of interactions with pedestrians and bicyclists about crosswalk violations they committed. Police officers passed out educational pamphlets in English and Cantonese at major intersections to stress the importance of using crosswalks appropriately, he also wrote.

This crackdown and education initiative began after five pedestrians were killed in accidents involving motorists in 2012. The outreach appeared to help as only four fatalities occurred from 2013 to 2015.

And Quincy is not alone with the pedestrian safety issue.

Nationally, about 6,000 pedestrians are killed each year and thousands more seriously injured.

The pedestrian safety issue is a community-wide issue.

But it really begins with the individual.

As Lt. Minton mentioned, one of the most important tips for pedestrians is:

As a vehicle approaches, try to make eye contact with the driver. If the driver is texting or preoccupied, he/she may not see you.

If the driver sees you, he/she may motion for you to cross.

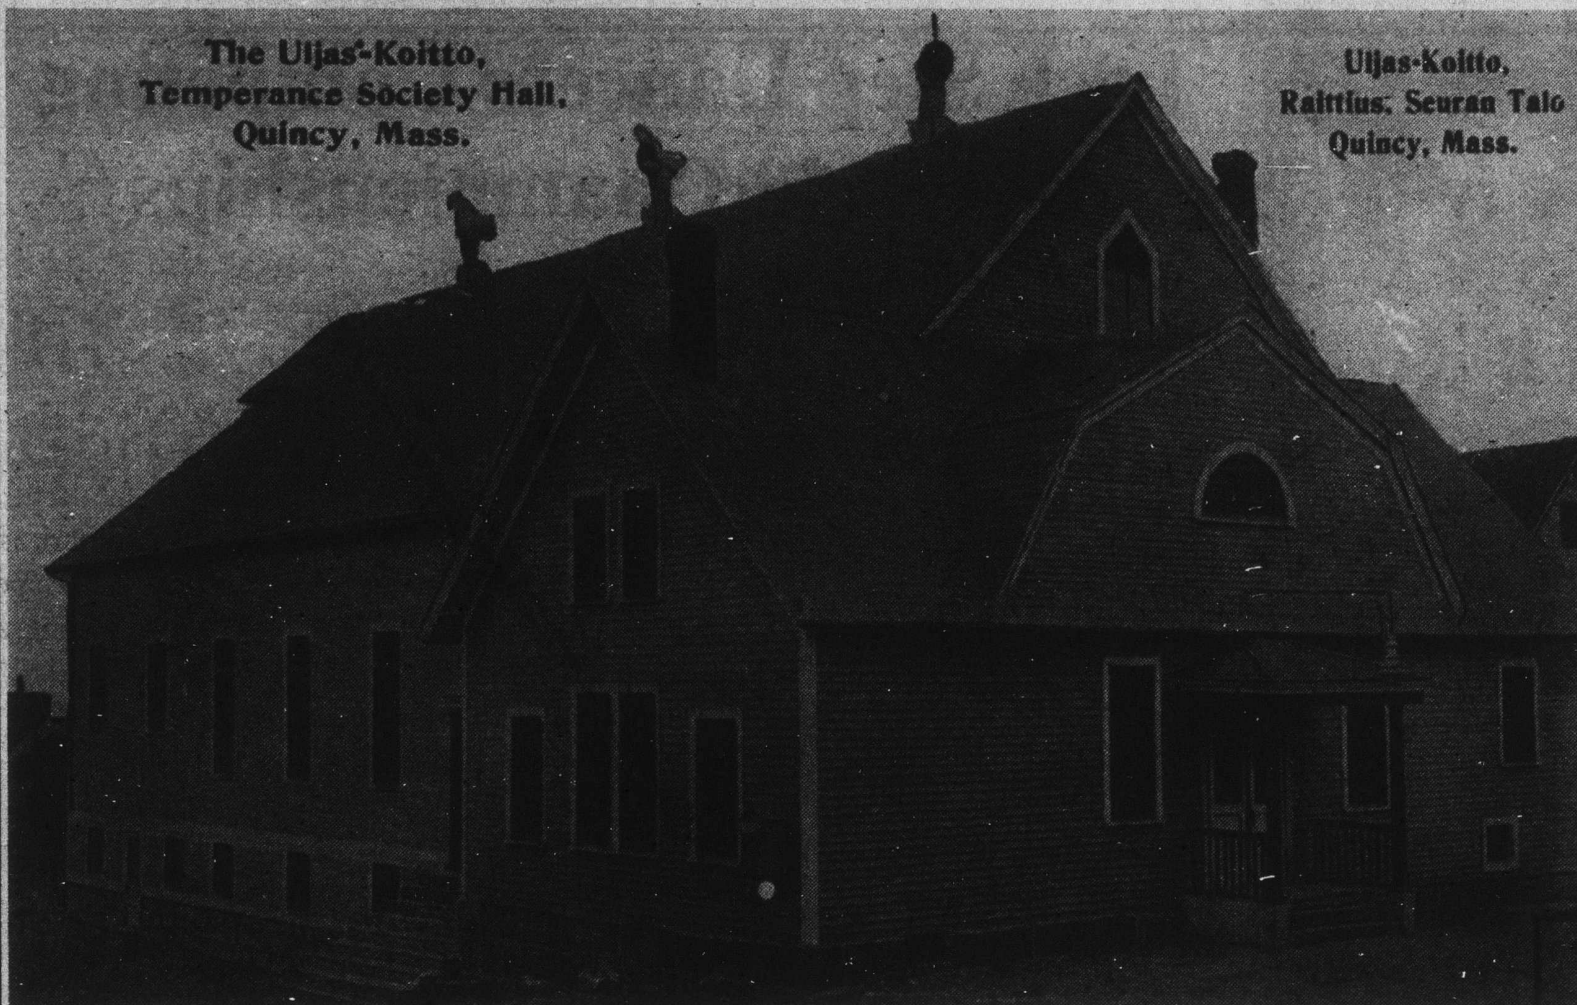

Don't assume that because you can see the driver, that they can see you.

We'd like to add that pedestrians shouldn't assume a "Red" light to a motorist means it's all clear to walk across the street. Some drivers ignore red lights so be sure that car stops before setting foot from the sidewalk to the street.

Please obey the rules of the road and be aware of your surroundings.

Together we can all make Quincy a safer place to walk and drive.

Quincy, Mass.

THIS IS A 1920 postcard showing the Finnish Uljas-Koitto Temperance Society Hall that was on the corner of Nelson Street and Suomi Road in West Quincy for 75 years. A fire set by vandals destroyed the building in 1974. Finnish people first arrived in South/West Quincy in 1886 to work in the granite industry. Over time hundreds of Finns had settled in what became known as the Brewer's Corner neighborhood. By 1890, they had formed their own temperance society and in 1898 had sufficient funds to build the small hall shown in the front here. The building was expanded with the large addition on the rear in 1912. After the fire only a small stone tablet marks this site. In 1926 the society had purchased a small summer camp on Furnace Pond in Pembroke and expanded their presence there over the years. Known as the UKTS sauna camp they are still in operation there on Suomi Road off Route 36. Suomi is the Finnish word for Finland and/or Finnish. Uljas-Koitto translates to "Noble Endeavor." City Needs Multimodal Transportation Safety Plan

As an advocacy organization for Quincy's most vulnerable road users — pedestrians and bicyclists — Quincycles applauds the Quincy Police Department for its aggressive education and enforcement actions that have done so much to reduce the number of pedestrian traffic fatalities in our city. Lt. Minton highlighted their many laudable achievements in last week's front page article. Thank you, Quincy Police Department.

Education and enforcement obviously do a great deal to increase the empathy and awareness we all need to share our roads safely. However, recent tragedies indicate we can and should do more. Our police department should not bear the brunt of this effort alone. Quincy can take steps to increase the safety of all its residents as we redesign our roads and intersections.

Many of Quincy's roads have wide lanes that invite speeding and create barriers to safe pedestrian crossings, even with crosswalks. A number of concerned neighbors brought up these very issues at a public meeting last October 28th regarding the redesign of Sea Street currently underway.

Some of our newest intersections fail to take bicyclists into consideration at all and prioritize car traffic flow over the safe movement of other road users. Lt. Minton cited Hancock Street near North Quincy High School specifically as a location that requires pedestrians to have a heightened awareness in order to remain safe. What design elements could have provided a better balance of safety for all, good traffic flow, and mutual awareness?

Mayor Koch spoke of a

21st century transportation system in his inaugural address. Quincycles hopes this transportation system will prioritize moving people — pedestrians, drivers, bicyclists, and public transit users — not just moving cars. Quincy needs a comprehensive plan for multimodal transportation to take our city into a safer, less congested future. We need a plan that will aid our hard-working police force as we all work toward a goal of zero deaths on our roads.

Group Seeks Indoor Winter Playground Space

The Quincy Recreation Department runs free Saturday morning gym sessions for children eight and up at nine different gyms around the city from December through March.

Families of toddlers across the city are petitioning the Recreation Department to devote some of its resources to Quincy's younger children and create at least one indoor winter playground space at one of its gyms for a few hours on Saturday mornings.

Numerous towns and cities around Quincy hold similar programs and activities — Plymouth, Marshfield, Rockland, Hingham, Brookline, for example. These indoor winter playgrounds have ride-on toys, obstacle courses, inflatable houses, climbing structures and tumbling mats. Establishing a winter indoor playground program would be a great step for the city toward attracting and keeping young families in our great city.

An indoor winter playground will provide a safe, fun, and affordable location for children across Quincy to burn some much-needed energy in the winter months. It will promote healthy activity and allow families to meet other families from around the city.

The winter playground will also introduce families to all of the great programs and activities the Quincy Recreation Department runs throughout the year.

While Toddler Town at Marina Bay and the YMCA have activities Monday-Friday in the winter for this age group, we believe it is only fair and appropriate for the city to provide an option for all Quincy residents on Saturday mornings during the cold winter months to go along with its programs for older children.

The Quincy Recreation Department seems open to considering adding a winter playground for December 2016. A group of families has started an online petition on change.org to demonstrate the high level of interest in a winter playground space. To date more than 230 people have signed the petition.

If interested in showing your support, talk to your ward councillor, call or email the Quincy Recreation Department, or sign the petition by searching www.change.org for "Quincy Recreation Department: Open an indoor winter playground for toddlers."

Revaluation, Master Plan, Trash Major Issues

The City Council has a number of major issues to deal with over the next few months. Among them:

Revaluation — Several orders are now pending in the council's finance committee, including: an appropriation order of $70,000 to hire an outside firm to start work on the revaluation of all real and personal property in the city. A second order would put this issue on the November ballot. A third would require the council to take a position on the issue.

Master Plan — Within a month, members of the city council should receive copies of the city's Master Plan and zoning studies.

Rubbish Disposal — Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa is considering that the city take and prepare an incinerator site in the Cashman's Quarry area of West Quincy.

COUNCIL TABLES

CONFLICT OF INTEREST ISSUE

The City Council ordinance committee tabled action on a proposal to classify members of the unpaid city boards as "special employees" under the conflict of interest law. The proposal was made by Ward 6 Councillor Richard W. Barry. At present, all city employees, including unpaid ones, are classified "regular" employees, prohibiting them from doing any business with the city. As "special" employees, unpaid board members would be restricted from doing business with the city only in areas over which they have jurisdiction.

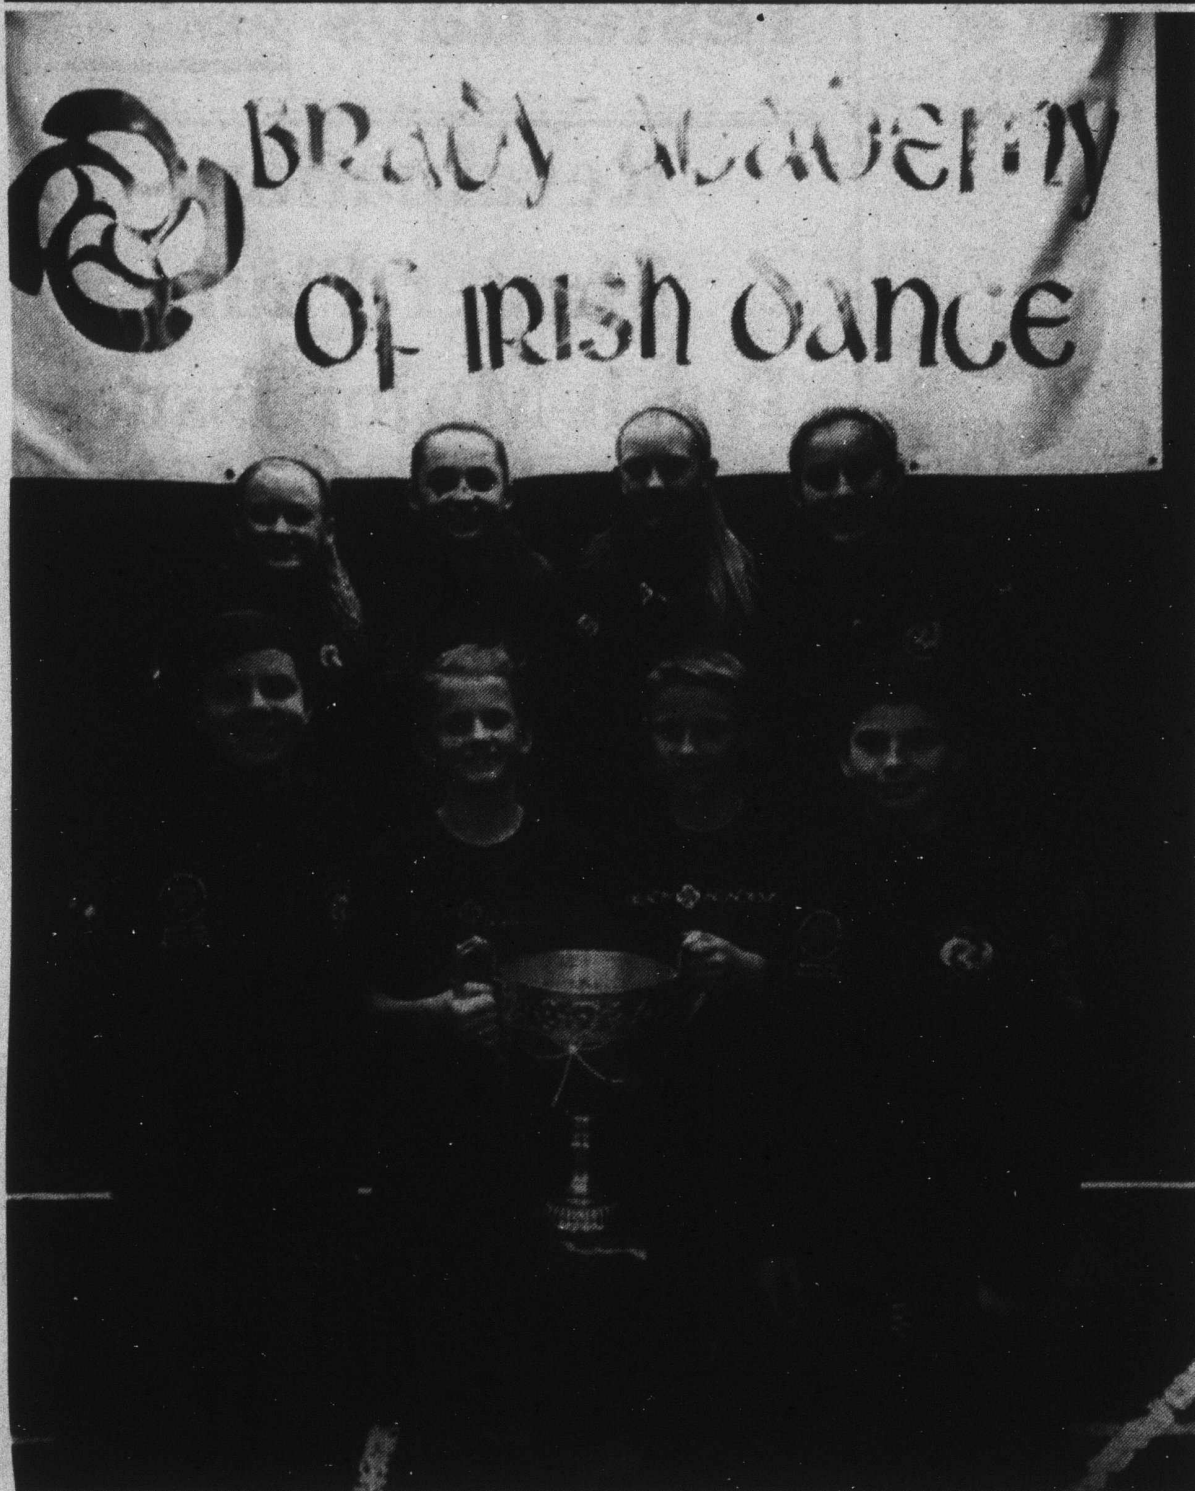

MARSHLAND REZONING DRAWS OPPOSING VIEWS

Conservation of marshlands or retention of a valuable industrial site were the alternatives placed before the planning board as it considered a proposed zoning change for the Montclair marshes. Ten people spoke in favor of the proposal while 17 recorded their opposition. The Planning Board took the matter under advisement.

WHAT'S COOKING

with
Marie & Suzie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUZIE FALCO

Ann Marie's Trail Mix Cookies

By MARIE

Today's cookie recipe actually came by accident by my daughter Ann Marie. She and her husband Dave had driven to Florida for a vacation, and while unpacking when they returned home, she found some trail mix left over.

She found a chocolate chip cookie recipe and decided to use the trail mix instead. What an idea - they were delicious. I think it's a first!

TRAIL MIX COOKIE

2 1/4 cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda and 1 teaspoon salt
2 sticks softened butter

3/4 cup granulated sugar
3/4 cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 eggs
2 cups of any kind of trail mix
1 cup walnuts (if trail mix does not have them)

Preheat oven to 375 degrees

Mix the butter and sugars and the vanilla until creamy. Add one egg at a time, then gradually add the dry ingredients. Stir in the trail mix.

Drop by tablespoon on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake for 9-11 minutes. Wait 2 minutes before placing them on a wire rack.

Healthy Cinnamon Drink

By SUZIE

Ever crave a cinnamon bun?

Here is a delicious homemade drink that is not only delicious and should calm that craving, but is also good for you. Did you know that maple syrup contains antioxidants, zinc, manganese, and even some calcium.

Zinc helps boost your immune system and manganese helps with carbohydrate metabolism. Everyone knows how good bananas are for you and they also are the main sweetness in this drink. The riper the sweeter, therefore the better! Hope you like it!

1 frozen banana, cut into pieces (I usually peel and cut into pieces and freeze in a baggy)

1 cup unsweetened almond milk or coconut milk

1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract

1 teaspoon pure maple syrup

Cinnamon stick, for garnish

Simply blend everything in your high speed blender, ninja, vitamix, whatever you have. (Except for the cinnamon stick!) Enjoy!

Delicious Lamb Meatloaf

By MARIE

Recently while food shopping, I found some ground lamb and decided right then that I would make a meatloaf.

I've made meatloaf with all kinds of meat and even a mix of meats. But this one with the lamb was not only the tastiest, but moist.

LAMB MEATLOAF

2 pounds ground lamb
1 egg
1/2 cup tomato sauce
2 cups rice krispies
1 small onion - chopped

1/4 cup ketchup

salt and pepper to taste

1 small red or green pepper (finely chopped)

1/2 teaspoon oregano (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

Mix the tomato sauce and the ketchup together and set aside.

Add half of the tomato mixture to the lamb, and blend well. Add the rest of the ingredients and mix well. Place in a 9-inch by 5-inch loaf pan, or on a greased cookie sheet (or parchment). Spread the rest of the tomato mixture over the top, and bake one hour to 70 minutes.

Classical, Fiddle Music April 3

Milton Community Concerts will present BSO violinist Bonnie Bewick Brown, Boston Pops cellist Jennifer Lucht, and pianist Timothy Steele in an entertaining and virtuosic program of classical and fiddle music on Sunday, April 3rd at 4 p.m. at First Parish Church of Milton, 535 Canton Ave.

Tickets are $20 general, free for 18 and under. $10 seniors 65 and over.

NQHS Class Of '56 Reunion

North Quincy High School Class of 1956 will hold its 60th reunion at noon Oct. 6 at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

The class is looking for "missing" classmates.

Classmates who have not been contacted or know a classmate who has not been contacted should call 33-237-8859 or email Jack-crowley@verizon.net.

Retired Judge Speaker At Historical Society

Retired Massachusetts Appeals Court Judge R. Marc Kantrowitz, who writes the "Law 'N History" column for Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly, will be the guest speaker at the Quincy Historical Society Wednesday, March 30 at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

Judge Kantrowitz has surveyed 30 of America's most notorious crimes in his book, "Old Whiskey and Young Women." He will share those stories at the March 30th program.

A number of cases remain famous, others have lapsed into obscurity, but they all were national sensations in their times. Among the assorted perpetrators and victims are the nation's most famous comedian, several of "America's sweethearts," the architects who designed the Boston Public Library, and the real-life model for Norman Bates in Psycho.

Admission is free. A book signing will follow the presentation.

Free String Quartet Performance Good Friday At St. Chrysostom's Church

A professional string quartet from Boston will present a free performance of Haydn's "Seven Last Words of Christ from the Cross" March 25 at 7 p.m. at

St. Chrysostom's Church, 1 Linden St., Wollaston.

The piece is a moving set of musical reflections on the Biblical story of Jesus's death on Good Friday.

The concert is free and no tickets are required. The church is fully accessible.

More information may be found at <http://www.stcquincy.org>, or by calling (617) 472-0737.

Children's Chorus Concert, Summer Camps

South Shore Children's Chorus Inaugural Concert will be held Sunday, May 15 at 3 p.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy.

Tickets are $10 for adults, $7 for students and $5 for children.

The South Shore Children's Chorus features more than 40 families with students ages 4 through 18.

The repertoire of the South Shore Children's Chorus ensembles ranges from folk songs to Brahms, Renaissance to 21st century music and is in six languages. Early Years and Training Choirs are continuing to develop vocal techniques and musical literacy through songs and games while using hand motions and dances to aid in the learning of music.

Intermediate Choir is South Shore Children's Choir largest ensemble and sings independently in tow and three parts in Spanish,

English and Zulu.

The Children's Chorus also announces it will hold summer programs featuring music and arts camps and choral intensive July 11-15 at Quincy Point Congregational Church. The camp will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday, July 11-15.

The music and arts camps are for students entering grades 1-5. Children will have an opportunity to work with professional music, art and dance teachers during the week.

SSCC aims to provide a well-rounded musical and arts experience for participants that is in accordance with National Core Arts Standards: creating, performing, responding and connecting.

The week culminates in a concert featuring choral works rehearsed during the program and an exhibition of student artwork Friday,

July 15 at 7 p.m.

The South Shore Choral Intensive is a program focusing on themes of leadership, personal responsibility, and musical intelligence. Students will be encouraged to prepare for the week with learning toos and aid provided by SSCC staff in order to perform high-level choral repertoire.

Students will also have the opportunity to attend music theory class geared for their level of knowledge, hear from guest speakers such as local professors and professional musicians, and benefit from group sectionals with a professional section leader for their specific voice type. The week culminates in a final performance on Friday, July 15 at 7 p.m. featuring choral works rehearsed during the program.

For more information on the camp including tuition costs visit www.southshorechildrenschorus.com.

Colorectal Cancer: Signs, Symptoms, Factors, Treatment

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Colon cancer is cancer of the large intestine (colon), the lower part of your digestive system. Rectal cancer is cancer of the last several inches of the colon. Collectively, they're often referred to as colorectal cancers.

Most cases of colon cancer begin as small, non-cancerous clumps of cells called adenomatous polyps. Over time some of these polyps develop into colon cancers. Polyps can appear mushroom-shaped, or they can be flat or recessed into the wall of the colon.

Polyps initially may be small and produce no symptoms. For this reason, doctors advise regular screening tests to identify polyps before they become colon cancer. Removing polyps before they become cancerous can prevent colon cancer.

Signs and symptoms of colon cancer include:

- A change in your bowel habits, including diarrhea or constipation or a change in the consistency of your stool
- Rectal bleeding or blood in your stool
- Persistent abdominal discomfort, such as cramps,

RUTH JONES

gas or pain

- A feeling that your bowel doesn't empty completely
- Weakness or fatigue
- Unexplained weight loss

Many people with colon cancer have no symptoms in the early stages of the disease. When symptoms appear, they may vary, depending on the size and location of the cancer. In general, guidelines recommend colon cancer screenings begin at age 50. Your doctor may suggest more frequent or earlier screening if you have other risk factors, such as a family history of the disease. If you notice any symptoms of colon cancer make an appointment for an evaluation.

The causes of most colon cancers are not identified. Doctors know that colon cancer occurs when healthy cells in the colon, that ordinarily grow and divide in a systematic way to keep your body functioning, become altered. When a cell is damaged and becomes cancerous, cells continue to divide even when new cells aren't necessary. These cancer cells can invade and destroy normal tissue nearby and can migrate to other parts of the body. Certain factors may put you at a higher risk for the development of colon cancer.

- Older age. The great majority of people diagnosed with colon cancer are older than 50.
- African-Americans have a greater risk of colon cancer than do people of other races.
- A personal history of colorectal cancer or polyps.
- Inflammatory intestinal conditions. Chronic inflammatory diseases of the colon, such as ulcerative colitis and Crohn's disease can increase your risk of colon cancer.
- Genetic syndromes passed through generations of your family can increase your risk of colon cancer.
- Family history of colon cancer and colon polyps. In some cases, a connection within the same family may result from shared exposure to an environmental carcinogen or from diet or lifestyle factors.

- Low-fiber, high-fat diet. Colon cancer and rectal cancer may be associated with a diet low in fiber and high in fat and calories. Research in this area has had mixed results. Some studies have found an increased risk of colon cancer in people who eat diets high in red meat.
- A sedentary lifestyle. If you're inactive, you're more likely to develop colon cancer.
- Diabetes. People with diabetes and insulin resistance may have an increased risk of colon cancer.
- Obesity. People who are obese have an increased risk of colon cancer and an increased risk of dying of colon cancer when compared with people considered normal weight.
- Smoking. People who smoke cigarettes may have an increased risk of colon cancer.
- Alcohol. Heavy use of alcohol may increase your risk of colon cancer.
- Radiation therapy for cancer. Radiation therapy directed at the abdomen to treat previous cancers may increase the risk of colon cancer.

If your signs and symptoms indicate that you could have colon cancer, your doctor may recommend one or more tests and procedures, including using a scope to examine the inside of your colon, and multiple CT images to create a picture of your colon.

Once you've been diagnosed with colon cancer, your doctor will order tests to determine the extent (stage) of your cancer. Staging helps determine what treatments are most appropriate for you.

The type of treatment your doctor recommends will depend largely on the stage of your cancer. The three principal treatment options are: surgery, chemotherapy and radiation. Complementary or alternative treatments have not been found to cure colon cancer, but may relieve some of the side effects of the disease or treatments.

Surgical procedures for colon cancer depend on the location and stage of your cancer.

Chemotherapy uses drugs to destroy cancer cells. Chemotherapy for colon cancer is usually given after surgery if the cancer has spread to the lymph nodes, to help reduce the risk of cancer recurrence. Chemotherapy can also be given to relieve symptoms of colon cancer that has spread to other areas of the body or before surgery to shrink cancer before the operation.

Drugs that target specific defects that allow cancer cells to grow are available to people with advanced colon cancer. Targeted drugs can be given in combination with chemotherapy or alone.

Radiation therapy uses powerful energy sources, such as X-rays, to kill cancer cells that might remain after surgery, to shrink large tumors before an operation so that they can be removed more easily, or to relieve symptoms of colon cancer and rectal cancer.

A cancer diagnosis can be emotionally challenging. In time, each person learns to cope in his or her own way. Talk about your options with your doctor, and together you can decide which choices are most beneficial for you.

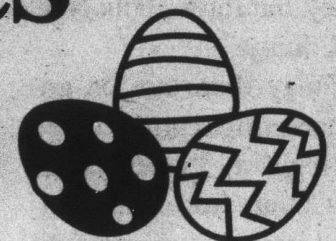

Ruth Jones is the Public Health Nurse Educator for the Quincy Health Department.

Ann Marie's Trail Mix Cookies

By MARIE

Today's cookie recipe actually came by accident by my daughter Ann Marie. She and her husband Dave had driven to Florida for a vacation, and while unpacking when they returned home, she found some trail mix left over.

She found a chocolate chip cookie recipe and decided to use the trail mix instead. What an idea - they were delicious. I think it's a first!

TRAIL MIX COOKIE

2 1/4 cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda and 1 teaspoon salt
2 sticks softened butter

3/4 cup granulated sugar
3/4 cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 eggs
2 cups of any kind of trail mix
1 cup walnuts (if trail mix does not have them)

Preheat oven to 375 degrees

Mix the butter and sugars and the vanilla until creamy. Add one egg at a time, then gradually add the dry ingredients. Stir in the trail mix.

Drop by tablespoon on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake for 9-11 minutes. Wait 2 minutes before placing them on a wire rack.

Healthy Cinnamon Drink

By SUZIE

Ever crave a cinnamon bun?

Here is a delicious homemade drink that is not only delicious and should calm that craving, but is also good for you. Did you know that maple syrup contains antioxidants, zinc, manganese, and even some calcium.

Zinc helps boost your immune system and manganese helps with carbohydrate metabolism. Everyone knows how good bananas are for you and they also are the main sweetness in this drink. The riper the sweeter, therefore the better! Hope you like it!

1 frozen banana, cut into pieces (I usually peel and cut into pieces and freeze in a baggy)

1 cup unsweetened almond milk or coconut milk

1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract

1 teaspoon pure maple syrup

Cinnamon stick, for garnish

Simply blend everything in your high speed blender, ninja, vitamix, whatever you have. (Except for the cinnamon stick!) Enjoy!

Delicious Lamb Meatloaf

By MARIE

Recently while food shopping, I found some ground lamb and decided right then that I would make a meatloaf.

I've made meatloaf with all kinds of meat and even a mix of meats. But this one with the lamb was not only the tastiest, but moist.

LAMB MEATLOAF

2 pounds ground lamb
1 egg
1/2 cup tomato sauce
2 cups rice krispies
1 small onion - chopped

1/4 cup ketchup

salt and pepper to taste

1 small red or green pepper (finely chopped)

1/2 teaspoon oregano (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

Mix the tomato sauce and the ketchup together and set aside.

Add half of the tomato mixture to the lamb, and blend well. Add the rest of the ingredients and mix well. Place in a 9-inch by 5-inch loaf pan, or on a greased cookie sheet (or parchment). Spread the rest of the tomato mixture over the top, and bake one hour to 70 minutes.

Retired Judge Speaker At Historical Society

Retired Massachusetts Appeals Court Judge R. Marc Kantrowitz, who writes the "Law 'N History" column for Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly, will be the guest speaker at the Quincy Historical Society Wednesday, March 30 at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

Judge Kantrowitz has surveyed 30 of America's most notorious crimes in his book, "Old Whiskey and Young Women." He will share those stories at the March 30th program.

A number of cases remain famous, others have lapsed into obscurity, but they all were national sensations in their times. Among the assorted perpetrators and victims are the nation's most famous comedian, several of "America's sweethearts," the architects who designed the Boston Public Library, and the real-life model for Norman Bates in Psycho.

Admission is free. A book signing will follow the presentation.

Free String Quartet Performance Good Friday At St. Chrysostom's Church

A professional string quartet from Boston will present a free performance of Haydn's "Seven Last Words of Christ from the Cross" March 25 at 7 p.m at

St. Chrysostom's Church, 1 Linden St., Wollaston.

The piece is a moving set of musical reflections on the Biblical story of Jesus's death on Good Friday.

The concert is free and no tickets are required. The church is fully accessible.

More information may be found at <http://www.stquincy.org>, or by calling (617) 472-0737.

Children's Chorus Concert, Summer Camps

South Shore Children's Chorus Inaugural Concert will be held Sunday, May 15 at 3 p.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy.

Tickets are $10 for adults, $7 for students and $5 for children.

The South Shore Children's Chorus features more than 40 families with students ages 4 through 18.

The repertoire of the South Shore Children's Chorus ensembles ranges from folk songs to Brahms, Renaissance to 21st century music and is in six languages. Early Years and Training Choirs are continuing to develop vocal techniques and musical literacy through songs and games while using hand motions and dances to aid in the learning of music.

Intermediate Choir is South Shore Children's Choir largest ensemble and sings independently in tow and three parts in Spanish,

English and Zulu.

The Children's Chorus also announces it will hold summer programs featuring music and arts camps and choral intensive July 11-15 at Quincy Point Congregational Church. The camp will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday, July 11-15.

The music and arts camps are for students entering grades 1-5. Children will have an opportunity to work with professional music, art and dance teachers during the week.

SSCC aims to provide a well-rounded musical and arts experience for participants that is in accordance with National Core Arts Standards: creating, performing, responding and connecting.

The week culminates in a concert featuring choral works rehearsed during the program and an exhibition of student artwork Friday,

July 15 at 7 p.m.

The South Shore Choral Intensive is a program focusing on themes of leadership, personal responsibility, and musical intelligence. Students will be encouraged to prepare for the week with learning toos and aid provided by SSCC staff in order to perform high-level choral repertoire.

Students will also have the opportunity to attend music theory class geared for their level of knowledge, hear from guest speakers such as local professors and professional musicians, and benefit from group sectionals with a professional section leader for their specific voice type. The week culminates in a final performance on Friday, July 15 at 7 p.m. featuring choral works rehearsed during the program.

For more information on the camp including tuition costs visit www.southshorechildrenschorus.com.

Colorectal Cancer: Signs, Symptoms, Factors, Treatment

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Colon cancer is cancer of the large intestine (colon), the lower part of your digestive system. Rectal cancer is cancer of the last several inches of the colon. Collectively, they're often referred to as colorectal cancers.

Most cases of colon cancer begin as small, non-cancerous clumps of cells called adenomatous polyps. Over time some of these polyps develop into colon cancers. Polyps can appear mushroom-shaped, or they can be flat or recessed into the wall of the colon.

Polyps initially may be small and produce no symptoms. For this reason, doctors advise regular screening tests to identify polyps before they become colon cancer. Removing polyps before they become cancerous can prevent colon cancer.

Signs and symptoms of colon cancer include:

- A change in your bowel habits, including diarrhea or constipation or a change in the consistency of your stool
- Rectal bleeding or blood in your stool
- Persistent abdominal discomfort, such as cramps,

RUTH JONES

gas or pain

- A feeling that your bowel doesn't empty completely
- Weakness or fatigue
- Unexplained weight loss

Many people with colon cancer have no symptoms in the early stages of the disease. When symptoms appear, they may vary, depending on the size and location of the cancer. In general, guidelines recommend colon cancer screenings begin at age 50. Your doctor may suggest more frequent or earlier screening if you have other risk factors, such as a family history of the disease. If you notice any symptoms of colon cancer make an appointment for an evaluation.

The causes of most colon cancers are not identified. Doctors know that colon cancer occurs when healthy cells in the colon, that ordinarily grow and divide in a systematic way to keep your body functioning, become altered. When a cell is damaged and becomes cancerous, cells continue to divide even when new cells aren't necessary. These cancer cells can invade and destroy normal tissue nearby and can migrate to other parts of the body. Certain factors may put you at a higher risk for the development of colon cancer:

- Older age. The great majority of people diagnosed with colon cancer are older than 50.
- African-Americans have a greater risk of colon cancer than do people of other races.
- A personal history of colorectal cancer or polyps.
- Inflammatory intestinal conditions. Chronic inflammatory diseases of the colon, such as ulcerative colitis and Crohn's disease can increase your risk of colon cancer.
- Genetic syndromes passed through generations of your family can increase your risk of colon cancer.
- Family history of colon cancer and colon polyps. In some cases, a connection within the same family may result from shared exposure to an environmental carcinogen or from diet or lifestyle factors.

- Low-fiber, high-fat diet. Colon cancer and rectal cancer may be associated with a diet low in fiber and high in fat and calories. Research in this area has had mixed results. Some studies have found an increased risk of colon cancer in people who eat diets high in red meat.
- A sedentary lifestyle. If you're inactive, you're more likely to develop colon cancer.
- Diabetes. People with diabetes and insulin resistance may have an increased risk of colon cancer.
- Obesity. People who are obese have an increased risk of colon cancer and an increased risk of dying of colon cancer when compared with people considered normal weight.
- Smoking. People who smoke cigarettes may have an increased risk of colon cancer.
- Alcohol. Heavy use of alcohol may increase your risk of colon cancer.
- Radiation therapy for cancer. Radiation therapy directed at the abdomen to treat previous cancers may increase the risk of colon cancer.

If your signs and symptoms indicate that you could have colon cancer, your doctor may recommend one or more tests and procedures, including using a scope to examine the inside of your colon, and multiple CT images to create a picture of your colon.

Once you've been diagnosed with colon cancer, your doctor will order tests to determine the extent (stage) of your cancer. Staging helps determine what treatments are most appropriate for you.

The type of treatment your doctor recommends will depend largely on the stage of your cancer. The three principal treatment options are: surgery, chemotherapy and radiation. Complementary or alternative treatments have not been found to cure colon cancer, but may relieve some of the side effects of the disease or treatments.

Surgical procedures for colon cancer depend on the location and stage of your cancer.

Chemotherapy uses drugs to destroy cancer cells. Chemotherapy for colon cancer is usually given after surgery if the cancer has spread to the lymph nodes, to help reduce the risk of cancer recurrence. Chemotherapy can also be given to relieve symptoms of colon cancer that has spread to other areas of the body or before surgery to shrink cancer before the operation.

Drugs that target specific defects that allow cancer cells to grow are available to people with advanced colon cancer. Targeted drugs can be given in combination with chemotherapy or alone.

Radiation therapy uses powerful energy sources, such as X-rays, to kill cancer cells that might remain after surgery, to shrink large tumors before an operation so that they can be removed more easily, or to relieve symptoms of colon cancer and rectal cancer.

A cancer diagnosis can be emotionally challenging. In time, each person learns to cope in his or her own way. Talk about your options with your doctor, and together you can decide which choices are most beneficial for you.

NORFOLK COUNTY REGISTER of Deeds William P. O'Donnell was the guest speaker recently at the Houghs Neck Community Center. Photo Courtesy Norfolk County Registry Of Deeds

O'Donnell Discusses Consumer Issues At Houghs Neck Community Center

Register: Beware Of Deed, Homestead Scams

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell was a guest speaker recently at the Houghs Neck Community Center.

O'Donnell gave an overview of the Registry of Deeds which is the principal office for real property records in Norfolk County cataloging and housing more than 5 million land documents dating back to 1793.

O'Donnell spent the majority of his address discussing consumer issues, in particular, deed and Homestead scams that are perpetrated against citizens not only in Quincy, but throughout Norfolk County.

"Today there are on-going marketing scams," noted the Register, "where Norfolk County residents continue to receive direct mail solicitations offering them a certified copy of their property deed for an exorbitant fee ranging from $59.50 to $83. Some of these mailings look like a bill. Do not fall victim to it."

"If a consumer knew that the Registry would provide them a certified copy of their property deed for only $1 per page, plus an additional $1 for postage, they would never agree to pay such an outrageous fee. The average price for a mailed homeowner's deed by the Registry, usually two pages, is $3."

O'Donnell also said: "In the case of a Homestead, unscrupulous parties are offering to provide local residents a copy of a form for a fee of $15. These Homestead forms are available free of charge by simply accessing our website www.norfolkdeeds.org."

O'Donnell also spent time discussing the advantages of the Massachusetts Homestead Act. "The Homestead Act is an important consumer tool that provides homeowners limited protection against the forced sale of their primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000," he said.

Concluding his remarks, O'Donnell expressed his appreciation for being allowed to speak before the residents of Houghs Neck.

"I want to thank Cynthia Lewis, Director of the Houghs Neck Community Center, Dave DiBona, President of the Houghs Neck Community Council, and all members of the council. The council does an outstanding job working tirelessly advocating for and enhancing the quality of life in the community of Houghs Neck," he said.

At the conclusion of his remarks, O'Donnell and Registry staff were available to assist attendees with their specific land document questions. "By bringing the Registry directly to the neighborhoods of Norfolk County, we are able to provide copies of deeds, confirm mortgage discharges, and confirm whether Homesteads have been recorded without the inconvenience of residents having to travel to our central office in Dedham," O'Donnell said.

To learn more about these and other Registry of Deeds events and initiatives, like us at facebook.com/NorfolkDeeds or follow us on twitter.com/NorfolkDeeds.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. Residents in need of assistance can contact the Registry of Deeds Customer Service Center via telephone at (781) 461-6101, or on the web at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Band Boosters Fundraiser To Benefit Marching Program

The Quincy Band Boosters is seeking the community's support in raising funds to help defray the costs of the marching program for all high school band students in the Quincy Public Schools.

Organizers for the band boosters noted it has been several years since the City of Quincy has had a proper marching band. After tireless effort, the marching band is back on track. However, they are missing one thing: uniforms.

The high school bands have been representing the City of Quincy in only a sweatshirt and jeans. The students have proven themselves worthy of uniforms. For example, for the past two years the bands have received second place in their division during the annual Christmas Parade, which they had not placed in prior. The only complaint was the band's lack of uniforms.

The band boosters have scheduled a fundraising event on April 2. The public is welcome to attend.

The event will take place at the Sons of Italy in Quincy from 7 p.m. to midnight. Tickets will cost $20. A door prize of a flat screen TV will be raffled off.

There will also be a DJ, cash bar and light refreshments.

Anyone who would like to make a donation can mail a check to:

Quincy High School, 100 Coddington St., Quincy, MA 02169, Attn: Quincy Band Boosters.

To donate a raffle or to buy tickets, call George Maze at 617-653-9215 or Renée Czajkowski at 617-620-9518.

The Quincy Band Boosters is a 501(c)(3) organization and all donations are tax deductible.

Volunteer Tax Preparer Program Wonderful

This tax season I had the privilege of volunteering with Quincy Community Action Programs' (QCAP), Volunteer Income Tax Preparer program.

Offered every year, the program provides free tax return filing for low-income South Shore families and individuals. It's based out of the QCAP main office on Hancock Street. To become a volunteer, I only had to complete a brief course in tax preparing and pass an easy 20 question multiple choice exam.

Volunteers included working professionals, college students majoring in accounting and finance, and folks who just wanted to get involved in their community and lend a helping hand.

The feedback was very positive from the people who came in to get their taxes done. Often times, folks were pleasantly surprised at the amount of money they were getting back. I enjoyed making sure people were getting the maximum tax refund they were entitled to, simply by identifying all the deductions and credits that applied to them.

This program is a wonderful way to get involved in the community, learn about the tax laws, and lend a hand to folks in need.

'Bob The Barber' Revisited

"Bob the Barber," owner of "Squantum Cutters," tonorial customers reflect the spirit of Quincy, from five year old twins to men and women in their eighties.

His shop decorations mirror the Boston sports scene from Marciano to Orr to Bird to Yaz to Brady.

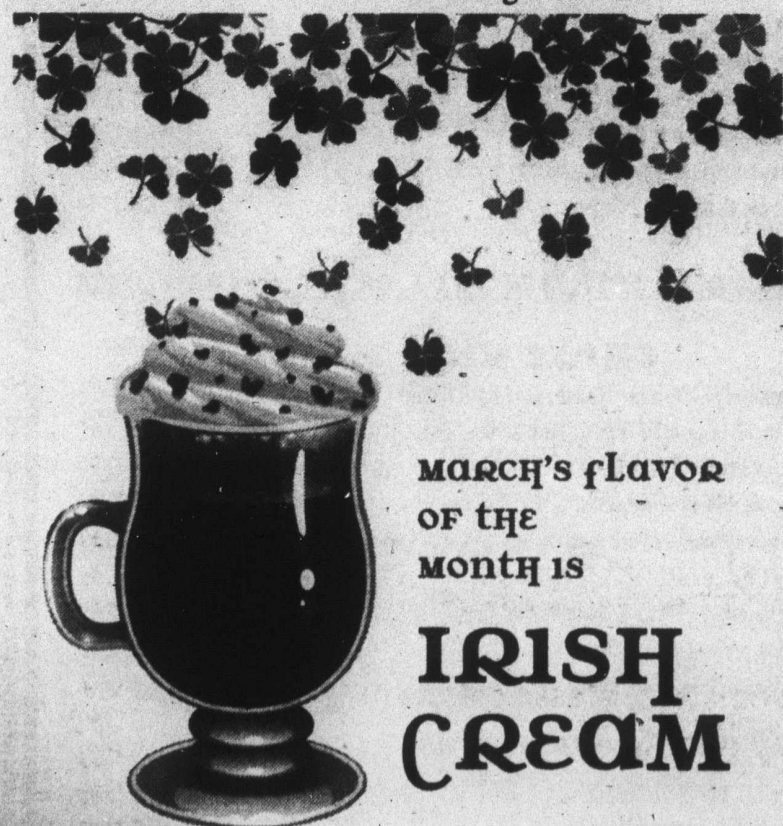

Also his barbershop window and a visit inside the shop announce current and future Quincy goings-on. Currently: the special Ward 6 election (primary April 5th; final May 3rd); a fundraiser April 8th at Florian Hall for Mark DeLuca, a long-time police officer seriously injured in a motorcycle accident; "Godspell", North Quincy High, April 1st-2nd.

Coming attractions include: youth soccer and baseball tryouts; July 4th parades; and Nickerson Post events.

So if you want to find out what's going on in Quincy, check Bob's window and shop; or, do what you're doing now — read the "Sun."

Finn, Palmucci Want Council Input On Downtown Agreements

Mayor: City Must Be Wary Of Adding Barriers To Future Redevelopment Efforts

By SCOTT JACKSON

Two city councillors want the Urban Revitalization and Development Plan for Quincy Center amended to ensure agreements signed by the mayor and downtown redevelopers are transparent and vetted through a public process.

Councillors Joseph Finn and Brian Palmucci introduced a pair of amendments to the URDP Monday night. The first would require City Council approval for any land disposition agreement reached between the mayor's office and developers proposing to build on publicly owned land. The second would require the council approve urban redevelopment covenants, which are negotiated by the mayor's office and developers behind projects on privately owned land.

Finn noted the council previously approved a land disposition agreement with then master developer Street-Works, which was terminated in 2014. Going forward, the city is likely to have land disposition agreements with multiple developers and Finn said it's important the council's role in the process is included in the URDP.

"Unlike what was occurring before when there was a single master developer and only one LDA for the entire project, we know that now this could involve, particularly on those public parcels, multiple land disposition agreements," Finn said. "I think that it's very critical that we set within the URDP itself that we do have a vote in relationship to those."

Palmucci said the URDP has some loopholes and gaps that need to be addressed.

"The goal of this [is] to ensure a public process, ensure there is transparency in the downtown development projects that move forward," he said. "The URDP alone doesn't cover everything for the downtown development, because when it was originally drafted the URDP and the LDA fit together to protect the taxpayers, to protect the city and to put forth a vision for the downtown development."

"When the LDA went by the wayside we were left with the URDP and that's what we're currently operating under and quite frankly in my opinion I think there are some loopholes, there are some gaps that need to be filled. This is Councillor Finn and my recommendation on two particular areas that should be remedied."

The council's ordinance and downtown committees will meet to review the proposed amendments at 6:30 p.m. on April 25, at which time a public hearing has been scheduled.

Mayor Thomas Koch's spokesman, Chris Walker, on Tuesday said the mayor looks forward to discussing the potential changes to the URDP, but said the city needs to be wary about adding what could be seen as barriers to future redevelopment efforts.

"This is an exciting time for our downtown, and Mayor Koch looks forward to having a robust, thoughtful and forward-moving discussion on these and any other matters any councillor feels important as part of our collective efforts to keep downtown redevelopment charging ahead," Walker said in a statement.

"Our efforts need to continue to be focused on facilitating investment in Quincy Center, and we need to be very cognizant of anything that could be seen as creating new barriers - rather than breaking down the ones that have made development so difficult downtown the last 40 years."

In June 2015, the council's downtown committee had voted in favor of amending the URDP to give the Planning Board, whose members are appointed by the mayor, the ability to review urban renewal covenants. That change to the URDP, and others sought by Mayor Thomas Koch's administration, did not make it out of committee before the council's term expired at the end of the year.

The council on Monday approved a third amendment to the plan, voting in favor of Koch's request to add the Quincy Center MBTA station to the URDP district. Walker told the council the administration plans to introduce a further amendment to the URDP in the near future.

and balance to the mayor. He noted the city auditor is appointed by the council and reviews financial matters for the body.

"I think that the auditor is an indispensable part of our ability to help provide that check and balance and to do our job well," Palmucci said. "I think we need a similar situation where we have access to a legal opinion that would report directly to us in the limited instances where perhaps we so choose to have a different opinion than that that comes from the solicitor's office."

Councillor Joseph Finn noted the council has been provided an outside attorney on matters regarding downtown redevelopment, including the now terminated land disposition agreement with former master developer Street-Works. He said an outside attorney would have been useful to the council in two other instances - after Koch reassigned then Planning Director Dennis Harrington last year and when the previous mayoral administration submitted the Honeywell contract to the council for approval.

"We are here to speak on behalf of the voters, the citizens of Quincy, and we're called at times to act as a check and balance and ask some of those difficult questions," Finn said.

"In order to ask questions, there is a certain precondition of knowledge you have to have. If you have certain documents or things before you of which you have no understanding it becomes very difficult to ask those important and critical questions. I think this is actually something that is long overdue."

Cain said he would have preferred the council seek money to bring an attorney onto its staff, rather than having a line item for outside counsel.

"If we're looking to have someone that can look with a fresh set of eyes, I think we might be looking at this from the wrong approach," Cain said. "We might as well be looking for a resource to hold this position for legal counsel for the City Council as opposed to just the line item in the budget."

In a statement to The Sun Tuesday, Chris Walker, a spokesman for Koch, said the mayor would continue to provide the council with an outside attorney for Quincy Center matters and on other specific issues that may arise, but they mayor would not be providing the line item sought in the council's budget.

"Councillor Finn's point about the complexity and importance of Quincy Center negotiations is well taken, and it's exactly why Mayor Koch became the first of Quincy's 33 mayors to provide the council with its own lawyer for Quincy Center matters, and he will continue to do so going forward," Walker said.

"There may be other similar exceptions in the future, and the mayor's door is always open to have that discussion on specific issues. Notwithstanding those exceptions, the charter is very clear - the city speaks in one voice on legal issues. The solicitor's office is that voice - be it for the mayor, the council or any entity for the city."

Pedestrian Safety Plan

ly where there have been injuries and even fatalities involved in pedestrian accidents. What this would seek to do is put together between agencies of the city, citizens and members of the council [a plan] that would put forth education, engineering, enforcement, encouragement, evaluation."

Three pedestrians have been struck and killed by vehicles this year as of Monday. Three pedestrians were struck and killed in all of 2015.

Councillor Joseph Finn said pedestrian safety was a concern he heard from residents while campaigning last year.

"I just want to congratulate the councillor on this work that he's done and stress how critically important it is," he said. "It's not that long off a campaign when you're out knocking on doors and hearing what people think, and this is definitely one of the issues that are on people's minds."

"I think this might be a great way to marshal all of our efforts together and attempt to tackle this very important and serious problem," Council President Kirsten Hughes added.

Chris Walker, the spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the mayor is looking forward to working with Cain on the pedestrian master plan.

"Mayor Koch has talked with Councillor Cain about a number of these ideas, and we're very much looking forward to working with him on them," Walker said.

"What the councillor spoke about is something that's going to dovetail perfectly with the overall theme the mayor discussed during his inaugural - what's the Quincy we want to see in 2025 when we celebrate our 400th anniversary, and what are the issues we need to address to get there?"

Drafted by city officials with assistance from an ad hoc group, the pedestrian master plan would include both short- and long-term goals and would be developed through a public outreach process, which would include a community meeting where residents and officials would be allowed to provide input.

Among the elements the councillors want to see incorporated into the plan are: a presentation of pedestrian fatality and injury data trends, with associated maps; a review and potential modification of the city's pedestrian policies; inclusion of education and enforcement plans and policies; incorporation of existing or planned safe-routes-to-school information; a list of desired long-term pedestrian infrastructure improvements as well as cost estimates and maps detailing those proposed changes; pedestrian performance measures; and a needs assessment to guide completion of the pedestrian facilities system.

Additionally, the resolution says the plan should include or reference design standards affecting pedestrians. That would include street design and operations, such as signals and roadway geometry, and emerging best practices in pedestrians safety - red light cameras, in-pavement flashing lights at crosswalks, road re-channelization, crossing flags, raised crosswalks and overhead lighting among them.

The ad hoc committee tasked with assisting city officials in the creation of the plan would include representatives from neighborhood organizations, regional representatives, health officials, a group representing senior citizens, Quincy Public Schools officials, members of the disabled community, and representatives from pedestrian advocacy groups and organizations focused on safe driving. The ad hoc group should also reflect of the diversity of Quincy's residents, the resolution states.

The city departments involved in drafting the master plan are asked to update the council periodically on development of the plan.

In addition, the resolution calls on the Quincy Police Department and other city agencies to develop a pedestrian safety education and enforcement campaign in 2016 and 2017. The campaign would seek to educate and raise awareness among drivers and pedestrians of pedestrian and vehicle safety issues.

The resolution states the Quincy police campaign should include public education materials, public service announcements and special events to highlight pedestrian and driver safety issues; materials provided by the city would be made available in multiple languages and special efforts made to involve schoolchildren, parents, teachers and staff.

MBTA Station Added To Quincy Center District

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday unanimously approved including the Quincy Center MBTA station in the Urban Revitalization and Development Plan for the downtown, a move anticipated to save a significant amount of time and money during the permitting process for the new transit hub.

While the council has adopted a new amendment to the URDP adding the station and adjacent land owned by the MBTA - a change that requires approval from the state Department of Housing and Community Development - Monday's vote does not obligate the city to follow through on preliminary plans for the station site, which include a new justice center, office space for the National Park Service and an 870-car garage.

A public process on the redevelopment of the station site will continue over the next several months.

"I do want to stress and reiterate again and again that this does not approve the plans that are proposed for the MBTA [station] and the space next to it for the courthouse," Councillor Nina Liang, the chairwoman of the downtown and economic growth committee, said Monday.

"That planning phase, that financing phase, is still a conversation that we will continue to be a part of."

The downtown committee had voted 3-0 in favor of adding the station to the URDP March 16.

By adding the station to the downtown district, city officials anticipate the redevelopment of the station can go forward under the existing state environmental permit granted to Quincy in 2012 for Street-Works' $1.6 billion plan for Quincy Center.

Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines told the downtown committee the permit remains in effect even with Street-Works out of the picture. Hines said the MEPA permit would be required for any work at the MBTA site - even if the project only called for a new station.

"The rebuilding of the station as is would have to follow a rigorous MEPA process," Hines said. "If we're able to bring it under our current certificate, we save years of permitting and hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of dollars in permitting fees."

"It would really be catastrophic if it doesn't happen," he added. "It could be years before we got a station and replaced the parking garage - even if that is all that's done, it would still take years."

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said the MEPA permit is a valuable asset for the city. She noted a seawall repair project on Edgewater Drive was delayed more than 10 months because of the permitting process.

"The value that we had in getting the full downtown MEPA certificate done was tremendous," Laforest said March 16. "People didn't understand when we were divorcing Street-Works the value that came out of this relationship that was this project being completed under the MEPA certificate."

Laforest was one of the three committee members to approve the URDP change March 16, along with Liang and Ward 3 Councillor and Ian Cain. The remaining two committee members, Joseph Finn and Brian Palmucci, did not attend the meeting.

Hines at the March 16 committee meeting said the amendment would go before DHCD for final approval after the council's vote Monday. At that point, the city could submit a notice of project change to state environmental officials, which Hines said is an administrative finding; projects underway or in the pipeline for Quincy Center would not be impacted by the process.

A $1 million federal grant is paying for the design of the station; the city has hired Parsons Brinkerhoff for that work. The state appropriated $10 million for the project in a 2014 transportation bond bill, though that money has yet to be disbursed. That same bill also designated Quincy as the lead developer for the site, though no city money will be used for the project.

"There is no anticipated financial obligation to the city of Quincy or its taxpayers for this project," Hines said. "This is a state transportation project. The reason the city of Quincy is the lead agency is to have somebody moving the ball. The T, they've got their deficit, they've got a huge system, they've got all kinds of headaches and this isn't one of their biggest priorities."

The city has applied for federal transportation grants to help fund the project and plans to have a public-private partner finance a large portion of the project.

The council and Mayor Thomas Koch must both approve any project built on the air rights over MBTA tracks in the city, Hines said, a condition included in state legislation passed in the 1960s as the MBTA prepared to extend the Red Line south.

The state owns the air rights, but Quincy would be able to collect property taxes and any development must conform to city regulations, including zoning, building and fire codes.

City Marking Community Development Week

The City of Quincy will join other communities across the nation in celebrating "National Community Development Week" which begins on March 28, announce Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Planning Director James J. Fatseas.

This weeklong celebration provides the opportunity for Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) communities across the nation to showcase CDBG-funded projects and programs, and to educate residents, community groups, and legislators about the block grant programs administered by the city's Department of Planning and Community Development.

The CDBG program is a flexible program, overseen by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development's (HUD's) Office of Community Planning & Development, that provides communities, such as Quincy, with resources to address a wide range of unique community development needs.

Locally, these HUD block grants are used to support activities and services such as community center programs; emergency food centers; housing rehabilitation activities; code inspections; the creation of affordable housing units; and also supports economic activities such as public works projects and assistance to small businesses for jobs creation.

Since 1975, the CDBG program has provided over $84 million to the City of Quincy for community development programs.

Nineteen community center events and two check presentations will be held this year to celebrate Community Development Week.

The first check presentation will include an awards ceremony and will be held at 10 a.m. at Manet Community Health Center's Snug Harbor site at 9 Bicknell St. in Quincy. This event will be immediately followed by a check presentation and Community Development Week reception across the street at the Germantown Neighborhood Center, located at 366 Palmer St.

The CDBG check to Manet will be used to rehabilitate their Sung Harbor facility, in partnership with the Quincy Housing Authority. The CDBG check to the Germantown Neighborhood Center will be used to construct a teaching kitchen inside the center.

The full calendar of events may be found at the Planning and Community Development department's webpage at www.quincyma.gov. All events are free of charge and open to the public.

Rev. Montague Williams Named ENC Chaplain

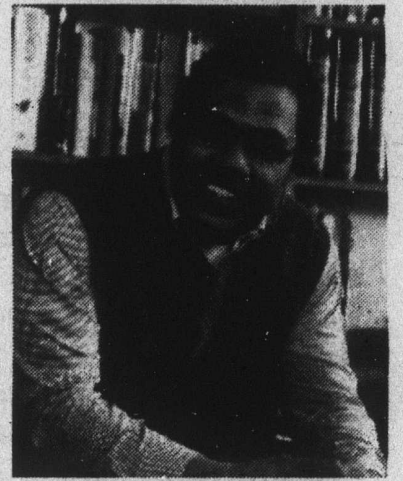

Eastern Nazarene College has named Rev. Montague Williams as chaplain to the Christian liberal arts college.

Currently the chairperson of ENC's Division of Religion and Philosophy, Williams will continue in that role while assuming leadership of campus efforts to strengthen and unify the college's academic and spiritual character.

"I have full confidence in Montague's commitment to Eastern Nazarene College and her mission," Provost and Dean of the College Dr. Timothy Wooster said. "It is gratifying to affirm the call of God on his life and to partner toward the academic and faith formation of our students."

Williams first came to the ENC campus in 2009 as a speaker and adjunct professor before joining the college's tenure-track faculty in 2012. As chair of the Division of Religion and Philosophy, he oversaw a thorough reexamination of its model of theological education that resulted in a greater emphasis on the role of worship in students' lives. The division also plans to create a new major in Intercultural Studies and Mission, and a summer conference for high school students who sense a call toward missions.

Williams said he is looking forward to strengthening the connection between ENC's Office of Spiritual

Rev. MONTAGUE WILLIAMS

Development and the Division of Religion and Philosophy.

"I believe this opportunity to reunite ENC's efforts in theological formation and theological education is quite timely," Williams said. "It's an important move as our college students prepare for lay and vocational leadership in the life of the church in society."

Williams holds an MA and BA in Religion from Olivet Nazarene University and a Masters of Divinity from Nazarene Theological Seminary. He is currently completing a PhD in Theological Studies at Boston University, where he has served in residential life.

Williams has also served as director of the Summer Institute for the Gifted on the Harvard University campus and pastored youth and families in Chicago and Kansas City.

He and his wife, Jennie, live near the ENC campus in Quincy with their newborn daughter, Sophia.

be held for a ward councillor seat if the vacancy occurs during the first year of a term for any cause.

Harris filed a motion for summary judgment in the case and Timmins a cross motion for summary judgment.

Timmins, in his cross motion, noted Francis McCauley, who as mayor signed the 1984 home rule petition, voted for the 2004 home rule petition as an at-large councillor. In an affidavit, McCauley wrote it was his understanding at the time that the 1984 home rule petition "would replace any previously enacted law concerning the issue."

Timmins also cited the 1963 Supreme Judicial Court case Porter v. City Council of Malden in his motion. In that case, Timmins stated, the state's highest court upheld a lower court ruling that vacated the appointment of a runner-up to a council seat after the death of the councillor-elect, and ordered a special election. The Malden City Council, he said, had relied on legislation similar to the 1953 law cited by Harris, which the courts found were trumped by a more recent special act.

Harris, a resident of 74 Ashworth St., is one of the five candidates who will appear on the April 5 preliminary ballot. The remaining four are Nathan Knowles of 44 Ocean St.; Kevin Mock of 76 Alstead St.; Brian Radell, 21 Standish Rd.; and Herbert Alie Shaughnessy III of 32 Essex St.

Voters in the 2013 municipal election approved the adoption of an amendment made to the CPA. Under that amendment, additional city revenue sources — such as hotel/motel tax receipts — can be included in the CPA fund and made eligible for matching money from the state.

On Saturday, March 12, 2016, at approximately 8:00 p.m., Officers Maura DaSilva, Steve DesRoche and David Levine responded to an apartment in the Atlantic section of Quincy for a family disturbance. While en route, Dispatch informed the Officers that "the female had a knife and the male had locked himself into the bathroom." Another update from the Dispatcher was that the male had disarmed the female.

Upon arrival, Officer DaSilva could hear a female undiscernibly screaming from the building. Moments later, Officers DesRoche and Levine joined Officer DaSilva as she approached the apartment door. The Officer could hear the female screaming and crying. As the Officers exited the elevator on the 3rd floor, they could see a red substance strewn down the hallway and splattered on the door of the apartment; however, it did not appear to be blood. A female answered the door and she appeared disheveled and visibly upset. A male was further behind her and he appeared to be shaken and crying. The female was directed to step back out of the hallway and into the living room while keeping her hands visible. She complied and sat on the couch while Officer DesRoche went into the bedroom to speak with the male.

Officer DaSilva interviewed the female, who reeked of alcohol and kept repeating, "I love him - nothing happened." When asked where the knife was, the female said, "It's in the sink." The female refused to state in depth what occurred other than to say, "Nothing" or "it was just and argument" or "I love him." She was crying and uncooperative throughout. When asked if the argument got physical, the female said, "He threw me down on the floor," then re-canted her story. Officer DaSilva asked her again about the knife and the female cried out, "I wouldn't stab him - I love him." The female then abruptly changed and screamed out to the male, "Don't tell them anything!" Officer Levine stayed with the female while Officer DaSilva questioned the male.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

Officer DesRoche said that the male had a visible bite mark and reported having been struck in the head. An ambulance was requested to the scene to examine the claimed injuries. The male said he had returned from his parent's home at about 7:30 p.m. to find the female drunk and angry because he refused to go out drinking with her. She then became "out of control" and went after him with a pot of soup that she had been cooking. He added that she began chasing him, swinging the pot, causing the soup to splash out up and down the hallway. He said she also struck him in the head with what he thought was a potato masher, which was on the floor leaning against the doorway of the bedroom.

LT. DAN MINTON

The male said that the female then grabbed a kitchen knife and came at him. When asked to demonstrate how she came at him, the male made his hand into a fist and brought his fist up and back behind his shoulder. He said he was able to grab her wrist, wrestle her to the ground and get the knife out of her hand. He then locked himself into the bathroom and called for help. He added that while locked in the bathroom, the female began hitting the bathroom door with something. When he emerged, he discovered she had been slamming his laptop into the door, damaging the computer and chipping the paint of the door. The male said that she also bit his arm, but with all the commotion, he was unsure exactly when. Officer DaSilva noted the visible bite mark that had broken the skin.

The male stated several times, "I don't want her to get arrested" and "I didn't know what to do." The male was very emotional and pleaded several times to get her help. While speaking with the male in the bedroom, the Officer noticed that the folding closet door was crooked. When asked if it had been damaged tonight, the male said it had happened in a past incident when she had become violent.

The female, a 33 year old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for Domestic Assault and Battery, 2 counts of Assault and Battery with a Dangerous Weapon." She became uncooperative and was wiggling her arms and screaming. While escorting her out the door she yelled, "I'll buy you a new laptop!" The male confirmed that the knife in the sink was the knife used against him. The male's injuries were evaluated by Brewster EMS. He declined any medical treatment and refused any restraining order services. Sergeant Joe Lencki arrived on scene with a camera. Photos were taken of the bite mark, the knife, the pct and potato masher. Nice Work!

TIRES AND RIMS TAKEN: In the past month, there have been a few incidents of cars being jacked up, put on either milk crates or cinder blocks and then the 4 tires are stolen. Most of the incidents have occurred at apartment complexes but there was one incident at a home on Alstead Street. It is believed that the crime is happening between 11:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m. This crime has been reported in other South Shore towns. Extra patrols and undercover Officers are out looking for suspects but the randomness of selection makes it difficult to focus on any specific area. Based on the quickness of taking 4 tires and going unnoticed, it is probable that more than one person in either a van or a truck is committing the crime. It could also be a tow truck. If anyone sees anything suspicious, like the aforementioned vehicles, or someone with a flashlight checking out tires, in their neighborhood or parking lot, please call "911" and let us investigate.

Bellotti Leads Jokes Parade At St. Patrick's Day Luncheon

Event Benefits Quincy Parks Conservancy

By SCOTT JACKSON

Donald Trump wants to make Quincy great again.

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti opened the city's annual St. Patrick's Day luncheon with his impersonation of Trump, the frontrunner in this year's Republican presidential primaries. Bellotti, donning a blond wig and red hat personalized with his own take on Trump's campaign slogan, told Braintree Mayor Joseph Sullivan he would build a wall between the two communities at Braintree's expense.

"It's good to see the mayor of Braintree here. Joe, we're building the wall and you're paying for it. You're stealing jobs from us," Bellotti quipped. "We've lost hundreds of jobs at Dave & Busters because of you, Mr. Mayor.

"Weymouth, Milton, Braintree — their leaders are smart. Our leader is stupid, dumb. They're eating our lunch. Look at Weymouth — they send us murderers, rapists and Bob Hedlund."

Some 200 people attended the luncheon, held March 18 at the Quincy Lodge of Elks Tirrell Room. Proceeds from the event benefitted the Quincy Parks Conservancy, which raises funds in support of the city's parks.

Bellotti and Mayor Thomas Koch served as masters of ceremonies for this year's event, a role they've shared over the past several years.

Bellotti's performance didn't stop at his Trump impersonation. The sheriff brought back his riff on "Tonight Show" host Jimmy Fallon's "Thank You Notes" routine.

"Thank you, Quincy Mutual, for putting that big, shiny metal crane on the construction site in Quincy Center just before the election," Bellotti said. "Wow, usually you see cranes like that at real buildings made out of steel. Let's admit it, the only thing that raised was my poll numbers. I'm moving a toolshed in my backyard on Newbury Ave. this weekend, can I use it again...Signed, Mayor Koch."

Koch referenced "The Wizard of Oz" to poke fun at several of those involved in this year's presidential race. The real wizard, Koch joked, lives in Washington, D.C., and has had several prominent visitors this year: Marco Rubio asked for courage, Ted Cruz a brain, and Trump a heart.

Bill Clinton was there too, the mayor added, look-

Advertising Opportunity in The Quincy Sun's annual Supplement and Visitors Guide

Historic Quincy

The Quincy Sun will again publish this spring its full color special supplement and visitors guide Historic Quincy.

Each year, this popular supplement is enjoyed by thousands of readers in Quincy and throughout the South Shore as well as visitors to the "City of Presidents" from around the world.

Historic Quincy highlights the city's many historic sites and reflects on its proud heritage through stories and photographs.

Topics include the nation's first father-and-son Presidents – John Adams and John Quincy Adams – and their wives First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams.

There are also features on the Adams National Historical Park, Josiah Quincy House, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, United First Parish Church, Adams Academy, the Thomas Crane Public Library, and the newly restored James R. McIntyre Government Center - the old "Town Hall" built in 1844 of Quincy-granite by famed architect Solomon Willard, designer of the Bunker Hill Monument.

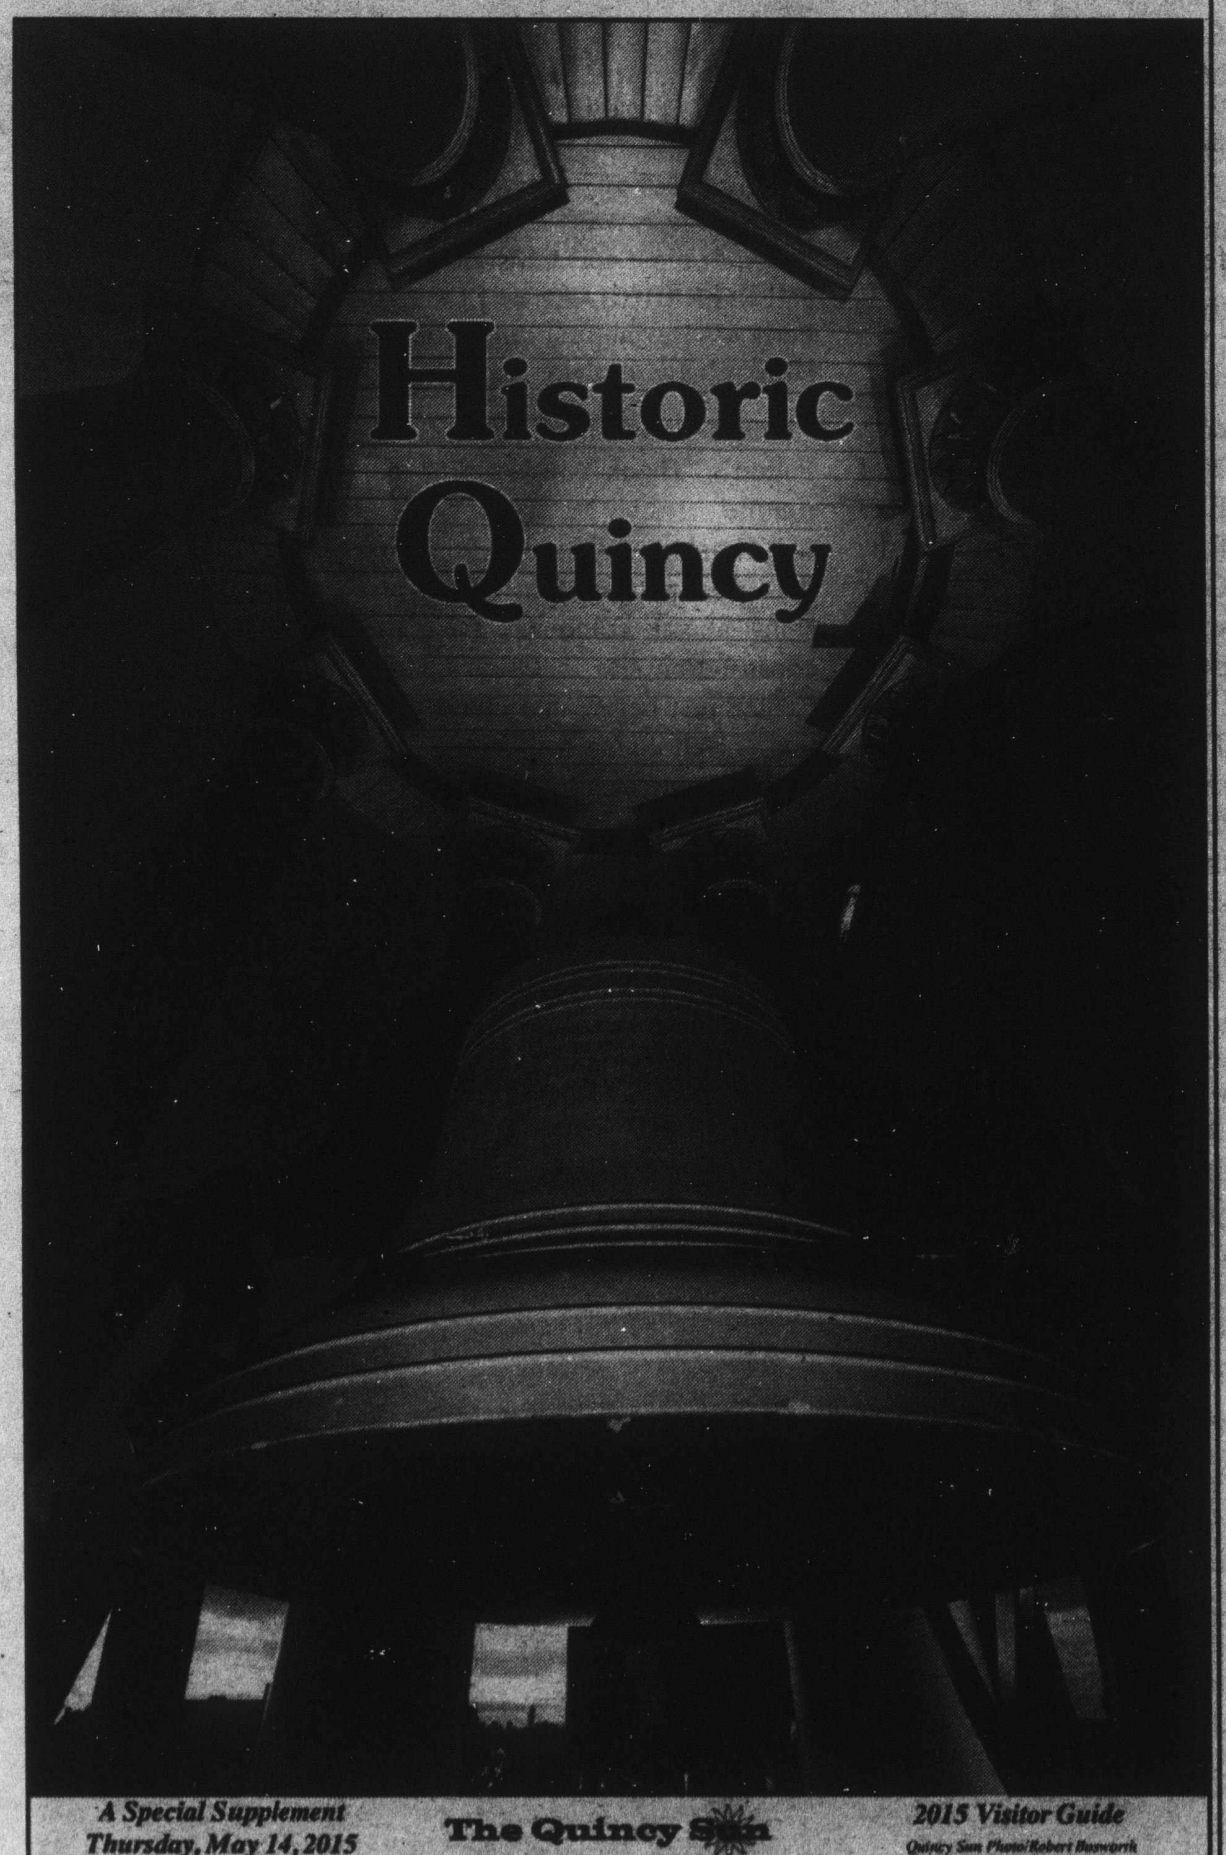

Historic Quincy also spotlights the city's proud shipbuilding and granite-working industries and so much more.

This year's supplement offers advertising opportunities for local businesses and restaurants.

Some 15,000 copies will be printed and copies inserted in the May 12, 2016 edition of The Quincy Sun.

Other copies will be distributed throughout the city including historic sites all year round.

The supplement will also be posted on The Quincy Sun website - www.TheQuincySun.com – to reach even more visitors throughout the area and beyond.

Quarry Museum Receives Granite Columns Donation

Were Part Of Old District Courthouse

The Quincy Quarry & Granite Workers Museum has acquired two columns of quarried Quincy granite turned by a Quincy granite turning company.

The two columns were from the old Quincy District Courthouse that was built in 1912 located on Coddington Street next to the Coddington School, now the site of Presidents Place.

The courthouse was built in the classical revival style, a riff on Greek architecture typical of American courthouses, with wide steps leading up to two simple columns under triangular pediments. The old courthouse was later demolished in May of 1988 to make way for the Presidents Place project at the site of the old Bargain Center in Quincy Center. After the building was razed, the columns were transported to an area located off Ricciuti Drive that was owned by the contractor that demolished the court house.

The columns measure 19 feet, six inches long with a diameter at their base of 30 inches with a slight taper at the top with a diameter of 25 inches. Each column has a volume of 98.2 ft.³ which calculates to a 8.15-ton column. The columns sat in a wooded area for approximately 30 years partially covered with earth and overgrown with brush and trees, making them unrecognizable. The property is now the site of the proposed marijuana dispensary on Ricciuti Drive.

In the past, the Quarry Museum tried unsuccessfully to acquire the columns from the former owners without success. Recently, the Quarry Museum made inquiries as to the new owner of the property. Through the efforts, help and support of Leo Martin, Jr. of Martin Realty of Quincy and the support of the present owners of the property, Stu Levy and Sy Marcus of Universal Properties of Newton, the columns were donated to the Quarry Museum.

Upon hearing of the donations of the columns, museum member Tom Bonomi spoke with Quincy City Historian Tom Galvin and was informed that the bases for the columns were in Quincy at the A. Monti Granite Company on Centre Street. Inquiries were made by Tom Bonomi, and it was established, after speaking with Linda Monti Montilio, that the bases were at the A. Monti Granite Company yard, and had in fact been there for over 25 years. Linda Monti Montilio commented that the bases should be with the columns and in turn donated the bases to the Quarry Museum. This is another donation to keep the historical past together thanks to Linda Monti Montilio and the A. Monti Granite Company.

Excavation and moving the columns of such weight required heavy earth moving equipment and transportation to the site of the Lyons Turning Mill on Quarry Hills Drive. To excavate the columns and transport to the Turning Mill, Sean Farrell of Sean Farrell Excavating of Quincy donated the heavy equipment and personnel to accomplish the task to relocate the columns to the turning mill on Quarry Hills Drive.

All parties involved in the columns have an interest in preserving part of Quincy's rich granite industry history. The Quarry Museum will now donate the columns to the City of Quincy so that future generations may view the type of work that the mill produced and shipped through the country from 1896 to 1917.

QUINCY-QUARRIED GRANITE COLUMNS from the old Quincy District Courthouse were recently donated to the Quincy Quarry & Granite Workers Museum. After the courthouse was demolished in 1988, the columns were transported to an area located off Ricciuti Drive. Photos above and below show the nearly 20-foot, 8-ton columns being relocated to the site of the Lyons Turning Mill on Quarry Hills Drive using heavy equipment.

BASES OF THE granite columns were also donated to the Quincy Quarry & Granite Workers Museum.

BLACK AND WHITE photo shows the granite columns as they appeared on the outside of the old Quincy District Courthouse that was built in 1912 at a cost of $82,000. After it closed in 1972, the building was used for a number of years for classrooms at Quincy Junior College. The building was demolished in May of 1988 as part of the $55 million Presidents Place project.

ing for Dorothy.

David Murphy, chairman of the Quincy Parks Conservancy, said it was ironic the German-American Koch and Italian-American Bellotti were emceeing the St. Patrick's Day event.

"It's not just that they're not Irish — they've been responsible for more Irish political assassinations than the royal British guard," Murphy joked. "Mahoney, dead. Phelan, dead. Harrington, dead. McCarthy, dead. McFarland, dead. All the Irish guys are going one by one by one."

Murphy also gave a toast to the state's Irish-American politicians, several of whom have found themselves under legal scrutiny in recent years.

"If the feds come a-knocking and your so-called friends start talking, if they seize your emails and all of your files and your days are spent with lawyers and trials, may you find peace or even some pleasure and beat the rap like Tim the treasurer," Murphy said, referring to Quincy resident and former state treasurer Tim Cahill, who in 2013 entered into a settlement agreement with state prosecutors after a mistrial on corruption charges.

Several of Quincy's city councillors made appearances at the luncheon.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, who in the past has done a "You Might Be A Necka" routine, reserved her jokes this year for several of her colleagues in government, including City Council President Kirsten Hughes.

"Councillor Hughes pulled up to City Hall and she parked right out of front. Officer Hartnett goes over to her and says, 'councillor, you can't park there.' She says, 'no officer, didn't you read the sign, it says fine for parking,'" Laforest quipped.

Laforest also joked about the city's recent record in legal cases.

"Our City Solicitor Jim Timmins has been kept very busy in this administration. Unfortunately for the mayor and the taxpayers, his only successful case is one he's working on today — a case of Budweiser," she said.

Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain, whose father is African-American and mother is Irish-American, said it was great to be multi-racial.

"I get to tell black jokes, I get to tell jokes about drunken Irish people, and no one can complain about it at all," Cain said. "My family also gets to celebrate twice as many holidays. St. Patrick's Day is always a great time of year in my house, because my mother makes a delicious corned beef and grits meal. We celebrate both the Fourth and the Fifth of July. And at Kwanzaa, which is a holiday that African-Americans celebrate, instead of lighting eight candles we ignite eight shots of Jameson whiskey."

Cain added that he and fellow freshmen Councilors Noel DiBona and Nina Liang were not the first minorities elected to their positions.

"I've done some research and this in fact isn't true. We've actually had one minority elected to the City Council before the three of us. I found out long ago Ward 1 elected a Necka who could actually read," Cain quipped.

Laforest was not the only one to make a-joke at Timmins' expense. Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, who became a father last year, said he looks forward to the solicitor's appearances at council meetings because he can catch up on lost sleep.

"We need to find different situations to sort of recoup some of our sleep — new parents in the room, you can identify. Well I know of two that typically happen every month, and it's every other Monday at the City Council meeting when City Solicitor Jim Timmins enters the octagon to take on Ward 4 City Councillor Brian Palmucci in the battle of the esquires," Croall said, channeling his inner Bruce Buffer. "These duels can go on for 20, 45 minutes, two-and-a-half hours. Strategic sleep recuperation."

Hughes sang "Danny Boy," and Norfolk County Registry of Probate Patrick McDermott performed "Galway Bay."

Restaurateur Leo Keka 'Irishman Of The Year'

Alba Owner Honored At St. Patrick's Day Celebration

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Quincy Center restaurateur who immigrated to the United States from Albania was honored as this year's Irishman of the Year during the annual St. Patrick's Day luncheon.

Leo Keka, the owner of Alba at 1486 Hancock St., received the award during the March 18 event. He came to the U.S. from Albania in 1990 at the age of 21. Before opening Alba in 2001, he worked at several restaurants in Boston including Anthony's Pier 4, Legal Sea Foods and Grill 23.

Keka said he was overwhelmed to receive the Irishman of the Year award.

"I really appreciate it. It's overwhelming," he said Monday. "It's a great honor. I really appreciate this city."

Mayor Thomas Koch praised Keka not only for being a successful businessman, but also for his philanthropy in the community.

"We're a city of immigrants - we're a country of immigrants, but certainly here in the city of Quincy for over 100 years roughly about 30 percent of our population is immigrant population," Koch said.

"Nobody really epitomizes that spirit, I think, more than Leo Keka. Not only does he run a great business, a quality business that we're all proud of here in the city of Quincy, but he helps those in need on a regular basis without fanfare.

"He always responds. He's always there in times of need - doesn't want his name mentioned. Whether it's gift certificates, cash, in-kind, whatever the cause may be, Leo is always there

Bailee Carey

Swimming and Diving - Quincy H.S.

"Bailee Carey is an exceptionally talented diver and an excellent captain for our team. Bailee is always supportive of all of her teammates in their own personal goals. She has been a true asset to our team. We are so lucky to have her talents and strong leadership!"

-Marisa Forrester

Bailee is a Diver for both the QHS Varsity High School Swimming, QHS Diving Team and Charles River Diving Team. She has been diving for 4 years with many achievements. She holds the highest 6-1-meter dive achievement at 283.90 points, the highest 11-1-meter dive achievement at 505.10 points. She was the 2016 Patriot League Meet Diving Champion, and placed 3rd at MIAA Girls' Central/South Diving Sectionals and the MIAA Girls' Division I State Diving Championships. She plans on becoming a Physical Therapist and currently has a GPA of 4.49.

Cam White

Golf, Boys' Ice Hockey, Baseball - North Quincy H.S.

"Cam is the perfect example of what you want in a student-athlete. He exceeds not just on the ice but in the classroom. He was a great leader and role model for our younger guys in the locker room."

-Matt Gibbons

Cam has been a 3 sport athlete for all 4 years at North Quincy. He served as captain of NQHS Boys' Varsity Hockey team this past season and the team's 2nd leading scorer. His talent helped them reach the D2 South Sectional Quarter Finals. He was a member of the Quiz Bowl team that competed in the WGBH State Quiz Bowl Competition. He plans to attend UMass Amherst in the fall with a major in Education.

for a great cause or a great family."

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti said Keka was an American success story and compared him to another well-known restaurateur who got his start in Quincy, Howard Johnson.

"I'm proud to have him as a friend. He is the economic engine in Quincy Center, at least for a couple more weeks," Bellotti said. "He's done a great job and he's making us proud."

Keka received a shillelagh and plaque, which described him as an entrepreneur, community partner, citizen and friend to all, and included a traditional Irish blessing.

"May love and laughter light your days and warm your heart and home," the plaque read. "May good and faithful friends be yours, wherever you may roam. May peace and plenty bless your world with joy that long endures. May all life's passing seasons bring the best to you and yours."

Koch concluded the presentation on a humorous note, showing a slideshow of Keka photoshopped into pictures of important moments and figures in Irish history.

"Leo is actually a distant relative of Oscar Wilde," Koch quipped. "Leo was there when Michael Collins inspired the nation. He was there at the signing of the Anglo-Irish Treaty declaring Irish independence from the English. He was there when JFK made a historic trip to Ireland. And he's even the fifth member of Ireland's greatest band, U2."

Joe Amorosino Returns Home For Lifetime Honor

Retired Quincy Hoop Coach Recognized By Boston Athletic Basketball Club

By BILL GRIFFIN

Joe Amorosino proved that you can come home again.

Amorosino hadn't been in a gym in Quincy since 1983. That's 33 years. That's more than the passing of a generation. However, when he came back last week, it was as if he had always been here, sitting near midcourt coaching Jack Uhlar and P.J. Fay against David Blatt and Patrick Ewing. It was as if, for three days, time froze and the old stories, the people and the memories of a life well lived rose up and crept through the city.

Amorosino received the Lifetime Achievement Award at the 14th annual Fitzy-Nolan games hosted by the Boston Athletic Basketball Club March 17th at the Quincy High School gym. On a night when players with gray in their hair and a bit more width in their waists came back to see their old coach, it was fitting that Leo Papile, the founder of the BABC who played for Amorosino's first JV team at North in 1968, presented the award.

"This means so much because of all the people I've seen this week," said Amorosino who coached at Sterling and North Quincy before leading Quincy to seven tournament berths and one Suburban League title from 1972-1983. "I hadn't been in the city for a long time. It's been unbelievable to see all the people who remembered and took the time to get in touch with me."

The Fitzy-Nolan Games was merely the final stop on Amorosino's tour. He now lives in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. When he landed last Tuesday, Papile took him to the spot in the North gym where Amorosino held his first practice as a JV coach for Knobby Nolan 48 years ago. For a brief, shining moment, he felt that he had never left.

"All the memories just came flooding back," said Amorosino.

Wednesday night, Papile organized a testimonial for Amorosino at the Alba restaurant. More than 100 people attended. Amorosino looked out at a room full of men he had coached, friends he had made, and people he had not seen in decades. He knew just what to say.

"There were players I coached at Sterling, North and Quincy," said Amorosino. "Leo told me to talk as long as I wanted. I spoke for 90 minutes, no notes, everything from the heart. I brought up each player, each team and said something about all of them. I don't know how I remembered. Once I got started, everything just came back. I got emotional. My daughter (Lisa Spinelli) had to finish for me."

At age 22, before he came to Quincy, Amorosino

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman Chiropractor

SCIATICA-RELATED MUSCLE ATROPHY

"Sciatica" is a term used to describe a condition whereby the sciatic nerve, which branches from the lower back through the hips and buttocks and down each leg, becomes compressed. This restriction may be caused by a herniated disc, a narrowing of the spine (spinal stenosis), or a bone spur. The resultant pain, inflammation, and numbness in the leg often become so severe that sciatica sufferers find themselves unable to walk. This restricted range of motion can lead to further problems, as people with sciatica are at risk for developing "muscle atrophy" (loss of muscle mass). As muscles weaken, the body searches for ways to compensate, leading to further injury. Chiropractic treatment can break this downward spiral.

Treatments for sciatica may vary and depend mostly on the severity of pain felt as well as the overall health condition of the patient. When you choose FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, you are assured of receiving the finest quality care through the use of modern chiropractic equipment and technology. Call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. By adjusting and realigning the spine, chiropractic treatment reduces pressure on the sciatic nerve, helping to eliminate pain and restore mobility.

was one of the youngest head coaches in the history of the state at Hopkinton. He will turn 77 this year. He has run summer camps for the last 49 years. For the last 55 years he has coached or taught young kids about basketball, and he has also walked with the kings of his sport.

He worked at summer camps with Celtics' greats Larry Siegfried and Dave Cowens. One year, Red Auerbach asked him to give a lecture. As Joe Amorosino talked about defense, a pretty fair country basketball player, Larry Bird, sat under the hoop and listened to every word. He talked basketball and roomed with Hall of Famer Jo Jo White at another camp.

"One thing I learned from Red was to never think you know everything. Every time you walk into gym, you can learn something," said Amorosino.

As an assistant at BU, he coached Shawn Teague and Fredrick Irving whose sons (Jeff Teague and Kyrie Irving) would become NBA stars. He coached Jim Christian who is now the head coach at Boston College. He evaluated the best players in the country for nine years as a scout for the New Orleans Pelicans.

He did all this, but when he talked, he talked of his years in Quincy and the players he had helped. He talked of getting up at 6 a.m. to open up the old gym at the Vo-Tech so that kids could play basketball before school. He talked of the kids who had hard lives, little money, terrible family problems and the path that basketball and school offered them.

"When I got up to open the gym, I would stop for a half-gallon of milk because I knew a lot of those kids hadn't had breakfast," said Amorosino. "We had one player, a player who is in the Quincy Hall of Fame, who had no family life. There were five brothers and no father in the home. My wife and I took him in. We gave him a hot meal, a place to sleep and breakfast before we went out to school and to try to win a basketball game. I wanted to prepare them for life."

"Joe helped a lot of people and didn't say a lot about what he did. That's what is important," said Fay who played for Amorosino in the early 1980s.

Amorosino was not a coach for the faint of heart. There were stories told last week of running suicides while carrying bricks and of Price Spaghetti Nights with players doing diving drills over tables loaded with pasta. There was talk of uphill outdoor runs in the winter and workouts with the wrestling team.

"One year we were playing Brookline," said Fay. "Joe gave us meditation tapes to listen to before games. One kid had the radio turned up listening to music instead of the tapes. Joe came in and told us we'd better be dancing at half-time. We were down 15 at the half. Joe turned the radio up full blast. He yelled loud enough to be heard over the radio. We went out and won in triple overtime."

There was another side to the coach. Fay lived around the corner from the Elm Street Playground near Paul Fitzpatrick. Elm Street was the soul of basketball in the city for over 20 years. Fay went to the playground to shoot. He shot and shot and, then, he shot some more. His coached noticed.

"Joe used to drive by on his way to work and wave to me," said Fay. "One day he called me over. We had beaten Barnstable in a big tourney game. Joe had compiled a scrapbook from the game. He gave it to me. This was same guy who was yelling at us with the radio going full blast."

When Amorosino walked into the Fitzzy-Nolan games, he saw a bright, brand new shiny gym. The last time he walked into a gym in Quincy, it was in a cellar of a place tucked into the corner of the old Vo-Tech school.

"I love this place. It's so new," he smiled. "I like the big Presidents' hat at mid-court. I put that same hat at midcourt in the old Vo-Tech gym."

Some things change. Some do not. Joe Amorosino had come home again.

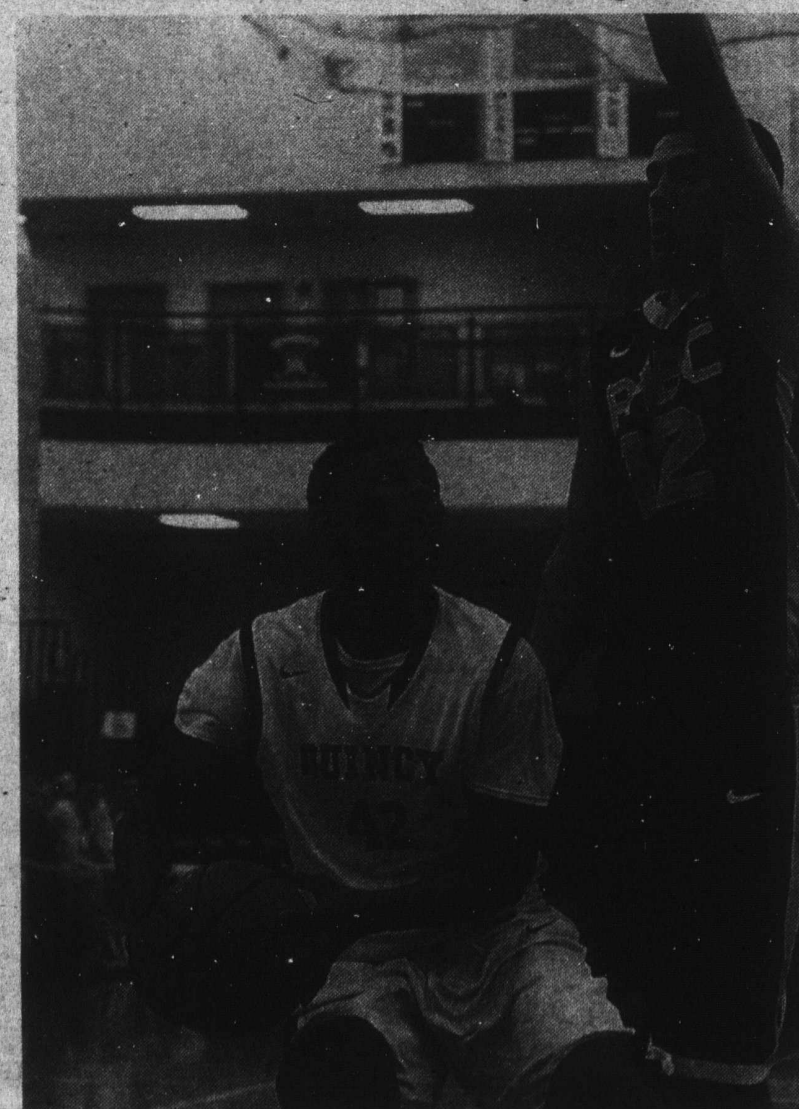

The BABC sophomores defeated a South Shore Select team of freshman, sophomores and juniors, 90-69. The BABC juniors dropped the South Shore Select senior team, 83-59.

In the sophomore game, Quincy's Ugo Kamalu had eight points, including a three-pointer, and six rebounds for the select team. The BABC boasts some of the best talent in the country. Kamalu enjoyed the challenge.

"It was a huge step up from high-school basketball," said Kamalu, who will return for his senior season next year at Quincy. "I loved it. Players came from everywhere to play tonight. Everyone was good. It was exciting to play against them, and it showed me where I need to get better with my own game."

SOUTH SHORE SELECT team included Quincy High's Ugo Kamalu (left) who looks for a shot as the BABC's Cole Swider (St. Andrews and Portsmouth, R.I.) defends his basket.

Paul Harold Club, Quirk Ford, Pipefitters 537 QYH Champions

Quincy Youth Hockey recently celebrated the end of a fantastic season at the Jamboree Championships with Paul Harold Club, Quirk Ford and Pipefitters Local 537 taking home the Mite, Squirt and Middle School titles respectively.

Quincy Youth Arena was full of players, parents, friends, and family cheering on the teams in the finals. Fans enjoyed face painting and balloon art and great music.

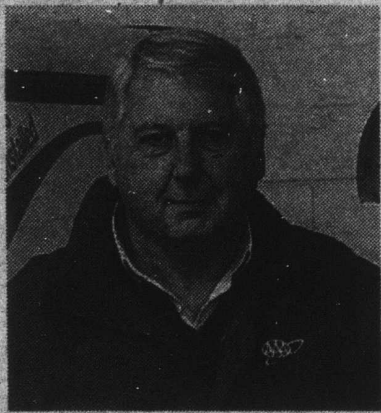

QYH extends congratulations to all players and coaches and thank yous to all sponsors on a great season. The League is looking forward to seeing everyone in September.

Registration for next year is open and can be found at quincyouthhockey.net.

Engines, Brakes, Power-Lift Gates

Ask John Paul: AAA's Car Doctor

I love my 2010 Subaru Forester, especially traveling in snowy weather. My only complaint is that engine is noisy. When we drive my husband's 2005 Mercury Sable, I can hardly hear the engine and the ride is smooth and quiet. Is this a common complaint with other Subaru Forester owners?

JOHN PAUL

The Mercury Sable, even an 11 year-old model, is a pretty quiet car. The engine and road noise are a common characteristic of Subaru vehicles. This has to do with the engine design and the all-wheel drive system and I would guess a general lack on noise cancelling insulation. Not that you need a new car but the last Subaru I drove was much more refined and quieter than older models.

I had the front brakes replaced (pads, rotors and calipers) and for some reason, when I apply the brakes I get a noise that sounds like metal on metal grinding on the driver's side wheel. This happens mostly when I leave work, but not all the time. The brakes work fine but this is annoying, any thoughts on this?

I would first start with going back to the shop that replaced the brakes to see if everything is okay. It is possible a brake pad is sitting incorrectly in the caliper of even a brake pad with a hard spot in the material that causes the noise. If all looks good the shop might want to consider replacing the brake pads with a different brand.

I own a 2011 Toyota Highlander and I love the car and take very good care of it. The only thing I wish I had got on it is the power lift-gate. Would I be able to get that installed? If that is not possible would you recommend trading it in? I only have 78,000 miles on it so it has plenty of life left on it.

Adding a power lift-gate to a vehicle that doesn't have one is possible although it may not be practical. Certainly with enough time, talent and money everything is possible. All the parts are available (motor, switches and remotes) from Toyota but it will get pricey. As a guess I would estimate $1,500 or so. I did see some aftermarket kits on line that may work. Regarding trading your car in, the mileage, condition and the age should make it a desirable used car trade so it could be worth looking into to get a vehicle with the latest features you need.

Does a 2005 Ford Freestyle have a cabin air filter and how important is it to change it?

This model Ford doesn't use a cabin air filter. For those cars that use cabin air filters it is important to change them when they get dirty. A dirty filter can restrict heater/air conditioner output. Also dirty filters can also be a breeding ground for mold and mildew.

Reader Comment: I read the question and answer in the paper regarding the head-gasket replacement question on the 2006 Subaru Outback. I have replaced the head gaskets on both my 1997 and 2003 Outbacks. In both cases, the cars went to 80-85,000 miles before the

Registry Of Deeds Customer Service Center 'One-Stop Shop' For Homeowners, RE Pros

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds consumers if they have a question or a concern about a land document related issue, the answer is just a phone call away by dialing the Registry's Customer Service Center at (781) 461-6101.

The department is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

"The Customer Service Center is a one-stop shop," said O'Donnell. "It provides homeowners and real estate professionals alike with detailed information about a wealth of land document related issues. These subjects include questions you might have about confirming current ownership of property, checking whether or not there is a lien on a particular piece of property and verifying to see if a discharge of a mortgage has been filed after the loan has been paid off.

"We are glad to help, whether you come through the doors of the Registry or call us by phone."

O'Donnell pointed out the department can also inform customers about the cost for filing land documents.

"Upon a customer's request, the Registry can provide copies of documents for a fee of $1 per page, plus an additional $1 per document to cover postage cost. In addition, Customer Service Center staff are happy to answer questions about the Homestead Act, which provides limited protection against the forced sale of a homeowner's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000," O'Donnell said.

"For many, trying to decipher information on land documents can be a very frustrating, if not an intimidating experience," O'Donnell continued. "Our trained customer service professionals are well versed in all areas of land document research. By utilizing our state-of-the-art land document research system, which is also available to members of the public via www.norfolkdeeds.org, we can get people the answers to their property questions."

Notary services are also offered by the Customer Service Center.

"All staff members are notary publics. We are more than glad to notarize any land document provided the person requesting the service appears before us and presents satisfactory proof of identification by showing either their driver's license or passport," O'Donnell said.

In conclusion, the Register stated, "Providing first-class customer service is a core objective of the Registry's mission to serve the public. The residents of Norfolk County deserve nothing less than a positive experience when interacting with us. The bottom line is: We are glad to be of service to you."

Ask Barbara Graceffa: Secretary Of The Interior

I've never put any decorations in the gap between my kitchen cabinets and the ceiling. Any ideas? Lori

This dead space is a great location to decorate your kitchen - especially if you don't mind getting out the ladder to dust there from time to time! Consider silk plants, your favorite collection that is somehow related to food or beverages, like a series of teapots for a traditional style or an assortment of old fashioned-metal lunchboxes for a whimsical touch. If storage is an issue in your kitchen, consider decorative boxes. If you choose this option, make a list of what is in the boxes and paste it inside one of the cabinet doors.

My teenager recently cracked the glass top on our coffee table. I love the table base but always hated cleaning the glass so often. Any ideas on how to reuse the base by adding a new top? Daniella

Kudos to you for recycling and not just discarding it. You can replace the glass with a stone top-like granite or marble, or consider a product like Corian that mimics a stone look you like. You can also use wood in a planks that are stained, painted, or distressed; in fact, pre-finished flooring strips or tiles will work, too. Finally, consider metal if that complements your design style.

What's the best way to care for hardwood floors? Justine Sweep or vacuum them regularly. Clean them with a slightly water-dampened mop or floor cleaning product. Use felt pads under your furniture to avoid scratches and area rugs in high-traffic areas.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Regarding your upcoming challenges, the Aries Lamb should very quickly size things up and allow you to make the best possible use of whatever resources you have on hand. Good luck.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You rarely blame others for missteps that worked against you. But this time you need to lay out all the facts and insist that everyone acknowledge his or her share of the mistakes. Then start again.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might want to start making vacation plans. And don't be surprised by unexpected family demands. Maintain control. Be open to suggestions, but don't get bogged down by them.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Work with both your Moon Child and Crab aspects this week to keep both your creative and your practical sides balanced. Your intuition sharpens, giving you greater insight by the middle of the week.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat finally should have all the information needed to move on with a project. If not, maybe you'll want to give everything a new and more thorough check before trying to move on.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Too much emotional pain caused by someone you can't win over as a friend? Then stop trying to do so. You have other things you need to work on this week. Go to it, and good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good time to reassess where and how your strengths can help you build, and where your weaknesses can hinder you. Remember to build on your strongest foundation.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) That personal matter that seemed so hard to deal with should be less confusing now. Don't rush. Let things happen easily, without the risk of creating even more puzzlement.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Change continues to be a strong factor in many important areas. Keep on top of them, and you won't have to worry about losing control. A personal situation takes on a new look.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A business offer sounds intriguing. But if you don't check it out thoroughly, you could have problems. Take a set of questions with you when you attend your next meeting.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your self-confidence should be coming back. That's good news. But it might be a bit over the top right now, so best to let it settle down before you start making expensive decisions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your life, your decisions. Good enough. But be sure you have all the facts you need to put into the decision-maker mixing bowl and hope it will come out as it should.

BORN THIS WEEK: You find much of your creativity with new people who give you much to think about.

HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

Evangelical Clergy Association Announces Holy Week Services

The Quincy Evangelical Clergy Association invites the Quincy community to join together for special Holy Week services.

On Good Friday, March 25, at 12 noon, a worship service will be held at Fort Square Presbyterian Church, 16 Pleasant St., Quincy. Local pastors and church musicians will take part in leading the worship which commemorates the death of Jesus Christ on the cross.

On Easter Sunday, March

27, the annual Easter Sunrise Worship Service will be held at Wollaston Beach near the Wollaston Yacht Club. In case of rain, the service will be held inside the Squantum Yacht Club.

The service will begin at 6:30 a.m. and will be led by members of the Clergy Association with music from the brass band of the Quincy Corps of The Salvation Army.

All are welcome to attend both of these services.

Easter Vigil At United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will celebrate the Easter Vigil Saturday, March 26 at 7:30 p.m.

"With the exception of the Episcopalians, very few Protestants have had the opportunity to experience the Easter Vigil," said Rev. Dr. Susan Jarek-Glidden, church pastor. "I think this is really unfortunate. The Vigil is one of the most ancient and certainly one of the most dramatic celebrations of the church year. It's my very favorite worship service," she said.

Dating from the earliest years of the Christian church, the Vigil literally leads the congregation from Lent to Easter. It does so through word, song, and, most importantly, symbols that refer to Scripture. Because many people today may be unfamiliar with symbolic interpretation, explanatory notes are provided in the text of the Vigil service.

"I hope people will take the time to read the explanations," said Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden. "The Vigil is a rich, wonderful service on its own, but when a person understands the meaning behind the ritual, it becomes even richer."

People planning to attend the Vigil should expect the unexpected, because the Easter Vigil is a service unlike any other. For example, everyone planning to attend the Easter Vigil is asked to bring a flashlight and to wear comfortable walking shoes.

"I realize that a flashlight sounds like an odd thing to bring to a worship service but believe me, a flashlight is pretty essential," said Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden. "It's simply a modern version of the traditional candles."

"Quincy Community United Methodist Church has chosen to use flashlights for safety reasons. There will be some available in case anyone forgets to bring one. Comfortable shoes are also important because some walking is involved—a short staircase. People then have the option of continuing with the traditional Vigil, which includes more walking, or the non-traditional one in which people remain seated in one place," she said.

"Both groups then join together for the major portion of the service."

The Easter Vigil is very much a participatory worship experience and the more a person puts into the Vigil, the more that person will get out of it, Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden said. "I think a friend of mine put it best when he said, 'I used to think I got Easter here'—and he pointed to his forehead. 'But now,' he continued, 'I get Easter here'—and he pointed to his heart."

"That's what the Easter Vigil is all about. Everyone is invited to share in this wonderful experience."

The church building is handicapped accessible; the handicapped entrance is located in the front, the door closest to the flag pole.

Way Of The Cross Friday

On Good Friday, March 25, Quincy Catholics will once more carry the cross throughout the City of Quincy, stopping at each of its seven Catholic Churches.

All are welcome to join in this prayerful journey of remembrance on Good Friday. The group encourages participation of any kind, whether participants are able to walk part of the journey, all of the journey, or not at all.

Many choose to participate by greeting the walkers upon their arrival at a church, and then staying to pray the two stations of the Cross.

There is no need to sign up. The Quincy Way of the Cross is not a fundraiser; no money is collected, and no money is spent.

The Quincy Way of the Cross steps off from Sacred

Heart Church, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy at 9 a.m. After leaving Sacred Heart, the itinerary is as follows:

- Sacred Heart Church, 386 Hancock St., estimated arrival time (ETA) 9 a.m.

- St. Ann's Church, 757 Hancock St., ETA 9:30 a.m.

- St. Mary's Church, 115 Crescent St., ETA 10:45 a.m.

'Good News' Milestone

Quincy Point Congregational Church will celebrate the 1,000th taping of their "Good News" weekly church service on Sunday March 27th, 2016, Easter Sunday.

It all began in 1990, when Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon approached Bob Gohl about taping the Sunday services to be broadcasted on the local cable tv for the residents of Quincy who would like to see and be part of the services even if they could not make it to Church on Sunday.

They got together and came up with a plan of action and a budget to accomplish this project and presented it to the Deacons. Several weeks were spent looking for the equipment needed and a partnership was formed with Quincy Access Television. Bette Campbell and Chris Potter gave all the technical knowledge.

The search was on for purchase of one camera, several microphones, and yards of cable. After several test tapings were completed the music director Herman Weiss, the Deacon's, and the parishioners were approached where some objected to the idea thinking that they privacy would be invaded which fell on deaf ears. On Sunday Nov. 11, 1990 the first taping of the Sunday Church service now known as "Good News" was taped. These tapings started out only as special events and after a year it was decided to start taping all Sunday services from September through June and a second camera was added.

Today, the "Good News" Sunday services taping is under the Diaconate Committee and Rev. Ann Suzedell and has a wonderful volunteer staff under the direction of Deanna Van Schagen, head Deacon, Bob Gohl, director and producer, Laurie Gohl graphics, Robbie Kearns assistant director and cameraman, Lynda Page assistant director and cameraman, Gene and Joe Suzedell, assistant directors and cameramen, Ginny Lindsay, cameraman, Jack Bissett, former cameraman, and the Late Glen Sheriff, and many others.

The church thanks Bob and Joyce Romeri for their help and support over the past 25 years, especially Joyce who gave up storage space to house the media equipment, and Deanna Van Schagen.

New volunteers are also needed to help assist future tapings. If you are interested in television production, directing, or camera techniques or any other part of the "Good News" programming contact Bob Gohl and he will train you.

RELIGION

Easter Sunrise Service On Wollaston Beach

The South Shore Evangelical Clergy Association will host the annual Easter Sunrise Service on Wollaston Beach this Sunday at 6:30 a.m.

The service will be held on the beach near the Wollaston Yacht Club.

Music will be provided by the Brass band of the Quincy Corps of the Salvation Army.

The Rev. Martha Swanson will be the preacher. Rev. Swanson is the proprietor of our Shepherds Shop Religious Books and Gifts of Wollaston and is the director of Christ Church Mobile Ministries.

Quincy Point Congregational

Holy Week is observed at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Maundy Thursday is marked by a service of Tenets and Holy Communion in the Baharian Chapel at 7 p.m. Enter via doors located closest to Dunkin Donuts.

Good Friday is remembered during a joint service with Bethany Congregational Church in the QPCC sanctuary at noon. The solemn service will feature a sermon titled, "Forgive Them" by Rev. Dr. Peter Preble of Bethany Congregational and music by the Chancel Choir and a vocal quartet.

An Easter Festival Service of the Resurrection at QPCC will be held Easter Sunday at 10 a.m. This celebration is complete with special music by the Children's Choir, the Chancel Choir, violinist Amanda Smith-Roberts, and a vocal quartet.

The Rev. Ann G. Suzedell's sermon title is, "Glory in the Garden." Following worship, there will be a free Easter Egg Hunt on the lawn of the church (weather permitting). Children of all ages are welcome to participate in the hunt and discover eggs full of treats and prizes. Baskets will be provided.

Easter and Good Friday services are held in the QPCC sanctuary and are handicap accessible. The elevator is accessible through the door on Abbey Road side of building by the handicap parking lot.

Houghs Neck Congregational

Houghs Neck Congregational Church will begin a celebration of Easter Sunday with a seaside service at 8 a.m. at the entrance to Nut Island.

The service is prepared and led by the members of Seaside Sisters and accompanied by Ian MacLean on keyboard. In the event of inclement weather, the service will be held inside the church at 310 Manet Ave.

The seaside service is followed by an 8:30 a.m. breakfast at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Easter Sunday is the day that Christians celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ. The 10 a.m. service is led by Pastor Felix Carrion who will preach the sermon "Ascent with Jesus."

Liturgist Nancy Jacobs will call to worship and read the scripture lesson. Janice Hughes and Molly Jacobs will serve for the Diaconate in the sanctuary decorated with flowers. Steve Reed will direct the choir accompanied by Ian MacLean.

This Maundy Thursday, March 24, the service of darkness and shadows begins with a supper at 5:30 p.m. Come and partake in the Sacrament of Communion in remembrance of Jesus' Passover Meal with his disciples.

Union Congregational Church

The Chancel Choir under the direction of Organist and Choir Master Lukas Olejnik has prepared several musical selections for Easter Sunday, March 27 at Union Congregational Church, corner of Beach Street and Rawson Road, Wollaston.

The Easter Sunday service begins at 10 a.m.

A special selection will be the last hymn, "Thine Is The Glory", played on full organ with fanfare. "Thine Is The Glory" is an Easter hymn written by the Swiss writer Edmond Budry and set to the tune of the chorus "See the Conquering Hero Comes" from Handel's oratorio Judas Maccabaeus. The tune is familiar to many as it is always a part of the opening and closing ceremonies of the Olympics.

Olejnik is a native of Prague in the Czech Republic. He is a graduate of Bard College and holds a Master of Music degree from Longy School of Music in Cambridge.

The Chancel Choir sings every Sunday morning from mid September through mid June and is open to anybody who likes to sing.

PEACE

OBITUARIES

Mary E. Picard

A funeral Mass for Mary Elizabeth (Tirrell) Picard was celebrated March 18 in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Picard died peacefully March 14 with her family by her side. She lived a long, rich life and would have turned 94 on May 7.

Born in Brighton, a daughter of the late Theresa (Fallon) and Joseph H. Tirrell, she was raised in Brighton and was a graduate of Brighton High School and Boston Business School. As a member of the Greatest Generation, Mrs. Picard was employed by the Transport Command of the United States Air Force in Washington, D.C., during WWII.

Following her marriage to Robert Picard, she moved to Quincy and lived there for 65 years. They spent many retirement years enjoying travel and wintering in Fort Pierce, Fla. Mrs. Picard was a kind, gentle and valiant woman who was happiest when surrounded by her family. She enjoyed dancing, reading, gardening and time at the beach.

Mrs. Picard will be missed by all of those who had the pleasure of knowing her; she possessed a wonderful, dry Irish wit.

She was predeceased by her husband of 46 years, Robert F. Picard. Survived by her children: Linda of Quincy, Mary and her husband Peter Reilly of NH and John Picard of Quincy and Judy Devlin of Quincy. She was the grandmother of seven grandchildren: Nicole

MARY E. PICARD

Picard and Kristen Gumz, Robert and Roxann Picard, Colin and Marissa Reilly and Christina Devlin, two great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews. Also survived by her nieces Brenda Magri, Joan Barton and her sister-in-law Helen Harris. She was predeceased by her three sons Joseph, Brian and David Picard; her siblings Irene Barton, Ethel Tirrell, Kenneth Tirrell and Patricia Nichols; and beloved nieces Irene Smith and Maureen Blando.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment at Mount Benedict Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Memorial donations may be made to the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, 900 Washington St. (Rt. 16), Wellesley, MA 02482; the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum, Development Office, 25 Evans Way, Boston, MA 02115; Philanthropy Department, New England Wild Flower Society, 180 Hemenway Road, Framingham, MA 01701; or the charity of your choice.

Steven J. Sullivan, 28

Memorial visiting hours for Steven J. Sullivan, 28, of Weymouth and formerly Quincy were held Sunday in Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Mr. Sullivan died peacefully March 16 at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center in Boston, surrounded by his loving family.

He was born in Boston, raised and educated in Quincy schools and was a graduate of Quincy High School, Class of 2005. Mr. Sullivan was also a graduate of Westfield State University, Class of 2009. He had lived in Weymouth for two years, previously in Quincy for all his life.

Mr. Sullivan was employed as a security officer for the Quincy Public School Department, assigned to North Quincy High School for the past five years. He had also been a baseball coach at North Quincy High School.

He enjoyed sports and was a talented athlete, playing both baseball and basketball at Quincy High School and baseball at Westfield State. He also played for the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion baseball team in Quincy.

Baseball was his passion and in addition to coaching at North Quincy he was also a coach for the AAU Milton Spartans. He was interested in the well being of the students and athletes he came in contact with and had aspirations of becoming a guidance counselor.

Mr. Sullivan was devoted to his family and friends.

Recently married, he was the beloved husband of Maria C. (Macolini) Sullivan. Devoted son of Lorraine T. (Velona) Sullivan of Quincy and Steven A. Sullivan and his wife Donna L. (Thompson) Sullivan of Quincy. Dear brother of Richard A. Sullivan and Alana M. Sullivan, both of Quincy. Also survived by the Macolini family of Raynham as well as many aunts, uncles, nephews, cousins and friends.

Memorial donations may be made to the Steven J. Sullivan Scholarship Fund, c/o Quincy Credit Union, 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy, MA 02169.

Daniel J. Powers, Sr., 65

A funeral Mass for Daniel J. Powers, Sr., 65, of Quincy and formerly South Boston was celebrated Monday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Powers died March 14.

Beloved father of Rita Powers of Randolph, Daniel J. Powers, Jr., and his wife Shannon of Weymouth, Tina Castiello of Everett and Tommy Mackie of Essex. Brother of Edmund T. Powers, Jr., of South Boston, Sandy Powers Rosati and Michael of Lynn, Diane McDonough of ME, Denise Giorlando of Winthrop, Lisa Palogaris and Gina Richards, both of NH, and the late Thomas Powers and Aileen Stone. Devoted Papa to Savannah, DJ and Laci Powers, Jason Castiello, Savannah, Elley and Braden and uncle to many nieces and nephews.

Mr. Powers grew up in South Boston and graduated from South Boston High School. He proudly served in the United States Navy during the Vietnam War. He was the post commander of the Morrisette Post. Mr. Powers worked for Purolator Courier Service, D&S Delivery, and drove a taxicab in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York.

For all who knew him well, he had the gift to gab and loved telling jokes.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Memorial donations may be made to the Wounded Warrior Project, P.O. Box 758517, Topeka, KS 66675.

Geraldine L. Blinn, 81

A funeral Mass for Geraldine L. "Geri" (Magri) Blinn, 81, of Weymouth was celebrated Monday in St. Albert the Great Church, Weymouth.

Mrs. Blinn died March 15 with her family by her side.

She was born in Dorchester then raised and educated in North Quincy. She met her first husband, James Capulli, shortly after graduating Quincy schools and they got married, settled in Weymouth and started a family. After Jimmy passed away she met her husband of 40 years, Edward Blinn.

Mrs. Blinn was a social person who loved luncheons with friends, especially her best friend of 68 years, Barbara Cheney of Braintree. She also enjoyed bowling, shopping, and was very active at the Whipple Senior Center as well as the Braintree Women's Club. Most of all she enjoyed spending time with her family whom she loved very much.

GERALDINE L. BLINN

Survived by her beloved husband of 40 years Edward C. Blinn of Weymouth. Loving mother of Lauren Luttrell and her husband Paul of Weymouth, Keith Capulli and his wife Louise of NH. Cherished grandmother to Brooke Luttrell, James Capulli, Andrew Capulli and Domenic Capulli. Also survived by her sister Carolyn Fabiano, her husband Rocco and their entire family.

Funeral arrangements were made by C. C. Shepherd Funeral Home, Weymouth.

Stephen F. McGrath

A funeral Mass for Stephen F. McGrath of Marshfield was celebrated Monday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. McGrath died peacefully March 15, surrounded by his family.

He graduated from North Quincy High School, class of 1971. He was an avid sports fan, especially for the Red Sox and Patriots. Mr. McGrath was a man of great generosity and a friend to all. He will be remembered for his quick wit and great sense of humor. He will be missed by all those who had the pleasure of knowing him.

Loving son of the late John and Patricia McGrath. Devoted brother of Patricia Callahan and her husband Paul, Maureen Flaherty and her husband Thomas, Kathleen Sawkiewicz and her partner Susan Jackson, Jane Shore, John McGrath and his wife Marla, Lawrence McGrath and his wife Robin and Robert McGrath and his wife Karen. Beloved longtime partner of Pauline McCarthy. Devoted uncle of many nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Sullivan was a homemaker but had worked for several years at Liberty Mutual Insurance Company. She was the heart and soul of her large family; all of the family functions and special occasions were never complete without her charming presence. She was the first one sought out by her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Her home was always a center of activity and her Christmas Eve open houses were attended by both family and friends for many years.

Mrs. Sullivan enjoyed many activities including participating in St. Kevin's Church minstrel shows in Dorchester, Sunday trips to Lake Pearl, her love of bingo and putting a coin or two into the slot machines in Las Vegas and Foxwoods. She will be truly missed by her family and friends but she leaves behind a wealth of wonderful memories for all that knew her.

Her family would like to express their appreciation and thanks to Hospice of the South Shore for their compassion and care.

Mr. Murphy died Sunday.

Devoted father of Cheriann O'Connor, her husband Michael and their children Riley and Madison, all of Quincy. Son of the late Henry T., Sr., and Edith (Lynch) Murphy. Brother of Rita Corey and her husband Chuck, Carol Sullivan the late Edith Shenett and her late husband Al. Also lovingly survived by his companion, Edith Gallant of Chelsea, his former wife Ann Crickett and her husband Brian of Quincy, their daughter Robyn Davidson and her husband Matt of Weymouth as well as many nieces, nephews, cousins and friends.

Late member of Teamsters Local 25.

Interment services will be held at New Calvary Cemetery at a day and time to be announced.

Judith J. McCarthy

JUDITH J. MCCARTHY

She was the beloved Auntie of Jamie Tibbals and Great Auntie to Douglas, TJ and Kate, all of NJ.

Mrs. McCarthy was born in Boston and raised in Milton. She was a graduate of Milton High School, class of 1957. She earned her undergraduate from Curry College and a masters in English from Simmons, graduating summa cum laude, class of 1986.

Mrs. McCarthy was a master of both the English and French languages. Her passion and skill for writing included published articles, corporate compliance and security, poetry and countless beautiful notes to her children and grandchildren.

In retirement, she followed her passion for New England history to the "Church of the Presidents," the final resting place of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams; volunteering as a tour guide, she shared her excitement and knowledge with thousands of visitors.

Mrs. McCarthy loved music and playing her baby grand piano, singing spirituals, blues and her favorites from Tom Jones and James Taylor. If she wasn't reading non-fiction or the Wall Street Journal, she was knitting, walking along the beach or spending time with her loving cat, Boyo. She was most happy when she was with her family and spending time with her grandchildren, teaching them how to garden, write stories, make forts and create art.

Funeral arrangements were made by Dolan Funeral Home, East Milton Square.

Private interment.

gasket needed replacement.
At that point the dealer where my cars were serviced suggested that I replace the timing belt since I was within 15,000 miles of the recommendation. The timing belt was less than $100 and I saved the labor cost for doing the belt separately. That worked for me both times and I felt that I came out ahead. Just thought I would share this tip with other Subaru owners.

Replacing a timing belt or any drive belt when performing other repairs is always money well spent. This would also be the case with other items that wear out such as water pumps and belt tensioners.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE
2016 - 074

Presently pending in the Ordinance Committee and Oversight Committee of the Quincy City Council to be passes at a later date:

BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Quincy that Quincy Municipal Code Chapter 375 Zoning - Section 9.0 Administration, as amended, be further amended as follows:

Adding Section 9.4.9 - Minimum Mandatory Conditions, 9.4.10 - Remedies and 9.4.11 - Appeals to the Quincy Municipal Code

9.4 SPECIAL PERMITS

9.4.1 Special Permit Granting Authority. The City Council, Zoning Board of Appeals, or the Planning Board, where designated herein, shall serve as the special permit granting authority.

9.4.2 Criteria. Special permits shall be granted by the special permit granting authority, unless otherwise specified herein, only upon its written determination that the proposed use or structure(s) shall not cause substantial detriment to the neighborhood or the City, taking into account the characteristics of the site and of the proposal in relation to that site. In addition to any specific factors that may be set forth in this Ordinance, such determination shall include consideration of each of the following:

1. Community needs served by the proposal;
2. Traffic and pedestrian flow and safety, including parking and loading;
3. Adequacy of utilities and other public services;
4. Neighborhood character and social structures;
5. Impacts on the natural environment; and
6. Potential fiscal impact, including impact on City services, tax base, and employment.

9.4.3 Procedures. Applications shall be filed in accordance with the rules and regulations of the special permit granting authority. An application shall not be deemed complete until all copies of required information and documentation have been filed with the special permit granting authority.

9.4.4 Conditions. Special permits may be granted with such reasonable conditions, safeguards, or limitations on time or use, including performance guarantees, as the special permit granting authority may deem necessary to serve the purposes of this Ordinance.

9.4.5 Plans. An applicant for a special permit shall submit a plan in substantial conformance with the requirements of Section 9.4, herein:

9.4.6 Lapse. Special permits shall lapse if a substantial use thereof or construction thereunder has not begun, except for good cause, within 24 months following the filing of the special permit approval (plus such time required to pursue or await the determination of an appeal referred to in G.L. c. 40A, s. 17, from the grant thereof) with the City Clerk.

9.4.7 Regulations. The special permit granting authority may adopt rules and regulations for the administration of this section.

9.4.8 Fees. The special permit granting authority may adopt reasonable administrative fees and technical review fees for applications for special permits.

9.4.9 Minimum Mandatory Conditions. In addition to any other conditions that may be required pursuant to Section 9.4.4, each special permit shall include the following set of mandatory special permit conditions:

"It shall be a material condition of this Special Permit that any construction manager, general contractor or other lead or prime contractor, or any entity functioning in any such capacity, and any other contractor or subcontractor of any tier or other person or entity that is engaged to perform the construction work on the property that is the subject of this Special Permit shall comply with the following qualifications and conditions at all times during their performance of work on the project:

The firm has not been debarred or suspended from performing construction work by any federal, state or local government agency or authority in the past three years;

The firm has not within the past three years been found in violation of any law applicable to its contracting business, including, but not limited to, licensing laws, tax laws, prompt payment laws, wage and hour laws, prevailing wage laws, environmental laws or others;

The firm must maintain appropriate industrial accident insurance sufficient to provide coverage for all the employees on the project in accordance with G.L. c.152 and provide documentary proof of such coverage to the Building Inspector to be maintained in the Building Department as a public record;

The firm must properly classify employees as employees rather than independent contractors and treat them accordingly for purposes of workers' compensation insurance coverage, unemployment taxes, social security taxes and state and federal income tax withholding. (G.L. c.149, §148B on employee classification);

The firm must comply with G.L. c. 149, § 148 with respect to the payment of wages; and

The firm must be in compliance with the health and hospitalization requirements of the Massachusetts Health Care Reform law established by Chapter 58 of the Acts of 2006, as amended, and regulations promulgated under that statute by the Commonwealth Health Insurance Connector Authority.

If any person or entity that is subject to the foregoing fails to comply with any of the qualifications and conditions with respect to work on the project, this Special Permit shall be deemed temporarily suspended and all construction work on the entire project shall cease immediately upon issuance of a stop work order by the Building Commissioner or his designee until further notice by the Building Commissioner."

9.4.10 Remedies. In the event the special permit is granted, the applicant for the special permit shall be responsible for ensuring that all contractors performing construction work on the property comply with the Minimum Mandatory Conditions required by Section 9.4.9 for the duration of work on the project. If any person or entity that is subject to the Minimum Mandatory Conditions set forth in Section 9.4.9 fails to comply with any of the qualifications and conditions with respect to work on the project, and in addition to the Penalties set forth in Section 9.1.7, the Building Commissioner shall issue a stop work order with respect to all construction work on the entire project until the violation is remedied. Once the Building Commissioner or his designee determines that the violation has been remedied, he shall withdraw the stop work order and construction on the project may proceed.

9.4.11 Appeals. Any person aggrieved by a stop work order issued by the Building Commissioner or his designee pursuant to Section 9.4.10 shall have the appeal rights set forth in Section 9.1.6.

Keenan Hosting Millennial Engagement Initiative March 30

Sen. John Keenan will host a Millennial Engagement Initiative for a roundtable discussion Wednesday, March 30 at 5:30 p.m. at the James R. McIntyre Government Center (old City Hall), 1305 Hancock St.

The "Millennial Engagement Initiative" is a state-wide listening tour coordinated by Senate President Stanley Rosenberg and colleagues from the Senate.

Sen. Keenan said he hopes this open discussion among state and city officials, young professionals, students, and other Millennials will be mutually beneficial to all groups that attend.

"We need to hear from and involve Millennials in public policy decisions, not only to demonstrate how their voices can be active in state government, but to learn what is affecting their generation and how we can support those needs," Keenan said.

The event will be co-hosted by Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch, Braintree Mayor Joseph Sullivan, other local officials, Quincy College and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

"With more and more young people choosing to live and work in Quincy than ever before, engaging them in their government is absolutely vital for the community we want today and the one we want for tomorrow," Koch said. "Sen. Keenan understands this very well, and I'm grateful for his work in capturing the opportunity to host this valuable discussion in Quincy."

Quincy College President Peter Tsaffaras said, "The Millennial Engagement Initiative inspires transformative change, and we are honored to co-host this event, providing our students with an opportunity to not only help shape the legislative process, but also to learn how they may become more involved in the progression of forward thinking lawmaking."

Millennials, generally defined as anyone born between the early 1980s and early 2000s, are the first generation to grow up using the Internet and a vast array of other technologies that create new venues for communication and advocacy.

The discussion is a public event and open to the press. For more information, contact Keenan's office at 617-722-1494.

Ward 6 Election Decision Expected

Judge Hears Dispute; Ruling To Be Posted On Sun Website

By SCOTT JACKSON

The legal dispute over the vacant Ward 6 City Council seat had yet to be resolved as of Tuesday evening, with one week to go before a preliminary special election is scheduled to take place April 5.

Some 3,300 voters in the ward, which includes Squantum, Marina Bay and parts of North Quincy, are expected to head to the polls in next week's preliminary, should it take place.

Longtime Councillor Brian

McNamee, who died Dec. 23 following a brief battle with cancer, previously held the Ward 6 seat. McNamee had represented the ward since 2006. He was re-elected to a sixth term in November.

Five candidates - William Harris of 74 Ashworth St.; Nathaniel Knowles of 44 Ocean St.; Kevin Mock of 76 Alstead St.; Brian Radell, 21 Standish Rd.; and Herbert Alie Shaughnessy III of 32 Essex St. - are running for the seat.

Residents Oppose Proposed Natural Gas Compressor

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree residents came out in force Monday in opposition to Spectra Energy's proposed natural gas compressor station the company wants to build next to the Fore River Bridge.

About 100 people packed the Abigail Adams Middle school auditorium in Weymouth to voice their concerns during the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) nearly four-hour hearing on the Texas-based energy distribution company's application for a waterways permit for the facility. The DEP held the hearing to gather comments and concerns from residents and officials before deciding whether to permit the project to be built on the waterfront.

Standing in front of DEP and Spectra officials, Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest pointed to the number of Quincy residents in attendance and that buses transported many from O'Brien Towers

Shea Retiring April 15: 'It's Been A Great Ride'

Familiar City Hall Face And Dedicated Public Servant Stepping Down As City Clerk

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

City Clerk Joseph Shea, who has served Quincy's municipal government with distinction and dedication for some 30 years, will retire Friday, April 15.

Shea's City Hall career has spanned four mayoral administrations beginning with his role as the executive secretary for former Mayor Walter Hannon for four years in the early 1970s. Shea returned to city government in March of 1991 when he became assistant city clerk. Twenty months later, he succeeded longtime friend and mentor John Gillis who retired as city clerk after his election as a Norfolk County commissioner in November of 1992.

Shea, the 11th individual to serve as Quincy city clerk, has been at the helm of the clerk's office for nearly 24 years. He will turn 71 on April 18 and says stepping down as city clerk brings mixed emotions.

"Yes, it's bittersweet but I have no regrets," he says from his second floor office in the glass annex City Hall building. "This is a conscious decision. It's time to move on."

Last fall, Shea announced he would retire as clerk this spring. He filed his retirement papers last week. His last official City Council meeting is Monday, April 4. His final day on the job will be Friday, April 15.

"I'm not unhappy and I love my work," he says on an unusually quiet afternoon in the clerk's office. "The time has come to let someone younger do this job."

"I've worked five or six years longer than most people do after they reach retirement age but I'm not going away. I'll help out as a volunteer. I have some recommen-

SOULFUL GOLD

While gold in its purest form (24K) is a vivid, bright yellow, it is too soft to be used for jewelry. For this reason, jewelry gold is alloyed with different metals, each of which strengthens the gold and lends a distinctive hue. While mixing pure gold with silver, copper, and zinc produces yellow gold, mixing gold with platinum/palladium, nickel, and zinc results in white gold. Rose (or pink) gold results from combining gold with silver and increased amounts of copper; green gold gets its color from mixing in silver alone. At the moment, there is an emphasis on "soulful gold," which evokes the look of heirloom jewelry with its rich, warm yellow tones plus hints of brass, amber, and champagne.

Whether you are shopping for a special occasion or treating yourself, buying gold jewelry can be an enjoyable experience. Gold is a precious metal that retains its value. It is also durable and will last indefinitely estate jewelry to the joy and beauty of a unique wedding ring, our jewelers can make your jewelry selection perfect. dations that I'd like to make to the mayor and city council about record retention and recodifying our city ordinances – that hasn't been done in 26 years. It's a very big job."

Nicole Crispo, who has served as assistant city clerk for two years and recently became a certified municipal clerk, is expected to succeed Shea at the April 25th city council meeting. Crispo's name will be placed in nomination and city councillors are expected to approve the appointment that evening.

Shea will swear in Crispo as his successor. The lifelong Quincy resident and Quincy High School graduate will become the 12th individual and only the second woman to serve as Quincy city clerk in the last 128 years. Hattiemay Thomas was the first woman to serve as city clerk from 1941 to 1955.

Crispo, age 44, has worked in the City Clerk's office since 1999 after transferring from Quincy Hospital. During that time she has served in two positions in the election office and one in the clerk's office.

"I'm very comfortable with Nicky succeeding me," Shea said. "She has grasped and fielded everything that was tossed her way. She was willing to study and go to clerk's school and now she's a certified municipal clerk."

As for advice for his replacement, Shea said, "Just work with the people and treat people the way you want to be treated."

Besides her training as clerk, Shea said Crispo's skill set includes being computer savvy that will help her move the clerk's office into the next phase of information sharing and record keeping.

Shea noted that Crispo helped implement a new agenda management system for the city council. Each city councillor, the city clerk and clerk of committees will utilize computer tablets to efficiently share and access digital files reducing the need for printing volumes of documents.

With Crispo succeeding Shea, the assistant city clerk's position will become vacant. The job will be advertised and Crispo will recommend her replacement as assistant to the City Council. Councillors would then vote on filling the assistant's position.

During his distinguished and dedicated City Hall career, Shea has honed a reputation as a tireless worker and well-respected facilitator in the clerk's office – one of the key cogs of city government. As city clerk, he is the city's official keeper of the records. He also oversees city elections and voter registration while serving on the License Board and as the clerk of the City Council. The clerk is also the shellfish warden in Quincy – a position with less profile but importance.

"We have ongoing issues with our clam flats," Shea says. "People don't realize you just can't dig clams anytime you want."

Shea's City Hall career has been marked with highlights and hard work.

One of the achievements he is most proud of is the implementation of a bilingual ballot five years ago. The city was mandated to publish election ballots in English and Mandarin because the 2010 federal census showed Quincy's population of Asian-Americans had reached 22 percent.

"It's the law of the land. It's here to stay and I'm proud of that," Shea said of the bilingual ballot.

He's also proud of the restoration of the James R. McIntyre Government Center, a multi-million project that forced the clerk's office to move temporarily to an adjacent location near McIntyre Mall for several years before relocating to the City Hall annex. Shea was among a group of key individuals who coordinated the restoration. The tastefully restored and 21st-century updated McIntyre Center is now used for public meeting

NATIONAL SAILOR'S HOME, WOLLASTON, MASS.

F. E. HOXIE PHOTO.

THIS IS A 1920s postcard view of the old National Sailor's Home that was located near the junction of Haviland and Dickens Streets and Andrew Road in Wollaston. The rest home was opened at the end of the Civil War in 1865 exclusively for indigent sailors who had served in the U.S. Navy. The home remained here for over 60 years until 1930 when it moved to Duxbury into the old Powder Point Schoolhouse on Powder Point overlooking the harbor. In 1950 trustees of the Sailor's Snug Harbor in Germantown merged with the National Sailor's Home in Duxbury and also moved their residents there. Eventually the Snug Harbor trustees took over the Duxbury operations; closed it when there were only nine residents remaining and then sold the property in 1974. Today the trustees of Sailor's Snug Harbor are based in Boston and have a substantial endowment from which they distribute grants every year to qualifying applicants. The National Sailor's Home property in Wollaston was purchased by the Model Homes Company in Boston in 1931 and developed into the 40-acre Beechwood Knoll subdivision. All that remains of the home today is a secluded cemetery in the marshes off Fenno Street and the Sailor's Home pond which was a man-made reservoir that supported the home's farm. What Drug Addiction Really Means

My brother died of a heroin overdose.

His name was Matty. He was beautiful, he was funny, he was courageous and compassionate, he was talented, he was athletic, he was charming and he was stolen.

My baby brother was stolen by a substance, and nothing was done about it. The nurses, the doctors, the therapists—they all said how handsome he was, and how sorry they felt for me.

They said they see this all the time, such young lives taken too soon. Some are taken instantly, and some are taken gradually.

In my brother's case, it was gradual. I never got a call saying "he's overdosed, he's gone," something I had always assumed in my gut would happen. I received a call saying he was on a ventilator, but was breathing on his own. No one prepares you for seeing your loved one in that predicament. My brother was alone. He was unconscious. He was brain dead.

Four days I sat with him by his hospital bed, waiting for them to tell me it was time to let go. Four days I stayed with him while different medical personnel came in and out of his room, probing and prodding and touching the shell of him that laid hooked up to machines and monitors. Four days I barely slept. I didn't eat. I didn't talk. I didn't hug. I just watched. He never took a breath again. His heart beat for eleven minutes without the machines and with that, he was gone.

Everyone said "it's a good thing. He's finally free. Rest peacefully, fly high." Free from what? From his family? Friends? Loved ones? Free from heroin. He was free from heroin.

My brother never got to get married. He never got to have children. He never had a career, or a serious life partner. He never got to buy a house. We don't get to see him on holidays. I don't get to hear him anymore. My mother never gets to see her son again. My brother never gets to see his best friend again. I never get to spend time with the one person I could share everything and anything with again.

My brother was not a "junkie." He wasn't a bad person. He always said "I'm a lover, not a fighter." He loved with his entire heart, and he believed in everyone. Every occasion he had, he would tell me how proud he was of me. I didn't die from a heroin overdose. I'm the one who lived. I'm the one who got my life back. I'm the one who is going to be able to make something of herself. I'm the one who gets to have children, buy a house, and have a career and a marriage. I'm the one who had to bury her brother.

Every year in the United States, 47,000 families lose a loved one due to a heroin overdose. My brother is one of those.

The importance of this story is to raise awareness for a battle that is far from over. Ending the stigma against addiction is only the beginning. The health system in this country has to change. There should be no maximum opportunities for treatment. There should always be treatment readily available for everyone.

We shouldn't judge people based on how they get recovery. We should learn about different options available for those wanting to enter treatment. Carry Narcan. Advocate for those who have a hard time doing it for themselves. Never lose hope, and always give encouragement and love to those struggling with addiction.

I won't end my fight to bring awareness to this cause, and I hope this short story shed some light into what addiction really means for those involved with it and around it. Please share this message to anyone who will listen.

My brother died of a heroin overdose. His name was Matty, and he is my angel.

Thank you.

The contract is the second to be awarded the Quincy-yard for a nuclear-powered submarine.

COUNCIL TO STUDY METER REMOVAL PLAN

The City Council will include a study of the parking meter removal question when the special committee headed by Councillor George G. Burke meets in his office.

Councillor James S. McCormack who proposed the study committee and Councillor Carl W. Anderson, who is a leader in the movement for the abolition of parking meters, are the other committee members.

The Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce through its traffic and parking committee opposed removal of the meters from the big parking areas.

LEE BACKS MAYOR ON RETIRING METERED PARKING

Planning Director James Lee, in a letter to Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, supported the mayor's position in opposing the removal of parking meters. Both Della Chiesa and Lee noted that parking meters control parking and bring annual revenue of $110,000 a year to the city.

(Editor's note: The parking meters were not removed from the parking areas until the mid-1980s when they were replaced with a validated parking system.)

Quincy's Ray O'Hare Cast In 'The Wild Party'

Quincy actor Ray O'Hare will star in Moonbox Productions' upcoming production of the jazz musical, The Wild Party, April 15th - May 1st at the Stanford Calderwood Pavilion at the Boston Center for the Arts, 527 Tremont St., Boston.

Performances are Thursdays at 7:30 p.m., Fridays/Saturdays at 8 p.m., Saturday and Sunday matinees 2 p.m. Tickets are $45/$40 ($15 student rush ½ hour prior to performance) available at bostontheatrescene.com or by calling 617-933-8600.

The Wild Party musical by Michael John LaChiusa and George C. Wolfe tells the story of vaudeville vixen "Queenie" and the party she is throwing for her eclectic entourage of friends.

"The Wild Party is a

Increase Literacy Now - for FREE

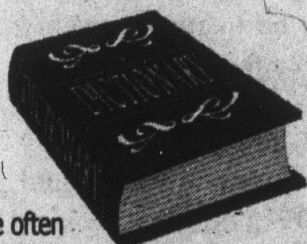

Lack of money, drugs, crime, family issues and many other problems that we often have to deal with come partially or fully from the inability to understand and apply what we read at a high level. When we send our children to school and college, they are given subjects to learn but never really get the information they need on how to study, and therefore usually do poorly at applying their subjects.

In school, one generally learns the alphabet and to a lesser degree, grammar and phonics, which are all important tools to learning.

Yet, there are 3 reasons why people give up learning or studying a subject which are also why they cannot properly apply and become expert in the subjects they are trying to learn. These are:
1. THE MISUNDERSTOOD WORD. A word you hear or read that you don't know the meaning of, or that you have the wrong meaning for, is called a misunderstood word.
2. NOT HAVING THE OBJECT WITH YOU THAT YOU ARE STUDYING.
3. NOT STUDYING (OR LEARNING AN ACTIVITY) ONE STEP AT A TIME.

As a quick step to improve the your ability to learn, you should simply and always use an easy-to-understand dictionary whenever there's a word or symbol that you do not fully understand.

Owl Experts At Kennedy Center April 20

Owl experts Mark and Marcia Wilson will be at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy, on Wednesday April 20 at 1 p.m. for an intergenerational program about owls.

The Wilsons will share the field marks, signs and naturalist skills that you can use to find wild owls without disturbing them. Everyone participates in a hooting lesson and learns tips on how to attract and protect owls near you.

While the selection of live owls varies from group to group, chances are you'll meet New England's tiniest owl (the Northern Saw-Whet Owl) along with the world's largest owl (the Eurasian Eagle Owl). Other species that figure prominently in the program can include the Eastern Screech Owl, Barred Owl, Barn Owl, Great-horned Owl, Snowy Owl and Spectacled Owl.

This program is open to all seniors and their grandchildren, nieces and nephews. All children must be accompanied by a senior.

Cost for the program is $3 per senior and $3 per child. Tickets are available at the Kennedy Center. For more information call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Wine Tasting Fundraiser April 14

Port 305 and Mix 104.1's Kennedy Elsey will host a wine tasting fundraiser Thursday, April 14, for South Shore Mental Health.

The event will take place from 5 to 8 p.m. and will feature fine wine, exceptional food, and the chance to win live auction and raffle prizes.

Tickets can be purchased for $50 online at www.ssmh.org or at the door for $60.

All proceeds from the event will benefit children born with developmental disabilities, and children, teens, and adults living with mental illness.

For more information, contact Director of Marketing and Development Margaret Carr at 617-774-1017 or email mcarr@ssmh.org.

Bake Sale April 5 At Kennedy Center

The Quincy Council on Aging will hold a Bake Sale at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St.

on Tuesday, April 5th from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. A wide variety of fresh home baked goods will be available. All proceeds go to ongoing programs at the Kennedy Center. For more information call (617) 376-1506.

April Children Events, Activities At Crane Public Library

By JULIE RINES
Thomas Crane
Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library has scheduled the following events and activities for children during April.

Spring Storytimes

Weekday storytimes for children ages 4 months through 5 years old begin on Friday, March 25th. The library offers several programs by age. Stop by the library or check our website thomascranelibrary.org for details.

Music and Movement with Rubi

On Saturday, April 2nd at 10 and 10:30 a.m. sing and dance with Rubi Lichauco! Rubi brings her popular preschool program to Quincy so put on your favorite dancing shoes and join us for this lively mix of music and movement for children ages 0-4 accompanied by an adult.

This program has become so popular there isn't room to move and dance as we would like so we have decided to split the group in two. No registration is required; when the 10 a.m. session fills we will close the doors.

Please spend some time in the children's room choosing books or playing with our early literacy activities while you wait for the 10:30 a.m. session. Thank you for your cooperation we really think two smaller groups will make this program more fun for everyone.

Homework Help

Students in grades 1-6 can stop by the main Library children's room from 3 to 5 p.m. to get assistance with their homework from high school tutors. Students must be able to communicate with tutors in English.

Preschool Discovery @ Wollaston

Drop by the Wollaston Library with your preschooler any time between 10 and 11:30 a.m. on Thursday, April 7th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child.

This month come in and learn about Shapes & Patterns: Come play with pattern blocks, sort shapes and make pictures!

Saturday Storytime @ North Quincy

Join children's librarian Cathy deVeer and Quinn Z. Bear at the North Quincy Branch, on Saturday, April 9th at 10 a.m. for a lively family storytime full of stories and songs about Cowboys and Cowgirls. This program is for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult. No registration required.

Book Clubs for Kids

Do you like to read? Would you like to talk to others about books? Then you will like our book discussion groups. Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books.

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 meets on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss a variety of books. The Club will meet on Tuesday, April 12th at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

This month's topic is Poetry: Poetry comes in many forms, from short rhyming sonnets to epic page-long stories with not a rhyme to be found.

What makes a poem a poem? Why might an author choose to tell a story in verse instead of prose? What is the difference between a villanelle and a sestina (and what are they in the first place)?

We'll be reading a variety of poetry for this month, choosing from books of shorter poems and full novels written in verse, then talking about what we've read and looking at some poetic forms you might not have heard of, like the yadu and pantoum.

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3 and 4 meets on the second Thursday of each month. This month we will be meeting on Thursday, April 14th at 7 p.m.

This month we will be reading The Pepins and their Problems by Polly Horvath. The Pepins have some unusual problems like a cow that produces lemonade rather than milk. Read this book and help the Pepins solve their problems.

Please stop by the main library children's room library any time to pick up a copy of the book to read before our meeting. Any questions? Call 617-376-2411 and ask to speak with Ms. Cronin.

Saturday Storytime

Join Diana Kane on Saturday, April 16th at 10 a.m. for a family storytime full of stories, songs and rhymes for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult. No registration required.

Mr. Vinny's

Little Puppet Show

Professional silly man Vinny Lovegrove, a member of the wildly popular Toe Jam Puppet Band, presents a solo performance on Tuesday, April 19th at 10 a.m. This is a highly energized very interactive silly and surprising program featuring a variety of puppets.

This program is for children ages 3 and older accompanied by an adult

Children's Movie Matinee @ Adams Shore "Finding Nemo" Join us at the Adams Shore Library on Wednesday, April 20th at 2 p.m. for a wonderful time under the sea with Marlin the clownfish as he searches for his son Nemo.

Rated G Runtime 100 minutes.

Children's Movie Matinee @ North Quincy

- Good Dinosaur

Join us at the North Quincy Library on Thursday, April 21st at 2 p.m. for the newest Disney Pixar film The Good Dinosaur in which an Apatosaurus named Arlo makes an unlikely human friend named Spot.

Rated PG Runtime 95 minutes.

Full STEAM Ahead with Science Saturday

- Build It!

Join an educator from the Children's Museum of Easton on Saturday, April 23rd at 10 a.m. for engineering fun with Build It!

Structures and stability. Design and construction. Get excited about the fundamental principles of engineering and physics. Experiment with a range of different materials to solve fun engineering problems and build cool machines.

This program is suggested for families with children preschool and older. Younger children will make a simple project and older children are encouraged to try out more complex projects.

No registration is required.

Throughout the school year Full STEAM Ahead will explore the areas of Science, Technology, Engineering, Art and Math on the fourth Saturday of each month.

All programs sponsored and supported by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

WHAT'S COOKING

with

Marie & Suzie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUZIE FALCO

Chocolate Chip Pumpkin Cookie

By MARIE

Today's recipe is for a delicious spicy pumpkin chocolate cookie made by my son Dom's friend Annie. The recipe makes 50 cookies, but a larger cookie will yield less.

CHOCOLATE CHIP PUMPKIN COOKIE

Preheat Oven to 350 degrees

3 cups flour (1 cup regular flour, 2 cups rice flour)

1 cup softened butter

3/4 cup granulated sugar

1 cup brown sugar

1 can pumpkin puree (not mix)

1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips (or sweet if preferred)

1/4 teaspoon cloves

1 teaspoon cinnamon

1/2 teaspoon ginger

1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

1 teaspoon vanilla

1 large egg

1/2 teaspoon baking soda

1/2 teaspoon baking powder

3/4 teaspoon salt

Mix butter and sugars until well blended. Add the egg, vanilla, and the pumpkin puree. Add the dry ingredients, and mix well. Fold in the chocolate chips.

Place by teaspoonfuls on a cookie sheet with parchment paper, and bake for 12 minutes. They were so delicious that even her adorable poodle, Bridget loved them too!

Minestrone Soup

By SUZIE

Minestrone soup is an easy and hearty way to get in all your healthy vegetables in one steaming bowl. I grew up on minestrone soup. Usually served with hot Italian bread and a drizzle of olive oil with grated parmesan cheese of course!

This soup has everything you need nutritionally, is delicious, and wonderful to freeze even, for future use.

MINESTRONE SOUP

2 tablespoons olive oil

1 chopped onion

3 carrots, diced

2 stalks celery, diced

3 cloves garlic, minced

7 cups vegetable stock

1 bay leaf

1 28 ounce can tomatoes

1/2 cup quinoa

1 16 oz can kidney beans

1 10 oz package frozen green beans

1 zucchini, chopped

1 red pepper chopped

1 nice big handful of baby spinach to throw in at the end

1/4 cup fresh chopped parsley sea salt and pepper to taste

In stock pot, saute onion, celery, carrots, pepper, and zucchini until softened. Add garlic and stir a bit more. Now add stock, tomatoes, bay leaf, and quinoa. Bring to boil and simmer for about 45 minutes or so. Now add green beans, kidney beans and parsley, along with spinach, and cook for another 10 minutes or so. Remove bay leaf before serving. Season with sea salt and pepper. Drizzle servings with olive oil and pass the cheese!

Easiest Banana Bread Ever

By MARIE

Today's recipe for banana bread is the easiest ever, according to my daughter Ann Marie.

The beauty of it is that no mixer is needed.

A fork or a whisk is all you need. The recipe calls for one cup of sugar, but she used 1/2 cup and it was perfect.

BANANA BREAD

2 or 3 bananas

1/3 cup melted butter

1/2 cup sugar

1 egg

1 teaspoon vanilla

1 teaspoon baking soda

pinch of salt

1 1/2 cups flour

Mash the bananas. In a separate bowl, mix sugar, butter, eggs and vanilla. Add the bananas, and then the dry ingredients. All done! Place in a greased loaf pan and bake for 45 minutes. When golden brown it's done and scrumptious!

Norfolk County RSVP Program To Recognize Volunteers April 5

Volunteers from Quincy will be honored as part of the "Mayor and County Recognition Day for National Service" Tuesday, April 5.

The volunteers are part of the Norfolk County RSVP Volunteer Program.

Over 40 volunteers who serve in Quincy in addition to Quincy residents who volunteer in nearby communities will receive certificates of appreciation from Mayor Thomas Koch and Norfolk County Commissioners Francis O'Brien, Joseph Shea and Peter Collins. Volunteers will have an opportunity to share their experience in community service, over pastries and coffee, courtesy of Montilios.

RSVP volunteers being honored who reside in Quincy include Chickie Abdallah, Pauline Anderson, Maureen Argento, Harriet Barrett, Mary Bent, Mary Buccella, Mary Collella, Joyce Collyer, Jake Comer, Carol Courage, Betty DeCristofaro, John Doherty, Rose Flaherty, Dorothy Fredey, Linda Greene, Steve Greene, Margaret Jenkins, Joanne Jordan, Diane Leason, Joe Leason, Lucy Loud, Barbara Lombardi, Graeme Marsden, Priscilla Marsden, Margaret Masliavskas, Irene McMullen, Margaret O'Connor, Anne McNeill, Patrick O'Donoghue, Ellen Ogilvie, John Orsini, Mary Parker, Jack Patts, Peter Pechulis, Patricia Pieroway, Barbara Spacco, Patricia Stockbridge, Veronica Stanley and Helen Warshauer. Also being recognized for their volunteer service to Quincy are Joanne Fisher of Milton, Cindy Lee and Ed Kelley of Braintree, Laura Kulak of Randolph and Bill Topham of Needham.

The nation's mayors and county officials are increasingly turning to national service as a cost-effective strategy to address local challenges.

AmeriCorps and Senior Corps programs have a positive and lasting impact - making cities and counties better places to live. To spotlight the impact of national service and thank those who serve, mayors and county officials around the U.S. will participate in this fourth-annual Mayor and County Recognition Day for National Service.

Last year, 2,786 elected officials representing more than 150 million citizens participated in the third-annual Mayor and County Recognition Day for National Service.

The initiative is being led by the National League of Cities, National Association of Counties, Cities of Service and the Corporation for National and Community Service.

It's Sneezin' Season

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Spring is the time of year for seasonal allergies.

As the trees start to flower and the pollen is released into the atmosphere, allergy sufferers commence their annual ritual of sneezing and sniffing.

Each year, 58 million Americans fall victim to seasonal allergic rhinitis, more generally known as hay fever. Although there is no miraculous cure for spring allergies, there are countless ways to tackle them, from medication to household habits.

The major spring allergy trigger is pollen, miniscule grains released into the air by trees, grasses, and weeds for the intention of fertilizing other plants. When pollen grains get into the nose of someone who's allergic, they propel the immune system into overdrive.

The immune system, mistakenly views the pollen as foreign invaders, releasing antibodies, substances that normally identify and attack bacteria, viruses, and other illness-causing organisms. The antibodies attack the allergens, leading to the release of chemicals called histamines into the blood. Histamines generate the runny nose, itchy eyes, and other symptoms of allergies.

Pollen can travel for miles, spreading a path of distress for allergy sufferers along the way. The higher the pollen count, the greater the distress. The pollen count measures the amount of allergens in the air in grains per cubic meter.

Allergy symptoms tend to be especially high on breezy days when the wind picks up pollen and carries it through the air. Rainy days, on the other hand, cause a drop in the pollen counts, because the rain washes away the allergens.

The symptoms of spring allergies include:

- Runny nose
- Watery eyes
- Sneezing
- Coughing
- Itchy eyes and nose
- Dark circles under the eyes

Airborne allergens also

can trigger asthma, a condition in which the airways narrow, making breathing difficult and leading to coughing, wheezing, and shortness of breath.

If you've never been officially diagnosed with spring allergies but you notice that your eyes and nose are itchy and runny during the spring months, see your health care provider. They may refer you to an allergist for tests.

The allergy specialist may do a skin test, which involves either a piercing the surface of the skin with a tiny amount of allergen (prick test), or injecting a tiny sample of a diluted allergen just under the skin of your arm or back. If you're allergic to the substance, a tiny red bump (called a wheal or hive) will form.

Another diagnostic option that might be used is the ImmunoCAP assay that measures allergen-specific IgE, a protein that is present in blood tests in people with allergies. Just because you are sensitive to a particular allergen on a test, though, doesn't mean that you'll inevitably start sneezing and coughing when you come into contact with it.

Doctors treat spring allergies with a number of over-the-counter and prescription drugs. Over-the-counter allergy drugs are effective for many people and include the following:

- Antihistamines reduce sneezing, sniffing, and itching by lowering the amount of histamine (the substance produced during an allergic reaction) in the body.
- Decongestants shrink the blood vessels in the nasal passageways to relieve congestion and swelling.
- Antihistamine/decongestants combine the effects of both drugs.
- Nasal spray deconstants relieve congestion and may clear clogged nasal passages faster than oral decongestants without some of the side effects.

- Steroid nasal sprays reduce inflammation and are the preferred initial treatment.
- Eye drops relieve itchy, watery eyes.

Even though you can obtain these allergy drugs without a prescription, it's wise to talk to your doctor first to make sure you choose the correct medication.

Some antihistamines can make you feel tired, so you need to be careful when taking them during the day. Don't use over-the-counter antihistamines and decongestants for more than a few days without chatting with your health care provider. If over-the-counter remedies don't give you relief, your doctor may recommend a prescription medication, allergy shots, or even under-the-tongue immunotherapy tablets.

It's nearly impossible to completely avoid spring allergies if you live in an area where any type of vegetation grows. However, you can ease sniffing, sneezing, and watery eyes by avoiding your main allergy triggers. Here are some helpful tips.

- Try to stay indoors whenever the pollen count is very high (pollen counts usually peak in the mornings).
- Keep your doors and windows closed whenever possible during the spring months to keep allergens out. An air purifier may also help to alleviate your symptoms.
- Clean the air filters in your home frequently. Also, clean bookshelves, vents, and other places where pollen can collect.
- Wash your hair after going outside, because pollen can collect there.
- Vacuum twice a week. Wear a mask, because vacuuming can kick up pollen, mold, and dust that were trapped in your carpet.

Here's wishing you a happy and sneeze-free spring!

Ward 6 Candidates Discuss Issues At Forum

By SCOTT JACKSON

The five residents running in this spring's special election to fill the vacant Ward 6 seat on the City Council had the chance to make their case to voters during a recent candidates night.

A standing-room-only crowd of 173 residents attended the March 23 forum, organized by the Squantum Community Association at the First Church of Squantum. The five candidates – Brian Radell, Herbert Alie Shaughnessy III, Nathaniel Knowles, Kevin Mock and William Harris – are vying to fill the seat previously held by Brian McNamee, who died Dec. 23 after a brief battle with cancer. McNamee had represented the ward, which includes Squantum, Marina Bay and parts of North Quincy, since

BRIAN RADELL

HERBERT 'ALIE' SHAUGHNESSY III

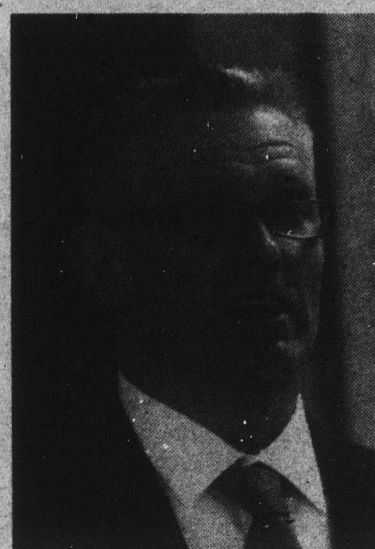

2006. A preliminary election scheduled for next Tuesday, April 5, will pare the field of candidates down to two. Those two would face each other in the final election on May 3.

Radell, an insurance underwriter for XS Brokers in Quincy Center, said in his opening statement he has become further involved in the community since he unsuccessfully ran against McNamee for the Ward 6 seat in 2011.

KEVIN MOCK

"I gained in becoming a

greater part of my community and a better member of my community," Radell said. "Since that election, I've only become more involved. I sat on the Council on Aging. I sat on the Zoning Board of Appeals. I'm the treasurer for the Democratic City Committee. I'm a ward delegate. I've attended countless meetings from wind turbines to public safety issues to zoning issues. I've been a strong voice for my neighborhood and for my community."

Shaughnessy, president of Alley Cat Crane Service of Quincy, said the city needs to grow without hurting residents.

"I'm ready to fight for you, fight for everybody in the ward, but [also] the entire city. There are things happening in Quincy today that I don't necessarily like to see happen," Shaughnessy said. "You have to have a balance between growth, but not too much growth because you don't want to hurt the residents of not just the ward, but the entire city...You have to have some development to try and maintain a tax base that's not too high."

Knowles, an ambulatory clinic manager and project manager at Tufts Medical Center in Boston, compared his work in health care with the role a ward councillor plays.

"My primary role, besides being a project manager, is to facilitate care for patients," Knowles said. "I see the role of a ward councillor very similar to that of working in health care and facilitating patient care. A big part of the role as a councillor is to facilitate services for you as our neighbors, whether it be as simple as something as a vandalized sign or street lights that are out, or more complex issues."

Mock, who co-owns Toddler Tech Preschool in Quincy with his wife, said the city needs the correct mix of residential and commercial development moving forward.

"Economic development is important to the future of Quincy and Ward 6," Mock said. "I believe we need smart and sustainable growth, which entails a proper mix of residential and commercial space development. This allows us to preserve the character of our neighborhoods and increase tax revenue for the city. I'm a small business owner and I know how important business development is for the future of our city...I believe I have the experience to ensure the development of Ward 6 is completed in a smart, sustainable way."

Harris, the postmaster for the U.S. post office in Woburn, said he did not want to see the community divided.

"We have four good people here. Put out signs if people ask. Vote for who you feel is right. I do not want our great neighborhood - especially in Squantum, even in Ward 6 - to be divided. It's not worth it. There are smart people right here," Harris said. "All I can say is thank you to everybody. This certainly isn't personal. We have a great community here and let's keep it that way."

Following the candidates' opening statements, they fielded questions from residents.

One resident wanted to know how each candidate would work with FedEx if the company continues with its plan to open a new distribution center on Commander Shea Boulevard in a facility now used by Boston Scientific.

Radell said the city needs to work with them on mitigation, because the project is a by-right use.

"How can we get people to turn off that road? Can we create another lane there to get people off? Can we put an officer out there in the morning that they pay for to direct traffic so people can still use the back way to get to North Quincy T station?" Radell said. "Again, it all comes down to communication."

Shaughnessy said the city needs to let FedEx know it will be a good neighbor.

"You can't go in saying 'you're going to do this, and if you don't do this we're going to stand up and close the road,'" Shaughnessy said. "You have to sit down with them, shake their hands, and say 'let's come out of this together with a compromise,' because they're here to stay. They have the right to be here."

Knowles said it was important for the ward councillor to develop relationships with business owners.

"We need relationships with all the business owners and property owners, like Boston Scientific, because this comes as a surprise. You don't want to have to start creating a relationship once a deal is already done and they're moving in," Knowles said. "Your next ward councillor has to have good relationships with all the business owners."

Mock said the city should conduct a citywide traffic audit, and said a lot of the traffic seen on Quincy streets is from commuters who reside elsewhere on the South Shore.

"The city has grown, there is no doubt about it - I'm not a traffic engineer, [but] a lot of it is from the South Shore, Cohasset, Scituate, Weymouth," Mock said. "There has to be a citywide traffic engineering audit done."

Harris said its important FedEx knows the city won't tolerate any noise complaints.

"In Marina Bay, we were dealing with the Ocean Club. It's going to be worse because it's going to be in the middle of the night," Harris said. "Those trucks, in order for those packages to be delivered, are coming in at 12 o'clock, 1 o'clock, 2 o'clock in the morning in order to be sorted out."

One resident referred to the situation with C-Mart, which won a legal dispute against the city earlier this year that will allow it to open a new grocery store on Hayward Street. She wanted to know how the city could avoid ending up in a similar situation in the future.

Radell said Quincy should take a page from Somerville's book, and look to develop a long-term plan like that city did with its SomerVision initiative that started in 2009.

"We need to sit down and look at where are we going to develop?" Radell stated. "Are we just going to keep putting up 30-unit condos in neighborhoods and changing the composition of our neighborhoods? No. Let's sit down and have a real conversation about where we can develop, where it's feasible, where the least impacts on our neighborhoods will be."

Shaughnessy, referring to C-Mart, said it was important to reach out to Michael Fang, the store's owner, and work with him now that a court overturned the City Council's rejection of a special permit for the project.

"You have to extend the olive branch, say 'how do we develop this as a community with you?'" Shaughnessy said. "He spent a lot of money to get in there, he doesn't want to lose any more money and he doesn't want to continue fighting forever. Having said that, and since he's won in court, you have to now sit down with him...and say 'what is it exactly that you need' so there is a compromise there and make it work, because it's coming."

Knowles said the city might have been in a better position had McNamee not opposed C-Mart's plans early on.

"Not to speak badly about Brian McNamee, but he went out in front on C-Mart right away and hit hard against that going in there. I don't know that was necessarily the right approach," Knowles said. "If you had reached out to the owner and had a discussion about the plans and what would work for the neighborhood, and had a partnership with the business owner, then you don't end up in a situation like we're in now."

Neither Mock nor Harris answered that question.

One resident asked how the candidates would reach out to residents in the ward to keep them informed of important issues.

Shaughnessy said he would turn to social media and Quincy Access Television.

"Going forward to communicate, more social media. Just everybody is connected somehow on to their computers. I think we should use our Quincy Access Television facility more as city councillors. It's there for us. It's free for us," Shaughnessy said. "We could have a television show once a month or whatever so you could tune in and see what's going on in the ward this month."

Knowles said he would reach out to those residents in the ward who did not vote in the 2015 city election and provide them with ways to contact him.

"In my first 45 days as a councillor, the first thing I would do is go out and knock on the doors of the people that didn't vote in the last election and let them know, 'hey, you've got a new ward councillor,'" Knowles said. "And we have to have e-newsletters and other electronic types of communication that are in multiple languages. A big part of North Quincy and our ward doesn't speak English as their first language."

Mock said his website could be used to get information out, and said he could be reached at all hours by email and phone.

"I have a fantastic website to disseminate information. It has the capability to be multi-lingual. If I am entrusted with your vote, that's one of the things I'll do and it can be to any language," Mock said. "Monthly e-letters. Monthly newsletters. I'm accessible 24-7 by phone and email anytime."

Harris said he would hold quarterly and semi-annual meetings for residents, and promised he would show up in person if a constituent called him.

"If I get a phone call - if I get five phone calls - and there are issues, whether you've got potholes or something, on my way to work [or] before I go home, my plan was always to be there, show my face, see the problem, and then come back and make sure it's fixed," Harris said.

Radell noted ward councillors only have a certain budget for mailing items, which makes them consider other ways to reach out.

"You really have to look at other ways to outreach," he said. "You have to look at social media as Alie said. You have to tap into the Squantum Community Association's email list. You just have to be out there. You have to be prevalent and that's the best way you can."

$6.9M For Sewer Work OK'd

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city has been able to cut the amount of unwanted water in Quincy sewers by 25 percent over the past six years, and plans to take advantage of a state program to perform $6.9 million worth of work to further reduce that amount over the next several years.

The City Council's finance committee approved by voice vote on March 21 a request to borrow the $6.9 million from the MWRA's infiltration and inflow reduction program, under which the state agency would provide a grant for up to 75 percent of funding. The full council could vote on the measure at its next meeting April 4; the body could not vote on it March 21 because advertising requirements hadn't been met.

Infiltration includes seawater, rainwater and groundwater that enters sewer lines, while inflow includes water from sump pumps, drains and storm drains. Infiltration and inflow causes sewer rates to increase, because the city is charged for treating it, and also leads to issues with the sewers.

"In addition to the high cost of I&I, I&I is a primary reason for sewer repairs and it causes serious operational challenges," Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi said. "Sewer backups mostly occur either in tidal areas or following rainstorms where we have significant infiltration into our system. It overloads our pump stations, it overloads our treatment facilities."

Raymondi said the amount of infiltration and inflow unwanted water that enters city sewer lines was reduced from 5.5 million gallons per day in 2009 to 4.1 million gallons per day in 2015, saving ratepayers more than $800,000 annually.

"The best way to reduce and stabilize sewer costs is to continue this I&I program," he said.

Some 200 miles of sewers run under the city, Raymondi said, including 20 miles in tidal areas covered by seawater for several hours a day. The city's infiltration and inflow work in previous years has focused on those tidal areas, such as Black's Creek, the Town River, Post Island Road, the Camden Marsh, Parkhurst and Squantum.

If the pending appropriation were approved, Raymondi said the next phase of infiltration and inflow removal would likely take place in inland areas. A study would be undertaken first to determine where the most cost-effective work could be done.

"We will continue our citywide study," Raymondi said. "As we move away from the coast and inland, where it may not be as [cost-effective] as the coastline, it's still very important work that we need to continue."

At the request of Councilor Joseph Finn, Raymondi said he would be willing to come before the council's public works committee as the study progress to provide updates on where new infiltration and inflow reduction efforts would be undertaken.

The public works commissioner said nearly 50 percent of all infiltration and inflow occurs in privately owned sewer lines that flow back into city sewers, including those on private developments and lateral lines that move wastewater from buildings to sewer mains. Raymondi said the department has begun reaching out to owners of private sewers to address issues of infiltration and inflow.

4 Single-Family Homes At Star Of Sea Site

Former Church Building To Be Razed This Spring

By SCOTT JACKSON

The developer who purchased the shuttered Star of the Sea Church in Squantum plans to raze the church and its rectory in the coming months to make way for four single-family homes.

Victor Sheen, founder of Brookline-based Oakgrove Residential, purchased the property at 101-105 Bellevue Rd. from the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston for $600,000 in June 2015. In September, he went before neighbors with a plan to convert the church and rectory into 14 condominium units.

Neighbors, however, expressed opposition to the plan at a community meeting, and preferred the sites be developed into single-family homes as allowed under the zoning code. Sheen on Tuesday said he would divide the 37,200 square foot parcel into four lots on which homes could later be built.

"The response that we got was in favor of the single-family homes," Sheen said of the September community meeting, "so that's what we will do."

Sheen said he plans on selling the four lots, and anticipates a strong market for them; he was close to an agreement to sell one Bellevue Road lot for $399,000.

"The response has been positive," Sheen said. "There has been a lot of interest from people who want to stay in Squantum and build there."

The Star of the Sea property is in Residential A zoning district. The minimum lot size under the zoning code is 7,650 square feet. Houses can stand up to 35 feet high by-right, with minimum setbacks of 25 feet in the front, 13 feet on each side and 20 feet in the back.

Parking requirements depend on how many bedrooms are in each home. Two spaces are required for one- or two-bedroom homes, three spaces for homes with three or four bedrooms, and four spaces for five or more bedrooms.

Before the houses can be built, the church must come down.

Sheen said remediation work would begin within the next 30 days, and demolition of the church and rectory would follow. He anticipates demolition commencing within the next 30 to 60 days.

Sheen said he has yet to file for demolition permits with the city and would wait until the remediation work is done to do so. As part of the process, Sheen said he plans on reaching out to the Fire Department to see if officials wished to conduct training exercises onsite.

In 2004, the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston announced that the Bellevue Road church would be one of more than 50 parishes in Greater Boston to be closed. In July 2011 the archdiocese relegated Star of the Sea to profane use, meaning that it was no longer considered a site for worship.

A group of parishioners — the Friends of Star of the Sea — had fought against the church's closure. Sheen said he would work with that group and allow them into the buildings to remove important items before the demolition.

WARD 1 COUNCILLOR Margaret Laforest said the proposed compressor station would impact wildlife in the Fore River Basin.

WARD 2 COUNCILLOR Brad Croall voices opposition to the proposed compressor station at a public hearing Monday.

ral gas compressor station on a 3-acre parcel next to the Fore River Bridge on the North Weymouth side adjacent to the MWRA sewer pumping station. The facility would serve the existing Algonquin natural gas pipeline that runs through Weymouth, under the Fore River and up through the North Shore. The pipeline serves New England and Canada.

Spectra is in the process of expanding the pipeline to increase capacity. The compressor station would serve as sort of a relay station where the gas would be compressed in order for it to maintain proper pressure to move through the pipeline. Compressor stations are strategically placed along a pipeline. Spectra said the nearest compressor station is located in Maine.

Company officials repeatedly said the facility would be safe, not negatively impact the area and meets all federal and state regulations.

"The compressor station is integral for providing transportation of additional volume of needed gas for the pipeline," said Spectra's Jon Bonsall. "The proposed project complies with all regulatory requirements."

Quincy resident Colin Jackson said home values would be negatively affected by the proposed facility.

"Would any of you consider buying a home and moving your families to this neighborhood and putting your families at the same peril you're asking us to live by?" he asked.

Jackson also questioned if Spectra officials have planned for a rising sea level that scientists predict would affect coastlines.

Some residents were concerned about health hazards the facility could cause such as releasing methane gas. They noted that the Fore River Bridge area has heavy industry such as the Calpine power plant, Twin Rivers Technology, the MWRA fertilizer plant in the shipyard, and the Citgo fuel terminal in East Braintree.

North Weymouth resident and Back River Watershed President Linda DiAngelo became emotional when talking about her two family members, who live near the Fore River Bridge, are battling cancer. She noted there are high cancer rates of Fore River Basin residents.

"Why hasn't a health study been done?" she asked.

Quincy Point resident Judy Roberts echoed DiAngelo's concerns, saying she is a lung cancer survivor and is part of a national cancer study trying to determine if there is a correlation of high cancer rates and the Fore River Basin environment.

Laforest questioned the company's environmental impact report that the compressor station's proposed location is "not a high quality wildlife habitat." She noted that Quincy's coastal economy has been decimated by the "oversaturated industrial properties" and that some restoration has been achieved such as the Broad Meadows salt marsh.

"We are seeing a phenomenal return to the area of over 90 species of birds," she said. "As you take this into consideration...it is time for us to take that focus and what is it that we could be doing to not further decimate this and start further restoration."

Laforest said she toured the proposed site and saw it was adjacent to a park near the Calpine power plant that was part of a mitigation plan when the plant was built.

A Quincy resident, speaking through a Cantonese interpreter, questioned how the gas compressor station would benefit Quincy. She also voiced concern that the facility would be harmful to the city.

Other Weymouth and Braintree residents raised various questions such as the stability of the fill where the compressor station would be located and the impact any potential earthquake would have on the building, release of toxins, explosions caused by possible gas leaks and high decibel levels from the turbine.

Spectra project manager James Luskay said the facility would have monitoring equipment that would shut down the operation in the event of any abnormalities.

"There is equipment in place that would shut down and isolate the plant and allow gas to safely vent from the site," he said. "There would be no impact to the surrounding area."

Other residents and some officials said Spectra rejected other locations for the facility that were not on waterfronts and questioned the validity of the company's application saying that the proposal is water dependent. Some opined that Spectra is seeking a waterways permit because it is less costly than the other land-based sites.

Some speakers said the company plans to increase turbine horsepower from the planned 7,700 to more than 18,000.

"The DEP should not look at this (proposal) as a 7,700 horsepower plant but as an 18,000 horsepower plant," Weymouth Mayor Robert Hedlund said.

Spectra officials said their studies have shown that the proposed site is the best location for the compressor station to serve the pipeline. They said the facility would not adversely affect the area.

Several neighborhood meetings have been hosted by Spectra over the past year about the project that is now going through the state, local and federal permitting process.

The DEP has expanded public comment on the proposal until April 19 and will accept written correspondence through that date.

Resident Injured In House Fire

By SCOTT JACKSON

One resident was taken to a Boston hospital with second degree burns sustained in a two-alarm fire on Gordon Terrace Saturday.

The fire at 25 Gordon Terrace was called in at 5:55 p.m. Saturday, according to Fire Chief Joseph Barron. It began when cooking oil left unattended on a stove in a first floor kitchen caught fire. The fire caused extensive damage throughout the kitchen, a porch and a second floor wall above the kitchen.

Firefighters with Engine 1 attacked the fire in the kitchen, while Engine 4 fought the fire in the second floor above and ladder companies helped ventilate the building. A second alarm was struck because of concerns the fire would spread throughout the five-unit, two-and-half-story home, but Barron said an aggressive approach taken by the first companies to arrive on scene greatly limited the damage.

The fire was declared out around 11 p.m. and a fire watch was posted on scene overnight in the event of any flare-ups.

The resident of the first floor unit where the fire began was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston for second degree burns. Barron did not have an update on his condition Tuesday morning. The Red Cross provided assistance to several other residents who were displaced by the fire.

The fire chief estimated the two-alarm blaze caused approximately $100,000 in damage to the building.

Sen. Warren 'Inspired' During Visit To South Cove

By SCOTT JACKSON

U.S. Sen. Elizabeth Warren said she found a recent visit to South Cove Community Health Center's North Quincy clinic "inspiring," and also weighed in on the race for the White House, saying she is still cheering on Bernie Sanders, but stopped short of endorsing him over Hillary Clinton.

The Democratic senator toured the clinic March 24, accompanied by the health center's executive director, Eugene Welch, Mayor Thomas Koch, and state Reps. Bruce Ayers, Tackey Chan and Daniel Hunt.

Warren, who is in her first term on Capitol Hill, said she plans on visiting community health centers across the Bay State. She praised the work being done by South Cove, which caters largely to Asian-American residents, noting the center serves individuals from 128 zip codes and has multi-lingual speakers on staff.

"It's inspiring to be here," Warren told reporters. "I hope by coming here I get to learn more, but I also hope the people around Massachusetts get to learn more about the jewel that's located right here in Quincy."

After the tour, which included stops at the pharmacy and pediatrics center, Warren took part in a health care roundtable, joined by the local officials who toured the center with her as well as City Councillors Noel DiBona and Nina Liang, the first the Asian-Americans elected to the body. The roundtable discussion included South Cove physicians and heads of several Quincy non-profits, such as Manet Community Health Center CEO Cynthia Sierra, Quincy Community Action Programs CEO Beth Ann Strollo, Quincy Asian Re-

Warren, at the end of the 30-minute roundtable, thanked those present for making a "huge difference" in the lives of so many people.

"You are on the front edge of what we can do in medicine and what we should do in medicine," she said.

Warren weighed in on the presidential campaign during her earlier press availability. The senator declined to endorse either candidate seeking her party's nomination, but said she would endorse a candidate at some point.

"I haven't endorsed a candidate because I think it is right, what's happening in the Democratic primary," Warren said. "We're hearing from two candidates who are out there talking about the issues that affect hard-working people across this country. They're out there talking about how we're going to make sure that kids have access to a college education without getting crushed by student loan debt. They're talking about how we can better rein in Wall Street."

"That's what the Democrats are doing and when you look at what's happening on the Republican side, I think the Democrats are making clear the differences between the Democratic Party and the Republican Party, and that's exactly what should be going on."

When asked if Sanders should drop out of the race, Warren said she was still cheering her Senate colleague on.

"Bernie, he's out there. He fights from the heart. This is who Bernie is and he has put the right issues on the table, both for the Democratic Party and for the country in general," Warren said. "I'm still cheering Bernie on."

Warren also ramped up her criticism of Donald Trump, who has emerged as the frontrunner for the GOP nomination. Earlier in the week, she had written on Twitter that Trump was a "loser" and stood by those comments when pressed by reporters.

"Donald Trump claims that the reason he's qualified to be president of the United States is that he's a very, very, very successful businessman. I think that means it's appropriate to take a look at his business skills," Warren said.

"Donald Trump inherited a fortune from his father and then he maintained it by cheating people, by defrauding people and by skipping on paying his creditors through Chapter 11. Donald Trump is not a great business success and it's time he's called on it."

Warren added that Trump "poses a real threat to this country," because he was tapping into a "totally legitimate fear" that Washington was serving the wealthiest individuals and corporations, without offering any real solutions of his own.

BREATHING EASIER

More than 24 million Americans suffer from "chronic obstructive pulmonary disease" (COPD), which makes it difficult for them to breathe. As a result of reduced lung function due to inflammation, mucus buildup, and loss of elasticity in the airways and air sacs, COPD sufferers experience chest tightness, coughing fits, and chronic shortness of breath. While treatment options range from medications to physical activity to surgery, chiropractic may also play a useful role. Researchers reviewed six different studies involving COPD patients who received chiropractic care and found that five of the six reported positive results. The beneficial outcomes included better lung function and improved activity levels after receiving spinal manipulation. Chiropractic treatment may be a helpful adjunct to other therapies.

This informative column has been brought to you as a public service by FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC. While there is no cure for COPD, a combination of chiropractic medicine with other forms of traditional and alternative medicine can make your symptoms more manageable. For more information, or to schedule an appointment, please call 617.472.4220. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Because air quality is so important to sufferers of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, it helps to quit smoking, which is the leading cause of COPD.

Shea: Serving As City Clerk 'A Labor Of Love'

space – including the “Great Hall” for the City Council meetings – and museum space showcasing historic city artifacts.

Because of that move, there are no city offices in the “Old Town Hall” that dates back to 1844. Departments like the Clerk’s Office that were located in the McIntyre Center are now centralized in the adjoining glass annex building.

Other highlights of Shea’s city clerk career including Kids Voting, a program that introduced local youngsters to the election process that was initiated under former Major James Sheets.

One of the last duties he is overseeing is updating new voting equipment that will be in place for the first time for the state primary in September. The new ballot machines have been ordered and are quicker and feature a bilingual screen.

While Shea can point to significant progress through the years on a myriad of issues, he said the best thing about the clerk’s job is “the people that we help everyday.”

“Not only our employees but the public – they are seeking attention and service. We can’t always send them away happy but we treat everyone with respect. That’s something that I learned from John Gillis. I rarely get aggravated – and I don’t blow up easily. People do test you,” he said.

“We see all walks of life come in here. Sometimes there are some people with very sad circumstances and we try to take care of them. It’s a changing city and it’s a changing society, too.”

For instance, Shea – who is also a justice of the peace – says when he first started working in the clerk’s office he married about 30 couples a year. Now it’s 150 a year and the assistant clerk also marries couples.

“There’s been a spike because religions have changed over the years and for some couples it is very inexpensive to get married here. All they want is a piece of paper showing they are married,” he says.

The city clerk’s job requires – and demands – more than a 9-to-5 work schedule. Like Gillis before him, Shea made putting in weekend hours – either Saturday or Sunday or both – part of his work ethic.

He credits his wife, Josephine, and family with always supporting him in his clerk duties.

Shea shared the story of how his wife reacted when he was offered the job as assistant city clerk succeeding the affable Thomas Burke. At the time, Shea was working in the insurance business and taking the assistant’s job would mean a cut in pay.

“My wife said, ‘oh, it’s less money – what are you going to do?’ A few hours went by and she said, ‘aren’t you going to tell me you’re taking (the job) because I know you’re taking it and I know you missed working for the city since you left with Mayor Hannon.’

“And that’s true,” Shea says.

He did miss city government.

But he always held out hope that he would return to 1305 Hancock St. Before he was the assistant clerk, Shea helped Gillis every election night during the 1980s. “Even when I wasn’t here I learned the ropes from John,” he said.

In 1989, Shea ran unsuccessfully for Ward 4 councilor. He lost by 121 votes and with it, he thought, a chance to return to City Hall.

But two years later, Gillis asked Shea to become his assistant after Burke retired. Shea served in that capacity for 20 months before Gillis moved on as a county commissioner.

Shea succeeded Gillis in November of 1992 and has been a steady, reliable City Hall presence ever since.

His retirement April 15 will conclude more than 25 years in the city clerk’s office – nearly 24 of those years as the clerk.

“I never thought I would have another opportunity to work for the city. To work in this office for 25 years it’s been a great ride. But it’s time for a change.”

The city clerk’s position is a three-year appointment by the city council. Shea says he has served with 67 city councillors during his City Hall career.

Shea is a lifelong resident of Quincy and attended St. Mary’s School. He graduated from Archbishop Williams High School in 1963 and Quincy Junior College in 1967. After serving in the National Guard Shea attended Suffolk University and graduated in 1973. He is also a graduate of the International Association of Municipal Clerks.

An Eagle Scout, Shea has been honored as Archbishop Williams High School’s “Man of the Year,” Quincy’s “Irishman of the Year” and The Quincy Lodge of Elks’ “Elk of the Year.” Later this spring Shea will be recognized by Quincy Asian Resources, Inc.

History Of Irish In Greater Boston Area Topic April 5

History professor Christopher Daley will talk about the history of the Irish in the greater Boston area at the Thomas Crane Public Library Tuesday, April 5 at 7 p.m.

Daley has been lecturing all over New England for over 20 years on historical topics of interest; at libraries, historical societies, schools and all sorts of clubs and organizations.

A history teacher in the Silver Lake Regional School System in Kingston, Daley holds a B.A. and a M.A. from Bridgewater State University in political science and history. He has written several articles on varied historical topics for local publications and has completed a new book entitled “Murder and Mayhem in Boston: Historic Crimes in the Hub.”

Daley’s program will include topics such as the first real migration of the Irish in 1718, the slow pre-famine trickle (1820s) of Irish Catholic immigrants coming into Boston as well as the corresponding increase in anti-Irish/Catholic sentiment within Boston beginning with the notorious Pope’s Day celebrations and then the burning of the Ursuline Convent in 1834 in Charlestown and the Broad Street Riot of 1837.

The third quarter of the lecture will highlight the massive wave of immigration into Boston after the “Great Potato Famine.”

Learn about the condition of the new arrivals, the neighborhoods they settled, how they banded together, the kinds of work they did to survive and their eventual assimilation into American culture.

There will be a discussion of the rise of the Irish within the sphere of Boston politics and the emergence of the “Ward Boss.” Short vignettes will be given on famous Irish political leaders such as Patrick Collins, Hugh O’Brien, Martin Lomasney, Patrick J. Kennedy, John “Honey Fitz” Fitzgerald, and James Michael Curley.

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

REDUCING ATHLETES’ CONCUSSION RISK

Everyone from young soccer players to professional football players is vulnerable to concussions, which has become an issue of great concern. One way that parents can reduce their children’s risk of experiencing a sports-related concussion is to have them outfitted with custom-made, properly fitted mouth guards that dentists provide. According to a study of more than 400 high school football players, those wearing store-bought, over-the-counter mouth guards were more than twice as likely to suffer mild traumatic brain injuries (MTBIs)/concussions than those wearing custom-fit mouth guards. Previous research has speculated that mouth guards can reduce concussion risk by helping absorb shock, stabilize the head and neck, and limit movement caused by a direct hit to the jaw.

We want you to receive complete and affordable dental care of the highest quality. We can suggest the mouth guard that is best for you. We’re located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617 479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Your oral health requirements, from restorative to cosmetic considerations, will be met with the latest technology.

P.S. Because custom-made mouth guards are more comfortable than over-the-counter versions, athletes are more likely to wear them than take them out and chew on them.

board member and a member of the Norfolk County Agricultural High School board.

Besides Joe and Josephine, the Shea family includes daughter Amy Baker, son Joseph D. Shea and daughter Kathryn who is engaged to be married this fall. They also have four grandchildren: Anthony Zero, Christina Zero, Grace Marie Shea and Isabelle Shea.

Shea has also succeeded Gillis as a Norfolk County commissioner. He was appointed a commissioner last November after Gillis resigned. Shea will seek a full four-year term this fall.

Shea, who also worked for six years in the office of the MBTA general manager, has been a student and follower of local and national politics throughout his life. He is a walking encyclopedia of political facts and served as a field representative for 1984 Democratic Presidential nominee Walter Mondale's campaign in Pennsylvania, Texas and Maine.

As he looks out onto McIntyre Mall from his second floor office window, Shea is asked to sum up his career in city government.

REFLECTING ON A City Hall career that has spanned some 30 years - including 25 in the City Clerk's office, Joseph Shea says, "It's been a labor of love. I believe the time has come to let someone else come along and do the job." The well-respected clerk will retire April 15.

"It's been a labor of love. I've always had a nose for it even as a kid I was president of my high school class. I've followed and I'm deeply committed to the history of the city and preserving what we have."

His diligence led to the city copying all the city council books that contain ordinances and other council documents since Quincy became a city in 1988.

"We used to have only original books," he says, pointing to the black bound books on a shelf in his office. "They were all copied in the 1990s."

"I slept a little better at night knowing these records are backed up."

A committee of city hall colleagues and friends is organizing a retirement party for Shea on Friday, May 6 at the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

"I'm proud of the condition I'm leaving the clerk's office in," Shea says, reflecting on his tenure as clerk which began when Bill Clinton won the White House. "We've come a long way. This physical plant was falling down but with the support of the mayor and city council we've moved forward and they deserve the credit.

"I believe the time has come for someone else to come along and do the job. I don't own the place. The people own it."

ing in the Last Supper and Crucifixion. The pop score is full of well-known songs, including "Prepare Ye the Way of the Lord," the worldwide hit "Day by Day," and the hauntingly beautiful Act II song "By My Side." It includes several different styles of performance, ranging from story theatre to vaudeville.

The show, after a period of theatrical evolution, opened off-Broadway in 1971, after the addition of Stephen Schwartz to the production team, and was made into a 1973 movie. The version to be performed by the NQHS Drama Club is the 2011-2012 Broadway revival version, which features a re-orchestrated score and contemporary references.

A talented cast of 15 students performs the show, with senior Zak Erickson as Jesus and senior Matt Enos as John the Baptist/Judas. Other cast members are Veronica Byrne (Uzo), Lynne Campbell (Anna Marie), Tamara Liang (Telly), Charles O'Brien (George), Nick O'Connell (Nick), Izzy Pillone (Celisse), Emily Wade (Morgan) and Maggie Wierzbowski (Lindsay).

The ensemble features students Rachel Cunningham, Aidan Mordas, Rowan Sloan, Cincere Tarkpor and Serena Yu.

Freshman Luke Molloy conducts and accompanies on the piano, as part of a 6-piece band. Tracy Phelan, Zach Innis, and Marisa Smith serve as directors. Senior James Bille is the production's stage manager.

Rounding out the production team are crew members Curtis DeBisschop, Kelly Pehaln, Katherine Li and David Maher.

When asked how directing the show is a unique experience for her, Phelan responded, "The shows that we do always end up having significance at the time be-

LIZZY BELL (left) of Wollaston celebrates with her Notre Dame Academy teammates after the girls hockey team defeated Wellesley 3-1 on March 20 to win the girls Div. 2 state hockey championship at TD Garden. NDA led by three goals at the end of two periods but the Raiders came out charging in the third period. Bell came up with several huge stops to maintain the lead for the school's first state hockey championship. It was also NDA hockey's first appearance at the Garden.

STATE HOCKEY CHAMPION Lizzy Bell of Notre Dame Academy began her hockey career at Quincy Youth Arena where she learned to skate with Michelle Stenberg's learn to skate program. She progressed through the ranks of Quincy Youth Hockey from Mites through the Girls U19 team. Lizzy credits her success to all of her coaches at QYH, but would like to thank in particular Sean Calnan for introducing her to the position of goalie in the Middle School League and Jimmy Dunn who helped teach her the position. "I couldn't have done it without their encouragement and support," Lizzy said

Quincy's Lizzy Bell Backstops NDA To State Hockey Title

By BILL GRIFFIN
Why was time standing still?

Lizzy Bell stood in her crease on the ice at the TD

(Boston) Garden. It was the same spot where her favorite player Tuukka Rask works his magic. It was her field of dreams. Her team,

Notre Dame Academy, led by two goals in the third period of the Division 2 state championship game against Wellesley. With 5:00 left, she looked at the clock and she started counting the seconds.

Why was time standing still?

The story had begun her sophomore year. Her coach told her the starting goalie had transferred. He told Bell this one day before the season began. Bell had played one part of one game her freshman year. Put on the pads, see the puck and good luck. Now, it had come to this. Less than five minutes and she would be a state champion. Five minutes can last forever.

Why was time standing still?

She had worked and worked to get better. She played hockey summer, spring, winter and fall. She worked with a trainer. She sat on the floor and stretched to become more flexible while she watched TV. She gave up vacation time to go to hockey clinics. She had a remarkable game sophomore year when she stole a 3-3 tie against St. Mary's. She had been rock-solid in Notre Dame's toughest tournament test this year, a 2-1 win over Winchester. Now, she was watching the clock and counting the seconds.

Why was time standing still?

She began her freshman year playing with teammates who barely knew each other. Now they were seniors, eight of them, and they were family. They played hockey together. They ate meals together. They studied together. They worried about tests and games and parties, and they knew what to say, just the right words, when times grew hard. Now, they were almost champions. But there was this little man with his finger on the clock, and it just would not move.

Why was time standing still?

They were a 500 team her sophomore year. As juniors they made the tourney and advanced to the second round. As seniors, they rode the wonderful, dizzy ride of a deep tournament run. The school came alive behind her team. It was their world and they were at the center of it.

There was a buzz in the hallways the morning after a big win. Fans came to games in waves, more people than Bell thought possible, and they made the noise of thousands. Now Bell and her friends were on the threshold of something only a blessed few experience. She had just made a remarkable save on a two-on-zero breakaway to preserve the two-goal lead. They were close, so close. If only that clock, that cursed clock, would.....

Why was time standing still?

Finally, it was over. The clock showed nothing but 0:00. Notre Dame had its 3-1 win over Wellesley and Lizzy Bell of Quincy, Massachusetts stood on Garden ice as a state champion and tried to understand it all as she savored a day and a moment with her band of friends which would make them teammates for a lifetime.

"I had to count down every second from when the clock showed 5:00. It seemed like forever," she said. "It's still hard to grasp. We talked all year about going to the Garden. With every win, every step we took closer, we started to believe it was actually going to happen. I looked in everyone's eyes, and all I saw was smiles."

A parade of teammates praised Bell after the championship was won. She stopped a clean breakaway late in the second period, and her acrobatic save on Wellesley's star Kieley Noonan (23 goals) just after the Red Raiders had taken back the momentum with a goal in the third period was a game-changer. Notre Dame showcased an explosive offense (33 goals in five tournament games), but Bell was the backbone of this team.

"Lizzie finds a way to make the big saves when we need them, and that one in the third period was huge," said coach Jean-Yves Roy. "We did score a lot of goals, but Lizzie made key saves early in the tourney games, saves that kept us tied or protected a lead. She gave the team confidence. They knew that they didn't have to worry about the goaltending. They just go out and play their game."

She was at her best against Winchester. Notre Dame scored twice in the first five minutes. The Cougars would not score again. Winchester drew within 2-1 before the first period was finished. For two periods, Bell had no margin for error. There would be no more

Sacred Heart Basketball N. Quincy Concludes 27th Year

Sacred Heart Basketball recently concluded its 27th year with championship games as well as an annual March Madness Basketball Tournament.

A lot of youth basketball was played city-wide in the City of Quincy over the last three weeks with a culmination of that concluding with Sacred Heart's Basketball's (SHB) version of March Madness. SHB concluded its regular season both House leagues and Travel programs with playoffs and championships.

"We concluded our 900-plus player house league with some fun and great competition across all grades k-12. It's been a great run of Basketball for the kids in the city in many cases 26 weeks of basketball for some," said SHB Director Dr. Mark Jaehnig.

Sacred Heart Travel programs had teams win championship in both MetroWest and South Shore Basketball Leagues additionally with many teams making it very far playoff wise. "Certainly we are happy for our Travel program we had teams ranked #1 & #2 state wide throughout the season, we are additionally happy program wise as well," Jaehnig said.

Sacred Heart closed its season with a weekend basketball tournament with teams invited from surrounding communities along with teams (friends) from New York City.

"We are happy to have our friends from St. Matthew's involved again in our March Madness Tournament. We started tournaments 24 years ago with St. Matthew's after I received a call from the St. Matthews folks specifically the late Tunney Maher. Tunney loved the competition and we played our tourna-

Residential Energy Efficiency Assessments Offered At City Hall

Quincy residents are invited to schedule a free home energy assessment through the city's "Quincy Saves" program.

Assessments can be arranged by visiting City Hall (glass annex building) on Wednesdays.

The City of Quincy is

USS Quincy Topic April 14

Naval historian Bob Begin will discuss the loss of the heavy cruiser USS Quincy on Thursday, April 14 at 7 p.m. at Thayer Public Library.

Launched in 1935, Quincy was built in and named after the City of Quincy. On Aug. 9, 1942, the USS Quincy would sink after a fierce night battle with the Japanese.

Begin's presentation will include letters, charts, photos and interviews with men aboard the ship.

For more information, call 781-848-0405 x4417

All programs are free and open to the public.

working to lower energy bills through signing up residents for Mass Save home energy assessments. Quincy Saves representatives will be at City Hall annex Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. for the next two weeks.

The energy assessors, at no cost, will install efficient light bulbs, programmable thermostats and other devices that save energy. If the assessor determines the home needs further work such as insulation or a new heating system, the resident can access rebates to perform the work, up to $2,000 for insulation.

The goal is to reduce energy bills and carbon emissions, make homes more comfortable, less drafty and less likely to get dams in the winter.

The city's partners in the program are the non-profit HEET, as well as the Mass Save contractor, HomeWorks Energy. Mayor Thomas Koch branded the city's initiative "Quincy Saves."

The city's goal is to sign up 701 assessments by the end of this year. If the city reaches the goal, Quincy will earn an incentive from National Grid of over $40,000, which will be spent on further making Quincy's municipal and school properties more efficient. So far, 86 assessments have taken place with over 100 others scheduled.

Residents can sign up at events around the city or through the website www.HomeWorksEnergy.com/Quincy-Saves or calling (617) 855-9889.

QCAP Homebuyer Workshop

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. will host a first time homebuyers workshop Thursday, April 14 from 6 to 9 p.m. and Saturday, April 16 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The two-session workshop will be held at QCAP's fourth floor conference room, 1509 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Attendance for the entirety of both sessions is required.

Registration fee is $30 per person. Pay by credit card online at www.qcap.org. Go to News and Events section and look for "First Time Homebuyer Workshop."

Topics include financing options, finding a home, legal issues, home inspection, government loans and home insurance.

For more information, call Toni Gershon-Stern at 617-657-5315 or visit www.qcap.org.

Braintree Cooperative Bank Homebuyer Workshop

Braintree Cooperative Bank will hold a free Home Buyers Seminar, Saturday, April 9 from 9 a.m. to noon at 1000 Washington St., Braintree. Call Ed Metro at 781-843-1370 X231 for reservations.

On Monday, March 21, 2016, at approximately 1:10 p.m., Detective Landry, wearing plain clothes and driving an unmarked SUV, observed a male looking into windows of vehicles that were parked at 100 Granite Street. The male was wearing a back pack which appeared to be full. The Detective kept an eye on the male as he left the area on foot and walked to a parking lot of a nearby apartment complex.

Detective Landry drove across the street and parked in the rear of the parking lot to watch the male who was now roaming about the lot between parked cars. The male then moved to an area of the parking lot out of view, so the Detective exited his SUV and looked for him. Moments later, the Detective spotted the male get out of a Mercury Cougar and walk towards Granite Street.

As Detective Landry followed the male, an elderly female asked him if he was a Police Officer, which he confirmed. She stated that she saw a male looking into cars and pointed in the direction of the male suspect. Detective Landry notified Communications and requested assistance in re-locating the male and then examined the Cougar. The door was ajar and there were shoe impressions in the snow. It did not appear that anything was disturbed inside the vehicle. Detective Landry put out a description of the suspect with the light green back pack. As the Detective approached the front of the building, he didn't see the male so he went inside and was greeted by a tenant who said that the male he was looking for just came in the building and was going to a certain apartment where a relative of the male lives.

At the same time, Officer Ken Wood and his K-9 partner Major arrived on scene. They were shown the area where the male was walking around in the snow and the vehicle that the male exited. Officer Wood began a track while Officer Eddy joined Detective Landry at the management office in an attempt to view the buildings video surveillance to confirm that the suspect did in fact enter the building.

Officer Wood contacted Detective Landry and stated that the K-9 was tracking to the front door of the building. Based on the surveillance cameras, the Officers were able to confirm that the suspect did enter the front door, go into the elevator and exit on a particular floor. The video showed the male looking out the hall window for several seconds and then continue down the hallway to an apartment. Officer Steve Rayne arrived on scene and brought the victim out to his vehicle, where he said that nothing was missing.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

Based on the evidence gathered, the Detective and the Officers went to the apartment to locate the suspect. Officers Rayne and Eddy knocked on the apartment door and made contact with the tenant. She was asked if anyone else was in the apartment with her and she responded that her grandson was. The Officers asked if they could speak to him and she gave them permission to enter. Officer Eddy immediately observed a green back pack. The grandson was located in the apartment. When asked his name, the male responded in slurred speech attempting to pronounce his own name, which resulted in him repeatedly spelling his last name several times. It appeared that the male was under the influence of some type of drug. When asked why he was in the parking lot, the male said he was out there to smoke a cigarette.

Communications notified the Officers that there was an active default warrant for the male. Officer Eddy placed his handcuffs on the male and then Officer Wood assisted with a search incident arrest of the male. A hypodermic needle, a spoon and what appeared to be a bag of heroin was found in a large side cargo pocket of the male's pants. The male was asked several times if he had any weapons or needles on him and he said he did not. Detective Landry explained to the grandmother what happened and she was surprised because she believed that her grandson was doing well with his addiction.

Officer Eddy transported the male to the station, where custody and care was handed over to booking Officer Hack and Sergeant Greenwood. Inside the male's back pack was a small bag of heroin and a prescription bottle with a bag of marijuana inside. The male, a 32 year old Brockton resident, was charged with "Breaking and Entering a Motor Vehicle, daytime, Possession of Class A, Subsequent Offense and the outstanding warrant." Nice Work!

Electric Meter Scam: A local resident and high school friend called me about a scam he encountered. He said that he received a recorded telephone call stating that National Grid is putting in new meters that will cost residents considerably more than they are currently paying. The offer is for this company/contractor to install a meter that will cost you less.

According to National Grid, there is no cost for the meter and installation. A common scam with these types of calls is to press #2 to stop receiving these calls. Do not do this. Although the message states that you will no longer receive calls, what you have actually done is verify that your number is valid and you can expect to get more calls similar to this. Often times, your number will be added to what is called a "mooch" list, which is sold to other telemarketers and scammers. Just hang up!

Both Harris and Radell previously challenged McNamee. Radell ran against the incumbent in 2011, finishing with 1,587 votes to McNamee's 1,864. Harris ran last year, garnering 1,535 votes to McNamee's 2,243.

Harris has disputed the need for the special election, contending he is entitled to be appointed to the seat for the remainder of the two-year term. He and his attorney, former City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie, cite a 1953 law that requires the runner-up in a council election be appointed if the councillor-elect dies before beginning a new term.

The City Council, on the advice of City Solicitor Jim Timmins, voted unanimously Jan. 19 to schedule a special election to fill the seat. Timmins has said home rule petitions approved in 1984 and 2004 take precedent over the 1953 legislation. The 2004 act requires a special election be held for a ward councillor seat if the vacancy occurs during the first year of a term for any cause.

Both the city and Harris filed motions for summary judgment in the dispute in Superior Court. Judge Rosalind Miller held a hearing on those motions the morning of March 25 and took the case under advisement. She had yet to issue a ruling when The Sun went to press at the end of business on Tuesday.

Once issued, Miller's decision will be posted on The Quincy Sun's website, thequincysun.com.

If the election goes ahead as scheduled, polls would open Tuesday at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Voting would take place at the same polling places used during the 2015 municipal contest and the March 1 presidential primary.

The deadline for absentee ballots is Monday, April 4, at noon.

The candidates with the two highest vote totals would advance to the final election, which is slated for May 3. The final day to register for that election would be April 13.

Lizzy Bell Backstops NDA To State Hockey Title from her offense. She had her one-goal lead. And she held it.

She was especially solid in the final 1:35 when Winchester went on the power play and pulled its goalie for two extra skaters. A goal meant overtime or the roulette of a shootout. Bell gave nothing.

"That was a great game, both teams gave everything they had. That was the game that should have been in the Garden," said Bell who is a former carrier for The Quincy Sun. "It was nerve-racking. All I could think about was no overtime, no shootout. My teammates kept most of the pressure on Winchester, so it made my job easier."

Her ability to handle the big moment traces back to that surprise of a start in her sophomore year.

"She handled getting the starting job well. Against St. Marty's, she was fantastic," said Roy. "St. Mary's was a powerhouse. Lizzy easily had more than 20 saves and they were testing shots. We should have won. We were ahead, 3-2, and they scored a lucky goal on a tough bounce in the final two minutes. I honestly think that was the turning point for Lizzy and our whole team going forward."

There was also a great deal of hard work.

"Lizzy made herself an excellent goalie," said Roy. "She worked on her positioning, her flexibility and her mobility. She improved every year, in every phase of being a good goaltender. A coach couldn't ask for a better player or a better person."

"It wasn't work. I loved it," said Bell, a Principal List's student who plans to major in nursing in college.

And in the end, time did not stand still. The clock did move. Lizzy Bell did have her moment in the Garden, standing where Tuukka stands, and celebrating a state championship with her team that had become her family. A fine ending for a fine story.

Restaurant Granted Liquor License

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new Vietnamese restaurant will receive the first of nearly two dozen all alcohol licenses pouring given to the city for businesses in Quincy Center three years ago.

The Board of Licence Commissioners on March 22 granted the request for an all alcohol license for Pho Pasteur, a new Vietnamese restaurant set to open at 1462 Hancock St., formerly home to a Dunkin' Donuts. Ed Fleming, the attorney for owner Sau Cai, said the 90-seat restaurant could open as soon as the middle of April. Cai has owned a restaur-rant, also named Pho Pasteur, in Boston's Chinatown neighborhood for the past 23 years and also owned one in Needham from 2004 to 2009. Fleming previously told the board Cai believes there is a strong market in Quincy for Vietnamese cuisine.

Cai was granted the first of 23 all alcohol pouring licenses approved for the downtown district by special legislation signed into law in 2013. The 2013 special act also gave the city two hotel liquor licenses, one retail license and one beer and wine license for establishments in Quincy Center. None of the 27 licenses can be transferred outside of the downtown district, unlike other liquor licenses that can be transferred anywhere in the city with board approval.

The licensing board on Feb. 23 granted the retail license to Hancock Tobacco. The store will be moving from 1500 Hancock St. to a 4,000 square foot space at 5 Cottage Ave., which is around the corner from its current location.

Cai's request for the all alcohol license was put on hold during the board's previous meeting March 8 after Health Commissioner Drew Scheele raised concerns over the removal of trash from dumpsters in a Cottage Avenue alleyway, which Pho Pasteur planned to use and is already shared by four other restaurants. Scheele on March 22 said those restaurant owners had agreed to use a single disposal company in an attempt to remedy the situation.

"We're all set with the alleyway," he said. "We're going to have one dumpster company down there for all of the businesses that are located there so that we won't have any issues with dumpsters not being able to be taken out of the alleyway because three or four other dumpster companies are blocking it in."

In other business March 22, the board:

- Granted an extension of premise for Sully's, 28 Chestnut St., for June 11. The bar will use a portion of the sidewalk in front of its main entrance that day as part of its 82nd anniversary celebration.

- Granted special use permits for the second annual Point Webster 5K Great Race on April 30 and a July 23 block party being organized by Central Baptist Church, 29 Foster St.

Advertising Opportunity in The Quincy Sun's annual Supplement and Visitors Guide

Historic Quincy

The Quincy Sun will again publish this spring its full color special supplement and visitors guide Historic Quincy.

Each year, this popular supplement is enjoyed by thousands of readers in Quincy and throughout the South Shore as well as visitors to the "City of Presidents" from around the world.

Historic Quincy highlights the city's many historic sites and reflects on its proud heritage through stories and photographs.

Topics include the nation's first father-and-son Presidents – John Adams and John Quincy Adams – and their wives First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams.

There are also features on the Adams National Historical Park, Josiah Quincy House, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, United First Parish Church, Adams Academy, the Thomas Crane Public Library, and the newly restored James R. McIntyre Government Center - the old "Town Hall" built in 1844 of Quincy-granite by famed architect Solomon Willard, designer of the Bunker Hill Monument.

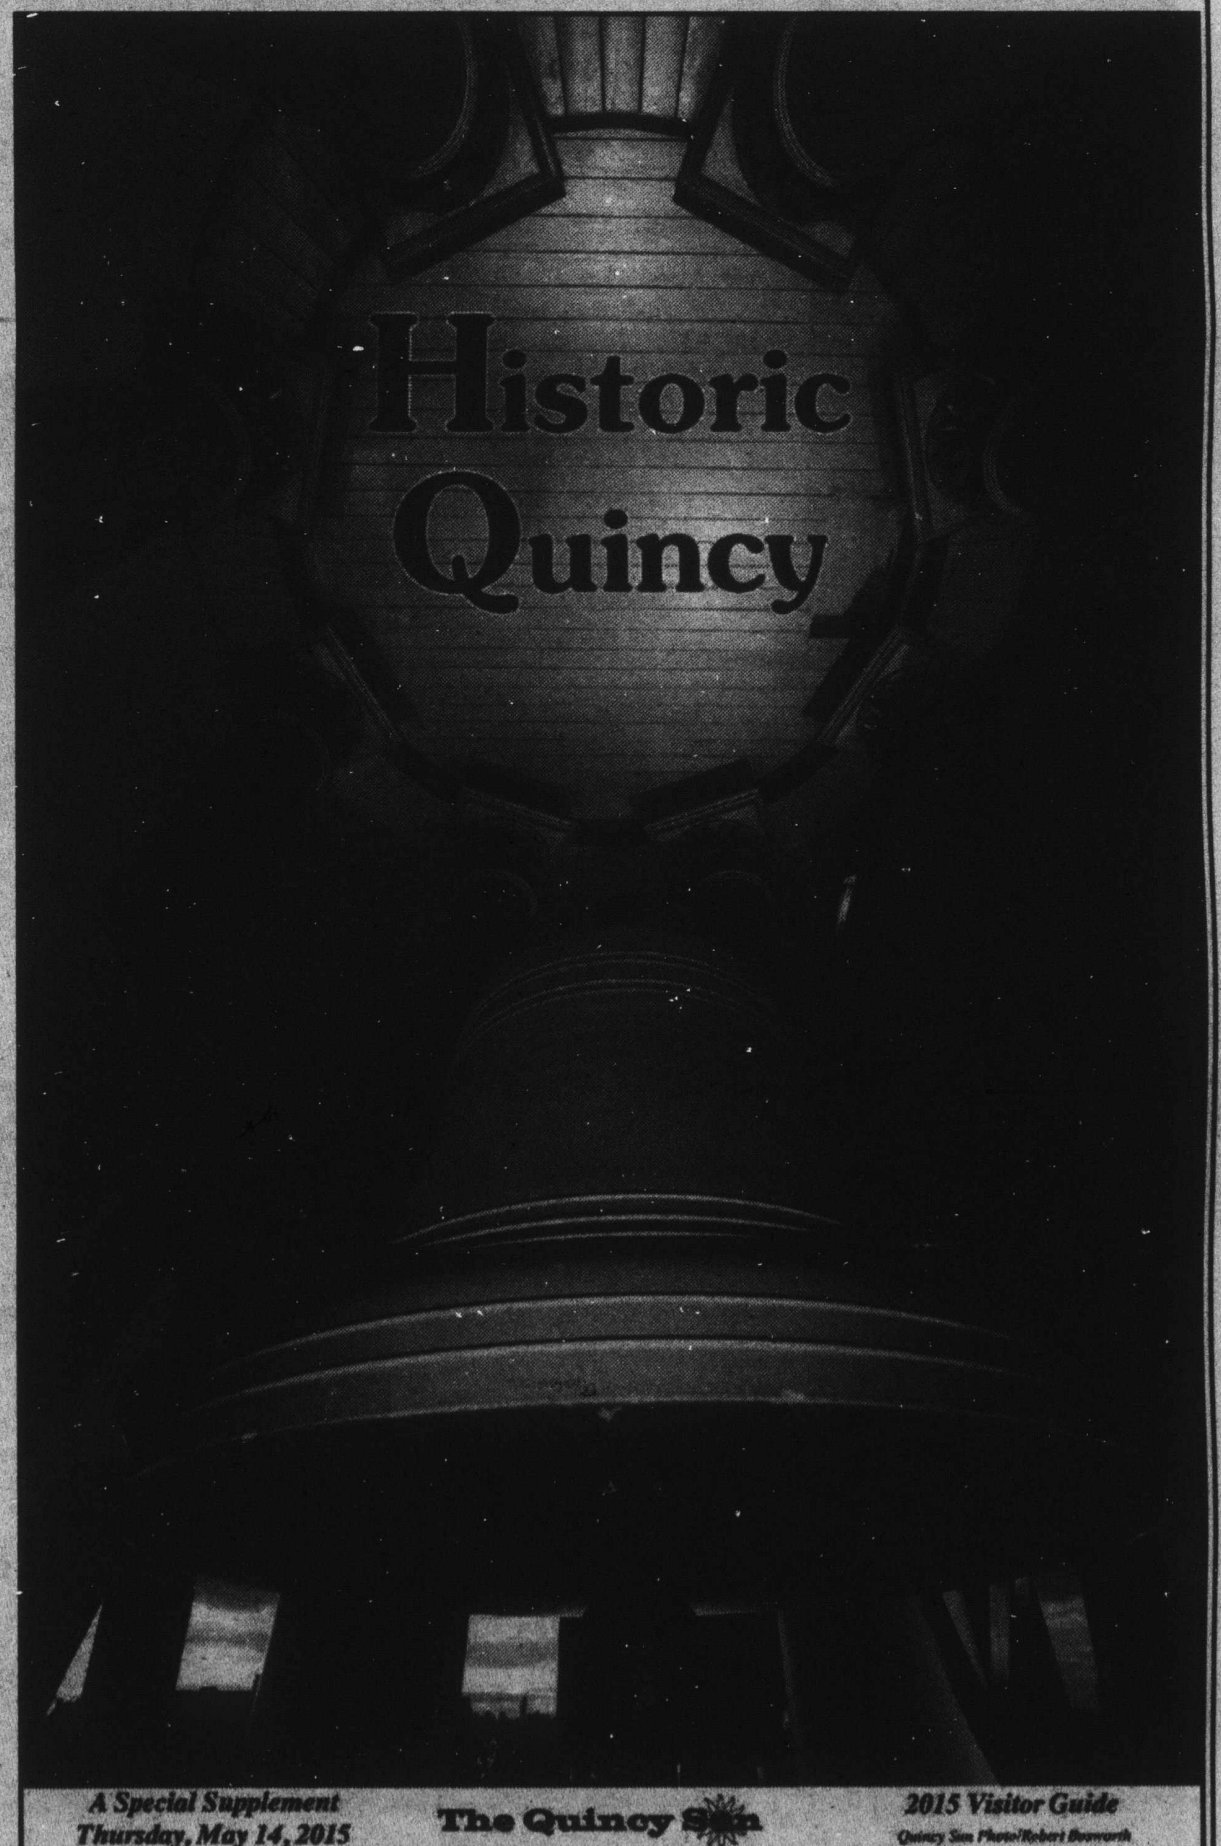

Historic Quincy also spotlights the city's proud shipbuilding and granite-working industries and so much more.

This year's supplement offers advertising opportunities for local businesses and restaurants.

Some 15,000 copies will be printed and copies inserted in the May 12, 2016 edition of The Quincy Sun.

Other copies will be distributed throughout the city including historic sites all year round.

The supplement will also be posted on The Quincy Sun website - www.TheQuincySun.com – to reach even more visitors throughout the area and beyond.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It isn't always easy for the rambunctious Aries to give a second thought to their often spur-of-the-moment choices. But aspects favor rechecking a decision before declaring it final.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Information emerges for the business-driven Bovine who feels ready to restart a stalled project. Be prepared to make adjustments as needed at any time during the process.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Part of you wants to complete plans for an upcoming event, while your other self wants to see how things develop first. Compromise by moving ahead with your plans while being open to change.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) An unexpected change in a relationship could open up a problem or could lead to a much-needed and too-long-delayed reassessment of a number of matters. The choice is yours to make.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Time for the Lion to total the plusses and minuses resulting from recent personal and/or professional decisions. See what worked, what didn't and why, and base your next big move on the results.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The clever Virgo can make persuasion work by presenting a case built on hard facts. Sentiment might touch the heart, but it's good, solid information that invariably wins the day.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You usually can win over the most stubborn skeptics on your own.

But this time you can benefit from supporters who have been there, done that and are willing to speak up on your behalf.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You win admiration for your determination to do the right thing. Don't be distracted from that course, despite the offer of tempting alternatives that might suddenly turn up.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) While you still need to maintain control of a dominant situation, a new development emerges, making the task easier and the outcome potentially more rewarding.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) New factors might have a positive effect on a still-pending matter, but only if the information proves to be credible. Trusted colleagues might be able to offer needed advice.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) The week favors moderation, especially if a health problem is involved. Resist the impulse to do more than might be good for you at this time. You can catch up later.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You could feel more than a mite upset by someone or some people who might be creating problems for you. Find out why they won't change their ways. Their reasons might surprise you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You know how to inspire others to do their best by setting a persuasive example of your own.

Audrey F. Williams

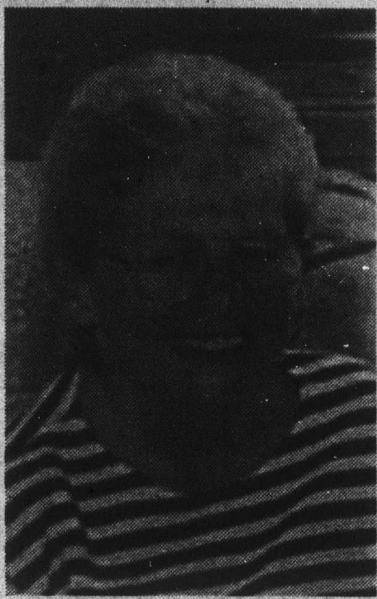

A funeral Mass for Audrey F. (Bassette) Williams, of Quincy and formerly of Somerville, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Clement Church, Medford.

Mrs. Williams died March 20 following a lengthy illness.

Born in Somerville, she was the daughter of the late William F. and Anna M. (Crowley) Bassette. Affectionately known as "Mrs. Wonderful," she was the beloved wife of "Mr. Wonderful," the late Charles K. Williams.

Mrs. Williams was a graduate of St. Clement High School and attended Framingham State College. She was retired from the Forsyth Dental Institute, where she worked in the human resource department. She enjoyed her work with the students there and emphasized the importance of proper retirement planning. Many students over the years have expressed their gratitude for the advice.

Mrs. Williams enjoyed traveling, especially to Aruba and Miami, and even making a trip to Ireland to watch Boston College take on Notre Dame. An avid sports fan, she loved the Boston Red Sox and the New England Patriots. Her favorite summer activity was entertaining friends on her veranda.

AUDREY F. WILLIAMS

Survived by her dear and devoted sisters, Anna Mae McFadden of Lexington, Geraldine Botsch and her husband Donald of NH, Arline Ballotta and her husband Paul of Stoneham and the late Mary Bowdring and her surviving husband Howard of VA. She was the beloved aunt of many loving nieces and nephews, grandnieces and nephews, great-grandnieces and nephews and further survived by her dear friends and neighbors, the "Bay Street Gang," and the rest of the Audrey Williams fan club.

Arrangements by Doherty Funeral Service, Somerville.

Private interment.

Memorial donations may be made to the St. Clement Schools, 579 Boston Ave., Medford, MA 02155.

John Lynch, 93

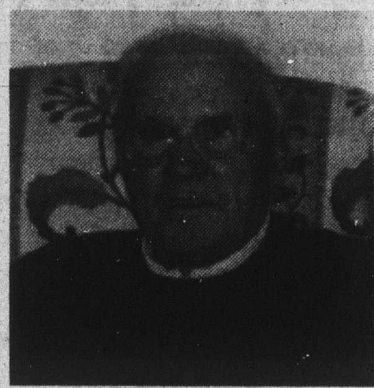

A funeral Mass for John Lynch, 93, of Quincy and formerly County Cavan, Ireland, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Lynch died March 21 after a brief illness.

Beloved husband of 64 years to Mary "Pat" (Dacey) Lynch of Quincy. Loving father of Kathleen Gangitano and her husband Carl of Stoughton, Kevin Lynch and his wife Rene of Weymouth, Dennis Lynch and his wife Maureen of Hingham, and Robert Lynch and his wife Linda of Hingham, and cherished sister Bridie of England. Predeceased by eight siblings. Cherished "Papa" of Gregory, Andrea, and the late Christopher Gangitano; Joseph and Jennifer Gullins; Sean Lynch; and Bridget, Cassie, and Sheila Lynch. Great-Papa of Aidan Gullins and Liam Honnen. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Mr. Lynch adored spending time with his family, especially his grandchildren. He attended all their sporting events and activities. In his younger years, he enjoyed taking them on walks through marsh and to the Irish Festival at Stonehill College.

Mr. Lynch was co-owner of Metropolitan Fence Corporation and instilled his strong work ethic in all his family. He sat on the board of Quincy Youth Hockey in its early stages and was instrumental in the establishment of the ice rink in Quincy. He was an avid sports fan and followed the Boston teams. He was very proud of his Irish heritage and loved to talk to everyone he met. He will be remembered for his great sense of humor and his seemingly endless pockets of candy!

Mr. Lynch's family wishes to extend a special thank you to all the staff at the John Scott Nursing Home for their compassionate care and support during his final days.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Quincy Youth Hockey Association, Attn: Bob Roche, 60 Murphy Memorial Dr., Quincy, MA 02169.

George H. Howard, 83

A funeral Mass for George H. Howard, 83, retired attorney, of Pocasset and formerly Yarmouthport, Quincy, Braintree and Westwood was celebrated Monday at St. John the Evangelist Church, Pocasset.

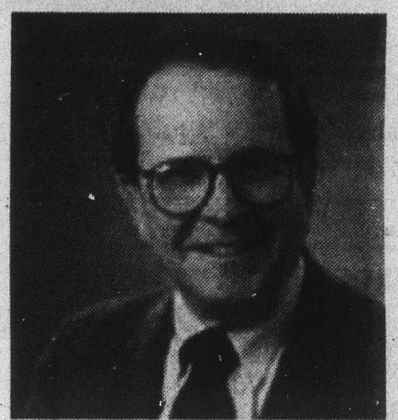

Mr. Howard died March 20.

For many years, Mr. Howard practiced with his partner, Joseph Clancy, in the law firm, Howard & Clancy. He was extremely well respected by his professional colleagues and clients.

Mr. Howard was the husband of the late Barbara C. (Mont) Howard, a registered nurse, for 52 years, and is survived by three terrific children, Attorney Robert M. Howard and his partner Jacqueline Gausson of CA, Susan C. Bruce of Rockland, and Attorney Beth Ann Timson and her husband Attorney Christopher G. Timson of Walpole. Mr. Howard is also survived by eight outstanding grandchildren, Rebecca, William and Michael Timson, Nicholas, Samantha and Jonathan Bruce, and Ryder and Riley Gausson-Howard.

Mr. Howard was born and grew up in Gardner and Templeton, the son of Earl R. and Lillian A. (Daly) Howard and is also survived by his sisters Ann J. Beaudet of CA, Earlene M. Dickson of E. Templeton and Sheila Couture of Templeton. His sister, Patricia Van Dorn, and brothers, John R. Howard and Albert T. Howard, predeceased him.

Graduating from Gardner High School in 1950, Fitchburg State College in 1954 and the New England School of Law in 1960, Mr. Howard practiced trial law for 30 years in Boston, Westwood and Norwood. He was a former assistant district attorney in Norfolk County and president of the Quincy Bar Association and the Bar Association of Norfolk County, where he was named Massachusetts Lawyer of the Year for his pro-bono work on behalf of cancer victims who were denied insurance coverage by insurance companies. He often said it was his favorite professional obligation and was proud of the fact that he had never lost one of these important cases. He was an avid hunter, skier and sailor aboard his sloop "Old Howard."

Following college graduation, Mr. Howard served in the U.S. Army, having volunteered for the draft and was stationed in Thule, Greenland, during the Korean Conflict.

Funeral arrangements were made by Nickerson-Bourne Funeral Home, Pocasset.

Private interment at St. John Cemetery, Gardner.

Memorial donations may be made to the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

Mr. Howard asked that his death notice include that he wishes to particularly thank all of his wonderful family and many old law associates, judges, court personnel and many dear friends for being a part of his wonderful and very happy life. He wished to say that he and his beloved wife, Barbara, look forward to seeing each of you all again at a much, much later time in a much, much better place and cocktails will be on him.

Robert J. Colman, Jr., 59

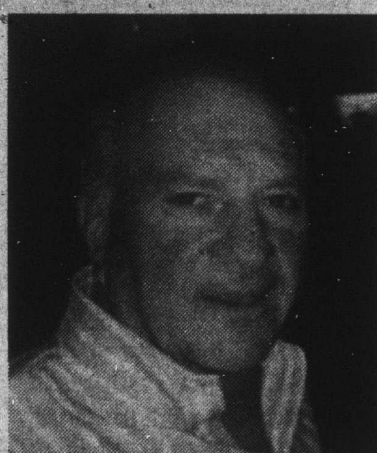

A funeral Mass for Robert J. "Bob" Colman, Jr., 59, of Quincy and Edgartown was celebrated Tuesday in St. Clare's Church, Braintree.

Mr. Colman died unexpectedly March 23.

He grew up in Braintree, graduated from Thayer Academy and went on to New England College and Bentley University.

Beloved son of the late Robert J. Colman, Sr., and Mary T. (Donovan) Colman. Survived by loving sisters Roberta M. Colman of Braintree and Sandra Colman Lerner of Quincy. Dear nephew of Celeste Colman of Weymouth and Pat Lyons Barry of Needham. Also survived by many loving cousins and friends.

Mr. Colman was owner and operator of the former Colman's Sporting Goods. He participated in many sports growing up, but most recently he enjoyed spending time with good friends boating and fishing. He was a proud member of the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, a family tradition for decades.

ROBERT J. COLMAN

Funeral arrangements were made by McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105 or the American Lung Association at lung.org.

Margery B. Baxter, 95

A celebration of life service for Margery B. Baxter, 95, of Quincy was held Monday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Ms. Baxter died March 19.

She was the beloved mother of Carol Hurney, Frank Baxter and his wife Brenda, Lois Neilson and her husband Brad, Karen Abate and her husband Phil and the late Carl Baxter. Mother-in-law of Kris Baxter. "Nana" was also blessed with nine grandchildren, including her beloved grandson Kevin Hurney who predeceased her, 12 great-grandchildren and a great great-granddaughter.

Ms. Baxter was grateful for the many blessings of this life especially the simple joy of being outdoors in the sun. When complimented she would say with a smile, "I'm no Mae West, but I do my best." "Thank you - I appreciate it," was ever on her lips, but her ever-ready advice to all was simply, "go with the flow."

Her family wishes to extend sincere thanks to the staff at Marina Bay Skilled Nursing & Rehabilitation Center of Quincy for their loving care of her through these last few years.

Interment at St. Mary's Cemetery, Dorchester.

Memorial donations may be made to the Residents' Council of Marina Bay SNRC, 2 Seaport Dr., Quincy, MA 02171.

This day is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline date by which you have to file the written appearance if you object to the petition. If you fail to file the written appearance by the return date, action may be taken in this matter without further notice to you. In addition to filing the written appearance, you or your attorney must file a written affidavit stating the specific facts and grounds of your objection within 30 days after the return date.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The outcome of this proceeding may limit or completely take away the above-named person's right to make decisions about personal affairs or financial affairs or both. The above-named person has the right to ask for a lawyer. Anyone may make this request on behalf of the above-named person. If the above-named person cannot afford a lawyer, one may be appointed at State expense.

WITNESS, Hon. John D. Casey, First Justice of this Court.

Anna M. Emond, 88

A funeral Mass for Anna Marie "Ann" (McAuliffe) Emond, 88, of Braintree and formerly Quincy will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Thursday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Emond died peacefully March 26 at the Bay Pointe Rehabilitation and Skilled Care Center in Brockton, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Boston, raised and educated in Quincy and was a graduate of Quincy High School, Class of 1946. She had lived in Quincy all her life before moving to Independence Manor in Braintree several years ago.

Mrs. Emond had been employed for 15 years as a check-in attendant at the Days Inn in Braintree and had been retired for many years. She was a longtime volunteer at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth and was a member of the St. Mary's Church senior citizen's group.

Mrs. Emond was devoted

to her family and especially to her cherished grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Devoted mother of Edward W. Emond, Jr., and his wife Sallee (Spencer) of Brockton, Gary J. Emond and his wife Helen (McDonald) of Marshfield. Loving grandmother of seven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. One of four siblings, she was sister of Ruth E. Salvucci of Braintree and predeceased by Timothy D. McAuliffe and John E. McAuliffe. She is survived by many nieces and nephews.

Visiting hours were 4-8 p.m. Wednesday in Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy. Funeral from the funeral home at 9 a.m. Thursday.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Bay Pointe Rehabilitation and Skilled Care Center Activity Fund, 50 Christy Place, Brockton, MA 02301.

ent religious backgrounds. Godspell is open to the interpretations of its audience members, and hence is a religious drama that, while it portrays the life of Jesus, does not mandate a Christian interpretation, while it certainly does not discourage one."

Senior and Vice President Emily Wade also recognized the theme of community in the show: "This musical is about finding a community and sharing your love and faith with them, which is much like the community that I have found at North Quincy High School and in Drama Club. This show is going to be awesome."

When asked what makes Godspell a unique experience for her, junior Lynne Campbell said, "This show is a unique experience because it's different from all the other shows I've done. Every role in this show is evenly distributed. It's very high-energy and we make it very up-to-date."

Cincere Tarkpor, a junior in her first show with the Club, says this is a meaningful experience because, "I get to see my friends in a different element and it's been a great experience. Godspell is a very inspirational musical. It tells about Bible stories in a comical way."

Godspell runs Friday, April 1 and Saturday, April 2 at North Quincy High School's Peter J. Chrisom, Sr. Auditorium. The school is located at 316 Hancock St., across from the North Quincy T-station.

Tickets are $10 for general admission and $5 for students, and may be purchased in the NQHS main office or at the door.

Lifeguard Training Course During April School Vacation At Lincoln-Hancock Pool

The City of Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Course at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool during April School Vacation, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The course is open to participants who are at least 15 years of age and capable of passing a pre-requisite water skills test.

The prerequisite swim test will be given to all candidates on Friday, April 15 at 7 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Class will be held on Saturday, April 16 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Community Room of the Koch Park and Recreation Complex. Class will not be held on Patriots Day Monday, April 18.

The remaining classes will be held Tuesday, April 19 through Friday, April 22 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Registration for the course is limited and can be done online at QuincyRec.com, by phone at (617) 376-1394, or in person at the Quincy Recreation office, One Merrymount Parkway, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The cost of the program is $140, which includes all books, supplies, and Red

WILLIAM HARRIS is sworn in as the new Ward 6 city councillor by City Clerk Joseph Shea at Monday's City Council meeting. Harris was appointed by councillors to fill the the unexpired term of the late Brian McNamee who died last Dec. 23. Harris, who had challenged McNamee in last November's city election, was awarded the seat by a Norfolk County superior court judge last week who cited a 1953 state law stipulating a runner-up in a council race be appointed to the seat in the event the election winner resigns or dies before the new council term begins.

Teel Field Renovations Running Over Budget

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch has asked the City Council to approve using $2.75 million received from the sale of the former Central Middle School to offset cost overruns incurred during the renovation of Teel Field in North Quincy.

The request to appropriate $2.75 million from the proceeds of the sale of the former school to the Teel Field project was referred to the council's finance committee Monday night. The committee is slated to meet May 2 for a full hearing on the project.

The council in 2014 approved borrowing $12 million to fund the renovation of Teel Field and creation of a new parking lot, which will serve both the field and North Quincy High School. City officials at the time said they hoped to use

William Harris assumed his seat on the City Council Monday night, bringing to an end the three-month saga over who would represent Ward 6 following the death of Brian McNamee, the district's longtime councillor, in December.

Harris, a 55-year-old Ashworth Street resident, was unanimously appointed to the seat through the end of 2017 by the remaining eight councillors at the start of Monday's meeting and was promptly sworn in by City Clerk Joseph Shea. Harris then went around the well, shaking the hands of each of his new colleagues.

"[I'm] a little nervous. This has been a long road," Harris said during brief remarks. "To my family, my supporters, of course - I'm just looking forward to working with these folks for the betterment of Quincy, and that's what it's about,

City Still Awaiting Revised Flood Maps

By SCOTT JACKSON

Nearly two years after the city filed an appeal of federal flood maps enacted in June 2014, the Federal Emergency Management Agency has yet to issue revised maps.

Joseph D. Shea, a senior vice president at engineering firm Woodard & Curran, provided members of the City Council with an update on the appeal of the June 2014 flood maps Monday night. Shea's firm has assisted the city with its appeal of those maps, which added 1,400 homes to flood plains and increased the risk rating for 2,700 homes previously in flood plains.

"The city filed a letter of map revision (LOMR) to contest those maps one day after they were enacted. In January 2015, FEMA announced it had approved the letter of map revision. As a result of the city's LOMR, Shea stated between 550 and 650 properties would be removed from flood plains and 1,200 to 1,300 will be placed into lower risk zones.

FEMA has yet to issue revised maps some 14 months later, how-

Demo Permit Sought For 'The Wolly'

By SCOTT JACKSON

The owner of the historic Wollaston Theatre has applied for a permit to demolish the Beale Street building, though a final decision regarding its future has not been made.

Miao Kun "Michael" Fang, the owner of the closed theater since 2012, announced through a spokesman in September plans to demolish the structure, citing concerns over its structural integrity. No timetable was given for the demolition at that point.

Stephen Crawford, Fang's spokesman, said Monday the owner of the theater is in the process of removing asbestos from the building's exterior. While Crawford said Fang has applied for a demolition permit, he said no decision has been made regarding the theater's future.

"Mr. Fang continues to explore all options," Crawford said.

Jay Duca, director of the city's Inspectional Services Department, said the department is in the process of reviewing the demolition permit. On Monday, he said it would be difficult to estimate how long the review process would take because the applicant is putting together required information and plans, such as the abatement of hazardous materials, traffic, and pedestrian safety.

Affectionately known as "The Wolly" to many Quincy residents, the Wollaston Theatre first opened in 1926 as a vaudeville theatre and was repurposed to a movie house in the 1930s. The theatre, located at 14 Beale St., has been closed since 2003.

Fang, who is the owner of the C-Mart supermarket chain, purchased the property for $600,000 in 2012 from Yvonne Chandler. Chandler and her late husband, Arthur, had owned the Wollaston Theatre since 1979.

Before selling to Fang, Chandler had reached an agreement in 2009 to sell the building to StreetWorks, the city's previous master developer for Quincy Center. The New York-based company exer-

Council OKs $363,000 For QFD Overtime

To Cover Long-Term Injuries,
Training, Rescue Truck Service

By SCOTT JACKSON
The City Council on Monday night unanimously approved appropriating $363,000 in free cash to the Fire Department for overtime costs.

The city had set aside $1.53 million for overtime in the Fire Department's budget for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30. Fire Chief Joseph Barron on Monday said the new appropriation was needed because of two factors: The number of firefighters out with long-term injuries or in training and keeping the rescue truck in service more frequently.

Barron said about 10 firefighters have been out this year on long-term injury leave, more than in prior years. In addition, the chief said nine firefighters were hired last fall and went to the Boston Fire Department's training academy, which now lasts 16 weeks instead of eight to ten.

"Adding those numbers together, in a 200-man department that's 10 percent of my department," Barron said. "Imagine trying to run a business with 10 percent of your personnel not available to you, and then add in vacation time and normal sick time. My personnel were greatly depleted in the fall and into the winter."

The rescue truck, Barron explained, was in service about 120 evenings this current winter, compared to 100 evenings last winter. The rescue truck can be used for incidents such as high-angle rescues, building collapses and trench collapses.

"These types are incidents, they are a low frequency but they are of high consequence," Barron said. "It's important in a city of our size that we have a rescue truck in service."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, chairman of the council's finance committee, noted councillors have expressed a desire to keep the rescue truck in service more often during recent budget sessions.

"God forbid a situation occurs, it's nice to know you're ready to handle it," Croall said. "You guys do very noble and courageous work. Speaking for this city

City Buying New Voting Machines

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council on Monday night approved spending $268,224 on new machines to tabulate votes at each of the city's 31 precincts and new stations for residents to fill out their ballots in.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said the city would spend $173,400 on 33 electronic optical scanning voting tabulators and $94,824 on 130 new voting stations, each of which has four booths for residents to fill out their ballots in.

Shea said the Secretary of the Commonwealth's Office in 2008 decertified the voting machines currently in use in the city. Quincy and other communities were allowed to continue using those machines, but could not purchase new units;

Shea said the city had to lease machines instead beginning in 2011.

The state did not certify any new voting machines until last year, when it approved two models, Shea said. Quincy then went out

BIOGEOMETRIC DESIGN

While there is nothing new about geometric design in jewelry, combining geometric patterns with natural influences from the biological world has led to a new jewelry trend called "biogeometry." To understand this design, try to visualize coral, honeycomb, leaves, and other natural structures as they might appear if they were made out of gold or other precious metals. These constructs tend to be flowy and feature cutouts that create negative space that gives shape to the geometric pattern. Holes appear to have formed organically, and leaves with prominent veins in a repeating, nonsymmetrical pattern are typical of this trend. Look for biogeometry in bracelets, wideband rings, and 3-dimensional earrings, where the trend has taken off.

Place Vacancies In Voters' Hands

The right thing happened Monday night when city councillors followed a judge's ruling and appointed William Harris to the vacant Ward 6 seat.

Harris and his attorney – former City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie – contested a special election that councillors had called on the advice of current Solicitor James Timmins following the unexpected death of incumbent Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee. McNamee, who had defeated Harris in the Nov. 3rd election – died Dec. 23 after a brief battle with cancer.

The crux of the matter: when did the Ward 6 seat actually go vacant?

Harris and MacRitchie contended the seat was left unfilled after McNamee died.

Timmins countered the seat became vacant Jan. 4 – the day city councillors and other elected officials were sworn in to their new terms at inauguration ceremonies at the James R. McIntyre Government Center.

While it is true that McNamee's death occurred after the council was out of session for 2015, you could also argue that Ward 6 constituents did not have their own representative in city government as of Dec. 23rd. A ward councillor's work does not begin and end with a council meeting. They are on call 24-7 facilitating constituent concerns and serving the citizens they represent.

Last Wednesday, Norfolk Superior Court Judge Rosalind Miller agreed with Harris and MacRitchie. She ruled the vacancy was governed by a 1953 state law that stipulates a runner-up in a city council election should be appointed to fill a seat if the election winner resigns or dies before taking office.

Certainly the timing of McNamee's passing created an unusual circumstance that as far as anyone can tell had never happened before in the city of Quincy. The span of time between the Nov. 3rd election and Jan. 4th swearing in was about nine weeks. If McNamee had passed away Jan. 4 or later, the seat would have been filled by a special election.

This Ward 6 saga underscores – in our mind – the need for the city to address the ambiguity of how vacancies in elected offices are filled. In the case of a ward councillor, there are presently three different ways a seat can be filled.

Two of them have already been mentioned. One: a runner-up in a city election ascends to the seat if there is a resignation or death after an election and before the term of office begins. That just occurred in Ward 6.

Number two: if the vacancy occurs during the first 12 months of a term a special election would be called.

And number three: if the vacancy occurs during the final 12 months of a term the city council appoints a successor until a regular city election is held.

There are other procedures depending on the city's other elected offices.

If a councillor at-large seat becomes vacant – regardless of when in the two-year term it occurs – city councillors appoint a successor.

Same with a school committee seat. If a school seat becomes vacant at any point during a four-year term, the city council, school committee and mayor vote in a replacement to serve out the remaining portion of that term.

And we're really not sure about the mayor's term. We've asked for clarification on this and one official told us that a mayoral vacancy would be filled by a special election if that vacancy occurs with more than six months remaining on the mayor's term.

We're assuming the city council president would be the acting mayor in the absence of the mayor but we're not sure. We also wonder if the four-year mayoral term has any impact on how – or when – a mayoral vacancy would be filled.

Before we get to our recommendation on filling vacancies, we want to congratulate William Harris on his appointment. Harris campaigned for the Ward 6 seat last fall and received about 40 percent of the vote. He attended candidate forums, met with voters, and ran a positive campaign against a well-known incumbent. We've mentioned before that Brian had a style all his own but he always worked diligently for the people of Ward 6. He is missed by many in this city.

We also think the people of Ward 6 are fortunate that Harris was McNamee's challenger last fall. Had some fringe candidate who did not have the ward's best interests at hand challenge McNamee – and lost 99 percent to 1 percent at the ballot box – that individual could have cited the same 1953 law and been appointed to fill the seat for nearly the next two years.

We also want to commend the four other candidates who were vying for the Ward 6 seat until the election was called off last week. Brian Radell, Alie Shaughnessy, Nathan Knowles and Kevin Mock expended time and resources campaigning. They deserve credit for taking the steps to become candidates despite the possibility that the election might be called off.

There were some who were obviously disappointed by the judge's ruling that not only awarded the seat to Harris but voided a special election to fill the Ward 6 seat.

They were quick to point out that the voters – and not a judge – should ultimately be responsible for electing a new councillor.

We agree.

But we all know that election battles can end up in court and sometimes a judge – or judges – decide.

It happened in 1996 when William Delahunt challenged the results in the Democratic primary for congress in the then 10th District. Delahunt narrowly lost the Democratic primary to Philip Johnston of Marshfield. The former city councillor and Norfolk County district attorney went to court and charged the vote tabulations in the towns of Abington, Orleans and Weymouth were incorrect due to a flawed punch card system. The judge sided with Delahunt and overturned Johnston's 181-vote victory declaring Delahunt the winner by 108 votes.

Johnston was informed of the ruling while attending a Democratic unity rally outside the Crane Library featuring outgoing Cong. Gerry Studds, Sen. Ted Kennedy, Sen. John Kerry and First Lady Hillary Clinton.

Presidential elections can also be tipped by the court system.

The 2000 Presidential Election between George W. Bush and Al Gore was not determined until five weeks after the election because of controversy surrounding the voting result in Florida. The litigation eventually reached the Supreme Court and on Dec. 12 that year Bush was awarded Florida giving him enough electoral votes to claim victory.

Filling vacancies should not be left to the judicial system.

It should be in the hands of the voters.

We strongly believe the City of Quincy – through a home-rule petition or a citizens initiative petition – should create an ordinance or charter change that effectively eliminates any and all ambiguity relative to how vacancies are filled in municipal government.

This change should apply to all elected offices – and should supersede all local laws governing vacancies.

And the rule should be something like: "In the event of a vacancy occurring in the office of mayor, city councillor at-large, ward councillor and/or school committee member, the city shall hold a special election to fill the vacancy."

That's what happens in the U.S. House of Representatives. Regardless of when a vacancy occurs, a special election is always held to fill that seat.

It's the voters who decide elected officials at the ballot box. And it's the voters who should be called upon to fill a vacancy when one occurs.

We know some make the argument that appointments save the city money by eliminating special elections.

We strongly disagree.

Elections are not a needless expense. It's the only way that voters can be heard and weigh in on who represents them. The election process provides an opportunity for voters to learn about candidates and their views on local issues.

The people's will should always be heard – whether it's a regular election or a special election.

Scenes From Yesterday

2. GLOVER AVE., NORFOLK DOWNS, MASS.

THIS IS A 1920s postcard view of Glover Avenue in Norfolk Downs looking towards Faxon Road. The view is from near the end of Birch Street which is just off to the left. The F.W. Parker School at the end of this street on the corner of Faxon Road had been built a few years before in 1916. The triple-decker standing alone on the right was one of a dozen or so built in this section of Quincy before the city banned their construction in the early 1920s. This street was named for the Glover family, early settlers in this part of Quincy who owned several farm properties near here. This rare old postcard was published for the A.R. McKay variety store in Norfolk Downs and was printed in France. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

$112-$115 Tax Rate Seen For 1969

Quincy taxpayers face a threatened $112-$115 tax rate following City Council approval of a record high $34,600,000 municipal budget for 1969.

Councillor John J. Quinn, chairman of the council's finance committee, said the budget anticipated the loss of state revenue and other factors will mean a tax rate impact of between $14 and $17. The 1968 tax rate was $98.90.

Quinn's predicted figure is about $3 under that forecast earlier by Mayor James R. McIntyre.

ECUMENICAL MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR FORMER PRESIDENT EISENHOWER

An ecumenical memorial service for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was held at Quincy's historic United First Parish Church. Participating clergymen included Rev. Bradford E. Gale, Rev. Dean E. Benedict, Rabbi David J. Jacobs, Rev. Richard J. Hawko, Rev. Demetrios Michaelides and Rev. Stephen W. Brown.

The bell tolled sadly and solemn words were spoken in a farewell tribute to the late president.

The Rev. Stephen Brown, pastor of First United Presbyterian Church, Quincy, noted that "Dwight David Eisenhower is a symbol of that which is good and right and strong in our nation."

The nation's 34th president died at his home in Gettysburg at age 78.

Please Bring Back Pedestrian Red/Yellow Lights

I am writing in regards to the pedestrian safety in Quincy.

Please bring back the pedestrian red and yellow lights. When drivers saw these lights they stopped. How many times has the little white person light come on and drivers just through and turn on red? At many intersections the light is missing or hard to see.

Pedestrians also need to look both ways - left, right, left - before crossing.

On Tuesday, March 29 around 8 a.m. I was walking my dog on Hancock Street in front of the Fenno House (senior housing). An elderly man crossed the street in the cross walk then a car came out of Linden Street to make a left turn while the pedestrian light was counting down at six seconds. That car made an illegal left turn. I told him to stop; he did but kept on going.

There are signs on Hancock Street before you get to the Fenno House that read "Senior Zone 20 MPH." The cars aren't going 20 MPH - more like 30-40 MPH.

Drivers should obey the lights then maybe there would be less accidents.

Thanks For Supporting Sacred Heart Youth Basketball

I would like to take a moment to publicly thank the City of Quincy - Mayor Thomas Koch, Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, all school principals, NQHS Principal Robert Shaw, NQHS Athletic Director Michael Joyce, NQHS administration, Quincy School public buildings staff, QCA administration, as well as others.

North Quincy Sacred Heart Youth Basketball concluded its 27th season recently. With 900+ players grades k-12 we ran basketball programs seven days a week at facilities (gyms) across the city. I jokingly say we broke records for gym rental payments this year, while I think that's true we are proud to offer our program to our youth keeping them off the streets and on the basketball court (and out of trouble).

We are proud of all of our kids (grade k-12) and are looking forward to many more years of Sacred Heart Basketball. I want to thank you all again for the support this basketball season.

Firefighters Raise $8,000 For Alzheimer's

Many thanks to Quincy Firefighters Local 792 for the recent Alzheimer's fundraiser held at Olindy's Bowling Lanes in Quincy.

What a success. A large crowd of families and friends attended. Over $8,000 was raised for research for the Cure Alzheimer's Fund but more importantly it was a fun and positive event.

Thanks QFD.

Quincy College To Host Author Stephen Kurkjian

April 11 At Thomas Crane Public Library

Quincy College Quincy Campus will host a "Meet the Author Night" featuring Stephen Kurkjian Monday, April 11 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Kurkjian is the author of Master Thieves: The Boston Gangsters Who Pulled Off The World's Greatest Art Heist.

The event is free and open to the public.

It is a case defined by superlatives — the largest art theft in history, carrying the world's largest reward offer, longer on the FBI's list of biggest unsolved art crimes than any other save one. Two men disguised as Boston Police officers trick their way into the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum after midnight, tie up the two night watchmen and make off with an estimated half billion dollars worth of artwork including three works by Rembrandt and a Vermeer masterpiece.

Now 25 years after the theft, Stephen Kurkjian who was the principal reporter on the case for The Boston Globe for years, has written a gripping account of the still-unsolved heist of a quarter century ago in Master Thieves.

A Boston native, Kurkjian spent 37 years as an editor and reporter for The Boston Globe before retiring in 2007. During his career, he shared in three Pulitzer Prizes and won more than 20 regional and other national awards.

Globe columnist Brian McGrory once called him the "most feared and respected" reporter in New England.

Kurkjian was a founding member of The Globe's investigative Spotlight Team, and its editor for 1979-1986. In 1986, he was named chief of The Globe's Washington Bureau and for six years oversaw the work of the paper's 10 reporters in Washington. In addition, while at the bureau he covered the Supreme Court, the Justice Department and the Bush White House during the first war in Iraq.

A question and answer session will follow the Quincy College Meet the Author reading. Reservations are recommended but not required; to reserve your seat for the Quincy College Meet the Author event, visit: <http://masterthievesqcauthornight.eventbrite.com>.

Realtors Group Launches Young Professionals Network

The Plymouth and South Shore Association of Realtors (PASS) has launched a Young Professionals Network group (YPN) to assist in cultivating the next generation of Realtors and association leaders.

The group utilized a "Decades Night" party to announce their emergence. They invited real estate professionals of all ages to come and share words of wisdom. The venue was decorated with historical real estate memorabilia and guests dressed in retro outfits representing their favorite decade. The launch party was sponsored by Jon Milton of Indoor Environmental, Steve Cook of Imperial Inspection Services, Inc., and PASS Vice President, Christine Silva of William Raveis Real Estate.

"For several years, the average age of a realtor has been 54 but studies show Millennials are choosing real estate careers and the Association wants to benefit from the unique perspectives of new and young realtor professionals," said 2016 PASS President, Donna Frano. "The YPN group is a way to encourage ambitious young professionals on the South Shore to get involved in the Association and further their professional growth. We are excited to see what this dynamic group will accomplish."

'Healthy Bodies, Healthy Minds' Activities At FR Clubhouse April 14

Quincy Braintree Family Network - CFCE, a program of Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP), invites parents and families to a morning of activities on Thursday, April 14.

The "Healthy Bodies, Healthy Minds" event is free to the public and will take place from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd. in Quincy.

The morning will feature Meg Durkin of "Yoga Magic 4 Kids" who will get parents and kids alike up and moving. Other activities include an obstacle course and toddler gym, and face painting by Emotions Face and Body Art.

The event is geared toward children four years of age and younger, but siblings welcome. Families who attend can enter their name into a raffle for a chance to win free tickets to Clifford the Big Red Dog Live at the Wilbur Theater in Boston. Community agencies will be on-hand to provide information and resources.

The "Healthy Bodies, Healthy Minds" event is part of QBFN's celebration of Brain Building in Progress Week, April 10th through April 16th. Throughout the week, QBFN will host a variety of family activities designed to promote healthy brain development, such as Marcus Gale at the Thayer Public Library on Friday, April 16 at 10:30 a.m. in Braintree, and other events at the program's main site at Learning Links Family Engagement Center, 1511 Hancock St. in Quincy.

The Brain Building in Progress Campaign was developed by the Massachusetts Department of Early Education and Care and United Way of Massachusetts Bay and Merrimack Valley. The campaign raises awareness of the importance of positive interactions and experiences in children's early years to their cognitive, social, and physical development.

QCAP's Quincy Braintree Family Network is a Coordinated Family and Community Engagement Program (CFCE), providing parent education workshops, parent/child playgroups, family engagement and early literacy opportunities, parent support groups, and special family events. All activities are hosted free of charge to the public. For a calendar of events visit www.qcap.org or contact Joan Rodeck at jrodeck@qcap.org or 617-479-8181 x369.

Funding for Quincy Braintree Family Network - CFCE is provided by the Massachusetts Department of Early Education and Care and United Way of Massachusetts Bay & Merrimack Valley.

Maria Droste Fashion Show April 28

"Bringing Hope to Life," the Maria Droste Counseling Agency's annual spring fashion show, will be held Thursday, April, 28 at Lantana's in Randolph.

Honorary chairpersons for the event are Alice and Richard Welch of Braintree. Richard Welch, president of Welch Healthcare, Inc., has been a member of the Maria Droste board since the agency opened in Quincy in 1992.

The evening starts at 6 p.m. with a cocktail hour followed by dinner and music as well as live and silent auctions.

The fashion show will feature creations modeled by both men and women. Ladies will model spring selections from David Josef while the men's collection will feature Hajjar's Apparel for Men of Quincy.

Hair styles will be under the direction of Susan Canavan, Aura of Quincy and make-up by Brittany Fasano.

This year's show marks the 23rd annual presentation and the first since the recent death of the agency's founder, Sister Joanne Westwater.

The staff of counseling professionals at the Maria Droste Counseling Services Agency adhere to four basic values: acceptance, respect, compassion and healing. They provide quality services to all in need of a brighter future by offering affordable and timely mental health and holistic services.

Since 1992, staff and volunteer professionals have provided critical support to individuals, couples, family groups with clients of all ages, on an adjustable fee scale based on each client's ability to pay. The sliding fee scale is made possible by the generosity of supporting people in the community.

Advanced ticket purchase to the fashion show is required. For tickets and reservations call 617-471-5686 or visit www.mariadroste-counseling.com.

Gorgonzola-Sauced Pasta

By MARIE

I have heard of all kinds of sauces for pasta but today's recipe for Gorgonzola (blue cheese) sauce is a different and delicious way to enjoy this entrée, especially if you like blue cheese.

The recipe calls for crumbled Gorgonzola, but I used it by the piece and it worked very well.

Recipe:

2 tablespoons of butter

½ cup crumbled Gorgonzola or 2 ounces of blue cheese

¾ cup light cream or half and half Dash of pepper

¼ cup grated parmesan cheese
8 ounces of cooked pasta

Cook pasta according to directions. (I used fettuccine) In a small sauce pan melt the butter and blend in the Gorgonzola or blue cheese, stir in cream (or half and half) and the dash of pepper. Cook and stir over medium to high heat about two minutes or until heated through, stir in the parmesan cheese. Toss the cheese mixture with the hot pasta until coated. Use additional grated parmesan cheese if desired.

Brown Rice Salad

By SUZIE

Here is a delicious Brown Rice Salad recipe that is so nice to make when the weather gets warmer. It tastes even better the next day and is great to bring to a pot luck as well.

This is loaded with protein, nutrients, herbs and vegetables, and will keep you satisfied, and great as a side dish or a light meal. The fresh herbs really make it so don't substitute for dried. Hope you like it!

2 cups of brown rice cooked in 4 cups of vegetable or chicken BROTH according to package directions and let cool. Toss with.....

1 can organic garbanzo beans, drained and rinsed.

1 cup cherry or grape tomatoes, halved

1 cup chopped yellow, green, or red pepper

¾ cup chopped red onion

½ cup chopped fresh basil leaves

¼ cup chopped fresh parsley

And about 1 cup of vinaigrette.....
(More or less as needed)

½ cup apple cider vinegar

½ lemon, squeezed

1 cup extra virgin olive oil

1 clove minced garlic

2 teaspoons raw honey

2 teaspoons sea salt

Pepper

Whisk vinaigrette together well. Toss well with other ingredients and check for seasoning. This is best when chilled for a bit, stirred, and taste tested since all the flavors take a bit of time to "mingle." Enjoy!

Potato And Salami Croquettes

By MARIE

There aren't many people I know that don't enjoy a salami sandwich on crusty bread. So when I came across today's recipe for Salami and Potato Croquettes I knew I had to try it - and with great results.

Recipe:

3 medium potatoes

1 beaten egg

1 tablespoon of butter

½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese

2 ounces of salami (chopped will equal about ½ cup)

¼ cup of grated Parmesan or Romano cheese

1 tablespoon of fresh parsley

½ teaspoon salt

2/3 cup of bread crumbs

Another beaten egg

Cook potatoes until tender and drain. Mash potatoes and beat in one beaten egg and the butter. Add the mozzarella cheese, salami, the Parmesan or Romano cheese, parsley and the salt. Mix well.

Shape mixture into 1 and a half inch balls. Roll each in the bread crumbs and dip in the second beaten egg. Roll again in the bread crumbs.

In a large frying pan, sauté the croquettes a few at a time until golden brown (around 2 or 2 ½ minutes) drain on paper towel. Keep in a warming oven at 375 degrees while frying the remaining croquettes.

Registry Of Deeds Donates Clothing To Interfaith Social Services

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell recently delivered a sizeable clothing donation, through its "Suits for Success" program, to Interfaith Social Services of Quincy.

"On behalf of the many generous Norfolk County residents and Registry staff who contributed clothing, it is my pleasure to deliver these critically needed items," O'Donnell said. Clothing items included men's suits, dress pants, collared shirts, women's suits, women's dress pants and blouses.

"This clothing, received from drives such as the Registry's Suits for Success program, is critical to helping South Shore residents in need get back on their feet," said Interfaith Social Services Executive Director Rick Doane. "We are most appreciative of everyone who contributed."

Suits for Success is a program designed to help men and women reach economic independence and personal self-fulfillment.

Those interested in making a clothing donation can drop off new or gently used business appropriate clothing, professionally cleaned, during the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Registry of Deeds, 649 Hancock St., Dedham.

For more information on making donations, contact contact Alicia Gardner at (781) 461-6104.

"Having something in your closet that you don't usually wear can make a world of difference to someone else. It just might be the item that helps them get ahead in life," O'Donnell added.

To learn more about these and other Registry of Deeds events and initiatives, like us at facebook.com/NorfolkDeeds or follow us on twitter.com/NorfolkDeeds.

Detecting Oral Cancer: Symptoms, Risks, Prevention

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Cancer is defined as the uncontrollable proliferation of cells that invade and cause destruction to surrounding tissue.

Oral cancer emerges as a growth or lesion in the mouth that does not go away. Oral cancer, which includes cancers of the lips, tongue, cheeks, floor of the mouth, hard and soft palate, sinuses, and pharynx (throat), can be life threatening if not identified and treated promptly.

The most common symptoms of oral cancer include:

- Swellings/thickenings, lumps or bumps, rough spots/crusts or eroded areas on the lips, gums, or other areas inside the mouth
- The development of velvety white, red, or speckled patches in the mouth
- Inexplicable bleeding in the mouth
- Unexplained numbness, loss of feeling, or pain/tenderness in any area of the face, mouth, or neck
- Persistent sores on the face, neck, or mouth that bleed easily and do not heal within 2 weeks
- A soreness or sensation that something is caught in the back of the throat
- Difficulty chewing or swallowing, speaking, or moving the jaw or tongue
- Hoarseness, chronic sore throat, or alteration in voice
- Ear pain
- A change in the way your teeth or dentures fit together
- Dramatic weight loss

If you notice any of these changes, contact your dentist or health care professional immediately.

According to the American Cancer Society, men encounter twice the risk of developing oral cancer as women, and men who are over age 50 face the greatest risk. Approximately 48,250 Americans were diagnosed with oral or pharyngeal cancer in 2015. It will cause over 9,575 deaths, killing roughly 1 person per hour, 24 hours per day. Of those 48,250 newly diagnosed individuals, only slightly more than half will be alive in 5 years.

The overall 1-year survival rate for patients with all stages of oral cavity and pharynx cancers is 81%. The 5- and 10-year survival rates are 56% and 41%, respectively. Worldwide the problem is more pronounced, with over 450,000 new cases being found each year.

Risk factors for the development of oral cancer include:

- Smoking - Cigarette, cigar, or pipe smokers are six times more likely than nonsmokers to develop oral cancers.
- Smokeless tobacco - Users of dip, snuff, or chewing tobacco products are 50 times more likely to develop cancers of the cheek, gums, and lining of the lips.
- Excessive consumption of alcohol - Oral cancers are about six times more common in drinkers than in non-drinkers.
- Family history of cancer.
- Excessive sun exposure, especially at a young age.
- Human papillomavirus (HPV) - Certain HPV strains are etiologic risk factors for Oropharyngeal Squamous Cell Carcinoma (OSCC).

It is significant to note that over 25% of all oral cancers occur in people who do not smoke and who only drink alcohol infrequently.

Oral cancer screening should be part of your routine dental exam. More specifically, your dentist will feel for any lumps or irregular tissue changes in your neck, head, face, and oral cavity. When examining your mouth, your dentist will inspect for any sores or discolored tissue as well as check for any signs and symptoms mentioned above.

Your dentist may perform an oral brush biopsy if he or she sees tissue in your mouth that appears suspicious. This test is painless and involves acquiring a small sample of the tissue and analyzing it for abnormal cells. Alternatively, if the tissue looks more worrisome, your dentist may recommend a scalpel biopsy. This procedure usually requires local anesthesia and may be performed by your dentist or a specialist. These tests are essential to detect oral cancer early, before it has had a chance to advance and spread.

Oral cancer is treated the same way numerous other cancers are treated, with surgery to remove the cancerous growth, followed by radiation therapy and/or chemotherapy to obliterate any remaining cancer cells.

There are steps that you can take to prevent oral cancer:

- Don't smoke or use any tobacco products and drink alcohol in moderation (and refrain from binge drinking).

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

are etiologic risk factors for Oropharyngeal Squamous Cell Carcinoma (OSCC).

It is significant to note that over 25% of all oral cancers occur in people who do not smoke and who only drink alcohol infrequently.

Oral cancer screening should be part of your routine dental exam. More specifically, your dentist will feel for any lumps or irregular tissue changes in your neck, head, face, and oral cavity. When examining your mouth, your dentist will inspect for any sores or discolored tissue as well as check for any signs and symptoms mentioned above.

There are steps that you can take to prevent oral cancer:

- Don't smoke or use any tobacco products and drink alcohol in moderation (and refrain from binge drinking).

- Eat a well-balanced diet.
- Restrict your exposure to the sun. Repetitive exposure increases the risk of cancer on the lip, especially the lower lip. When in the sun, use UV-A/B-blocking sun protective lotions on your skin, as well as your lips.

Take an active role in detecting oral cancer early, should it occur, by doing the following:

- Conduct a self-exam at least once a month. While using a bright light and a mirror, look and feel your lips and the front of your gums. Tilt your head back and look at and touch the roof of your mouth. Pull your cheeks out to view the inside of your mouth, the lining of your cheeks, and the back gums. Pull out your tongue and look at all surfaces; inspect the floor of your mouth and examine the back of your throat. Feel for lumps or enlarged lymph nodes in both sides of your neck and under your lower jaw.

Call your dentist immediately if you notice any changes in the appearance of your mouth or any of the signs and symptoms mentioned above.

See your dentist on a regular schedule. Even though you may be conducting frequent self-exams, sometimes dangerous spots or sores in the mouth can be miniscule and difficult to view on your own.

The American Cancer Society recommends oral cancer screening exams every 3 years for persons over age 20 and annually for those over age 40. During your next dental appointment, ask your dentist to perform an oral exam. Early detection can significantly improve the chance of successful treatment.

Owl Experts At Kennedy Center April 20

Owl experts Mark and Marcia Wilson will be at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy, on Wednesday April 20 at 1 p.m. for an intergenerational program about owls.

The Wilsons will share the field marks, signs and naturalist skills that you can use to find wild owls without disturbing them. Everyone participates in a hooting lesson and learns tips on how to attract and protect owls near you.

While the selection of live owls varies from group to group, chances are you'll meet New England's tiniest owl (the Northern Saw-whet Owl) along with the world's largest owl (the Eurasian Eagle Owl). Other species that figure prominently in the program can include the Eastern Screech Owl, Barred Owl, Barn Owl, Great-horned Owl, Snowy Owl and Spectacled Owl.

This program is open to all seniors and their grandchildren, nieces and nephews. All children must be accompanied by a senior.

Cost for the program is $3 per senior and $3 per child. Tickets are available at the Kennedy Center. For more information call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

Medical History Of Boston April 14

The history of medicine and public health in Boston as seen through three succeeding institutions—the Boston Dispensary, the Floating Hospital, and Tufts Medical Center—will be the subject of Quincy Historical Society's next program Thursday, April 14 at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

Robert Bloomberg, a Historical Society trustee and member of Tufts Medical Center's board of governors, and Daniel Bird, Tufts Medical's director of volunteer services, will present the story, derived from their recent book.

The Dispensary, founded in 1796, was Boston's first effort to bring medical care to workers and their families. It continued for over a century, becoming a pioneer in providing a system of care for ordinary people and a leader in adopting new therapies.

The Floating Hospital, begun in the 1890s, attempted to address the crowded conditions and unhealthy air in which many of the city's rapidly increasing immigrant families lived. In the 1930s, both institutions merged with Tufts University's Medical School, leading to today's Tufts Medical Center.

Taken together the stories present a chronicle of the changing nature of medical treatment from leeches and blood-letting to the iron lung to laser surgery and of the changing role of medical care in society.

Everyone is welcome. There is no admission fee. A book signing will follow the presentation.

Fashion Show Fundraiser For Animal Shelter May 15

The friends of the Quincy Animal Shelter will host "Project Catwalk," a fashion show fundraiser, Sunday, May 15 from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Tirrell Room, 254 Quarry St., Quincy.

The shelter's building fund will benefit from this event.

Schlager's Automotive Service, Quincy is a platinum sponsor and one of many businesses and supporters who have donated. Others include Fratelli's Pastry Shop, Olinday's Bowling Lanes, Allure Spa and McCormack Buildings.

The City is in the process of procuring a new building for the shelter which will be larger than the space they currently share with the QPD Animal Control on Broad Street.

While the current space is secure, warm and watertight it's small and not the best environment for animals that are already stressed from living on the street or abandoned in apartments or houses. There's also the spending time in a cage waiting to go to their forever home. A larger, state-of-the-art living environment will make that wait less stressful.

Once the building is acquired, the shelter will need to furnish the space with cages, kennels and other items. The funds raised from Project Catwalk will help make money available to do this.

Chico's, Natch will supply the fashions which will be available for purchase.

Models are courtesy of Critical Beauty and hair and makeup by 501 Hair and Company, Braintree. Luncheon is included as well as raffle prizes and a door prize.

Organizers hope 300 people will attend the event.

The Quincy Animal Shelter is a non-profit organization and is a recognized Massachusetts charity making donations exempt to the extent of the law.

Tickets are $50 per person and are limited in availability. To make a donation and to purchase tickets, contact Lynda Southerland, event chairperson, at 617-429-8190. Follow the shelter and event on Facebook at www.facebook.com/projectcatwalk2016.

Community Police Open Offices At QHA Buildings

By TOM GORMAN

The city's community police officers will now be a familiar site at Quincy Housing Authority apartments.

The housing authority, in partnership with the Quincy Police Department, created offices in its five apartment buildings for the community police officers to write reports, talk with residents, park their bikes, and have computer access. Members of the community police unit and housing authority officials formally opened one of the offices at Tobin Towers on Clay Street on March 23.

An office was also opened at O'Brien Towers on Bicknell Street the same day. Other offices are slated at Pagnano Towers on Curtis Avenue, Drohan Apartments on Copeland Street, and Sawyer Towers on Martinson Street. Community police officers assigned to the respective wards will use the offices.

Housing Authority Executive Director Jim Lydon said the idea for the offices came out of discussions with police officials over the past couple of months. He noted that crime is not a major issue at apartment complexes but the officers' presence would give the residents, who are mostly elderly or disabled, a better sense of security.

"It's a matter of quality of life for our residents," he said. "It will give our residents a feeling of protection."

Community police unit commander, Lt. Tim Sorgi, said that having the officers in the buildings will give residents a higher level of comfort.

"We see the housing buildings, namely the high rises, as microcosms of the community at large where the higher the visibility, the greater sense of security people have in that particular building," he said. "It was a natural relationship that we worked with the housing authority."

The new office at Tobin Towers was converted from a storage room. The office features two desks, a telephone and Internet access. Large Quincy police emblems have been placed on the windows and doors at the entrance of the building.

Sorgi said that his department reached out to housing authority officials for potential office space and within a week, two of the five were ready.

He emphasized that the offices are not police substations and would not be manned around the clock. They are to be used by the officers as a place to do paperwork or make calls while on bike patrol.

"There will not be any prisoners brought in or any calls dispatched," said Sorgi. "The large component of community policing is visibility, not having an officer spend a whole shift there."

Sorgi added that having an office for the community police officers is critical since they do not have computer access on their bicycles as the patrol officers have in cruisers.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said having the officers in the buildings would help build relationships with the residents.

"Residents are the eyes and ears (of the community)," she said. "The big thing about community policing is collaboration. Having the officers in the buildings gives a sense of comfort and (the residents) can share information if they see something."

Tobin Towers Tenants Association President Pat Cavallaro said just having the large police emblems on the building gives her a sense of security.

"It is a deterrent," she said. "People will question if 'I can come in or stay out.'"

Lydon said that the housing authority has had a similar relationship with the Quincy Fire Department as now with the police. He noted the authority has provided space in Germantown for a fire truck to be stationed there since the old firehouse was closed.

"If we didn't have a fire truck in Germantown, it would be a two-mile run to Germantown (from the nearest fire station)," he said.

City Council President and Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes said the community police offices serve a need.

"I'm excited that the Quincy police as well as the Quincy Housing Authority responded to the needs of the community," she said. "It's definitely something that will make the residents feel more secure and comfortable. There will now be an active presence (in the buildings) which is important."

KKatie's Burger Bar To Open At West Of Chestnut

Gate Residential has signed a lease with owners Keith Steiding and Kate McSorley to open a 2,600 square foot KKatie's Burger Bar at West of Chestnut - a 169-unit luxury apartment community located in downtown Quincy.

"We're thrilled to announce that KKatie's Burger Bar is opening a fourth location, this one in Quincy, a city where so much is happening," said Steiding, co-owner of KKatie's Burger Bar. "Our signature menu and live entertainment features will be a great complement to the thriving urban center in downtown Quincy. We're honored that our brand will be part of the most dynamic development in the City."

KKatie's Burger Bar, which opened its first restaurant in Plymouth in 2010, is a local favorite in Southeastern Massachusetts and has won many awards - including Best Burger by South Shore Living. Among KKatie's signature menu offerings are 18 different types of burgers, - made fresh daily. KKatie's new location will also feature live music, a hallmark of the restaurant's other locations in Plymouth and Marshfield.

"With its unique combination of great food and live entertainment, KKatie's Burger Bar will be a tremendous addition to West of Chestnut and the overall dining and entertainment scene in Quincy Center," said Kyle Warwick, a principal in Gate Residential - developer of West of Chestnut. "KKatie's offers the best burger in the Boston area with a great vibe. We're looking forward to the opening of the restaurant this fall - particularly as the transformation of Quincy Center continues to take shape."

KKaties is slated to open its third store, located on Main Street in Hyannis, in May. The Quincy establishment at West of Chestnut will be the fourth KKaties location.

KKatie's Burger Bar will be the second restaurant located at West of Chestnut. Last month Gate Residential signed a lease with renowned Boston area restaurateur Jimmy Liang to open a 5,000 square foot Japanese fusion restaurant called Fuji at West of Chestnut.

The two restaurants - both opening in September of this year - are key components of Gate Residential's overall strategy to bring a premier mix of retail, dining and lifestyle amenities to the West of Chestnut community they are creating in downtown Quincy.

In addition to KKatie's Burger Bar and Fuji, other components of the outward-facing amenities at West of Chestnut will include a lifestyle and health and fitness tenant, and a café-bakery.

West of Chestnut features 169 highly-amenitized residential units in two six-story urban midrise buildings - including approximately 12,400 square feet of commercial and retail space on the street level. Other features include a top-of-the-line fitness center, cross-training studio, a club suite with a lounge and media room, a dog-wash room, and an outdoor kitchen, fireplace and courtyard.

Gate Residential began construction on West of Chestnut last year following the 2014 announcement of a new joint venture with landowner Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company. Quincy Mutual, which has been in continuous operation in Quincy since it was founded in 1851, is a major investor in the downtown redevelopment.

councillor and I think many others, I'm glad to support something that keeps this piece of equipment in service."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said he was concerned by the increase in overtime, and asked Barron to consider whether it would be more cost effective to including funding to hire new firefighters in the budget for that fiscal year that starts July 1.

"I'd be curious to see whether or not it would be less expensive for the taxpayer to hire more firefighters and have a slightly larger department," Palmucci said. "When I drive around the city, traffic is worse than it was 10, 15 years ago. There is more development. Development that is happening across the city is more dense than it ever has been.

"If there was a time to add to the Fire Department, I think this would be the time."

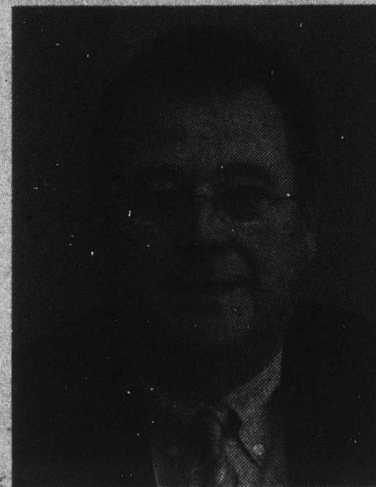

The department currently has 197 firefighters on staff, Barron said, down from 204 before the recession of 2008 struck. The department had as many as 208 firefighters in the past.

John Fagerlund Named Quincy Chamber Vice President

The Board of Directors of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce recently announced John K. Fagerlund has been named the organization's vice president of economic development.

Fagerlund has most recently served as coordinator of the Quincy School-Community Partnership, where he was responsible for generating new partners to support various public school programs. During his tenure, he increased the number of sponsors from 80 to more than 100, with more than $200,000 in funds raised annually.

Fagerlund previously worked as an account executive for Peak Performance Products, director of retail development for Quirk Auto

JOHN FAGERLUND

Dealers, and a 30-year career in sales and marketing for the Chrysler Corporation.

In his new role with the chamber, Fagerlund will be tasked with invigorating the Quincy 2000 Corporation, writing grants, and promoting economic development in the city. He will also manage, develop programs and seek new tenants - program entrants - for the Quincy Center for Innovation.

"John is a results oriented individual and no stranger to the city of Quincy," Quincy Chamber Chairman Ed Fleming said in a statement. "John's energy and excitement about Quincy will be an asset for the chamber and the city moving forward."

A native of Quincy and a graduate of Tufts University with a BA degree in political science, Fagerlund is married to the former Bonita Baldani and has three grown children.

He will begin his new position with the chamber June 6 and looks forward to working with the team at QCC.

Teel Field Renovations Running Over Budget

proceeds from the sale of Central to offset the amount borrowed.

Koch, in an April 1 letter to city councillors, said the money is now needed to go directly to project costs because of several factors.

The mayor, in his letter, said the original project did not include removing and undergrounding the electrical system on Hunt Street, which is now included in the plan at an estimated cost of $1.2 million.

"As the engineering advanced, the deteriorating condition of the National Grid electrical system became abundantly clear and we determined that a new underground system would be most appropriate," Koch said.

Secondly, Koch said the bid price for earthwork came in more than $500,000 over initial estimates. The city is looking toward value engineering, the mayor stated, but must fund the contract at bid price.

Additionally, the purchase of eight homes on Hunt Street and one on Newbury Avenue was $1 million more than projected, Koch said, reducing the city's ability to absorb changes in the project's scope. The city spent $4.8 million to buy those homes, including both the purchases prices and relocation fees paid to those living there.

The mayor's original plan for the Teel Field project included grandstands with room for 600 fans and a new artificial playing surface as well as a scoreboard, concessions, restrooms, a sound system and lighting. A 157-vehicle lot was also included on Hunt Street, to serve both the field and North Quincy High School.

As part of the project, the council in a separate vote appropriated $1.56 million toward work at O'Neil Field at Atlantic Middle School. That appropriation also covered drainage work near Atlantic and legal and engineering work related to both phases of the project.

The city reached an agreement to sell the former Central Middle School at 1012 Hancock St. to Plainville-based Edgewood Development for $3 million in June 2014, about two weeks after the council approved the Teel Field project. Edgewood received permission from the Planning Board to renovate the former school and convert it into a 46-unit condominium building in June 2015.

Building Boston's Subway Topic Tuesday

"Beneath the Streets of Boston: Building the T" will be the topic at a presentation Tuesday, April 12 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Joe McKendry will discuss his book, "Beneath the Streets of Boston," which chronicles the building of America's first subway in Boston starting in 1895. The story will come to life through McKendry's own stunning illustrations, and a historically-accurate narrative about Boston's first "Big Dig."

Looking back at archival photographs, newspaper clippings, and construction blueprints, McKendry will discuss the perils of building the subway in an urban environment. Hear about the subterranean realm of workers who often dug miles of tunnels by hand. Using picks and shovels to excavate new routes, the workers burrowed deep below Boston Harbor, and under Beacon Hill and the Old State House, in order to build the Longfellow Bridge that would carry the trains over the Charles River into Cambridge.

Boston's subway opened on Sept. 1, 1897 - 100 people were on the inaugural ride, and over 100,000 would ride the train on that first day at a cost of only a nickel. Copies of McKendry's book, Beneath the Streets of Boston: Building America's First Subway will be available for sale and signing.

New Voting Machines

to bid for new equipment. The city has to purchase the new machines in May to ensure they can be used for the September primary election.

The voting booths presently used in the city were purchased in 1984, Shea said. The new voting pods have four stations in which residents can cast their ballots — including one that is handicap accessible. Each polling precinct will have four pods, for a total of 16 stations to vote at.

The council approved appropriating the funds for the purchase of the new equipment from the free cash account in an 8-1 vote, with Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci opposed. Before the vote, Palmucci had questioned the use of free cash for several other appropriations that went before the council Monday night, and asked if it represented a policy shift from using free cash to cover capital costs, such as new vehicles.

Council Appropriates $260,000 For Retirement Costs

By SCOTT JACKSON
The City Council on Monday approved allocating $260,000 to the city leave buy back account, which reimburses new retirees for unused sick and vacation days.

The budget for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, set aside $450,000 for city leave buy back. Municipal Finance Director Mark Cavanagh said the amount the city spends each year on that line item can be unpredictable, because there is no way of knowing which employees will retire in a given year except for those in public safety who are required by law to retire at age 65.

The amount each retiree receives also varies. Cavanagh noted the average payout for the first 24 employees to retire this year was $20,000; the last seven people to retire received an average of $30,000.

In general, retirees can cash out unused vacation days from the current year and the previous two years, Cavanagh said. There is no limit to the number of sick days that can be cashed out; retirees receive $50 for each unused sick day.

The council approved appropriating the $260,000 in a 7-0 vote. Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci voted presented and Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest did not vote on that item.

The appropriation was charged to the city's free cash account. City Auditor Susan O'Connor said the city had about $4 million in state-certified free cash on hand entering Monday's meeting, and has about $3 million in free cash remaining following several appropriations from that account.

Street Sweeping Rescheduled

Monday's snowstorm has caused the city to reschedule street sweeping in Ward 1 and 2 to the week of April 25-29. Street sweeping in those areas had been scheduled for this week.

Street sweeping will proceed as planned next week, April 11-15, in Wards 3 and 4, and the week of April 18-22 in Wards 5 and 6.

The Department of Public Works asks that residents remove their vehicles from city streets before street sweeping commences in their neighborhoods. Signs will be posted prior to sweeping.

ENC Commencement May 7

Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) will hold its spring commencement exercises on the college's front lawn at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, May 7, when graduates will receive associate's, bachelor's and master's degrees from the Christian liberal arts college.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Daniel Copp, education commissioner for the Church of the Nazarene. An ordained elder in the church, Copp also serves as the global clergy development director.

Dr. Copp is a magna cum laude graduate of Point Loma Nazarene University in San Diego, Nazarene Theological Seminary in Kansas City and Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena.

City Still Awaiting Revised Flood Maps

ever, meaning the 2014 maps still remain in effect. Shea said the federal agency sent the city a letter on March 29 indicating officials are working on the revised maps without offering a timeline for when they would be issued.

"The city received a letter that FEMA is continuing towards producing the holistic, singular correct maps, but that letter did not include an expected deadline," he said. "So as I stand before you tonight giving an update, I can't give you an update as to when to expect the maps. Certainly, I will be standing right before you the moment that I know."

Shea said his firm is continuing to work with FEMA on the maps. The city, he said, has until the end of April to file a response to issues identified in the March 29 letter.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest criticized FEMA for its handling of the appeal. She said her constituents have continued to pay for flood insurance even after FEMA accepted the city's letter of map revision.

"This is ridiculous as far as the process and what they're imposing. When does FEMA stop looking at this issue from 40,000 feet? When do they get an understanding of what's happening on the ground here in the city on the shorelines?" Laforest said.

"We put forth and they agreed that our science we submitted is correct. They agreed with us that they were going to amend these maps. Yet these constituents of mine have had to pay their flood insurance bill."

Council President Kirsten Hughes called the process "another example of overreaching by federal agencies, which is disappointing, and it sticks cities and towns with the cleanup."

As Woodard & Curran assists Quincy in its appeal of the 2014 maps, it also helping the city in two related avenues: Achieving a better score on FEMA's community rating system, which provides a discount on flood insurance to property owners, and preparing for updated flood maps that could be issued as soon as late 2018 or early 2019.

Quincy is one of five Massachusetts municipalities — along with Braintree, Chatham, Hull and Scituate — to achieve a rank of eight on FEMA's community rating system, which gives property owners a 10 percent discount. The ratings take into account city projects to control flooding, such as seawalls and other infrastructure work.

Shea is hopeful the city can receive a rank of seven from FEMA, which would translate to a 15 percent discount. No Bay State community has a rank of seven or better.

"The city has really upped its communication, upped its interaction across departments with respect to flood protection, flood planning and flood mitigation," Shea said. "It's our goal to be the first community that gets a 15 percent discount."

The city is compiling a report relative to its community rating that is due to FEMA by the middle of April.

FEMA, Shea said, is working with the U.S. Geological Survey on updates maps that could be issued in the winter of 2018-2019. While the maps issued in 2014 focused primarily on making changes in coastal areas, the forthcoming maps will focus on inland streams and rivers. The city is taking a proactive approach with those maps.

"The process in the last maps was so flawed we really want to make sure that we are well ahead with these new maps," Shea said.

"The city has already provided technical data. The city has already reiterated areas of concern — especially along Furnace Brook where there have been significant changes, there have been significant flood mitigation projects, and on Town Brook, where the brook has been relocated — to make sure FEMA's new maps are current and correct when they come out."

Quincy Lions Celebrate 75 Years Of Service

By SEAN GLENNON

Helen Keller once said, "The best and most beautiful things in the world cannot be seen or even touched - they must be felt with the heart."

There was no shortage of heartfelt moments as a capacity of crowd of nearly 200 people filled the ballroom of the Neighborhood Club March 31st to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the Quincy Lions Club, which was established in 1941. The mission of Lions Clubs International is to empower volunteers to serve their communities, meet humanitarian needs, encourage peace and promote international understanding.

In 1925, Keller challenged Lions across the globe to constitute themselves as "Knights of the Blind" in the "crusade against darkness." Locally, the Quincy Lions Club accomplishes this mission by raising money for eye research, sponsoring vision screening clinics, recycling eyeglasses, and donating to various charities and to the Lions Clubs International Foundation.

The grand banquet event, which organizers estimate has raised $20,000 for the club, featured the Lions traditional "five point opening," a video presentation; several award presentations; and remarks from local dignitaries, and from regional and international Lions.

For many, the highlight of the evening came when Virginia (Ginny) "Dolly" Gibson, a singer and piano player, performed a rendition of "That Wonderful Someone" in tribute to all of the Lions gathered in the room. The performance was a moving experience for all, due to the fact that Gibson is blind, and sometimes even reads sheet music in Braille with one hand while playing piano with the other and also sings at the same time.

Gibson was born blind and weighed just over two pounds at birth. As the story is told, her nurses said she looked like a doll at the time, and the nickname just stuck.

LIONS CLUB OF QUINCY recently celebrated its 75th anniversary at a gala dinner March 31 at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy. Among those attending were 13 past presidents of the club. Seated front row (from left) Dave Sawyer, Christine Cedrone, Joyce Hogan, Jean Kenney and Loretta McTiernan. Dinner Raises $20,000; Mayor Proclaims 'Lions Week'

To date, the Quincy Lions Club has donated over $173,000 to the Massachusetts Lions Eye Research Fund, which since the 1950s, has funded cutting-edge research, and is credited for practically eradicating the disease known as "blind baby disease," which was caused by high concentrations of oxygen in incubators years ago.

During the event, club president "King Lion" David Smith announced a new partnership that has been formed between the Quincy Lions Club, Rural Masonic Lodge A.M. & A.F., and the Quincy Public Schools, in an effort to safeguard the vision of children aged six months to six years. The program, known as Lions KidSight USA, is a nationwide initiative and has been made possible locally thanks to the Masons donation of two "Spot Vision Screeners" which will be made available to local public school nurses to screen for seven vision disorders in approximately one minute per student. The Rural Lodge was presented with an appreciation award for its donation of the screeners.

"As we know, visual acuity is necessary for children of that age to learn," said Smith. "If there is a problem with their sight, the earlier it can be corrected, the better the children's educational attainability will be."

In addition to the vision screening program, Quincy Lions also support local students by encouraging them to participate in annual contests sponsored by Lions, such as a peace poster contest, speech contest, and essay contest. The Quincy Lions Club also provides scholarship opportunities to graduates of Quincy High School and North Quincy High School each year.

Citing the club's support to local students and its commitment to improving the quality of life of Quincy residents, Mayor Thomas Koch issued a proclamation declaring March 31 - April 7 as "Lions Week" in the City of Quincy. "The Lions Club is part of the community care in this great city," said Mayor Koch.

During the ceremony, the club was presented with a certificate of appreciation from Lions Clubs International, and was also presented with a 75th anniversary patch for the club banner.

Also during the ceremony, Lion Jean Kenney was inducted into the Melvin Jones Fellowship, which is a society of Lion humanitarians, named after the founder of Lions Clubs International. The honor is presented to those for whom a $1,000 donation is made to Lions Clubs International Foundation. Kenney is only the sixteenth member of the club in its entire history to be honored with the fellowship award.

Other Melvin Jones recipients include each of the Lions mentioned in this story.

Joyce Hogan, member of the Quincy club and past district governor of the Lions, was presented with the club's "Lion of the Decade" award for her constant and unwavering commitment and support of club activities. Donations to Mass Lions Eye Research and Lions Clubs International Foundation have been made in her honor as part of the recognition.

"I am so proud to be a Quincy Lion," said Hogan, who added, "Lions are Loving Individuals Offering Needed Service," citing a more modern twist on the LIONS acronym.

Lion Don Uvanitte, who says he was the youngest member of the club when he joined in 1978, has the distinction of having sponsored over 40 members of the club over the years. When asked the secret of his success in the area of member sponsorship, Uvanitte said the club is something he is passionate about and he makes it a point to talk about Lions when making a new relationship with someone. As for the changes to the club he's seen over the years, Uvanitte said it is now a much more diverse club, which makes it stronger.

"As the city has transitioned, our club has transitioned, and it's all for the better," Uvanitte added.

During the ceremony, Uvanitte announced the recipient of the 2016 Francis X. McCauley Community Service award, which is named after the former Quincy mayor and "life member" of the Quincy Lions Club, who also served as club president during the 1962-63 Lionistic Year. Although McCauley was unable to attend the event, the evening was dedicated to him in recognition of his 56 years of unselfish commitment to the club.

The McCauley award is given annually to an individual who is not a Lion, yet lives their life by the club motto "We Serve."

This year's recipient was Cynthia Sierra, chief executive officer of Manet Community Health Center. Sierra was selected for her "...gracious demeanor, boundless energy, and deep desire to make Quincy and all the communities in the region healthier places in which to live and to work." Prior to the ceremony, Sierra said it was the Quincy Lions Club that made the first donation towards the creation of Manet's vision center, and said she celebrates the club's perseverance and perpetuation over the years in caring for the community.

Providing closing remarks was gala chair David Sawyer, who thanked the event sponsors and said the evening was a great tribute to the work that the club does. "The camaraderie we've seen tonight has been fantastic," said Sawyer.

Closing out the evening was Gibson, back on piano and vocals, who led the entire ballroom in a rousing rendition of God Bless America as Lions joined hand in hand.

Yes Virginia, there is a wonderful someone. That someone is the entire membership which constitutes the one body of the Quincy Lions Club. Helen Keller once said, "The only thing worse than being blind is having sight but no vision."

And so, the Quincy Lions will follow that vision and continue their crusade with renewed vigor until there is an end to preventable blindness. Congratulations, Quincy Lions, and thank you for your service. Roar! Sean Glennon has been a member of the Quincy Lions Club since 2009 and has served as Secretary, Treasurer, and Vice President. With over 1.4 million members worldwide, Lions make up the largest service club organization in the world. The Quincy club has about 75 members and meets on the first and third Thursday of the month from September through June. The club maintains a Facebook page as well as a website at www.quincylions.org, and encourages interested individuals to apply for membership.

McGue (7 Goals) Leads North Over Fontbonne

By BILL GRIFFIN

It is the final act for Marissa McGue.

She has started in three sports for four years. Last year, despite missing five games with an ankle injury, she scored 40 goals to lead

North Quincy to its first tournament berth in lacrosse since 2007. She is a remarkable athlete, good enough to play two sports at the college level, and she would richly enjoy one last, great stretch run in the spring of her senior year.

She will not pass this way again. She began her final trip in fine style, scoring seven goals and adding a pair of assists to highlight an impressive all-around team performance as North rolled past Fontbonne, 18-9 in its season opener at Veterans Stadium Friday evening.

"High school sports has been a great experience for me, so this final season means a lot," she said. "It's awesome to finish my career with this team. I'm playing with friends I've played with my whole career, and we have younger players who are excited about lacrosse, excited about sports. It's a great feeling"

She ruled against Fontbonne. She flew through the Quincy Boys Volleyball Experienced After Rebuild

By TOM JOYCE

Any time the bulk of a team's players have varsity experience and are seniors, they are usually right where they want to be. And after years of rebuilding, it appears to be that way for the Quincy High School boys volleyball team.

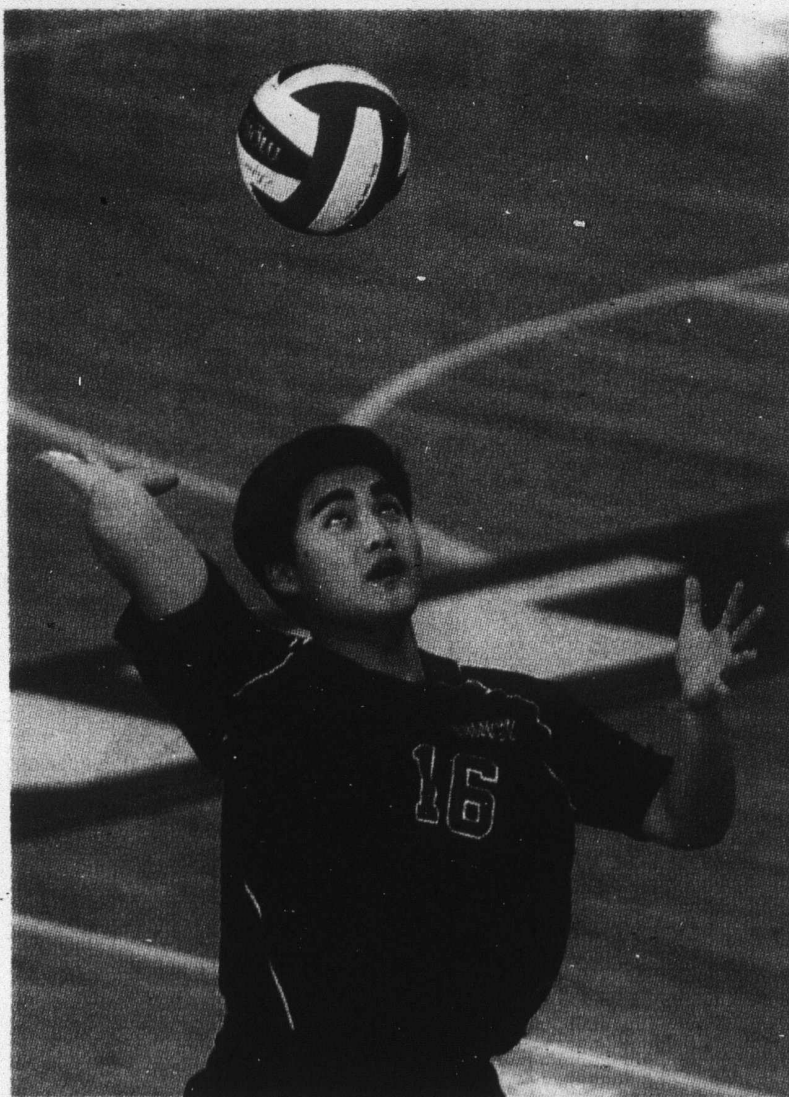

Finishing 5-15 last season, the Presidents were a younger team. But now, in terms of talent, they are senior-heavy. On top of that too, their sophomore class is the biggest.

Last Thursday, the Presidents took home a relatively easy win in their opener over an inexperienced John D. O'Bryant School of Mathematics and Science. The Presidents took all three sets, winning by margins of 25-9, 25-8 and 25-17.

Since they already had the win headed into the third set, Presidents head coach Jacqui Niosi said she used the final contest to give her less experienced players a chance.

"We started some different players," she explained. "We have a lot of sophomores who are playing both JV and varsity, so I put a lot of them in to get them experience. They did a pretty good job I thought."

Based off that first game,

CHRIST PHAM serves for Quincy against the O'Bryant School in the Presidents' straight-set win last Thursday.

Niosi said that her team looks to shine on the attack.

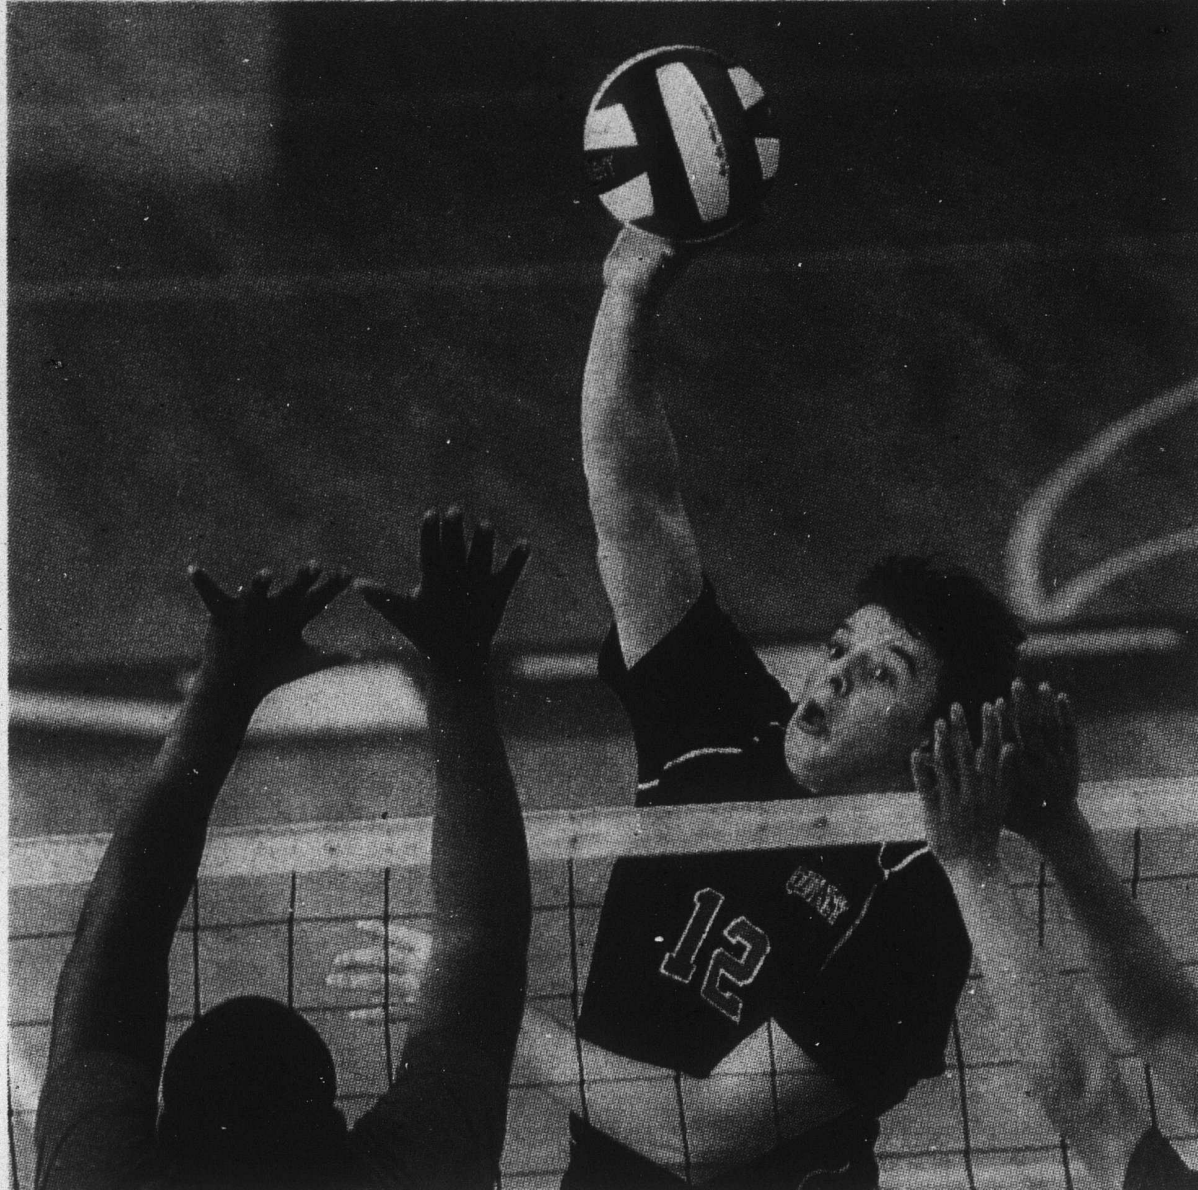

Specifically, the likes of Julio Zai, Chris Situ and Chris Sam at outside hitter, Vince Cristiani at middle hitter and Chris Situ on the inside, will be particularly key for the Presidents.

Defensively, the team is still trying to figure out their game. There is still competition at a few spots, specifically libero. But Kenny Chan looks to be an important piece defensively.

As a whole, part of the problem on defense is simply that the Presidents are too aggressive at times.

"I think we're trying to find a balance between being aggressive and being smart," Niosi said, "because all of the boys want to go up and crush the ball. Trying to figure out when the time to do that is and when is time to play with control is a challenge. Overall, we're a smart team. And I think people like accepting their roles and knowing what their jobs are on the court, so that's big for us."

ALSO HAVING STRONG games at the net for the Presidents were Xhuljo Zyba (top middle) and Stiven Cyfeku (below left).

In order for her team to be successful, Niosi emphasized the importance of teaching her players to play multiple positions. And so far, she has been happy with the results.

"We've been pretty versatile," she said. "We have guys playing different positions and learning new positions, so we can have some depth since that's important."

Even with a tough schedule, facing the likes of North

Quincy-NQ Boys Lacrosse Unite

By TOM JOYCE

Any past tensions between the city's two high schools are being put aside as they hope to achieve a common goal.

North Quincy High School and Quincy High School are no longer enemies in boys lacrosse. In fact, they are teammates as the two programs merged into a co-op this past off-season.

On their own, both programs struggled mightily, winning just six of their 34 games combined last season. North Quincy went 1-15 while Quincy went 5-13.

With the struggles both programs faced recently, both sides have been forced to put rivalry aside.

"I think it's the best thing to happen to Quincy lacrosse," said junior defenseman Josh Rodriguez. "I know we made the tournament a few years ago, but we didn't go too far. I know if we had some kids from North, we definitely would have."

For Rodriguez, who attends Quincy High School, playing with North Quincy kids has not been a struggle for him because he was friends with a number of them already.

Coach Patrick Colby said that so far, there have not been any major issues with the two schools playing and

SAVE YOUR KNEES

More than 700,000 knee-replacement procedures are performed annually in the United States, largely due to the chronic pain and disability caused by age-related "wear and tear" osteoarthritis. As Baby Boomers look to extend their active lifestyles beyond middle age, they may wonder if joint surgery is inevitable. Fortunately, research suggests that early conservative treatment may help stave off the need for knee-replacement surgery or even avoid it altogether. One study indicates that patients experiencing knee pain associated with osteoarthritis who received chiropractic knee adjustments reported significant decreases in pain intensity, as well as less clicking and grinding sensations. They also were better able to perform daily activities with enhanced mobility. Surgery should only be considered as a last resort.

Are you experiencing problems with your knees? At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we have the knowledge and experience to identify the cause of your discomfort. A continuing schedule of regular chiropractic checkups can help detect, correct, and maintain optimal spinal and nervous system function. Let us help you! We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort.

Applications Available For Senior Olympic Games May 9-16

Applications are available for the 34th annual Quincy Senior Olympics that will begin Monday, May 9 and continue through May 19.

The Senior Games are sponsored by the Office of Mayor Thomas P. Koch and administered by the Recreation Department and Department of Elder Services. Presenting sponsor is Linden Ponds Retirement Community of Hingham.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said the goal of the games is to promote and encourage active and healthy lifestyles for men and women age 55 and over in a fun-filled environment.

"Linden Ponds shares our goals and is a natural fit for our games. We thank them for their generosity and their commitment to the seniors we serve," Welch said.

The games will include pickleball played on two pickleball courts constructed adjacent to the Kennedy Center last May. Pickleball competition will feature a men's and women's division.

Senior Olympics applications are available at the office of Mayor Thomas P. Koch, The Kennedy Center and the Recreation Department at One Merrymount Parkway.

Applications will be mailed on request by calling 617-376-1394 or 617-376-1244.

Participants do not need to live in Quincy.

The Olympic events schedule can be found on www.QuincyRec.com. All events are conducted at sites in Quincy and are also supported by Brookdale-Quincy Bay.

The Olympic events include: one mile walk, opening ceremony, celebrity exhibition volleyball game, bowling, swimming, darts, billiards, bocce, three mile walk, horseshoe pitching, basketball free throw, sportsmanship luncheon, track and field events, one mile run, half mile walk, rotation events, softball throw, standing long jump, javelin throw, shot put, discus throw, golf putting competition, pickleball tournament, golf tournament, and an awards night.

middle of the field too fast, too strong for the Ducks to handle. She scored on drives to the net, on whistling bullets off free shots, on spinning moves in the scoring area, and on a solo rush after cleanly winning a draw at midfield. She dropped back to help on defense and broke out of her zone with the same speed and effort she showed going to the net. She had two short, crisp passes which set up goals by Savannah Flynn and Kerin Coleman.

With 11:31 left in the second half, McGue made the play of the game. She quite literally went coast to coast, from the North goal to the Fontbonne goal. McGue cleanly scooped a rebound, cut to the left wing, froze two defenders and sped into the open middle of the field. She split the defense, switched hands as she approached the net, and finished with a lefty drive for the goal.

"Marissa is special. One impressive thing about her is she is still receptive to criticism," said coach Meg Therrien. "We talked to her at halftime about using her other hand, and that's what she did on that goal."

This was more than a one-player performance. Seven different players scored. Coleman had three goals and an assist while Flynn added two goals and an assist. They are veterans, and they know how to play the game. When they catch the ball, they can pass, drive to the net or shoot, which is exactly what Therrien wants.

"We want them to be triple threats when they catch the ball. We want them to be aware of what is around them and look for an open teammate. Savannah and Kerin do that well," said Therrien.

Junior Makeiyah Dambreville added two goals and an assist. She is an excellent athlete who sees well a crease in the defense and can get to the net with a hard shot. This is a team with multiple weapons up front, and Dambreville gives North one more scoring threat to occupy opposing defenses.

"She is a skilled player, and she wants to improve. She is strong around the net, and she has a nice shot. Most importantly, she wants to improve" said Therrien.

Sarah Tsan added a pair of goals while Kara Carchedi and Olivia Hussey had singletons. Molly Kate Cannon had an assist and teamed with McGue to control the center of the field. Celia Hussey and Karyn McEvoy had assists on a pair of beautiful passes. Hussey lofted a long, spot-on pass to Tsan for North's first goal of the game. McEvoy fired a laser of a pass to Coleman for a goal in the first two minutes of the second half which put the Red Raiders up, 9-4.

"It was a very good opener. We have good, experienced players up front," said Therrien. "I saw a great improvement in their skills after just two weeks of practice. I also thought our communication was much better in the second half."

Senior Gabby Doody was solid in goal, especially in the second half when she had eight saves, four of them on free shots. Celia Hussey, Nora McLaughlin, Jamie Meade and Cannon had strong games on defense.

"I thought Gabby played well. She was good in the second half when she got rid of the jitters and settled into the game," said Therrien. "We are rebuilding on defense, so we should improve as the season goes on. I like the skills Nora McLaughlin brings to our defense."

Last year, North went 10-1 and finished its season with four straight must-wins to make the tournament for the first time in eight years, since back in the day when Therrien was a player for the Red Raiders. McGue had 11 goals and five assists in that four-game run. She returns for a final season, and she returns with a platoon of quick, experienced forwards who can score.

"Our goal is to make the tournament again. That's something we have the ability to do," said Therrien.

North hosts Whitman-Hanson Thursday at 4 p.m. unanswered goals to begin the second half and roll past Hull, 14-8 in the non-league opener for the Presidents at Veterans Stadium Friday afternoon.

"I was happy with how we played, especially with the way we stepped up in the second half," said coach Alisa Arakelian. "We talked at halftime about working harder on the 50-50 balls, and we did a good job earning possession. Julia was sharp in goal, and we finished our chances on offense."

Jerahian, a four-year starter, dictated the pace of the match with her open-field speed. She can appear to be motoring at full speed, but has ability to find an extra gear and accelerate past a defender who has no chance. She is especially swift closing on goal. She scored on drives, wrap-arounds, free kicks, and had two goals in Quincy's blitz in the second half which put away the game.

"She can fool a defender with her speed," said Arakelian. "She is super-athletic, and she had developed so well over the past four years. She is a force in every match she plays."

McLaughlin had three goals in Quincy's decisive run, including a steal and rush through the middle which started the surge and put the Presidents up, 8-6 less than a minute into the second half. Hernon added two goals and two assists. They work well together. They each move to open patches of the scoring area, anticipate the play and can thread a pass through a wall of defenders.

"They support and complement each other," said Arakelian. "Maevie is a good defensive player, and Riley is excellent on offense, so they make a good combination."

Silverman was excellent, especially in the second half when she blanked the Pirates for 14 minutes as Quincy built a 12-6 lead.

She stopped five free kicks and four clean breaks on net. She grew more steady and confident as the match progressed and was backed by strong support from defenders McKenna Kiley, Jayda Chase and Sarah Clancy.

"I was happy to see Julia play well. She has a strong work ethic, and she's put a lot of time into improving as a keeper," said Arakelian. "We have good senior experience back there with Jayda, McKenna and Sarah, and they showed it particularly in the second half."

Arakelian talked before the game about controlling the pace and the midfield draws. Jerahian took care of the pace. McLaughlin was good on the draws, but freshman Maggie Tierney (one goal and one assist) was terrific. She used her reach, quickness and timing to win several draws cleanly and simply out-hustled her opponent for the 50-50 balls which fell to the ground.

"Maggie is an excellent athlete, and she uses her size well. Riley did a good job on the draws as well, and I thought our tenacity was good. We fought for every possession," said Arakelian.

Arakelian emphasizes passes which cover yards not feet. Hernon and McLaughlin moved the ball beautifully. Kylie Whalen, Lucy Zhang, Julie Whalen, and Jerahian had a passing sequence late in the first half which went from endline to endline and produced a Jerahian goal. It is the way Arakelian wants her team to advance the ball.

"You can cover more distance more quickly by passing the ball rather than running with it," said Arakelian. "I've preached long-ball passing since I've been at Quincy. We did a good job today. It's the opener and we made some mistakes. But I liked the way we advanced the ball."

One of Quincy's strength is its depth. Arakelian went 20-deep in the win over Hull. There is a nice mix of veterans and young players (seven seniors, seven juniors, ten sophomores, five freshmen) on the roster, and the quality of the play remained high as Arakelian substituted freely against Hull.

"What I like is we have experienced players like our captains (Jerahian, Kiley and Chase) and we have a good feeder system which is sending us talented freshmen and sophomores. The program has taken a good step forward," she said.

Sophomore Taylor Routhier played a fine game and had a goal and an assist. Senior Anxhela Hoti worked as hard as anyone on the field, passed the ball well, and had a pair of assists for Quincy.

Hull scored twice in the final minute of the first half to close to within, 7-6, at intermission, but the margin was deceiving. Quincy dominated the play and would have been up by four or five goals were it not for the work of Hull keeper Kelsey Shipps who had 10 saves in the first half and 17 for the game.

Quincy travels to Silver Lake Thursday for a 4 p.m. game.

"We were definitely young last year," said Niosi. "We had a few games last year that we only lost by a few points. I think we stepped into this season more confident."

Niosi said the league her team plays in is the Southern Alliance and Big 3 combined. As a result, their biggest issue might be travel. They will find themselves on the South Coast multiple times this season with two New Bedford teams and B.M.C. Durfee High School (Fall River) on their schedule. They also have a trip to Cape Cod planned with Barnstable on their schedule.

Niosi is in her third season coaching the program and in the previous two years, the team finished 2-18 and 5-15. With her team on the older side, perhaps, this is the year they earn a spot in the tournament.

"We've had fun so far this season," she said. "They're a fun group of guys. I think there's a lot of potential, so we are definitely hopeful for a good season."

"I think if they work hard and focus on the basics, then we'll do really well."

practicing with one another. "It hasn't really shown to be much of a challenge," he said. "The kids already know each other. They live in the same city, so it hasn't come up as too big of a challenge yet. And I don't think it will be."

"Well, it's been pretty fun," he added. "They've been playing well together. They're only going to get friendlier with each other as time goes on too."

In the co-op's first ever game playing together, they fell to Stoneham High School, 8-7, in overtime at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Early on they were dominant on the attack and as a result, they took a 6-3 lead into the half.

The team could not hold their lead surrendering the tying goal with 45 seconds remaining in regulation. Just seconds into overtime, with momentum against them, they surrendered the game-winner.

Rodriguez said that while he thought his team played a strong game and gave their best effort, they just could not close it out. And for the team to be successful, they will need to be able to play complete games.

An opening loss never helps a team, so the biggest benefit of the game was simply the players playing together in a real-game situation for the first time and the coaches seeing how their players fared.

"We learned what we have to work on more," said Colby. "We need to work on stick skills and defensive communication. All this stuff though is stuff we should be able to kink out by our next game and be ready to go for the rest of the season."

The consensus is that the attack is where the co-op will stand out. Players to watch out for include: Thomas Pugsley, Conor Graham, Joey England, Pat Burke, Ryan Moreschi and Tom Koch.

MIKE CALNAN brings the ball upfield for the Quincy-North Quincy boys lacrosse team in their season opener in the rain last Saturday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

With both teams merging, depth most certainly is not an issue, nor is experience.

"The seniors have really been stepping up with their leadership," said Colby, "And I can't really name one guy in particular. They've all been stepping up for the team."

Right now, the team is still missing some players due to injuries from other sports and when they come back, the team will be in a better position.

Nearly every high school team's goal is to make the tournament. But looking at their schedule, the co-op's biggest challenge will be playing perennial powerhouse Duxbury.

"We want a good game against them," said Rodriguez. "We don't want to just let them take it."

Quincycycles Ride Season Starts Saturday

Quincycycles announces its 2016 ride season will begin this Saturday, April 9.

The ride season will span April to October and the group will host two rides a month: a longer distance ride for those who want a challenge and a shorter ride for those who prefer a more relaxed pace.

Highlights of the season include the 2nd Annual Ride the Spine visibility event to kick off Bay State Bike Week on May 14, the Beaches of Quincy Ride with long or short route options this year, a ride through Quincy history, and the very popular destination rides.

Bicyclists are invited to participate in the season's first ride Saturday, April 9th at 7:30 a.m. Participants are invited to meet 15 minutes prior to the start time at 34 Coddington St., Quincy. From there the approximately 15 mile/2 hour ride will travel to East Milton, along Brook Road to the Neponset River Trail, cross the Neponset Bridge to Commander Shea Blvd. to Marina Bay and back to Quincy Center.

Riders are welcome to gather after the ride at Gunther Tooties.

Quincycycles is a group of Quincy residents advocating for bicycle infrastructure on our city streets and promoting responsible bicycling as a means of transportation, recreation, and exercise in Quincy.

More information about the group can be found on their website at www.Quincycycles.org or by email quincycycles@gmail.com.

Residents Running Marathon For Cancer Research

Five Quincy residents - Emily Sullivan, Rachael Mezzetti, Christopher Nix, Tara Sullivan and Lauren Marini - will run the Boston Marathon April 18 to raise money for cancer research as members of the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge team.

Sullivan, Mezzetti, Nix, Sullivan and Marini, along with more than 550 Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge teammates from across the United States and around the world, will run Massachusetts' historic marathon route from Hopkinton to Boston with a goal to raise $5.4 million for cancer research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

This year marks the 27th annual running of the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge. One hundred percent of the money raised by the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge team funds Dana-Farber's Claudia Adams Barr Program in Innovative Basic Cancer Research. The Barr Program supports uniquely promising science research in its earliest stages, providing researchers with critical resources to test their leading-edge ideas. Findings from Barr Program research can provide the results necessary to seek additional federal funding as well as novel clinical insights.

Since its inception in 1990, the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge has raised nearly $75 million for the Barr Program. Dana-Farber Trustees J. Wayne and Dolores Barr Weaver founded the Barr Program in 1987 to honor Mrs. Weaver's mother, Claudia Adams Barr, who lost her battle with cancer 30 years earlier.

In 1990, Dana-Farber was among the first charity organizations to be recognized by the Boston Athletic Association (B.A.A.), which organizes the Boston Marathon. The Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge team offers its members extensive fundraising support, training guidance from 1976 Boston Marathon men's champion Jack Fultz, and team training runs, plus volunteer opportunities for non-runners. Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge runners who are not time-qualified for the Boston Marathon receive an invitational entry into the race. Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge runners include cancer survivors and patients, and family and friends of those who have been affected by cancer. Runners of all abilities participate with the goal to help put an end to cancer. Each Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge team member must fulfill a basic fundraising commitment:

Invitational runners, runners who receive their entry from Dana-Farber, have a fundraising commitment of $5,000.

Own entry runners, runners who have joined the DFMC after obtaining their own race entry, have a fundraising commitment of $4,000.

The Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge is one of multiple ways runners can support the lifesaving mission of Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Participants can run on the Dana-Farber team in the Boston Marathon, the B.A.A. 5K, the Falmouth Road Race, and the B.A.A. Half Marathon, or run in any race, of any distance, in any city, while raising funds for Dana-Farber and the Jimmy Fund. For more information visit RunDanaFarber.org.

Lifeguard Training Course During April School Vacation At Lincoln-Hancock Pool

The City of Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Course at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool during April School Vacation, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The course is open to participants who are at least 15 years of age and capable of passing a pre-requisite water skills test.

The prerequisite swim test will be given to all candidates on Friday, April 15 at 7 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Class will be held on Saturday, April 16 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Community Room of the Koch Park and Recreation Complex. Class will not be held on Patriots Day Monday, April 18.

The remaining classes will be held Tuesday, April 19 through Friday, April 22 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Registration for the course is limited and can be done online at QuincyRec.com, by phone at (617) 376-1394, or in person at the Quincy Recreation office, One Merrymount Parkway, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The cost of the program is $140, which includes all books, supplies, and Red Cross fees.

Upon successful completion of the course, an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Certificate, CPR for the Professional Rescuer and First Aid Skills will be issued.

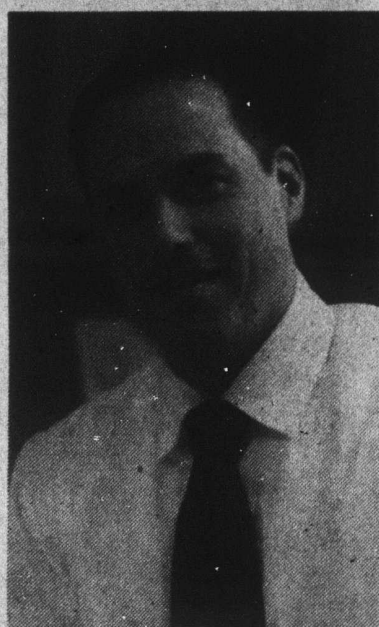

More information is available on QuincyRec.com and by calling Quincy Recreation at 617-376-1394.

Rick Latini Chief Engineer At Boston Engineering Firm

Howard Stein Hudson, HSH, a firm delivering transportation and engineering solutions for clients in Boston and throughout the region since 1987, has named Rick Latini of Quincy, to the position of chief engineer.

Latini's experience in land use permitting and infrastructure design spans more than 20 years. In his capacity as chief engineer, he will lead Quality Assurance and Quality Control (QA/QC) for all public and private company projects.

Among the many recent projects that bear Latini's mark at HSH are: the design of Charlesview at Brighton Mills; Weymouth Landing streetscape improvements in Braintree and Weymouth; and Meriel Marina Bay, a 350-unit residential project in Quincy.

RICK LATINI

Latini, who joined HSH in 2009, holds a Bachelor of Science degree in civil engineering from the University of Massachusetts, Lowell.

He is a member of the National Association of Industrial and Office Properties (NAIOP) Massachusetts; the Urban Land Institute; the American Society of Civil Engineers; the Boston Society of Civil Engineers; and is a Trustee of the Quincy Historical Society.

"Rick is an astute and diligent engineer who has garnered respect within our firm and throughout the industry," said Thomas Stokes, Chief Executive Officer at HSH. "He understands the transition from design to successful implementation in the field. We look forward to Rick leading our engineers in delivering modern, cost effective and sustainable projects throughout the Northeast."

Kenneth Mui Appointed Carney Hospital Board Of Directors

Kenneth T. Mui, a detective with the City of Cambridge Police Department and Quincy resident, has been appointed to the Carney Hospital Board of Directors.

"Ken Mui represents an important addition to the hospital's board of directors," said Carney Hospital president, Walter J. Ramos. "As a decorated police officer, Ken will bring a unique perspective on the communities we serve to the board of directors and the hospital's planning."

"Carney Hospital has a wonderful history and a record of providing quality care to the residents of Quincy, Dorchester and the surrounding communities," said Mui. "I look forward to working with Walter Ramos and the hospital's leadership in continuing their mission."

A veteran police officer, Mui graduated from the Plymouth Police Academy and he holds a degree in criminal justice from University Massachusetts - Boston. His policing experience includes service as a patrolman and then detective with the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority Police Department, before joining the City of Cambridge Police Department. Mui has received multiple decorations during his policing career, including the MBTA Transit Police Chief's Commendation, the Boston Police Department Chief's Commendation, the Massachusetts Police Association Community Service Award and the George L. Hanna Memorial Award for Bravery, Medal for Valor.

Mui also serves as the president of the Benevolent Asian Jade Society of New England, an organization comprised of police officers from across New England working to address issues and concerns affecting local Asian communities, as well as the public-at-large. He is an active member of Troop 42 in Quincy (Boy Scouts), where he serves as an assistant scout master, mentoring his two boys and other young men in building character, developing leadership skills, promoting good citizenship, and supporting an appreciation for outdoor adventure.

Ward 6 Residents,

On behalf of the Vote Shaughnessy Committee I'd like to congratulate Mr. William Harris on his recent appointment as Ward 6 Councilor.

I would also like to personally thank all the fine citizens, friends, and neighbors that invited me into their homes while I was knocking on doors campaigning thru out our neighborhoods. I was overwhelmed by your support and your kind words of encouragement.

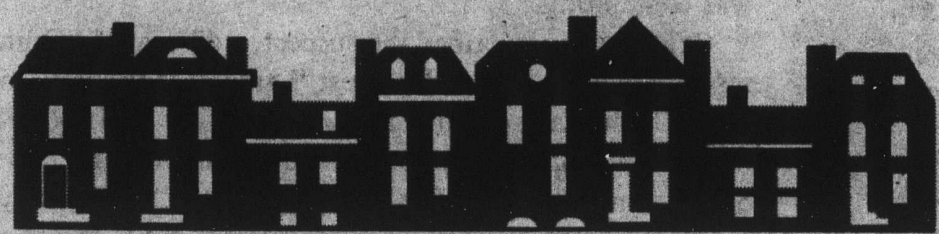

I wish the election had not been cancelled, however I have no regrets for running. I enjoyed meeting so many terrific people and listening to your concerns. There are many issues that are so important to all of us and I intend to stay active in our community.

Once more I would like to say "thank you".

Sincerely,

Alie Shaughnessy

Ask Barbara Graceffa: Secretary Of The Interior

Dear Secretary of the Interior:

I LOVE all the decorating tips you give us. Are there some mistakes to avoid in interior design?

I fear my home has a few (or many?) and I don't even know it! Sherry P.

Wow, what a great question! I actually took notes on this subject from an HGTV special many years back and share the list with my interior design students. I present it to you in a David Letterman countdown style.

Starting at #25 and working to the #1 biggest mistake many people make: toilet rugs, too many photos, ignoring the foyer, visible or undressed cords and cables, out of place and over-the-top themes, outdated accessories, lop-sided furniture arrangements, keeping something you hate, too formal, uncomfortable dining chairs, lack of a traffic pattern, everything matches, following fads, furniture that doesn't fit, too many colors or patterns, floating rugs (i.e., at least the front feet of your furniture should rest on the rug; instead, buy bigger rugs!), improper lighting, frames hung too high, tacky couch covers, furniture pushed back up against the wall in a large room, ignoring the windows, fear of color, knick-knack overload, too many pillows, and the number one mistake.... plastic flowers.

Of course there are others; please allow me to add my top five that have to do with fresh and clean décor: dirty or worn furniture and window treatments, shabby or damaged flooring of any kind, walls that have not been washed or painted in years, outdated kitchens and baths, and the number one mistake I see... a cluttered room.

Do you have a decorating problem needing a professional solution? Send your questions to Secretary of the Interior. 968 Hancock Street (corner of Hancock & Furnace Brook Parkway)

On Saturday, March 26, 2016, at approximately 5:20 p.m., Officer Tim Kaes was dispatched to the Police station lobby on a report of a larceny of a purse.

On arrival, the Officer met the victim, who stated that her purse had just been stolen from her vehicle while she was at the Morgan Memorial Goodwill store to donate clothes and other items. She said that she parked her vehicle on the Pond street side of the building at the donation door and made four trips to and from her vehicle. As she was bringing the donations inside, she noticed a woman that came in the door acting suspicious. The woman asked the employee if she knew if "someone" was working and the employee stated he had no idea who she was talking about.

The victim described the suspect as a skinny woman with long blond hair, wearing a baseball hat and blue jeans. After bringing in her donations, the victim drove away toward her home in Braintree and it was then that she realized that her purse was missing from the front seat. The victim returned to Goodwill in hopes of having left it there inadvertently, but as she drove she linked the circumstantial evidence together; she left her car unlocked while making the trips inside the store and the woman making a false inquiry if someone unknown to the employee was working today.

After no luck at Goodwill, the victim came into the Police station to report the theft of her purse, stating that about a half hour elapsed. She also gave an in depth description of the purse as being black leather, approximately 10 inches long with a long black adjustable strap. Inside was a black and white Coach wallet, her Massachusetts license, about 8 credit cards, 4 gift cards (AMC, 2 Legal Seafood, Coops), her deceased father's identification cards and her State Street employee FOB access. A description of the suspect was given out to all cruisers as Officer Kaes began his report. At approximately 6:30 p.m., Civilian Dispatcher Michael Bowes dispatched a report that a female was selling gift cards out of her car in front of the Irish Pub. Officer Kaes informed responding units about the contents of the stolen purse.

Officers Mark Millane, Jamie Greene, M.J. O'Brien and E.J. Hartnett arrived at the Irish Pub and spotted three females in a car. They approached the vehicle and saw a black leather purse. One female said that it was her purse but the identification did not match. In addition, there were gift cards but there was no name on them. The females were detained while Officers Kaes and Colleen Paccioretti responded to the scene.

The female suspect was thin with blonde hair, wearing a baseball hat and blue jeans. Officer Paccioretti found $131.00 cash, lipstick, an orange pill and receipts from credit card purchases. When questioned about the purse, the female suspect blurted out, "I found the purse on the street" and motioned to the street in front of the pub. One of the other females in the car said that she is the suspect's sister, adding that this was the first time she has seen or talked to her sister in a year. The sister then said, "You might as well consider all of the stuff back there stolen", referring to the backseat of the vehicle which was filled with property that were newly purchased, comparing them with receipts from TJ Maxx in Quincy. Officer Kaes matched receipts of recent purchases with the victim's credit card to items in the back seat of the vehicle. The third female was the owner of the vehicle. She said that the three had been together for the past two hours but had no idea of the crimes the suspect was committing.

Officer Kaes informed the suspect, a 43 year old Quincy resident that she was under arrest "Larceny of Property over $250 (Credit Card-obtaining goods with false card), Receiving Stolen Property over $250, and Possession of Class B, Subsequent offense." The receipts, empty Coops gift card holder, two tags to unrecovered property, and a photocopy of credit cards were found in the suspect's bra by the cell block matron during booking. Two Orange pills believed to be Suboxone (one found in pocket at scene and second found during booking process) were logged into evidence and placed into drug locker. Nice Work!

CONSIDER:

- Locking your door is always recommended. It is easy to let your guard down when leaving it open for just a few moments. This was a crime of opportunity. The suspect saw the purse as a quick hit because it was left in plain view.

- Carrying fewer credit cards. Canceling 8 credit cards makes life more complicated when you have to cancel each one and then have new ones reissued. Although you would not be responsible for the charges by acting timely to notify the Police, it is a major inconvenience. Did you report all the cards in your wallet? Just carry the card that you plan on using!

- Don't carry around gift cards unless you plan on using them right away. Once they are in another person's hands, it is very difficult if not impossible to prove that they are yours.

- Do not carry around sentimental papers or photos unless you can replace them easily.

- Take a look in your wallet and purse to see what you really need or use. It will save you time and prevent aggravation if they are stolen.

OBITUARIES

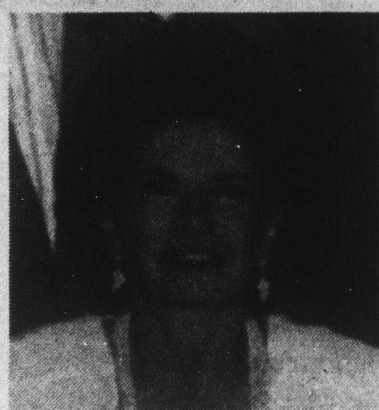

Lydia Taglieri, 76

A Mass of Christian Burial for Lydia (Volpe) Taglieri, 76, of Plymouth and formerly Quincy was celebrated Monday at St. Bonaventure's Church, Plymouth.

Mrs. Taglieri died peacefully at home on March 31.

She was the devoted wife of John J. Taglieri for 57 years. She was the loving mother of Theresa Dorr and her husband Donald of Plymouth, John L. Taglieri and his wife Kimberly of Duxbury, Vincent M. Taglieri of ME, Janine Young and her husband Jon of Quincy, and Lawrence Taglieri and his wife Patricia, of Braintree. She was the sister of Anna Coleman and her husband James, and the late Domenic Volpe. She was the proud grandmother of Anna, John, Nicholas, Christopher, Nicolina, and Matthew Taglieri. She was a loving aunt to many nieces and nephews.

She was born in Quincy on Aug. 2, 1939, daughter of the late Vincent and Nicolina (Gentile) Volpe. Mrs. Taglieri was a graduate of Quincy High School, Class of 1957, and went on to a career as a lighting consultant. She went into business for herself and established the Apollo Lighting and Supply Company.

Her retirement years were spent at Great Island in Plymouth where she enjoyed her many friends. She took great pleasure in directing the community's social club, and volunteered at St. Bonaventure's Church as a Eucharistic minister. She also volunteered her time comforting people with Alzheimer's disease. Above all she cherished time with family and friends.

She will be greatly missed.

Funeral arrangements were made by Davis Funeral Home, Plymouth.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to the St. Bonaventure's Fund for the Needy, PO Box 996, Manomet, MA 02345.

Catherine A. Gibbons, 98

A funeral Mass for Catherine A. "Kay" Gibbons, 98, of Houghs Neck was celebrated Tuesday in Holy Trinity Parish at Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Gibbons died March 30.

She was originally from Dorchester and a Houghs Neck resident for more than 60 years. She was a daily communicant of Most Blessed Sacrament Church where she attended the 9 a.m. Mass for many years. Mrs. Gibbons was very proud of her family and Irish heritage, and would happily share her many stories about growing up in Savin Hill. Her presence and sense of humor will be sadly missed by her family and friends.

Beloved wife of 39 years to the late Thomas J. Gibbons. Loving mother of Thomas G. Gibbons and his wife Carol of Plymouth, Jeanne M. Flaherty and her husband Robert of Quincy, Brian S. Gibbons and his wife Lorraine of Quincy and Richard J. Gibbons and his wife El of Quincy. Devoted Nana Kay of Kerry Tobin, Katie, Erin, Matthew, Mark, Daniel, Shaun, Michael and Brendan and Great Nana Kay of Hailey, Brenna, Cassidy, Ryan and Jamie. Cherished daughter of the late Dennis and Mary Callahan. Caring sister of Mary T. McGillvray of Quincy and the late Helen White and Frank Callahan. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Her family would like to extend their deepest thanks and appreciation for the love and care that the staff of the Pope Nursing Home of Weymouth has shown to Kay over these past 6 years.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Memorial donations may be made to Boston Children's Hospital Trust, 401 Park Dr., Suite 602, Boston, MA 02215.

Catherine A. Craig, 104

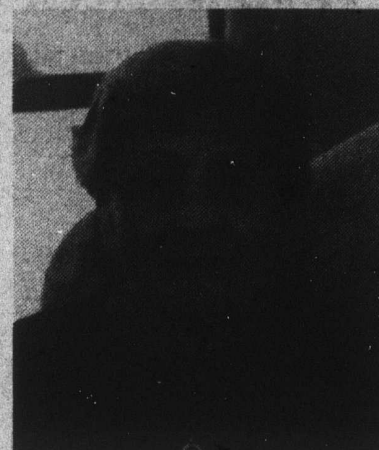

Catherine A. (Poluzzi) Craig, 104, a lifelong Quincy resident, died peacefully March 29 at Hancock Park Rehabilitation and Nursing Center in Quincy, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Hardwick, Vermont, and was raised and educated in Quincy. Mrs. Craig was a proud and independent woman. She was also a devoted homemaker who enjoyed cooking, gardening, reading, and bird watching.

Beloved mother of Barbara L. Evans of Clinton, Audrey M. Shea and her late husband Robert of Hanson, Catherine E. "Kitty" Stone and her husband John of South Weymouth, Robert G. Craig and his wife Sally of Quincy, the late Frank F. Craig and his wife Jeanne of Braintree, the late William Craig and his late wife Gail, the late Harold Craig and Joseph Craig.

Loving grandmother of 17 grandchildren, 23 great-grandchildren, and four great-great-grandchildren. She was also grandmother of the late Charles Evans and great-grandmother of the late Brendyn Craig.

One of five siblings, she was sister of Frank Poluzzi of

CATHERINE A. CRAIG

Quincy and predeceased by Bruno Poluzzi, Linda Pinney and Rachel Shepherd. She was also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Funeral services and interment in North Weymouth Cemetery were private.

Memorial donations may be made to the Quincy Animal Shelter, P.O. Box 690088, Quincy, MA 02269 or to the Hancock Park Rehabilitation and Nursing Center Activities Fund, 164 Parkway, Quincy, MA 02169.

The family would like to thank the wonderful staff at the Hancock Park Rehabilitation and Nursing Center for the kindness and love shown to Mrs. Craig and her family.

Arrangements were made by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Interfaith Social Services Walk April 30

Interfaith Social Services' 42nd Annual South Shore Walk, 5K Race and Family Fun Fest will be held on Saturday, April 30th at the Kennedy Center in Quincy.

The walk and 5K route feature views of the Boston skyline as seen from the Squantum and Marina Bay sections of Quincy. The Family Fun celebration after the walk/race includes: kids games, face painting, food, music, raffles, and much more.

All participants must pre-register at: interfaithsocialservices.org/walkand5k

Organizers said the theme of this year's race will focus on challenging stereotypes and eliminating the stigma associated with mental illness and addiction.

"Nearly everyone in our community knows someone who has been affected by mental illness or addiction," said Interfaith's executive director Rick Doane "One in five adults in America experience mental illness every year, millions are suffering, yet people don't discuss it openly.

"We decided to focus our Walkathon and 5K Race around this issue. On April 30th we hope that the streets of Quincy will be full of walkers and runners. This outpouring of support will show our community that we support our loved ones in need. No one should be ashamed about a diagnosis."

Interfaith Social Services, based in Quincy, has been helping local families since 1947. Interfaith operates one of the largest emergency food pantries in Greater Boston.

Their programs also focus on mental health counseling, addiction recovery and emergency assistance. All of the funds raised via The South Shore Walk and 5K Race will support Interfaith's New Directions Counseling Center. New Directions is dedicated to serving anyone in need of help, including those without health insurance or those who lack adequate coverage.

Michelle Boyd DeJong

A memorial celebration of life for Michelle Boyd DeJong of Tampa will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Granite Links Golf Club in Quincy.

Mrs. DeJong died on Valentine's Day in the arms of her loving husband, surrounded by family and friends in the house that her passion transformed into a home.

She was the beloved wife of Ryan DeJong of Tampa, loving daughter of Robert and Denise Bereszniwicz Boyd of Quincy, and sister of Christopher Boyd of South Boston. She was also the granddaughter of Dorothy Bereszniwicz and the late William Bereszniwicz, as well as the late Joseph and Mildred Boyd.

Mrs. DeJong was born and raised in Quincy and loved spending summers in Falmouth, Cape Cod. She graduated from North Quincy High School in 2004 and from the University of Tampa in 2008. In only 29 years, she grew into a successful entrepreneur and was the owner and operator of mdb&co, a marketing firm specializing in PR and content development. She was also honored for her philanthropic work and community leadership, serving on the Board of Directors for the charitable organization High Hopes in High Heels.

Her life ended after a courageous battle against an inoperable brain tumor, but it is not the cancer by which her life will be defined or remembered. Mrs. DeJong raised over $150,000 for brain cancer awareness and research. She approached her treatments and clinical trials fearlessly and made the ultimate contribution when she donated her tumor tissue for research.

She will be remembered for her fighter mentality, unparalleled work ethic, zest for life, unconditional love and most of all, her selfless spirit and ability to make a positive impact on everyone she came in contact with. Her daily lessons and conviction that she had the ability and responsibility to "be the good" inspired thousands to live better lives and will be her inspiring legacy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Fighter Foundation, 333 West Comanche Ave., Tampa, FL 33604.

Margarita Pani, 80

A funeral service for Margarita Pani, 80, of Quincy was held April 2 in Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Mrs. Pani died peacefully on the morning of March 29 at St. Elizabeth's Medical Center in Brighton following a short illness.

She was the devoted wife of 58 years to Sotirag Pani.

Born and raised in Albania, she was a daughter of the late Kristaq and Dhimitra (Lubonja) Papargjiri. Mrs. Pani lived and worked as a teacher and later vice principal of 29 November Middle School in Tirana, Albania, for many years, retiring in 1985. She immigrated to the United States with her family in August 1996, settling in Quincy.

MARGARITA PANI

She is survived by her loving husband Sotirag Pani, their sons Vasil Pani and his wife Aida, and Andrew Pani and his wife Saida, and grandsons Loren and Frankly Pani and Ryaan and Yousif Pani, all of Quincy. Dear sister of Adhella Haviari of Albania and Athinulla Kolaci of Braintree.

Interment at Village Cemetery, Weymouth.

April Is Financial Literacy Month

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

April is Financial Literacy Month, which is a perfect time to take stock (pun intended) of your retirement savings. Social Security is there to help secure your future, but savings should be the foundation of a bigger retirement plan.

Have you ever done business online? The convenience and safety of doing business online is another way we're meeting the changing needs and lifestyles of our customers. You can open your own personal my Social Security account within a matter of minutes and have access to your information at any time of day, from the comfort of your home or office.

With a my Social Security account, you can:

- Keep track of your earnings and verify them every year, which is important because we use your earnings, along with other information, to help determine your benefit amount and eligibility;
- Get an estimate of your future benefits, if you are still working;
- Get a letter with proof of your benefits, if you currently receive them; and
- Manage your benefits:
 - Change your address;
 - Start or change your direct deposit;
 - Get a replacement Medicare card; and
 - Get a replacement SSA-1099 or SSA-1042S for tax season.

If you live in the District of Columbia, Michigan, Nebraska, Washington, or Wisconsin, you may be able to replace your Social Security card online using my Social Security. It's an easy, convenient, and secure way to request a replacement card online.

To take advantage of this new service option, you must:

- Have or create a my Social Security account;
- Have a valid driver's license in a participating state or the District of Columbia (or a state-issued identification card in some states);
- Be age 18 or older and a United States citizen with a domestic U.S. mailing address (this includes APO, FPO, and DPO addresses); and
- Not be requesting a name change or any other changes to your card.

We plan to add more states, so we encourage you to check www.socialsecurity.gov/ssnumber throughout the year.

In April, Social Security celebrates National my Social Security Week. The biggest day in that week is "Check Your Statement Day." It's important that you check your Social Security Statement every year since we base your future benefits on your earnings record. Your Statement can help you plan for your financial future. We encourage you to go online to my Social Security to access your Statement whenever you wish to verify your earnings history or check your estimated future benefits.

One sure way to stay on top of your financial future: you can join the more than 23 million people who have opened their own my Social Security account at www.socialsecurity.gov/myaccount.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Whether a waiting period is taking longer than expected, or just seems that way, the anxious Lamb would do well to create a center of calm within her- or himself, and not do anything rash.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Practical matters dominate the week, but cultural activities also are favored, especially those that can be shared with someone special in the Bovine's life. Some important news might be forthcoming.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You need to know more about a possible career move in order to see if it offers a real opportunity or just a change. You're sure to get lots of advice — some of it good — but the decision must be yours.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The arrival of hoped-for good news about a loved one dominates most of the week and provides a great excuse for the party-loving Moon Child to plan a special event to celebrate.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Leos and Leonas rushing to finalize their plans might want to think about slowing down the pace, or risk overlooking an important consideration that could become a sore point down the line.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The week's challenges call for logical approaches. But sentiment also has its place. Sharing memories with a special someone, for example, strengthens the bond between you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A brand-new approach to a problem could have a good chance of succeeding if it's based on a solid foundation of fact to strengthen its potential for standing up to scrutiny.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A favorable report should give your optimism an important boost as you confront another phase of a challenge. Don't be timid about accepting advice from someone you trust.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might want to target another goal if your current aim is continually being deflected. But stay with it until you find that first sign of an opening, and then follow through.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although offers of advice might not always please the usually sure-footed Goat, good counsel is always worth considering, especially from those whose experience can be invaluable.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't rush to make up for lost time. Your productivity can be measured not only by what you do, but how you do it. Move carefully until the job is done the way you like it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Emerging facts about someone you know might cause you to rethink your relationship. But remember to make judgments in context of a full situation, not just on scraps of data.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are known both for your love of acquiring beautiful things as well as for your generosity to others.

the people of Ward 6 and the people of Quincy. Thank you so much."

The council then recessed, giving Harris a chance to pose for pictures with his wife, Carole, and daughter, Mary.

Harris' long road to the Ward 6 seat began on in January, after the council scheduled a special election to fill the seat previously held by McNamee, who died Dec. 23 following a brief battle with cancer. Preliminary voting in that contest had been set for Tuesday, with a final election on May 3.

Harris, who finished runner-up to McNamee in last year's municipal election, challenged the council's call for a special election in Norfolk County Superior Court. Harris and his attorney, former City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie, contended he was entitled to the seat according to a 1953 law that requires the council to appoint the runner-up if a councillor-elect dies before the start of a new term.

The council, based on the recommendation of City Solicitor Jim Timmins, scheduled the special election under provisions of home rule petitions approved in 1984 and 2004, which call for a special election if a ward council seat is vacated for any reason during the first year of a two-year term.

Superior Court Judge Rosalind Miller ruled in favor of Harris March 30, ordering the council to appoint him to the vacant seat. The following day, she rejected a motion for reconsideration filed by Timmins, after which city officials canceled the special election and decided to move ahead with the appointment.

At Monday's meeting, Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said he still believed the city's stance calling for a special election was correct, but said it was important for Ward 6 to have its own representative.

"I supported the city's position in this and I still think it was the correct position, but I was always of the opinion that Ward 6 should go as short of a period of time without representation as possible," Palmucci said.

"In conformance with the judge's ruling and in conformance with that principle that the ward council job is too busy and too much happens in the ward, Ward 6, to go without filling that seat, I'll support this motion."

At-large Councillor Joseph Finn, who resides in Ward 6 and had shouldered the responsibilities of the district's representative since McNamee's death, said the council in 2004 had intended to have such vacancies resolved by voters and said his colleagues should consider a new home rule petition to that effect. The council's original call for a special election, he said, was not personal.

"Quite clearly the judge has made a decision and we need to honor that. If this body continues to believe in the importance of what was attempted in the past, I think its time to revisit and take a look at generally the home rule petition," Finn said.

"All of that aside, it's very important that everyone understands it had nothing to do with the personality involved here. I've known Bill and Carole for a very long time and I know what their commitment to the community is."

Councillor Nina Liang, who likewise resides in Ward 6, thanked Finn for filling in as the ward councillor. She added it was important to honor Miller's decision and also to revisit the procedures on filling council seats for clarity in the future.

"There is a lot coming down the pike in that ward and I think it's important we honor the judge's decision tonight and appoint Mr. Harris to the council seat," Liang said. "That being said, I do still want to continue to look ahead and address the fact that we do, I think, need to go back and amend the ordinance just so we're very clear on what happens if this happens again."

Councillor Noel DiBona agreed that it was time to revisit how vacancies are filled and also apologized to Harris and the four other residents who were set to appear on the ballot Tuesday - Nathan Knowles, Kevin Mock, Brian Radell and Alie Shaughnessy.

"I just feel bad," he said. "I feel bad that everyone had to go through this. I feel bad as a body - I feel bad as a councillor - that this all happened."

City Council President Kirsten Hughes thanked Finn for filling in as the district's ward councillor while the seat remained vacant.

"It's not an easy task to take over things at-large as well as Ward 6, but we appreciate that," she said.

Miller, in the 11-page ruling she issued on March 30, agreed with Harris' contention that the seat was vacated in December during the previous council term and not at the start of the current one on Jan. 4.

"On the undisputed record evidence, the Ward Six councillor position vacancy did not occur during the first twelve months of the term of office," Miller wrote. "McNamee was never sworn into office."

Miller also disagreed with the city's claim that the 1953 law was trumped by the two later acts, finding that the 1953 legislation was neither expressly repealed by nor inconsistent with them.

"The provisions of the 1953 Act for filling a vacancy in the event of the death of a city councillor-elect prior to taking office are not inconsistent with the provisions of the Special Act of 1984 which provides for filling a vacancy where the vacancy occurs during the first twelve months of a councillor's term," Miller stated.

"One applies to the situation where the vacancy occurs before the city-councillor elect takes office, and the other applies where the vacancy occurs during the first twelve months after the city councillor takes office."

Four New Police Officers Sworn In

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Police Department's four newest patrol officers were sworn in Monday morning before family and friends in the Great Hall at the James R. McIntyre Government Center.

Two of the new officers, Michael Brokmeire and Daniel Rosenthal, joined the ranks as lateral transfers from the Winthrop and Revere Police Departments, respectively. They will complete about a month of field training with the Quincy police before being given assignments, Police Chief Paul Keenan said.

Ian Honan and Daniel Murphy, the remaining new officers, will undergo six months of training at the Massachusetts State Police Academy in New Braintree beginning April 11. After graduating the academy in October, the officers would then complete field training with the Quincy Police Department.

Mayor Thomas Koch said the four new officers are joining a department that keeps the city safe and does great work.

"You're joining a great department, as you know. You wouldn't be here if you didn't know that," Koch said. "They do great work for our city and we're a better city, we're a safer city because of the work of the frontline of our police department each and every day."

"You're joining the ranks of a great department."

Keenan said the officers are joining the department at a key time in the city's history.

"You guys are starting at a really good time. There is a tremendous amount of work being done around the city," Keenan said. "The city is really looking good and it's going to get better, and you folks are going to grow with it as you grow as police officers."

Keenan also noted the department will have 160 patrol officers in its ranks once all four new members complete their training, up from the 142 patrol officers it had when he first became chief eight years ago. He thanked the mayor, other elected officials and residents for supporting the Quincy police.

"We have a tremendous reputation in the community," Keenan said. "We're cised an option to opt out of that agreement after it was estimated that renovating the building would cost upwards of $7 million.

The theater sits on an 18,790 square foot parcel of land in a Business C zoning district.

The Wollaston Theatre was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1989. Owners of properties on that list are allowed to demolish or alter those buildings if no federal, state or local funds have gone towards the building.

Quincy once boasted more than a dozen theaters, including the Lincoln in Quincy Point and the Strand in Quincy Center. The Wollaston Theatre is the last of those standing.

If demolished, it would be the third landmark business in Wollaston Center lost in recent years.

Barry's Deli, which was located across Beale Street from the theatre for 52 years, closed in 2013 and the nearby Alumni Café on Hancock Street closed in 2014 after 54 years in business. Both eateries were replaced by Asian restaurants.

QUINCY GIRL SCOUTS recently helped distribute nearly 20,000 packages of Girl Scout cookies to six military and veteran organizations at Hanscom Air Force Base in Bedford. The event concluded the Girl Scouts of Eastern MA Cookies for a Cause program, which allows Girls Scouts to accept donations for military organizations, food pantries and other local charities throughout the cookie season. This year, partner agencies that distributed cookies and cards to military members included: Helping our Troops, New England Center for Homeless Veterans, Operation Troop Support, USO New England, Operation American Soldier, Project New Hope, and Hanscom AFB/Airman & Family Readiness Center. "Cookies for a Cause teaches girls the importance of giving back, and gives them a very personal way to express their patriotism and say thank you to our military for keeping us safe," said Girl Scouts of Eastern Massachusetts Chief Executive Officer Patricia Parcellin.

Police Cracking Down On Distracted Drivers

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy police are joining a statewide campaign to crack down on distracted drivers who are texting or reading messages on their cell phones while driving or stopped at a red light.

The state Executive Office of Public Safety and Security's (EOPSS) highway division is spearheading the three-week campaign in partnership with law enforcement agencies throughout the Bay State. The campaign is an effort to reduce crashes caused by drivers who use their cell phones to text, read messages, dial a number, interact with apps or browse the Internet while driving.

On April 8, Quincy officers began a series of visible enforcement patrols

71st Annual Caddy Day Memorial Ceremony April 24

Caddy Detachment Commandant Chuck Behenna invites the public to attend the 71st anniversary Caddy Day Memorial Ceremony Sunday, April 24 at noon at Caddy Memorial Park on Quincy Shore Drive at Wolaston Beach.

The purpose of this annual memorial ceremony is to honor the fighting men of Quincy who fought in one of the U. S. Marine Corps' most epic battles, Iwo Jima, during World War II. Tragically, four Quincy Marines were killed-in-action in what was the war's most costly battle for the Marine Corps. One of those Marines, PFC William R. Caddy, made the ultimate sacrifice for his comrades and was presented the Medal of Honor (posthumously) for his unselfish actions.

A collation at the William R. Caddy Detachment #124 will be held immediately following the memorial ceremony. The Caddy Detachment is located at 111 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

C-Mart Mitigation Measures Seen 'Relatively Soon'

By SCOTT JACKSON

A package of potential mitigation measures meant to lessen the impact of a new C-Mart supermarket on Hayward Street in North Quincy is expected "relatively soon," according to a spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch.

Chris Walker, the city's communications director, said city officials and representatives of Miao Kun "Michael" Fang, the owner of the C-Mart chain, have met several times in recent months. A Land Court judge had sided with Fang in January, reversing the City Council's 2013 rejection of special permit for the grocery store and ordering the approval of the permit subject to reasonable mitigation measures.

"We expect to have the mitigation package as ordered by the court relatively soon," Walker said, adding that there was no set timeline for it to be finalized.

Police: Don't Leave Valuables In Cars

The Quincy Police Department is warning residents not to leave valuables in their cars — including hidden away under seats, in glove boxes, or in the trunk — after a rash of car break-ins nationwide linked to a group dubbed the Felony Lane Gang.

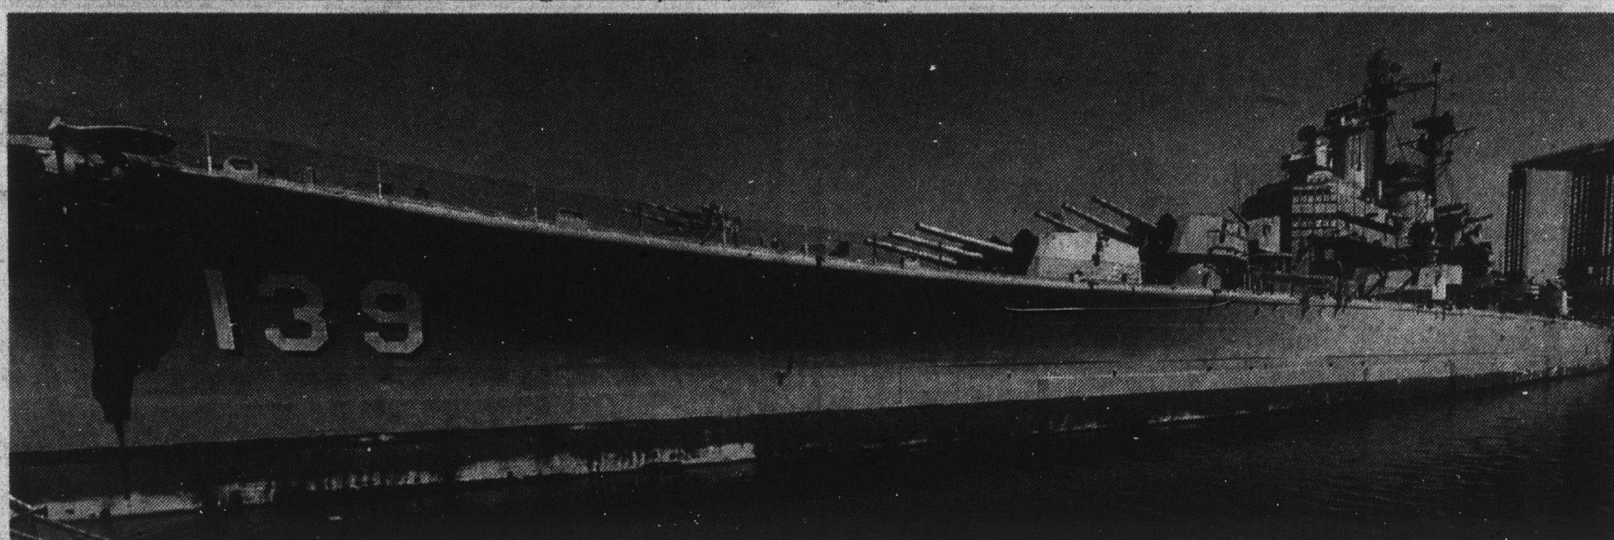

The Police Department said members of the gang travel the country in rental vehicles and target vehicles parked outside of gyms, parks, daycare centers and sporting events likely to be frequented by women to increase their chances of finding purses inside. The gang's members conduct surveillance at those locations and unlawfully enter the vehicles, through unlocked doors or by using a window punch.

Once inside a vehicle, the gang members seek out driver's licenses, checks, debit cards and other forms of ID, police said.

The gang members then recruit women to assume the identity of the theft victims in order to cash stolen checks belonging to other victims. The gang members will normally provide the women with wigs to better

The cruiser has operated as a museum ship in the shipyard where it was built since 1995. The MBTA had closed the pier where the Salem is currently located in 2013, before selling it to Jay Cashman. Cashman reached an agreement with the ship's owner earlier this year to keep it on site for five more years.

PURE MAGIC

If there is one gemstone that elicits a sense of wonder and magic, it is Labradorite, which the Inuit peoples claim fell from the sky from the frozen fire of the Aurora Borealis (Northern Lights). Indeed, this fabulous colored gemstone, which was discovered in Labrador, appears to be a piece of evening sky with shimmering light and interesting lines. The gemstone exhibits a "schiller effect," which is a strong play of iridescent blue, green, red, orange, and yellow colors. Labradorite is so well known for these spectacular displays of color that the phenomenon is known as "labradorescence."

This effect contributes to the gemstone's reputation for arousing magical powers from within those who wear it.

Wearing labradorite allows our innate magical powers to surface. It is said to counteract the negative side of our personality and the traits and actions that rob our energy. THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On April 27, 1773, the British Parliament passes the Tea Act, a bill designed to save the East India Company from bankruptcy by greatly lowering the tea tax it paid to the British government and, thus, granting it a monopoly on the American tea trade.

- On April 30, 1927, the first women's federal prison opens in Alderson, West Virginia, to house all women serving federal sentences of more than a year. Most were imprisoned for drug and alcohol charges imposed during Prohibition.

- On May 1, 1931, President Herbert Hoover officially dedicates New York City's Empire State Building, pressing a button from the White House to turn on the building's lights. Hoover's gesture was symbolic; while he remained in Washington, D.C., someone else flicked the switches in New York.

- On April 26, 1954, the Salk polio vaccine field trials, involving 1.8 million children, begin in McLean, Virginia. Children in the U.S., Canada and Finland took part in the double-blind trials, whereby neither the patient nor attending doctor knew if the inoculation was the vaccine or a placebo.

- On April 28, 1967, boxing champion Muhammad Ali refuses to be inducted into the U.S. Army and is immediately stripped of his heavyweight title. Ali, a Muslim, cited religious reasons for his decision to forgo military service.

- On April 25, 1989, James Richardson walks out of a Florida prison 21 years after being wrongfully convicted of killing his seven children. Special prosecutor Janet Reno agreed to the release after evidence showed that the conviction resulted from misconduct by the prosecutor.

- On April 29, 1992, a jury in Los Angeles acquits four police officers who had been charged with using excessive force in arresting black motorist Rodney King. The verdict enraged the black community, prompting three days of widespread rioting, arson and looting.

Flags For Veterans Island Decoration, Cookout May 7

The Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette Legion Post, will decorate Flags for Veterans Island with more than 300 American flags Saturday, May 7.

SAL is seeking volunteers who have pick-up trucks to meet at 9 a.m. at 148 Old Colony Ave. at the self storage unit in Wollaston.

Other volunteers who want to help put the flags on Flags for Veterans Island, at the intersection of School and Pleasant Streets, are asked to be at the island at 10 a.m.

A appreciation cookout for all those who helped out at the island will follow the flag decoration.

This year's Memorial Day observance at the Island is scheduled for 1 p.m. on Sunday, May 22.

Eric O'Dea's Trip Of A Lifetime

Quincy native Eric O'Dea is embarking on a trip of a lifetime.

O'Dea, age 30, is an education associate at the Museum of Science in Boston. Earlier this year, the Medford resident was selected to fly on a Boeing 747.

But this isn't just any airplane.

The craft is actually a special performance jetliner known as SOFIA, an acronym that stands for Stratospheric Observatory for Infrared Astronomy. The plane is equipped with a powerful 17-ton, 8-foot telescope mounted behind a 16-by-23 foot garage-like sliding door.

NASA uses the plane for astronomical research and collecting scientific data. It can fly at 45,000 feet — above most water vapor enabling scientists to get clear photos of stars, planets, galaxies and other transient space events like supernovae and comets.

According to NASA, data obtained by SOFIA "cannot be obtained by any other astronomical facility on the ground." The key is the lack of water vapor eight miles above the earth.

"SOFIA has an advantage over telescopes on the ground because there's a lot less water vapor up there because looking through the air with a telescope the light coming from space gets distorted and gets absorbed so we don't get the full story on the ground. The higher up you go the better," says O'Dea.

"This plane can go about three times higher than the highest mountains on earth that we have telescopes on. That means we can look through less water vapor, less gets taken away and we can get more of the story."

O'Dea grew up in Quincy and attended Lincoln-Hancock Elementary School and Central Middle Schools. He graduated from Boston College High School in 2004 and earned a bachelor of science degree in astronomy from Boston University in 2008.

He is paired up to fly on SOFIA sometime between August and January with a school teacher in Plymouth. He'll fly to California first for special training before boarding SOFIA at Armstrong Air Force Base near Pasadena.

The pairing is a natural fit for O'Dea and the science teacher.

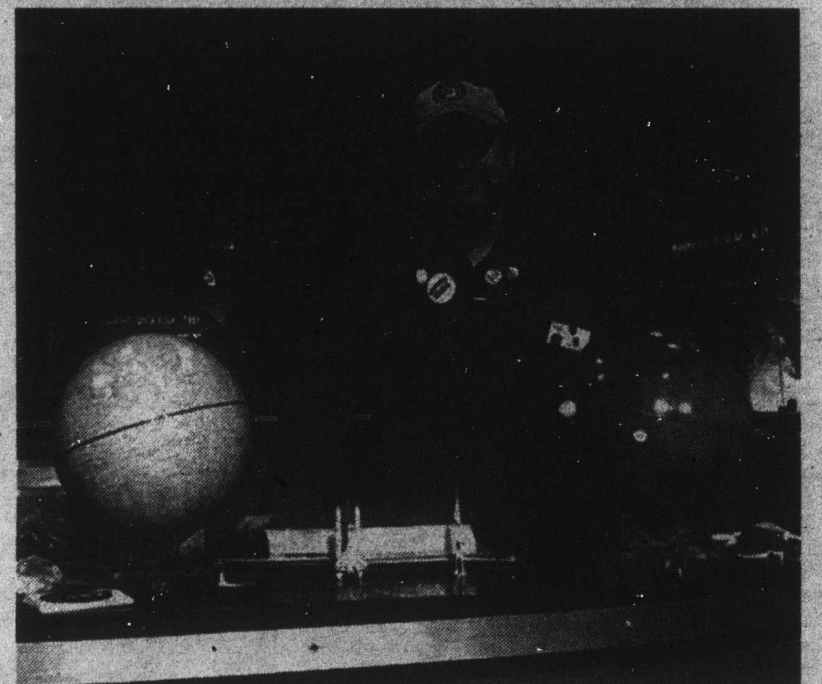

"We are going to work together to do a science journalism project where students get to look at data from the mission," he explained during a recent interview. "I'll go to the school and teach them how to bring science to the public. The students will come to the Museum of Science and do presentations on the mission to the general public at the museum," he says.

O'Dea and the school teacher will join scientists on the SOFIA mission. The flight could last up to 12 hours and he'll fly on at least one but possibly two missions.

At this point the exact dates of his mission have not yet been determined. But once the itinerary is set, he'll also learn what type of mission he'll fly on.

"The mission right now doesn't have a specific focus — it's just infrared astronomy," he says. "You can look at planets to see how much energy they are radiating back to space. You can look at galaxies, star formations, a supernova (exploding star) and tell what's in it. They have detected some heavy elements like lead that's only made in a supernova explosion. So any lead that's here on earth was part of an exploding star," he explains.

"The telescope looks at all kinds of things," he continues. "Infrared is like heat vision. You can look at things that are a lot cooler. You can look at giant clouds of gas — that's where stars are born — the atmosphere of Mars and other planets like Pluto. We can tell what an atmosphere on a planet is like by looking at how light changes."

ERIC O'DEA, a 30-year-old Quincy native and education associate at the Museum of Science in Boston, will take part in a NASA mission aboard a special research aircraft later this year.

"It's not just looking at stars."

Before he steps foot on the plane, O'Dea will undergo safety training before the mission. SOFIA, a former airliner for Pan Am airlines in the 1970s, has essentially been gutted out but there are seats and workspace for flight participants.

"It's a lot like being on a regular plane but it's colder and a lot louder," O'Dea says. "There is also a lot of equipment and things you have to know so you don't get in the scientists' way. You don't want to interfere with the folks operating the telescope. There's a lot of training to make sure you know exactly where to go — what you can and what you can't do."

"Once they get up to 40,000 feet and they level off the automated door rolls up and the whole eight-foot telescope can see out. There's a pressure bulkhead so the back of the plane is unpressurized because it's open but the front of the plane is pressurized just like a regular commercial airplane," he explains.

"We don't have to put on masks or strap ourselves in. It's not windy. The light comes through that pressure bulkhead and they can just change the camera (on the telescope) to whatever they are looking for so it's not really that different from being on a normal plane except it's a lot more exciting because you get to see what the scientists are doing."

O'Dea will be among a group of about 25 educators, scientists and telescope operators flying on SOFIA. The scientists will determine what the scope focuses on for the research they are doing.

"Some of the scientists who are working on it may be there to see the instrument in person and to make sure everything is going well and getting the data that they want. They might go up and look at two or three things like Mars for four hours and galaxies for another four hours. They also do runs where they change the target every 20 minutes because people only need 20 minutes of time to do their research."

O'Dea has worked at the Museum of Science as an education associate for about three and a half years. He plans to use the experience of SOFIA in his presentations at the museum.

"The point of me being on the plane is to get an up-close, first-hand experience and bring it back because this is an outreach program. They want people to know what they are doing so that they support NASA. This is an example of something I can actually go on, see what they are doing in person and bring it back. I'll be able to take videos and photos and bring them back to the museum."

O'Dea said the museum was approached by the Plymouth teacher who thought it would be a good idea to have an education associate be part of the mission.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1912 real photo postcard is a view of the Willard School building on Copeland Street in West Quincy. Furnace Brook Parkway had just been built by the Metropolitan Commission. It crosses Copeland Street in the foreground and across to the right of the trees which were in the schoolyard before the new road went through it. The Parkway was lined with lamp posts like the one on the right. Built in 1891, this school was named for Solomon Willard, the father of Quincy's granite industry. This building replaced the first schoolhouse in West Quincy that was made of wood and partly built and paid for by Willard himself who lived nearby on Douglas Street. To the left of this building can be seen the old West Quincy firehouse that was built in 1894 shortly after the original schoolhouse was destroyed by fire. The Willard School was closed by the city in 1981 and sold to office condominium developers in 1984. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

City Looking Into Punch Card Voting

The future of voting in Quincy may be by punch card if City Clerk John M. Gillis has his way.

The punch card voting machines that were being demonstrated, said Gillis, could cost the city as little as $75,000 or as much as $150,000 and trim as much as six hours off the time needed to count ballots.

"It is about time," said Gillis, who was up until 4 a.m. with the presidential primary election last March 13. "After 27 years I'd like to see some improvements in voting procedures."

Brian Crawley, vice-president of Electronic Voting Machines, Inc. of Newton, said the voting unit of the machine costs $150 each, and the unit with a stand and light cost $300 each.

Gillis said that he would make a pitch for them at the next city council meeting.

WILLARD SCHOOL SOLD FOR $916,500

The city closed a deal for the sale of the old Willard School in West Quincy to Furnace Brook Associates for $916,500 for conversion into an office building. Conversion is expected to be completed in the fall of 1984.

Furnace Brook Associates is made up of Dickinson Development and Grossman and Company, both of Braintree.

The old school will be converted into between 40,000 and 45,000 square feet of rental office space.

Memorial Day Parade's Special Meaning

Memorial Day is about honoring all of our servicemen and women who gave their lives in service to our country and all of our veterans who no longer walk among us. This year we will again honor them, their sacrifices and their memories.

This year's Memorial Day Parade will have a special meaning to it. In 2016, we conclude the 70th anniversary of the ending of World War II, the conclusion of the 60th anniversary of the ending of the Korean War and the commencement of the 50th anniversary of the ending of the Vietnam War. We need to remember what all of these two great generations did and have done for us and for our country.

The City of Quincy will again honor the men and women of our City who are veterans and say "Thank You" to these special citizens for their service and sacrifice. We have some very special veterans in the city of Quincy of these wars and we are looking for some of these men and women to join us in this year's parade.

We have arranged for these great generations to ride in some very special vehicles to honor all of you. We have a very special fire truck ride for our World War II veterans (and bring a grandchild with you if you wish) and the open air trolley for our Korean and Vietnam vets. We would like to have as many of you as possibly can join us for this parade.

You deserve the recognition. Your fellow citizens need to see and know that you are still here and that they have the opportunity to say "thank you for your service" themselves. It should be a pleasant and memorable experience for all, so we ask all our city's veterans who can make it to join us.

The Mayor and the City of Quincy have always been staunch supporters of the veterans in our community and this is just one more way and effort to show it. So if you're a World War II veteran and would like to join in on the fire truck ride, please contact Quincy Veterans Services' George Bouchard at 617-376-1194 or email him at gbouchard@quincy.ma.gov.

To all our veterans and to their deceased brethren, we say THANK YOU FOR YOUR SERVICE. To all our fellow Quincy citizens we say that we hope you can take time out of that day to come watch the parade and honor our veterans.

Substance Addiction Is A Real Disease

The letter in a recent Quincy Sun by Robyn Zarli must have been very difficult for her to write but I am glad she did. Her story is like so many other stories I heard over my 41 years of service in the state Mental Health Department, both in direct care and support services. I often saw first hand the devastation of mental illness and substance abuse. Often the two ran hand in hand.

Substance addiction is a real disease but like mental illness has been treated as a personal failing. Many of these individuals are ruined by these demons that possess their lives. Whenever I saw folks trying to overcome drug addiction or alcohol I encouraged it. These are not bad people and we need to work to help the many trying to gain back their lives.

Families do the best they can but yet they see their children suffering. It isn't just the one person with an issue but the entire family that suffers along with them.

Drug overdoses today are an epidemic. Far too many are dying everyday and they are someone's loved one, someone's child, someone's brother or sister, someone's friend.

Our elected officials finally appear to be coming around and more action has become the motto. Actions do speak louder than words. As Robyn stated we must all work because whenever one of us is suffering, we all suffer. Death diminishes everyone.

It is not partisan politics, not liberal, not conservative, not Democrat, not Republican. As a society, we should never leave anyone behind. This is an American issue.

Ginger Betty's Bakery Marking 21 Sweet Years

Gingerbread & Giving Back To Community Hallmarks Of Owner-Visionary Beth Veneto

By SCOTT JACKSON

When Beth Veneto first opened Ginger Betty's Bakery in 1995, she was hoping to transform gingerbread from a holiday specialty to a food that could be enjoyed year-round – a goal Veneto says she has accomplished 21 years later.

Veneto opened Ginger Betty's on April 13, 1995 – 21 years ago Wednesday. The bakery was originally located on Tyler Street in North Quincy, and moved to its current location at 215 Samoset Ave., on the corner of Sea Street, in 2004.

Veneto, a two-time state volleyball champion at Quincy High, earned a volleyball scholarship to the New York Institute of Technology, where she studied hotel and restaurant management. While in college, she worked at a Mr. Donuts, and the store's owner allowed her to make gingerbread houses around the holidays, which she continued to do after college. When Veneto moved back to Quincy several years later, she knew she wanted to open her own business.

"When I moved back from New York, I was looking for some work, and basically I was doing some catering, then I was working as a receptionist. I said I always wanted to open my business; I wasn't quite sure what that would be," she explained.

"I used to do gingerbread in college. I used to work for Mr. Donuts – a Quincy business – out in Hicksville, New York. Around Christmastime, just to make extra money, I would make the gingerbread. I think he felt bad for me, because if you see the pictures they're so crooked – the gingerbread houses – because it's tricky to get the frosting... He'd let me make them in the donut shop and then I made for a country club, also, that I used to work at.

"Then when I came home, that was always in my mind and I still did them around the holidays to make extra money. Then Quincy 2000 started, if anyone had a business idea. My mother practically pushed me over there and she said, 'bring your ideas' over there."

Part of Veneto's goal was to make gingerbread an item people could enjoy year-round, and not just around Christmas.

"My thought was to really make this holiday tradition and a holiday specialty in most bakeries, a year-round product. I think we've pretty much done that," Veneto said. "We do birthday parties for kids, weddings, anniversaries, baby showers. It's nice that we can use the product and people like it. It's a very mild gingerbread."

Ginger Betty's has made their gingerbread for numerous special occasions. The bakery made a life-size Charlie Baker gingerbread man for the governor's 2015 inauguration, for example, and gingerbread replicas of Fenway Park, the Eiffel Tower, the Prudential Center, Gillette's South Boston headquarters, Quincy's

James R. McIntyre Government Center, and the Guinness Brewery in Dublin.

Numerous Quincy politicians have used Ginger Betty's cookies in their campaigns as well.

"I have to say most of the campaigns turned out pretty good," Veneto said. "The outcome was pretty nice."

Ginger Betty's has branched out from gingerbread as well. The bakery makes traditional birthday and wedding cakes, with regular gold and chocolate cake. The store also prepares baskets of cookies with a variety of offerings, such as chocolate chip and macaroons.

Ginger Betty's also serves breakfast sandwiches on focaccia bread, and makes focaccia bread pizza.

The company now employs 15 people throughout the year, and four times as many during the holiday season.

"Around the holidays, which is our busiest time, we go to probably about 65," Veneto said. "It's insane. It's like Santa's workshop."

Giving back to the community has long been important to Veneto.

In 2007, she launched the GI Ginger Betty Foundation. Proceeds from the foundation are used to ship Ginger Betty's signature ginger snap cookies to men and women serving in the military stationed around the world.

"We send cookies to Iraq, Afghanistan and also around the states to the soldiers,"

Andy Trebicka Wins Latin Oratorical Contest

Andy Trebicka of Quincy, a sophomore at Boston College High School, was the Latin II winner on Exelauno Day, a Latin and Greek oratorical competition held on March 7th 2016 in the Bulger Auditorium at B.C. High.

Trebicka memorized and declaimed the first 15 lines of Cicero's 'In Catilinam': arguably the greatest political speech from the ancient world. In his speech, Cicero uncovers the attempted coup de tete, and he eviscerates the author of the conspiracy:

ANDY TREBICKA

Lucius Catiline.

For this year's event, the school's many classics students filled the Bulger Performing Arts Center to watch their classmates participate in the daunting task of reciting passages in Latin and Greek from memory.

The student competitors were chosen by their classroom peers to represent their classes in front of three faculty judges. Despite the intense pressure of performing in another language in front of the judges as well as their friends and teachers, the students delivered passages with an animated flair, often bringing the crowd to laughter and cheers – even if they didn't understand the language being spoken.

Fan Liu Leaving Academic Mark Of Excellence At Fontbonne

Fan Liu of Quincy is a senior at Fontbonne Academy in Milton, will be graduating in May but not without leaving her mark on the school.

Liu has completed the most rigorous course curriculum available at the local high school and has maintained highest honors, graduating with a 4.3 cumulative GPA. She has earned an SAT score of 2280, placing in the 99.51 percentile.

Since Liu's freshman year, she has been working on two cancer research projects at Boston Children's Hospital. As a result of this work, Fan has participated in a number of science fairs, ranging from regional to international. This year, she won first place in the 2016 South Shore Regional Science Fair.

Most recently, Liu has been accepted to a wide range of prestigious colleges, including five Ivy League schools. She has also been accepted into the full tuition program at Stanford University.

Explore Japan Program Accepting Applications for Summer 2016

The Explore Japan Program, a 2.5-week cultural exchange program, is accepting applications from families in all Eastern Massachusetts communities for summer 2016.

The enrichment and exchange experience offers local students ages 8-18 to host and spend time with a visiting Japanese High School student, learn about the many facets of Japanese culture, and form friendships.

The Boys Program will be from July 21st to Aug. 7th at the Pierce Middle School, and the Girls Program from July 24th to Aug. 9th at Milton High School.

For the 2.5 weeks of the program, both Japanese students and local students will participate in daily activities Monday-Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at their respective locations.

Each program includes morning workshops on Japanese language, arts and crafts, cooking, martial arts, calligraphy and a variety of interesting cultural exercises, and a number of afternoon activities such as the Boston Tea Party Museum, Canobie Lake Park and Plimoth Plantation.

Explore Japan is free for one child from each family who hosts a Japanese student for the duration of the program. That is a two-and-a-half-week program, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday - Friday, including admission and supervision on afternoon field trips - for free. In addition, for host families who have a child who is at least 15 years of age, Explore Japan has a limited number of internship and program staff opportunities.

For more information about the Explore Japan program, or to apply to participate, visit www.americanlearning.com.

Local families who are interested in learning more can call (617) 996-0622, or email explorejapan@americanlearning.com. Space in the program is limited.

Maria Droste Fashion Show April 28

"Bringing Hope to Life," the Maria Droste Counseling Agency's annual spring fashion show, will be held Thursday, April, 28 at Lantana's in Randolph.

Honorary chairpersons for the event are Alice and Richard Welch of Braintree. Richard Welch, president of Welch Healthcare, Inc., has been a member of the Maria Droste board since the agency opened in Quincy in 1992.

The evening starts at 6 p.m. with a cocktail hour followed by dinner and music as well as live and silent auctions.

The fashion show will feature creations modeled by both men and women. Ladies will model spring selections from David Josef while the men's collection will feature Hajjar's Apparel for Men of Quincy.

Hair styles will be under the direction of Susan Capavan, Aura of Quincy and make-up by Brittany Fasano.

This year's show marks the 23rd annual presentation and the first since the recent death of the agency's founder, Sister Joanne Westwater.

The staff of counseling professionals at the Maria

Droste Counseling Services Agency adhere to four basic values: acceptance, respect, compassion and healing. They provide quality services to all in need of a brighter future by offering affordable and timely mental health and holistic services.

Advanced ticket purchase to the fashion show is required. For tickets and reservations call 617-471-5686 or visit www.mariadroste-counseling.com.

All-In-One-Dish Lamb Chops

By MARIE

Here is a great all-in-one dish that will save time and energy for the busy cook. This recipe is made with lamb chops either bone-in or boneless, when I made it I used the bone-in chops but either is fine.

RECIPE:

4 lamb chops
½ cup uncooked rice
1 small green pepper cut up
1 small onion cut up
Salt and pepper to taste

In in skillet sauté the lamb chops until browned on both sides.

Remove from pan and in the same pan sauté pepper and onions.

In a medium casserole dish place the lamb chops the chopped green pepper and onion and the uncooked rice and ½ cup warm water. Bake covered in 350 degree oven for one hour.

P.S. For this recipe I have also used pork chops and chicken thighs, and all worked beautifully.

Easy, Delicious Pizza Crust

By SUZIE

Here is a really easy and delicious pizza crust recipe that has been adapted by me, from a cookbook authored by Beth Crowell who's children have lots of food allergies.

This crust is healthy and really surprisingly delicious, and you don't have to make it rise, its done in just a few minutes.

Top it with anything you desire. I like using homemade tomato sauce but a great brand is Muir Glenn organic pizza sauce in a can. It tastes like pizzeria sauce.

I also always drizzle with olive oil before baking, and saute' vegetables like onions and peppers and mushrooms and put them on the pizza AFTER it is cooked. When I was in Italy, that is how they did it. At least the area that I was visiting did!

After the pie came out they cut into slices and spooned the veggies fresh and hot on top. Then drizzled with olive oil and pepper flakes.

2 cups purified water
¼ cup olive oil
1 1/2 teaspoons apple cider vinegar
2 teaspoons flax MEAL (not seeds)
11/2 tablespoons of coconut sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons garlic powder
1 teaspoon sea salt
2 cups organic baby brown rice cereal
DRY (not cooked)
2 cups rice flour

Combine first 4 ingredients in bowl
Combine remaining ingredients and add to liquid mixture. Combine well mixing thoroughly.

Divide batter evenly into two olive oil greased pizza pans and bake at 400 for 10 or 15 minutes. Remove from oven and now top with your sauce and cheese or whatever toppings you desire. Bake until edges are light brown and topping is cooked.

Grape-Nut Custard Pudding

By MARIE

No matter how many new varieties there are of cakes, cupcakes, cookies and desserts, there is one that is always a favorite and that is good old Grape-Nut pudding. Some restaurants still serve it but they are few and far between.

RECIPE

1 quart of 2% or whole milk
6 eggs
¼ teaspoon of nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon

2/3 cup of sugar
1 teaspoon of vanilla
¾ cup of Grape-Nut Cereal

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 9 x 9 inch baking pan.

In a mixing bowl combine all the ingredients except the Grape-Nuts. Pour the mixture into the prepared pan. Sprinkle Grape-Nuts over the top and bake uncovered approximately 1 hour. Cut into squares when cooled. Serve with whipped cream.

Silent Film Matinee April 20
At Quincy Historical Society

Quincy Historical Society will present a matinee showing of the 1916 silent movie, A Romance of Quincy, filmed entirely in Quincy and featuring a cast of Quincy residents, on Wednesday, April 20, at 2 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St.

The recently rediscovered motion picture was professionally produced and has a plot that features romance, deceit and betrayal, action and crime and a happy ending, and contains extensive footage of the Quincy of a century ago.

The showing will include a live piano accompaniment by Quincy resident, composer Del Case.

Historical Society staff will also tell the story behind the making of and the rediscovery of the film.

Everyone is welcome. There is no charge for admission.

Lawrence DiNardo Elected President
John Hancock's Historic Military Unit

Lieutenant Colonel, retired, Lawrence DiNardo (U.S. Army Reserve) was recently elected president of the historic military association, the First Corps of Cadets.

DiNardo was born in and grew up in Quincy. He has practiced law in the city for more than 30 years.

The First Corps of Cadets is a prestigious military organization that was founded in 1741. The First Corps' most famous elected commander was Quincy's

John Hancock, who led this unit during the Revolutionary War. The First Corps has fought in all of our country's major conflicts and wars, to include the Civil War, WWI, WWII, Korea, Vietnam, and all of our Middle Eastern conflicts.

Currently, the 211th Military Police Battalion of the Massachusetts Army National Guard is the active unit of the First Corps of Cadets. This unit is now focused on providing security to the Boston Marathon and the Fourth of July on the Esplanade.

The First Corps of Cadets has maintained a military museum on Commonwealth Avenue in Boston, where it displays many portraits, busts, and artifacts associated with John Hancock. There is a picture of John Hancock's home that was painted on an actual panel from John Hancock's door. Quincy's Lawrence DiNardo will serve as the President of the First Corps of Cadets from 2016 to 2018.

Parkinson's Disease: Care And Controlling Symptoms

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Parkinson's disease (PD) is a chronic and progressive movement disorder, meaning that symptoms continue and worsen over time.

As many as one million Americans are living with Parkinson's disease, which is more than the combined number of people diagnosed with multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophy and Lou Gehrig's disease. Approximately 60,000 Americans are diagnosed with Parkinson's disease each year, and this number does not indicate the thousands of cases that go undetected. An estimated seven to 10 million people worldwide are living with Parkinson's disease.

Incidence of Parkinson's increases with age, but an estimated four percent of people with the disease are diagnosed before the age of 50. Men are one and a half times more likely to have Parkinson's than women.

The collective direct and indirect cost of Parkinson's, including treatment, social security payments and lost income from inability to work, is estimated to be nearly $25 billion per year in the United States alone. Medication costs for an individual person with Parkinson's average $2,500 a year and therapeutic surgery can cost up to $100,000 dollars per patient.

Parkinson's disease develops gradually, sometimes starting with a scarcely noticeable tremor in just one hand. The disorder also commonly causes stiffness or slowing of movement, and in the early stages of Parkinson's disease, your face may show little or no expression, or your arms may not swing when you walk. Your speech may become soft or slurred. Although Parkinson's disease can't be cured, medications may significantly improve your symptoms. On occasion, your doctor may suggest surgery to regulate certain regions of your brain and improve your symptoms.

Each person experience with Parkinson's symptoms varies. Many people experience tremor as their primary symptom, while others may not have tremors, but may have problems with balance. Also, for some people the disease progresses rapidly, and in others it does not.

Symptoms often begin on one side of your body and usually remain worse on that side, even after symptoms start to affect both sides. Parkinson's signs and symptoms may include: tremors and shaking, slowed movement, rigid muscles, impaired posture and balance, loss of automatic movements (including blinking, smiling or swinging your arms when you walk), speech changes and writing changes.

Parkinson's disease is often accompanied by these additional complications which may be treatable: thinking difficulties, depression and emotional changes, swallowing problems, sleep disorders, bladder problems and constipation.

A Message From The Quincy Health Department

The cause of Parkinson's disease is unknown. In this disease, certain nerve cells (neurons) in the brain gradually break down or die. Many of the symptoms are due to a loss of neurons that produce a chemical messenger in your brain called dopamine. When dopamine levels decrease, it causes abnormal brain activity. Several factors are thought to play a role in the development of Parkinson's disease including genetic mutations, environmental triggers, age (usually age 60 or above), heredity, sex (men are more likely to develop).

No specific test exists to diagnose Parkinson's disease. Your doctor will diagnose it based on your medical history, a review of your signs and symptoms, and a neurological and physical examination. Doctors may recommend regular follow-up appointments with neurologists proficient in movement disorders to evaluate your condition and symptoms over time and diagnose Parkinson's disease.

Parkinson's disease can't be cured, but medications can help control your symptoms, often dramatically. Medications may help you manage problems with walking, movement and tremor. There are many medications available to treat the symptoms of Parkinson's, although none yet that truly reverse the effects of the disease. It is common for people with PD to take a variety of these medications in order to control the symptoms of the disease.

In some later cases, surgery, such as deep brain stimulation may be advised. During deep brain stimulation surgery, electrodes are inserted into the targeted brain region using MRI and neurophysiological mapping to ensure that they are implanted in the right place. A device called an impulse generator or IPG (similar to a pacemaker) is implanted under the collarbone to provide an electrical impulse to a part of the brain involved in motor function.

If you or someone close to you has recently been diagnosed with Parkinson's disease, you are likely undergoing many emotions and have many concerns and questions. Remember that you are not alone. It is common for many people to experience a wide range of emotions upon diagnosis from shock, to anger and even to sometimes a sense relief at being able to label symptoms that have gone unexplained or misdiagnosed for years. If you've received a diagnosis of Parkinson's disease, you'll need to work diligently with your doctor to find a treatment plan that offers you the greatest relief from symptoms with the fewest side effects. Certain lifestyle changes may also help make living with Parkinson's disease easier such as, healthy eating, exercise to help increase your muscle strength, flexibility and balance, and reduce depression or anxiety, avoiding falls, and working with an occupational therapist to help make activities like dressing and bathing less difficult.

Parkinson's disease does not just affect the person living with it; it affects the entire family and an extended community of friends and loved ones. If you are the caretaker, child, parent, or loved one to a person with Parkinson's, you are familiar with the challenges and responsibilities that come with living with the disease. As a caretaker it may be difficult to let others assist or to take time for yourself.

Remember that it is as important for you, as it is for the person with Parkinson's, to care for yourself and to begin understanding the disease.

Cancer Society's Relay For Life Of Quincy June 25

Cancer survivors, caregivers, volunteers, and community members will unite for the annual American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Quincy on June 25th at Pageant Field to help save lives from cancer.

The Relay For Life movement is the world's largest fundraising event to fight every cancer in every community, with four million participants in 6,000 events worldwide in 2015.

Dollars raised help the American Cancer Society save lives by funding groundbreaking cancer research, providing free information and critical services for people with cancer, and supporting education and prevention programs.

There are many different ways to get involved:

- Join a team
- Start your own team
- Donate money
- Help identify and honor Quincy residents who are cancer survivors
- Spread the word to help pack the track on June 25th.

For more information visit <https://www.facebook.com/RelayForLifeQuincyMA/?fref=fb&pnref=story>

Relay for Life is the signature fundraiser for the American Cancer Society. It's an overnight relay-style event. Teams camp out overnight while their teammates take turns walking around the track for the duration of the event.

This year's Olympic-themed event will be a fun, family-friendly event open to all with entertainment, raffles, games and more. The event starts at 1 p.m. and goes all throughout the night until sunrise as teams walk the track.

Healthy Eating Class

The Quincy Health Department is offering a free Healthy Eating class that meets Tuesdays at 2 p.m. at the the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy.

The program will focus on losing and/or maintaining weight and learning how to make healthy food choices.

There will be a weigh-in followed by a discussion with Ruth Jones, BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS, class is on a walk-in basis and no pre-registration is required.

QUINCY GRANITE WORKERS Museum member Tom Bonomi hosted a virtual tour of buildings and monuments made with granite in Quincy Center. Quincy Sun photos/Tom Gorman AL BINA, president of the Quincy Granite Workers Museum, welcomes guests to the "tour" of Quincy Center featuring buildings and monuments made from granite.

30 Take Virtual Tour Of Quincy Center Granite

By TOM GORMAN

About 30 people took a virtual tour of buildings, statues and monuments in Quincy Center made from Quincy granite.

Tom Bonomi of the Quincy Quarry Granite Workers Museum hosted a power point presentation, "Where is Quincy Granite, a Walking Tour of Quincy Center" at the Ward 4 Community Center on April 6. Bonomi explained points of interest in Quincy Center where the city's rich granite history lives on.

Quarrying for granite in Quincy began in the 1600s and Bonomi noted that it was not only used in the city itself, but can be seen in such historical buildings as King's Chapel and St. Paul's Cathedral in Boston and as well as monuments such as the Bunker Hill Monument in Charlestown. Quincy granite was favored for its hardness and colors.

The first stop of the "tour" was the Adams Academy on Adams Street, home to the Quincy Historical Society where several items of interest can be seen.

The Adams Academy was built in 1871 at a cost of $28,867.99 including architectural fees. Bonomi said the building is of Gothic Revival and was a private school until 1907. It was constructed with rough granite from the North Common area, later known as Merrymount Quarry, near what is now High Point's parking garage. A spire that was originally a part of the building blew down in the 1950s.

Bonomi said the Quincy Historical Society has maintained the site since 1972.

An item on display at the historical society is a railroad crossing block that was part of the Quincy Granite Railway, one of the first private commercial railways in the country. According to Bonomi, granite blocks served as the foundation for the tracks and the rail line stretched from Quincy through Milton into Boston.

"It was an engineering marvel of its day," Bonomi said, explaining that legislation had to be passed to allow the rail line to cross public roads.

He noted the railroad company's first contract was to transport heavy granite to build the Bunker Hill Monument.

Also at the Adams Academy is the John Hancock Monument, honoring the first signer of the declaration of independence who was born on the site in 1737. The monument was made in the early 1950s.

The nine-ton pedestal is made with extra dark polished Quincy granite by William Canavan & Sons. Bonomi said the granite likely came from Swingle's Quarry on Ricciuti Drive in West Quincy, one of the last working quarries in the city. The quarry closed in 1963.

According to Bonomi, the bronze bust of Hancock once graced the entrance of the John Hancock Insurance Company's Boston headquarters until 1922 and was presented to the city in 1951 on condition the city provided a suitable place for it.

Another monument on the Adams Academy grounds is the bronze Doughboy Statue that honors World War I veterans. The pedestal is made with light Quincy granite.

A 10-mile marker made from Quincy granite is also displayed at the historical society. Bonomi said it was originally at Adams and Dimmock streets that helped to give travelers of the day a sense of location and distance to their destinations.

The next "stop" was 85 Quincy Ave. where dark granite columns now grace a building that once were part of the Jonathan Swingle homestead at Hancock Street and Saville Avenue. Bonomi said that Swingle was "one of Quincy's most famous quarry operators." Swingle originally came from Ohio in 1892 and became a partner with a quarry operator before starting his own business.

Moving on, the Old City Square Fountain, at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, was built in 1891 and originally located where President's Place is now.

"It had three drinking levels for adults, children and dogs," Bonomi said.

at Quincy City Hall was next. Bonomi pointed out that the ball "was moved around a lot" and was originally at city hall before being moved to the Fore River Bridge rotary in 1937. It was repolished and brought back to city hall in 2006. Bonomi said the ball, made from a 25-ton block of extra dark Swingle's granite, was a gift for the city's 300th anniversary from the Granite Manufacturers Association in 1925.

Next up, Old City Hall, built in 1844. Bonomi said a committee at one point considered building it out of wood before deciding on stone. Solomon Willard was paid $280 to design it and oversee construction. Four separate contracts were awarded for each wall.

According to Bonomi, blue granite was used for the front and two sides while ashlar for chosen for the back and 180 purchase stones, each measuring about 18 cubic feet, served as the foundation. He said laborers were paid $2 a day to set the stone.

Bonomi noted that the building has double walls

Harris Favors Tweaking - Not Repealing - 1953 Law On City Council Vacancies

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris believes the 1953 law that cleared the way for his appointment to the City Council should be tweaked to prevent a fringe candidate from being appointed to a vacant seat, but would oppose its outright repeal.

Harris, a 55-year-old Ashworth Street resident, was appointed on April 4 by his colleagues on the council to the seat previously held by Brian McNamee, who died Dec. 23 following a brief battle of cancer. McNamee had represented the ward — which includes Squantum, Marina Bay and portions of North Quincy — since 2006 and had been re-elected to a sixth term in November's municipal election, when he fended off a challenge from Harris. McNamee received 59.4 percent of the vote to Harris' 40.6 percent.

The city had originally planned a special election to fill the seat under provisions of home rule petitions approved in 1984 and 2004, but Harris contended — and a Superior Court judge agreed — he should be appointed to the seat under terms of the 1953 law, which requires the council to appoint the runner-up if the councillor-elect dies before a new term begins.

Several councillors at the April 4 meeting expressed a desire to revisit the procedure for filling vacancies in the wake of the Superior Court ruling.

Harris, in a recent interview with The Sun, said he would be against repealing the portion of the 1953 law that requires the council to appoint the runner-up to an open seat if the vacancy occurs before the new term begins. Instead, he suggested tweaking it to ensure fringe candidates would not be able to fill the vacant seat; the council or mayor would appoint a placeholder in the event a seat were vacated before the new term began and no runner-up met the minimum vote threshold.

"The other laws were put in so a person couldn't just put his name in, get 10 or 15 votes, and then take over a seat if something was to happen prior to the person taking office," Harris said.

"I feel why not put a benchmark number of somewhere between 30 and 35 percent — having to receive 30 or 35 percent of the vote to make you eligible. If not, someone is appointed by the mayor or the City Council to be the ward councillor until the special election takes place. I feel the person who would do it would not be eligible to run for office, so there wouldn't be any advantage, and there are a lot of good people out there who could do it."

Harris noted Ward 6 was without a ward councillor for a period of four months while the city moved ahead with plans for a special election in May. If the council were to repeal the 1953 law, he said, the ward would have gone without its ward councillor for five months.

"For four months there wasn't a Ward 6 councillor," Harris said. "If something like this was to happen again, whether someone resigns — hopefully we will never have the same situation I went through with Brian passing away — there will be no ward councillor for a period of almost five months."

Harris said the law currently on the books protects residents like himself who ran long campaigns from having to run again for the seat in a short period of time. Harris noted, for instance, that he had $60 in his campaign account at the end of March, less than any of the other four residents who were running in the cancelled special election according to state campaign finance records.

"Me and Brian [McNamee] had run a tough campaign," Harris said. "I have $60 in my campaign account. I was the only person who ran against Brian. That law protects a person such as myself who battled match the appearance of the victims. The women who cash the checks typically use the drive-through lane furthest away from the bank building, which is where the nickname Felony Lane Gang originated.

Though no such incidents have been reported in Quincy, the Police Department is urging residents to not leave purses, wallets or anything of value in parked cars — even if they are hidden away. Residents should also be extra observant when parking vehicles.

The department is also asking bank employees to be extra observant of those who use the drive through lane furthest from the bank building — checking to see, for instance, if the driver is using makeup or a wig to mask his or her identity, if the vehicle has heavy tinting on its windows, or if it has out of state license plates.

Police are urging anyone observing the suspicious behavior to call 911 or 617-479-1212 and not approach the suspects.

C-Mart Mitigation Measures Seen 'Relatively Soon'

would then have to approve of the mitigation measures.

The council had rejected Fang's application to open the Asian-American supermarket at the Hayward Street location, which was formerly home to Boston Gear Works, in 2009 and then again in 2013 after the application was remanded back to the council. Councillors cited traffic impacts both times the permit was rejected.

Fang in 2013 had proposed opening a supermarket with 25,000 square feet of retail space on site, in addition to a warehouse and offices.

Fang has also owned the now closed Wollaston Theatre on Beale Street since 2012, and last fall said he planned to raze the building because of concerns over its structural integrity. Fang has applied for a demolition permit for the theater; his spokesman, Stephen Crawford, told The Sun last week "Mr. Fang continues to explore all options," for the building.

Walker said negotiations have continued between the city and Fang on the Wollaston Theatre.

"The mayor was fully aware the owner sought a demolition permit, and negotiations are ongoing. We would like to pursue a possible restoration of the building," Walker said. "As these discussions are ongoing, [Fang] understands that this is an ongoing process."

Walker said the negotiations regarding C-Mart and those regarding the Wollaston Theatre are taking place separately from each other.

"The two things are totally unrelated," he said.

The Wollaston Theatre first opened in 1926 and closed in 2003. Fang purchased the building in 2012 for $600,000 from Yvonne Chandler, who had owned the theater with her late husband, Arthur, since 1979.

Before selling to Fang, Chandler had reached an agreement in 2009 to sell the building to Street-Works, the city's previous master developer for Quincy Center. The New York-based company exercised an option to opt out of that agreement after it was estimated that renovating the building would cost upwards of $7 million.

South Shore Mental Health announces The Conrad Group has signed on as champion sponsor of the non-profit's upcoming Building Hope, Changing Lives Breakfast Fundraiser.

Scheduled for May 5th at Lombardo's in Randolph, the annual event will celebrate the accomplishments of the agency's clients and pay tribute to friends and partners whose support has enabled South Shore Mental Health to make a difference in the lives of children, teens, and adults from Boston to Cape Cod.

"I am very thankful for all that The Conrad Group has done for us," said South Shore Mental Health President and CEO Harry Shulman. "They appreciate the work we do in the community, and their good work on our behalf enables us to prioritize resources so that we can better serve our own clients."

The Conrad Group joins Marsh & McLennan Agency-New England and Eastern Bank as champion sponsors of the event which will be hosted by WBZ-TV's Bree Sison and is expected to draw more than 150 networking guests. For more information, contact Margaret Carr at mcarr@ssmh.org or call 617-774-1017.

Since 1926, South Shore Mental Health has been building hope and changing lives for children born with developmental disabilities, and children, teens, and adults living with mental illness. Today, we have more than 700 employees based in Quincy, Marshfield, Plymouth and Wareham, and our non-profit early intervention and mental health treatment and recovery programs reach 16,000 people from Boston to Cape Cod annually.

Based in Braintree, The Conrad Group is a commercial real estate service that has completed more than 2,000 commercial transactions since 1987.

on Southern Artery where within one-hour, seven drivers were pulled over for illegally using their phones. No citations were issued, instead the motorists were reminded that using their phones to text and browse the Internet while driving or stopped at a red light is not only illegal, but puts them and others at risk of a crash.

Officer Roger White stood at the entrance of Quirk Nissan while Officer Ryan Donnelly in plain clothes was positioned at the traffic light by CVS Pharmacy serving as a "spotter" - looking for drivers sending or reading messages on their phone. Donnelly radioed White the descriptions of vehicles whose drivers appeared to be illegally their phone who then pulled them over.

White said the drivers he stopped didn't seem to realize they were looking at their phones.

Quincy police detective Karyn Barkas said officers will be "doing random patrols during the month in terms of being out there watching people as they're driving."

Massachusetts law prohibits adult drivers from writing, sending, or reading electronic messages, interacting with apps or browsing the Internet while driving or stopped at a light or in traffic.

"Operators will be cited for using any mobile electronic device to write, send, or read an electronic message including text messages, emails, and instant messages or accessing the internet while operating a vehicle," said Massachusetts State Police Lieutenant Daniel Griffin.

Barkas emphasized that junior operators, teen drivers under 18, are prohibited entirely from using mobile phones and all other electronic devices while driving. Fines go as high as $500 and teen drivers can also lose their license for up to one year.

To raise awareness of the dangers of distracted driving, Gov. Charlie Baker has proclaimed April as Distracted Driving Awareness Month.

"Distracted driving is fast becoming one of the leading causes of injury and death on the state's roads," said Massachusetts Highway Safety Director Jeff Larason. "By using data, local and State Police will be able to pinpoint where these crashes are occurring and focus their patrols in those areas. Distracted drivers put their passengers, other motorists, pedestrians and bicyclists in danger."

"The destruction they cause is preventable; these are crashes, not accidents."

The state banned texting while driving in 2010. According to the EOPSS, Massachusetts distracted driving fatalities are among the highest ages 45 to 64 and 75-plus. Pedestrian fatalities went up 25 percent in the state from 2014 to 2015.

Nationally, one of out every 10 drivers between the ages of 15 and 19 involved in fatal crashes was caused by being distracted, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The state EOPSS offers several tips for drivers including turning off the cell phone before driving and place it out of reach; notify friends and family that you'll be driving and can't take texts or calls; pull over to a safe place to make a call or send a text; start GPS navigation or review maps before starting out; and remember to buckle up.

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

NIGHTTIME MOUTH-BREATHING DANGER

If you wake up with a dry mouth, you may be breathing through your mouth while you sleep. If so, you should know that nighttime mouth-breathing has been linked with an increased risk of dental erosion and tooth decay. The problem is that breathing through your mouth dries up saliva, which plays a vital role in preserving dental health. As saliva levels drop, the oral environment becomes increasingly acidic, which leads to loss of tooth enamel through erosion (the direct effect of acid without the influence of bacteria) and tooth decay (the effect of bacteria breaking down foods to produce acid). Mouth-breathing and dry mouth should be brought to the attention of your dentist, who can recommend treatment.

A dentist can check for mouth-breathing symptoms. If the face and mouth are narrow, dentists can use expansion appliances to help widen the sinuses and open nasal airway passages. Located at 44 Greenleaf Street, we make it a point to get to know you and your family's specific dental needs. It's important to us. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Having nice-looking teeth gives a boost to health and happiness. We offer the services of anesthesia with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist.

P.S. Researchers found that pH levels (a measure of acidity/alkalinity) of mouth-breathers dropped to 3.6, which is well below the 5.5 threshold at which tooth enamel begins to break down.

it out.” Harris, the postmaster for the U.S. post office in Woburn, said he was set to meet with City Clerk Joseph Shea and Council President Kirsten Hughes and other officials Monday as part of the process to get acclimated to his role as the Ward 6 councillor. He said he is looking forward to working with his colleagues going forward.

“My fellow councillors welcomed me. The clerk welcomed me,” Harris said. “I’m really moving forward and looking forward to working with them all.”

He identified several projects in the pipeline for Ward 6 or surrounding areas when asked what his biggest priorities were; Harris also expressed a desire to see ferry service implemented at Marina Bay.

Those projects include a proposal for mixed-use development that would include 579 residential units and 42,000 square feet of retail at the North Quincy MBTA station, which Harris said he already had spoken to Mayor Thomas Koch about; plans to demolish the former Star of the Sea Church in Squantum and build four single-family homes on site; a proposed FedEx distribution center on Commander Shea Boulevard in a Boston Scientific building; the C-Mart supermarket on Hayward Street in North Quincy; and a proposed hotel on the corner of West Squantum Street and Arlington Street.

Harris said he had several concerns about the demolition of the Star of the Sea, including water runoff and the abatement of asbestos.

“The area is elevated above a street that’s down below, which is Parke Ave. The concern is the water drainage,” Harris said. “Right now, the demolition project is still in the DEP. I would not doubt that there is asbestos that needs to be removed, and that is a situation.”

He also plans to reach out to city traffic engineer Deborah Finnegan, because debris removed from the church would likely need to travel via Huckins Avenue, where the Squantum School is located.

“The only access really to that street with the big trucks that will remove the items is going to have go right up Huckins Ave., which goes right by Squantum School,” Harris said. “There is going to have to be some time management put into place.”

Regarding the proposed FedEx ground distribution center, Harris said his concerns are the noise generated by the trucks operating there and the traffic impact.

“I don’t think the people realize the noise that’s going to be involved there at night. I don’t think they realize the traffic. Those vehicles, FedEx, they’re not doing anything slow. They’re going to be flying around, trying to zip through neighborhoods to get to where they have to get so they can get back,” Harris said.

“I think there is a public safety issue there with the traffic. Add that on top of the new apartment building that’s down at Marina Bay. It’s almost impossible to get to work, into Boston. Especially on a rainy, snowy day, it takes forever to get over the Neponset Bridge. It takes me forever.”

Harris said he had similar concerns about traffic at C-Mart, whose owner prevailed in Land Court over the city earlier this year. The two sides are now discussing potential mitigation measures.

“We know it’s going to happen, so let’s make sure any mitigating factors with the traffic, we’re on top of them now and not fixing it later,” Harris said.

Harris said he would work with residents to ensure proposals are feasible for certain neighborhoods, such as a plan to open an 81-seat hot pot restaurant in the former home of Fashion Quality Cleaners on Billings Road that was withdrawn in February after receiving a negative from residents at a Zoning Board of Appeals meeting.

“It’s going to be important throughout my 21 months as ward councillor to be on top of similar projects that are going to be taking place, such as restaurant openings, [and] whether it’s feasible for the area, feasible for traffic and parking,” Harris said. “It’s about the people who pay the taxes in this city. They deserve the best because they pay a good amount of taxes.”

Harris said a new commuter ferry between Marina Bay and Boston would help alleviate traffic impact, and he hopes to work with the state on the issue.

“I would like to work with the state to get a ferry system back over in Marina Bay. It would help the businesses there, it would help people who just want to go to work, and on weekends people would be able to go enjoy Boston and not worry about driving and parking,” Harris said. “I don’t think it’s a 100 percent solution, but I think it’s a good alternative.”

Residents, Harris said, have already begun reaching out to him on several issues. He plans on pressing for the installation of a new bus shelter outside the Moorings, for example, and has fielded other questions about boat docks and benches. Harris said he looks forward to working with his constituents and hopes they reach out to him.

“I’m going to be up and running within the next week. People will be able to contact me and if I don’t answer the phone, I will get right back to them. I’ll be responding right away. And I’ll be having community meetings when different issues take place — will organize them,” Harris said.

“I would hope people reach out to me if anybody is in [need], even if it’s not the individuals themselves. If somebody knows somebody who is in need, needs help running a fundraiser, doing anything like that, I would be there to help.”

Harris said he has DJed and emceed numerous fundraisers. He also taught CCD at Star of the Sea before it closed, and then taught at St. William’s in Dorchester before it closed; he also ran the basketball program at the latter. Additionally, Harris coached Little League in Savin Hill and organized five father-daughter dances at the Woodward School while his daughter was there.

Harris has also volunteered for the Squantum Fourth of July parade in previous years.

Harris plans on retiring from his job with the U.S. Postal Service in just under two years. At that point, he said he would like to further continue his political career — and is also considering law school — but he declined to say which office he is interested in.

“I’ll be retiring from the post office in 22 months. I would like to pursue my political career. I would like to go back to school and possibly go back to law school at night,” Harris said. “I’ve gotten a taste of it.”

Vietnam War Remembrance Ceremony April 28

A wreath-laying ceremony to remember the 48 Quincy men killed in the Vietnam War will be held on Thursday, April 28, beginning at 2 p.m.

The ceremony, organized by the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces Quincy Chapter, will be held at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clock Tower located at 500 Victory Rd. in Marina Bay. The tower, dedicated in 1987, is inscribed with the names of the 48 Quincy residents who died as a result of injuries sustained in the war.

The honored guests and speakers for the ceremony will be Mayor Thomas Koch, Sen. John Keenan and Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey.

George Nicholson, the city’s director of veterans services, and John “Sonny” Joyce will read the names of the 48 fallen servicemen.

Taps will be blown by Robert LaFleur and the 2nd Marine Division, led by President Vincent Dolan, will provide a firing detail.

Color guards from various veterans organizations in the city will also participate.

DPW Crews Flushing Hydrants April 20, April 27

The Department of Public Works (DPW) will perform hydrant flushing on Wednesday April 20 and Wednesday, April 27. Water Department crews will be flushing hydrants during the day, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

How Will the Flushing Program Affect You?

The flushing may temporarily cause the water in the distribution system to be rusty and discolored, which can stain clothes and fixtures. For this reason, customers are advised to limit water use and to avoid doing laundry while the flushing is taking place.

If possible, avoid using water while the hydrant flushing is taking place. By not using water from the tap (cold or hot) or running appliances that use water (dishwashers and washing machines), you can prevent discolored water from entering your household plumbing system altogether.

If you encounter discolored water following hydrant flushing, run the cold water taps only, for 5 to 15 minutes or until water clears, which will allow discolored water to work its way out of your household plumbing system.

Do not use your hot water faucets to prevent discolored water from entering your hot water system. If you do experience discolored water when using your hot water, flush in the same manner as the cold system.

Do not do laundry while or shortly after flushing occurs. The discolored water can sometimes stain fabrics. Wait until water runs clear at your taps before using your washing machine, and wash a load of dark clothes first.

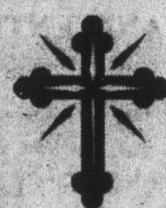

If laundry appears to be stained, keep articles wet. Do not dry. Rewash the load using a stain/rust remover (such as a product called “Rust Out”).

Do not use bleach on stained laundry as bleach will “set” the stain.

If, after flushing your water pressure or volume seems low, clean faucet screens to remove silt and mineral sediment that could be obstructing water flow.

The DPW apologizes to those affected for any inconvenience that the flushing may cause and thanks you for your understanding during this temporary nuisance.

If you have any questions or problems during the flushing program, do not hesitate to call the DPW office at (617) 376-1910.

On Monday, April 4, 2016 at approximately 12:20 a.m., Officer Sean Fitzgerald was dispatched to Davis Street on a report of a motor vehicle accident – with the driver attempting to leave the scene. Multiple units headed to the area to try to locate the suspect vehicle which was described as a gray Cadillac.

Officer Fish was the first to arrive on Davis Street where he found a chaotic scene. There were numerous residents out in the street appearing to be upset while examining damaged parked vehicles, which were now blocking the street. As the Officer approached, area residents pointed at the driver of the gray Cadillac who caused the damage.

The male driver/suspect was stumbling around in the street so Officer Fish had him sit on the curb. After Officer Fish determined that the suspect was uninjured, he asked the suspect if he was the driver of the Cadillac and he said that he was. The suspect said he was coming from a friend's house. Due to the strong odor of alcoholic beverage and initial unsteadiness on his feet, the suspect was asked how much he had to drink and he responded, "5 to 6 beers." Officer Fish asked the suspect if he would submit to Field Sobriety Testing and he stated that he would.

Officers Fitzgerald, Bossart, O'Hare, Dougan and McKim arrived on scene and tackled the task of determining exactly what happened; the chain of events and this began with interviews of victims and witnesses. Officer Bossart took pictures of the scene. Officers O'Hare and Dougan checked the scene for safety issues, such as possible injuries and gas leaks. Officer McKim stayed with the suspect while the other Officers tried to recreate the crash scene. Officer Fitzgerald asked the suspect to stand up from the curb and upon doing this the suspect staggered and briefly lost balance.

The Officer then explained each of the field sobriety tests which consisted of the One Leg Stand, the Nine Step Walk and Turn and then the Horizontal Gaze Nystagmus test (HGN). During the One Leg Stand, the suspect began the test and immediately lost his balance. He failed to lift his foot off the pavement for approximately five seconds. Once he actually lifted his foot, he placed it back on the pavement after approximately three seconds. He then raised his foot only to place his foot on the pavement after approximately one second. He began to fall sideways (left side) and staggered to catch himself from falling. Officer Fitzgerald concluded that the suspect had failed this test.

The second test was the Nine Step Walk and Turn. The

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

suspect was unable to walk heel to toe, losing his balance which at one point resulted in Officer McKim having to catch him from falling over. The suspect took ten steps and then staggered and again almost fell. He turned around to walk back and staggered, took four steps back and stopped. While attempting the nine step walk and turn, the suspect was counting out loud, "one one thousand, two one thousand, four one thousand, four one thousand."

Although not asked to do this, the suspect was unable to count numerically in order. Officer Fitzgerald concluded that the suspect failed this test. The third test administered was the Horizontal Gaze Nystagmus (HGN) Test. After explaining the test to the suspect, Officer Fitzgerald started the test by placing his pen approximately twelve inches in front of the suspect's head. The suspect was advised to follow the pen's movement from left to right with only his eyes, but the suspect repeatedly moved his head to follow the pen. After 4 failed attempts, the Officer concluded that the suspect failed all three tests and he was clearly impaired.

The suspect was then placed under arrest and given his Miranda Rights (You have the right to remain silent etc). The suspect said he would answer questions. He said that he was coming from a friend's house down the street and had "3 or 4 beers." The suspect then asked, "What - did I hit something?" When told that he hit numerous parked cars, the suspect said, "I was only going 5 or 10 miles an hour."

Officer Fitzgerald determined that the suspect appeared to have consciously disregarded, or was indifferent to, anyone else that may have been on the road or any injury he may have caused. He showed no remorse for his actions. The rate of speed and force he exerted into the other vehicles caused air bag deployment on his vehicle. Officer McKim transported the suspect to the Quincy Police station to be booked while Officer Fitzgerald orchestrated the towing of 5 vehicles that were damaged and unable to be moved. Two other cars were damaged but not towed. Witnesses were residents as well as victims.

One woman said she was asleep when she heard a "huge crunch." She said she hopped out of bed and looked out the window and saw "a gray Cadillac backing up from behind a car and then drive into a red Cadillac." She then said she saw the gray Cadillac back up and go up on the curb and smash into the black Mustang. She added that once the gray Cadillac was stopped, the driver revved the engine to try and back up but was stuck. Another resident said he went outside with another neighbor, smashed the passenger side window of the gray Cadillac, reached in to the car to put it in park and then took the keys out. He said he made sure that the driver did not leave and once Officer Fish arrived on scene, he gave the keys to him. Another neighbor said that he had just finished landscaping in front of his home and the vehicle tore up all the work he had done. He said the estimated damage was around $300.

At booking, Officer Yee administered the breath test to the suspect, which resulted in a reading of 0.26, well over the limit. In summary, Officer Fitzgerald charged the suspect, a 21 year old Quincy resident, with "OUI Liquor, Operating Recklessly, Lane violations, Leaving the scene after property damage (didn't stop after hitting first car) and Malicious Destruction of Property."

The suspect drove while intoxicated, down the street, hit a parked car, backed up and sideswiped another car. He then proceeded down the street hitting one car so hard, that it ended up on top of another car. He backed up and raced down the street, going up on the sidewalk. He hit another car so hard that he pushed it into the middle of the street. He backed up again, and tried to ram his car through the black Mustang he just hit and wedged his vehicle in between another car. When he did that he pushed that car into another car. He still tried to get away, revving his car in reverse but was stuck, where bystanders were then able to stop him. All this happened, yet the driver said early on to Officers, "What - did I hit something?" Nice Work!

Quincy College Nursing Instructor Receives Teaching Award

Dr. Kechi Iheduru Honored

Quincy College Professor of Nursing Kechinyere (Kechi) C. Iheduru-Anderson, DNP, RN, CNE, CWCN was recently honored at the American Nurses Association Massachusetts Celebration of Nursing Awards Dinner.

Dr. Kechi Iheduru received the American Nurses Association Massachusetts Excellence in Nursing Education Award.

The American Nurses Association (ANA) Massachusetts Excellence in Nursing Education Award is awarded to a nurse educator who demonstrates excellence in nursing education. The Nursing Educator Award winners are often characterized by their adopting innovative approaches to teaching based on the needs of the student while facilitating an environment of learning and professional development.

Dr. Iheduru was nominated for the award by the Nursing Faculty of Quincy College.

"Dr. Kechi Iheduru is an exemplary nurse educator," said Linda Pendergast, Ph.D., RN, CNE Dean of Academic Division of Nursing. "She is committed to helping students succeed through evidence-based practice in higher education and especially, in nursing education. She is truly an academic and shares her professional perspective through faculty mentoring, presentations and workshops and by publishing in professional journals. We are all very proud and honored to be colleagues of Dr. Iheduru."

Dr. Iheduru has taught at Quincy College since 2012 and has acted as Interim Program Director, Interim Assistant Dean, and Instructor during her tenure at Quincy College. Dr. Iheduru has also taught at Regis College and Laboure College.

Dr. Iheduru, an immigrant from Nigeria, began her career in nursing prior coming to the United States in 1997, working as a clinical nurse at the Mbanjo Joint Hospital. Dr. Iheduru received her Bachelor's in Science of nursing from Curry College in 2010, her Masters of Science in nursing from Regis College in 2012 and her Doctorate of Nursing Practice in nursing education from Regis College.

Even in her clinical experience, Dr. Iheduru gravitated to educational roles acting as Clinical Education Manager and Employee Health Coordinator for Kindred Hospital in Boston, and acted as the Staff RN for the Medical Surgical Telemetry Unit at Quincy Medical Center.

DR. KECCHI IHEDURU

Beyond her impressive credentials, Dr. Iheduru is humble, approachable, and a dynamic educator on both the Quincy and Plymouth campuses of Quincy College. In her classroom, Dr. Iheduru ensures that every student has a voice and encourage students to explore the areas that they do not understand. She holds her students to a high standard, challenging them beyond their comfort zone.

When reflecting upon her teaching style, Dr. Iheduru often encourages her students to reach higher, stating to her students: "Seventy-three percent is a passing grade. Why do you want to be there? Always aim for one-hundred percent, always aim for the highest you can achieve."

Dr. Iheduru clearly holds herself to the highest standard but retains a quick smile and humility when reflecting upon her career as a nursing educator.

"While it's very flattering, gratifying, and exhilarating to be recognized by the ANA, I firmly believe your work is absolutely useless if you do not share it," Dr. Iheduru said. "I am routinely challenged by my Quincy College colleagues and students, sharing knowledge and benefiting from each others strengths. It is a tremendous honor to be nominated for doing something that I love, something that brings so much joy to my life."

"I chose to work at Quincy College because I knew that I could make an impact, a one-on-one impact on a diverse demographic of students. Being an immigrant, I love being a role model and mentor for all students and a resource and support for my colleagues. I can make the most difference here. I believe that in giving the best of yourself, others will follow your example."

ADAMS NATIONAL HISTORICAL PARK that includes "the Old House at Peace field" (above) will open for its 70th season Tuesday, April 19. Adams National Historical Park Opens For 70th Season April 19

Also 100th Anniversary Of National Park Service This Year

The Adams National Historical Park opens for the new season Tuesday, April 19. This year marks the 100th anniversary of the National Park Service and the 70th anniversary of Adams National Historical Park (NHP).

The park includes two humble cottages at the foot of Penns Hill, also known as the birthplaces of Second and Sixth United States Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams, and the "Old House at Peace field," home to both Presidents and four generations of their distinguished family.

The historic homes will be open for tours from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week, including holidays, from April 19 through Nov. 10.

Tickets for tours of the historic homes may be purchased at the Visitor Center, located in the Galleria at 1250 Hancock St. in Quincy Center where free validated parking is available on the 4th and 5th floors in the Galleria Parking Garage.

The Park's trolley bus leaves from the Visitor Center for the historic homes throughout the day; the first trolley leaves at 9:15 a.m. and the last trolley leaves the Visitor Center at 3:15 p.m. Tickets are sold on a first-come, first-served basis and tour size is limited for the protection of the historic resources and the comfort and safety of visitors to the homes.

Large bags and backpacks are not permitted in the historic homes and storage for bags and backpacks is not available. Visitors are asked to plan accordingly.

Tickets are $10 each for adults aged 16 and over. Children aged 15 and under are admitted free.

National Park Service passes are also accepted and may be purchased at the Visitor Center. Admission to Adams National Historical Park, and all 404 national parks, will be free on Tuesday, April 19 through Sunday, April 24 during National Park Week. National Park Week encourages visitors to enjoy the beauty and wonder of some of the world's most spectacular scenery, historic places and cultural treasures for free.

Free tickets for tours of the historic homes at Adams National Historical Park may be obtained at the Visitor Center and will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis during National Park Week.

For more information about 2016 tours, programs, anniversary events, and activities, at Adams National Historical Park, call the Visitor Center at 617.770.1175 or visit www.nps.gov/adam and check out the calendar of events.

Quincy, NQ Boys Tennis Swing Into Action

By BILL GRIFFIN

The goal for boys tennis at Quincy and North Quincy is the same. Each team has a chance at making the state tournament which would make for a fine spring of tennis in the city.

Each team returns a veteran group. As the weather turns warm and the players find their tennis legs, the talent and experience will come out of hibernation and likely give each club a shot at post-season play.

"Our goal is to make the tournament. Depending on how the match-ups work out against our opponents, I think we have a good chance," said Quincy coach Elliott Columb. The Presidents play in the Keenan Division of the Patriot League which means two matches against both Duxbury and Hingham, two powerhouses who annually compete with the best in the state.

"We have some difficult matches," said Columb. "As a team, we have a lot of power. We hit the ball hard. We're looking for more consistency. If we improve and play more steady tennis, we have a chance to make the tourney."

Hard work at practice and in the off-season has produced significant improvement and gives North coach Matt Ramponi hope that his team can qualify for the tournament for the first time in recent memory. The Red Raiders defeated Quincy, 4-1 in a meeting last week.

"We gained a lot of varsity experience last year," said Ramponi whose club lost only one player to graduation. "The improvement from last year to this year has been awesome. The kids have put the work in, and it shows in their game and their conditioning. I like this group. They come to practice every day, and they work hard."

Junior captain Brigham McKee leads North at No. 1 singles. He won in straight sets against the Presidents. He is a steady player who returns well and has solid strokes from both sides on the baseline.

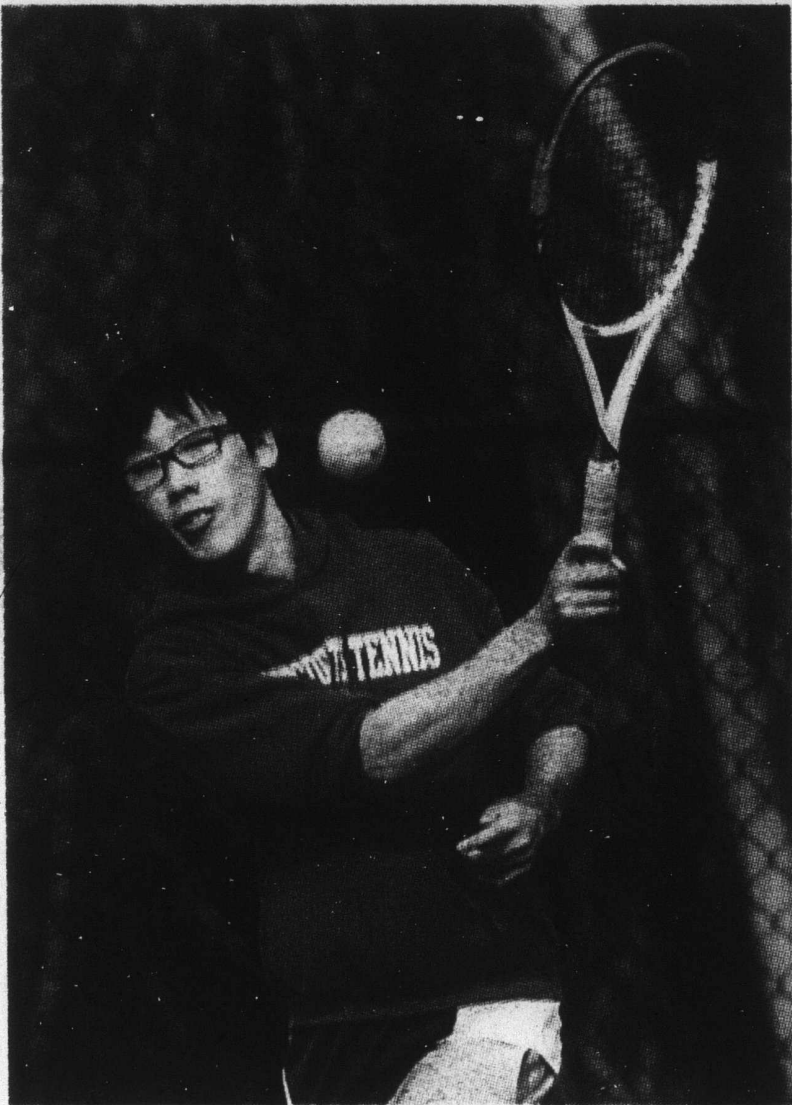

"He is in great shape and he loves to compete. He'll stay out on the court for two hours to get a win," said Ramponi.

Senior captain Yeyang Wang also won in straight sets against Quincy. He hits hard and changes speeds well on his shots.

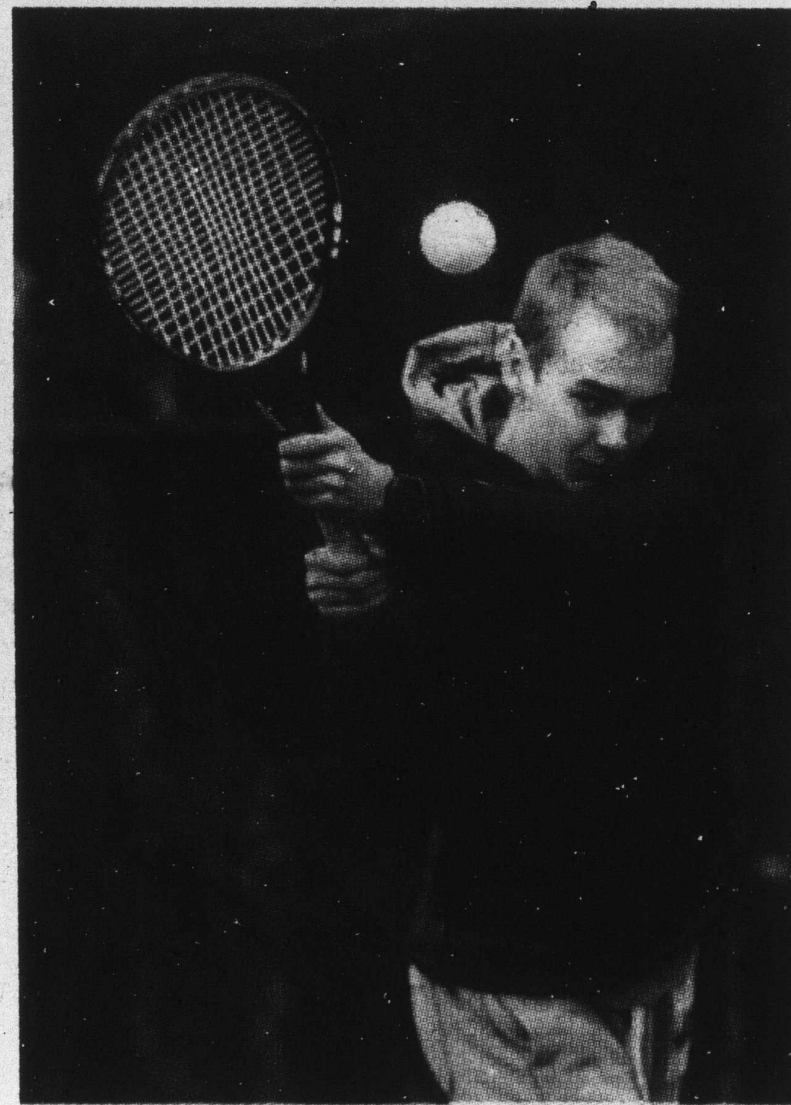

"He looked good against Quincy, and I think he'll get more consistent as the season goes on," said Ramponi.

Freshman Alex Atanassov is a promising player at No. 3 singles. He is power player with a good serve who will improve as he gains varsity experience. Despite losing, he showed promise and forced a tie-breaker in his three-set match against Quincy.

"He's a football player, and you don't find a lot of kids who play football and tennis," said Ramponi. "He's big and strong. He's all power. He's only going to get better as he gets older and more experienced."

Senior Li Chen and Daniel Wong had a straight-set victory in doubles against Quincy. Chen hits the ball hard and is one of the most improved players on the team. He is an athletic power player, and he blends well with Wong who is consistent from the baseline.

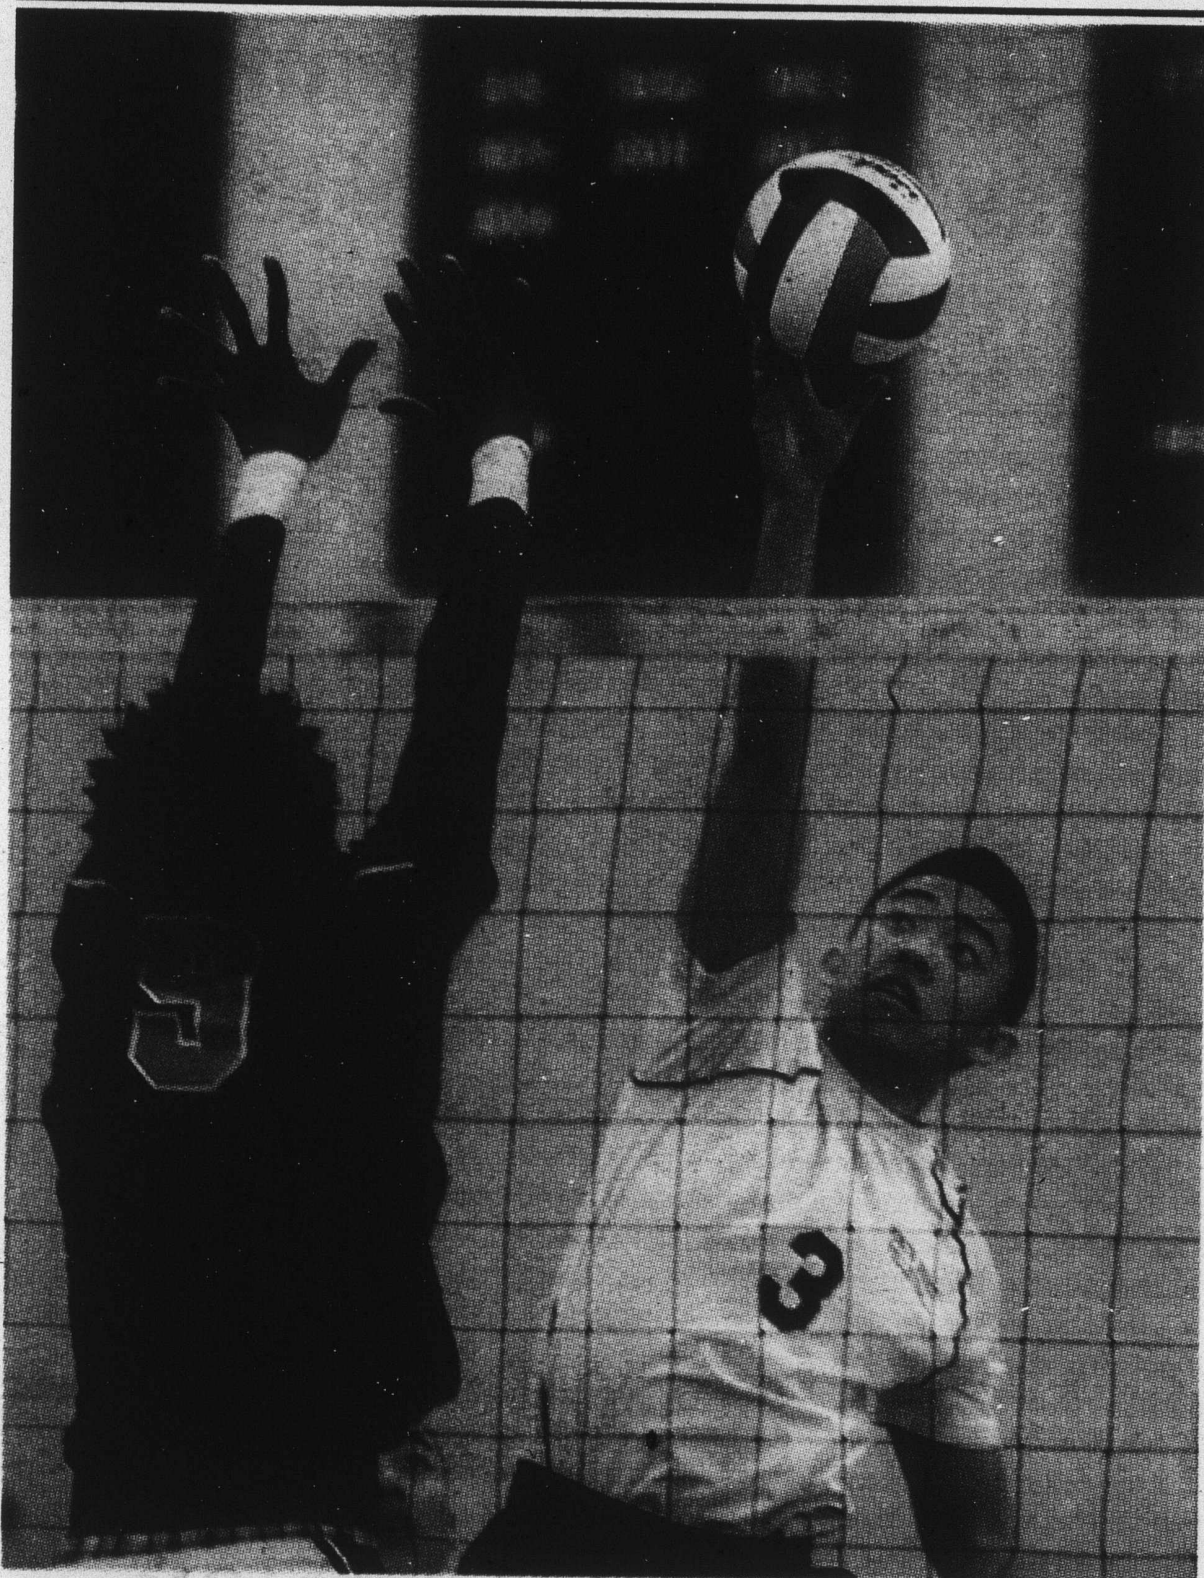

"Li is one of the hardest workers I've seen," said Ramponi. "He gives everything he has at every practice and in every match. The two of them make a good combination."

Senior Wilson Tang and sophomore Daniel Chen posted an impressive 6-0,

North Quincy Boys Volleyball Off To Fast Start

By TOM JOYCE

On the track they are on, the North Quincy High School boys volleyball team appears as though they might just be able to do exactly what they have set out to accomplish.

Off to a fast 4-1 start this season, the Red Raiders, albeit younger than usual, are working towards clinching a spot in the playoffs.

While the playoffs have been fine in the past, Raiders head coach Jason Cai might not be satisfied with his team simply making it that far.

"I'd like to go a little further than we usually do," he said. "Maybe we could make it to the sectional round of the playoffs. My hope would be trying to win a league championship."

Certainly, their sizable 3-0 (25-18, 26-24, 25-13) win over Durfee High School last Friday inspired confidence, especially with key players missing from the lineup.

"They usually have a lot of big players, a lot of big blocks," Cai said of Durfee. "They have tall, athletic kids. Sometimes, they don't have the best defense. But you just have to set. You get them to pass it to their setter and make it easy for run our on plays."

This season, the team has been led by their three seniors: defensive specialist Devin Bragden, middle hitter Anxhelo Taho and libero Shiggy Zheng.

Cai said that Zheng, the libero, has been especially key in setting up the attack.

"He passes about 90 percent of the balls, so he gives us a good start," he said. "Eric (Huang) is our setter, and he does a pretty good job of that."

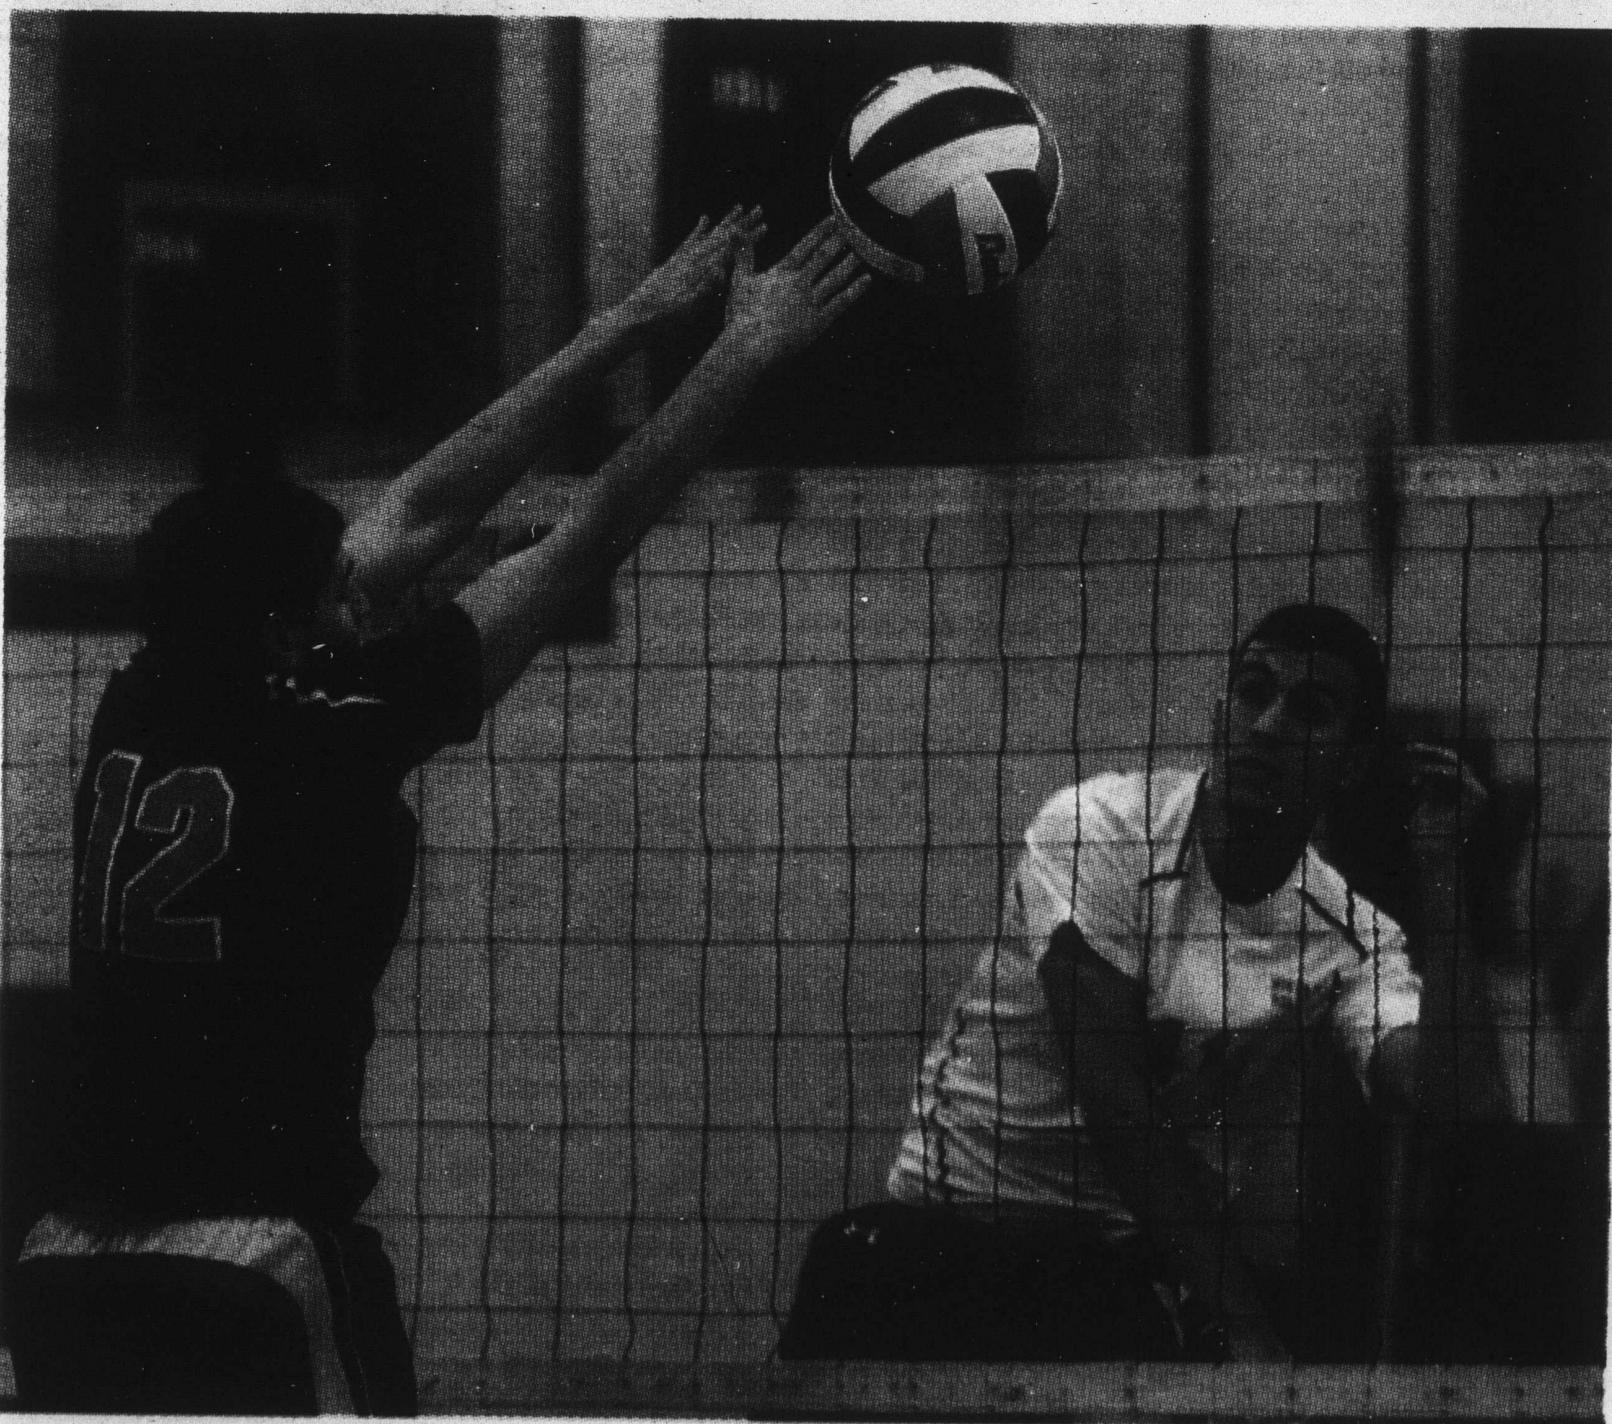

In his team's win over Durfee, Zheng led the team with seven digs while Taho accumulated 12 kills and Huang, the junior, had 24 assists. And they did not play the entire time. Headed into the third and final match, the dominant Red Raiders used a handful of subs.

While numbers alone might not show what he did, because he is more of a defensive player, Cai said that Bragden's performance was among the top he had seen from the senior.

Of course, being a senior led team may have its benefits. But having youth is also beneficial. Fortunately for the Red Raiders, they have both and even if it is the seniors who are the team's top players, they are receiving plenty of help from their younger players.

"We're pretty young," Cai admitted. "The majority of my squad is all sophomores. I have a bunch of sophomores so hopefully we can be pretty competitive for the next two or three seasons."

Among younger players, sophomore outside hitter Timmy Chiu shined when ANXHELO TAHO, a junior middle hitter for the North Quincy varsity boys volleyball team, drills one of his 12 kills past a Durfee defender in the Red Raiders' 25-18, 26-24, 25-13 win last Friday night on their home court. With the victory NQ improved its season record to 4-1.

he received an opportunity. In his team's win over Durfee, he led the team with three aces with his jumping serve. He also had seven kills, which was second to only Taho.

As a younger team, Cai is generally pleased with the progress his team has made so far this season.

"I wish we were a little further along," he admitted. "But I can't complain. Sometimes I have higher expectations. And the higher the expectations, the harder they are going to fall if you don't meet it.

"You've got to go in and have expectations like making the playoffs and playing tough," he added. "That's all you can really ask for."

The way his team has played, Cai is optimistic that his team will stay strong.

But he knows they cannot simply focus on their past success.

"Hopefully we have a good rest of the season," Cai said. "We have a lot of games left and hopefully, we continue to play tough and play as a team."

YMCA Healthy Kids Day April 30

By JOHN GALLUZZO
Development Writer
South Shore YMCA

Summer is just around the corner and with it comes our children's break from the routine – mornings spent sleeping in, afternoons spent watching television or playing video games in the cool air conditioning and evenings enjoying a nice ice cream cone before bed. It may sound great, but a summer spent like this can have lasting negative effects.

On Saturday, April 30, the South Shore YMCA is holding a free community event to inspire kids to keep their minds and bodies active. This year marks the 25th annual YMCA's Healthy Kids Day®, the Y's national initiative to improve health and well-being for kids and families. The day-long event features activities such as games, arts and crafts that motivate and teach families how to develop healthy routines at home.

The list of activities at this year's Healthy Kids Day at the Quincy Y is getting longer by the day. YMCA Sports and Recreation staff will be hosting basketball and soccer games, while the Arts and Education team will have a craft table and a scavenger hunt. Quincy Day Camp staff will be playing dodge ball and having a blast in their gaga pit (come see it, if you've never heard of it!) and the Inclusion team will have a table full of activities as well.

The community will be out in force to aid the cause, as well. Children will learn about safety from Fallon Ambulance and even McGruff the Crime Dog himself. Eastern Bank will be on hand to help kids get a jumpstart on financial literacy, as will Quincy Credit Union. Spaulding Rehab will answer questions about healthy living, as will South Cove Community Health Center and the Women, Infant and Children (WIC) family nutrition program. Macaroni Kid, the U.S. Army, Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., Next Step Living, and many more will fill the Y's Main Street with information and entertainment all geared at prepping our kids to have a great summer.

YMCA's Healthy Kids Day, celebrated at over 1,300 Ys across the country by over 1.2 million participants, works to get more kids moving and learning, creating habits that they continue all summer long, which is a critical time for kids' health. When kids are out of school, they can face hurdles that prevent them from reaching their full potential. Research shows that without access to out-of-school physical and learning activities, kids fall behind academically. Kids also gain weight twice as fast during summer than the school year. As spring turns to summer, Healthy Kids Day is a powerful reminder not to let children idle away their summer days. Instead, the Y hopes to focus on wowing them with their potential and make this their best summer ever by staying active and learning.

"The Y believes in the potential of all children, and we strive to help kids find the Wow! factor inside themselves. A child's development is never on vacation and Healthy Kids Day is a great opportunity to educate families and motivate kids to stay active in spirit, mind and body throughout the summer," said Annie Vraibel, Youth & Family Director for the South Shore YMCA.

The Quincy YMCA will hold Healthy Kids Day at both its Quincy and Emilson (Hanover) Branches on Saturday, April 30, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. For more information, contact Annie Vraibel at avraibel@ssymca.org or 781-829-8585 ext. 8232.

The South Shore YMCA is a charity. For information on how to support its work through volunteering or donations, contact Mary Orne at orne@ssymca.org or 781-264-9400 ext. 3306.

April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month

As a leading organization in Youth Development, the South Shore YMCA is committed to educating our community on how to prevent, recognize, and react responsibly to child abuse. While the Y is committed to child safety year-round, each April we add a special emphasis on raising awareness in our communities in support of this national movement by offering a variety of opportunities to promote child well-being and enhance child safety, including events such as Healthy Kids Day on Saturday, April 30th from 11 am to 1 pm at the Y's Quincy and Emilson Branches and child protection training opportunities for staff and community members. Visit www.ssymca.org/safe-kids to explore valuable child protection resources with some key information that we hope will help you understand this community challenge.

Quincy Girls Tennis Has Talent, Experience

By BILL GRIFFIN

It was not the perfect setting for the beginning of tennis season.

The temperature dipped below 40 degrees. A cold wind whipped across Bishop Park. One of the courts was still snow-covered and could not be used for the match.

Quincy coach Meg Matthews wished for two things. She wanted her team to win its matches. She wanted the matches to pass quickly.

"I wanted our kids to win and I wanted straight-set matches. It was too cold to stand out there for any long three-setters or tie-breakers," smiled Matthews.

The Presidents granted their coach's wish with a 4-1 win over North Quincy last week at Bishop. The victory could be the first step in a run which takes Quincy to a post-season berth.

Matthews feels her team has the combination of talent and experience which gives the Presidents an excellent chance to qualify for the state tournament for the first time since 2013.

"We have a number of starters who are returning," she said. "We play Hingham and Duxbury twice in our half of the Patriot League (Keenan Division), and they are very good. Scituate is strong as well. I think if we win the matches we are supposed to win, we have a good chance to qualify for the tournament."

Senior captain Tien Le, who posted a straight-set win against North, gives Quincy a strong presence at No. 1 singles. She is a consistent, athletic player with a solid-all-around game. Her forehand, backhand and serve are all excellent weapons.

"Tien is an excellent student and a great teammate along with being a fine player," said Matthews. "Her biggest asset is her tenacity. She never gives up on a point or a shot."

Sophomore Erika Sato played well at second singles against North, and senior Megi Maci earned a 6-1, 6-0 victory at third singles against the Red Raiders.

"Erika has improved a great deal since last year," said Matthews. "She is a consistent player who gets the ball back and can wear down an opponent. Megi has a strong backhand, and she works hard on every point. Like Tien, she never gives up on a shot."

Seniors Kalima Bukunya and Vivian Tran posted a 6-3, 6-1 win against North. They are an ideal combination. Bukunya is strong and quick at the net while Tran has a good serve and is a steady player on the baseline.

"They played together a little last year," said Matthews. "They work well together. They're a solid pair, and they keep each other playing on an even keel."

Seniors Sylvene Tran and Julia Doyle earned a 6-3, 6-3 victory over North. Like Bukunya and Vivian Tran at first singles, their styles blend together well. Sylvene Tran is an effective player at net while Doyle has a strong baseline game and is able to work an opponent from side-to-side.

"They both have good backhands as well," said Matthews.

Quincy has good depth which will enable Matthews to work several players into her rotation depending on the opponent. Senior Joyce Zeng, junior Kristin Tran, junior Wendy Zhou, sophomore Catlinh Lee, sophomore Smriti Kumar and Jane Kuang are all capable players for the Presidents.

"I think we'll have different players rotating in at third singles and second doubles," said Matthews.

Like all coaches, Matthews was happy to see last week's stormy weather, which postponed matches and limited her team to indoor matches, calm down.

"We don't have access to an indoor court like some of the teams we play," she said. "We can work on conditioning indoors, but it's not the same as playing tennis."

North and Quincy will meet in a rematch May 24.

Boys Tennis Swings Into Action

6-0 win against Quincy.

"Wilson gets to a lot of balls and Daniel is an excellent athlete who is fun to watch," said Ramponi.

Ramponi speaks highly of the attitude and the work ethic of his team. Reserves Sammy Szeto and Devin Merrill help set the tone with their work in practice.

"They hold everyone accountable. They get to practice on time, and they make sure their teammates are there and ready to work," said Ramponi. "They are always encouraging, and they have excellent leadership skills."

Quincy brings back five veteran players led by Jason Truong at No. 1 singles. He played both singles and doubles last year, and features a hard serve and a good forehand.

"His flat forehand is excellent. I'd like to see him improve on longer points, and I think he will as he gets more experience this year," said Columb.

Senior Asish Perouvali is a consistent player who works well on the baseline at No. 2 singles. Senior captain Genderson Lai had a three-set win against North at No. 3 singles, and plays the serve-and-volley game well.

"Asish is steady with both the backhand and forehand," said Columb. "Genderson also has a good top-spin forehand and played well against North."

Senior Kyle Vo and junior Vincent Tran played at No. 1 doubles against North. Sophomores Tony Doung and Perry Deng showed promise in their match at No. 2 doubles against the Red Raiders.

"Kyle and Vinny communicated well," said Columb. "Tony and Perry are good from the baseline. In doubles, you have to be able to come to net, and I think both of them will improve in that part of their game."

Senior Yu Yang Zheng and Ba Cao missed the North match, but figure to be important players for Quincy.

"They will see a lot of action for us," said Columb.

The two will play again on May 23, and both coaches hope to be well on the way to a spot in the tournament by the time the rematch takes place.

"It's so cold in the first weeks that it is hard to get loose. Once the weather warms up, everyone will get loose and play better," said Columb.

"I like the way our kids work. I think we have a good shot at the tournament," said Ramponi.

North Quincy Lacrosse Correction

A story in last week's Quincy Sun incorrectly stated the 2015 season record for the North Quincy High School varsity boys lacrosse team.

The Red Raiders last year compiled a 5-14 record.

Their victories included conference wins over Silver Lake and Rockland.

Also, North Quincy had five games that went into overtime, including one against Hanover.

The Sun regrets the error.

Comeback Bid Falls Short Against Hingham Reserves Nearly Rally Presidents In Opener

By BILL GRIFFIN

Much of this may be hard to believe.

Let's begin with the final result. Traditional powerhouse Hingham held off a seventh-inning rally to edge Quincy, 7-6 in the Patriot League Keenan Division opener at a cold, windy Adams Field Monday afternoon.

That tells a small part of the story. Quincy trailed 7-3 entering the bottom of the final inning. Coach Rick Beach cleared his bench. He sat his regulars and sent his substitutes, his reserves up to bat. Not just one bench player. Five of them. And they very nearly won the baseball game.

Antonio Barbosa and Chris Iacobucci worked walks. Liam Gambon singled. Harrison Pitts drew a walk. One run in, bases loaded. Michael Ortiz drilled a hard ground ball, beat the relay throw to first, and two runs scored. Quincy was within one, 7-6. All five players had sat for the entire wind-swept day, had grown cold and stiff, but stayed in the game and were ready when their chance arrived.

Hingham reliever Peter Murphy ended the rally and finished the game with a pair of strikeouts, but Quincy may well have set a tone for its season with the most unlikely of comebacks against a strong Hingham team, a team that won a state title two years ago.

"I was happy with the way we played," said Beach. "The kids on the bench come to practice and work as hard as the starters. They deserved their chance, and they nearly came through for us with a win today. I was proud of their effort against Hingham who always has a good team."

Beach put his stamp on his first game as Quincy head coach. He loves the play small-ball. He loves to run. Quincy was five-for-six in stolen base attempts. He wants his players to have an idea of the zone, to swing only at strikes. Quincy worked 11 walks. He wants his team to make the plays. On a day better suited for ice fishing with a wind strong enough to knock down tall buildings, Quincy played errorless baseball.

"I've always coached an aggressive style," said Beach. "The kids like it because it keeps them in the game, and they love to run when they get on base."

The defense went beyond making the routine plays. Junior shortstop Chris Mann was razor-sharp on three chances, including a fine stop in the hole which probably saved a run in the first inning. Brendan Collins threw out a runner at the plate from left field and Cody Desmond roamed deep in center to grab a fly ball in the third with a runner at second.

"Our defense was good. With the bad weather last week, we were inside and limited to practicing defense. We took the chance to work on our defense, and that showed today," said Beach.

Sophomore starter Mike Tomlinson was effective when he kept the ball down and threw well into the fifth inning for the Presidents. Kevin Fitzgerald finished with two innings of shutout, one-hit relief which included a beautiful pickoff move which caught a Hingham runner off second base.

"Tomlinson pitched very well, and Fitzgerald showed a good curveball," said Beach.

There will also be food and music.

Junior third baseman Owen Lynch led the offense with a sweet swing which produced a pair of triples. He also had an RBI, scored a run and stole a base. Joe Ferracane had a pair of hits, an RBI and a stolen base. Mann had a single and walk while Phil Czjakowski added a single, an RBI and a stolen base for Quincy. Desmond had a walk and a stolen base, and Peter Saccoach walked twice and stole a base.

"We did a good job working the count, and Owen put a couple of good swings on the ball. Considering that we didn't get outside for almost 10 days, I thought we hit the ball well," said Beach.

Ferracane drove in Desmond with an infield hit for a 1-0 Quincy lead in the first. Hingham went up 2-1 in the third on a two-run home run by Will d'Entremont. The Presidents took a 3-2 lead in the third on RBI from Lynch and Czjakowski before Hingham went ahead for good with five in the fifth for a 7-3 advantage which barely survived the charge of Quincy's bench in the final inning.

"I liked the hustle today. They gave everything they had. You could see that in the final inning. Our bench was loud with our starting players rooting for our subs. That's all you can ask," said Beach. "I think we have a good nucleus. We have juniors and seniors with experience and we have younger players with potential. I think we'll have a good year."

Quincy is at Duxbury Friday at 4 p.m.

QUINCY NATIVE Donald McCarthy II (left) will run this year's Boston Marathon April 18th to support the Joe Andruzzi Foundation. The organization provides help and hope for cancer patients and their families by contributing financial and emotional support. With McCarthy is Joe Andruzzi, a former three-time Super Bowl winning offensive guard with the New England Patriots, who was diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's Burkitt's lymphoma in 2007 and was treated at Boston's Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and Brigham and Women's Hospital. Disease-free less than a year later, Andruzzi dedicated his life to supporting other cancer patients and funding life-saving research. McCarthy, age 36, is the Vice President of Events and Promotional Marketing for the Phantom Gourmet TV show. He was inspired to run this year's marathon - his first road race - for the Foundation after the unexpected loss of his father this past June.

Courtney Earle Running Marathon For Pediatric Cancer Research

Courtney Earle of Quincy will participate in the 120th Boston Marathon Monday in support of the MassGeneral Hospital for Children (MGHfC) pediatric cancer team, Fighting Kids' Cancer ... One Step at a Time.

The team's runners, who include former patients, parents of former patients and hospital supporters, will join an estimated 30,000 runners along the 26.2 mile course that spans from Hopkinton to Boston's Boylston Street. This year's team, made up of 105 runners, aims to raise more than $1 million to support research initiatives as well as quality of life programming like art and music therapy; support groups; and child life specialists who help patients and their families cope with illness and treatment.

Thanks to a partnership with John Hancock, the pediatric team has raised over $11 million dollars since 1998.

"Over the last 17 years, I've been honored to run the marathon in honor of my patients while raising money to support our program at MGHfC," says Dr. Howard Weinstein, chief of Pediatric Hematology-Oncology at MGHfC and captain of the pediatric team. "The team provides an opportunity for our community members to get physically and emotionally involved in our mission to conquer childhood cancer."

ADULT SCOLIOSIS

When scoliosis occurs after puberty, the condition is referred to as "adult scoliosis." This sideways curvature of the spine may be the result of untreated or unrecognized childhood scoliosis, or it may develop during adulthood. Scoliosis that occurs after age 40, referred to as "degenerative adult scoliosis," is primarily caused by age and deterioration of the spine. To curb the pain and minimize the disability associated with degenerative adult scoliosis, many people turn to chiropractic treatment. According to a study that examined the effects of chiropractic treatment and exercise on adult scoliosis, researchers found that chiropractic-facilitated exercise and weight-bearing activities designed to correct spinal misalignment yielded a 40 percent reduction in pain and a 50 percent reduction in disability.

When adults are faced with scoliosis, the top care of choice is spinal adjustments to restore proper function. Our approach is so different because we are not just treating the spinal deformity, but the other factors that go along with it. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we feel that the best care for a scoliosis condition is prevention. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we're currently accepting new patients. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. If degenerative adult scoliosis is allowed to progress without treatment, breathing can become more difficult, and loss of muscle strength in the lower extremities (due to nerve compression) can make walking difficult.
